The night shoot will be registered with the N.F.A.A. and the Ohio Archers Association and 28 field targets will be shot.

REGISTRATION will begin at 7 o'clock and continue until dark. Awards will be presented in all classes and all entries are welcome to compete in the shooting.

Eleven Southeast Archers traveled to Jackson, O., to compete in the Regional Championships Sunday.

The clubs in Districts 5 and 7 make up the Regional, and 56 targets were shot; 28 field, and14 spot and 14 animal.

THOSE MAKING the trip were Frank, Evelyn, Rita and Donna Pennington, Bill Allen, Jay Beals, Dick Simms, Ken Bourne, Ernie Parks, Don, Pat, Donna, Mark and Chris Daubitz.

Four Southeast archers placed for awards:

Intermediate Girls—First, Rita Pennington, field 173, spot and animal 172; total 345.

Cub Boys — First, Mark Daubitz, field 291; spot and animal 377; total 668.

Home Plate Club Sets Picnic Date

The Central Ohio Home Platers Club will hold its annual stag outing on Sunday, Aug. 30 from 12 noon until 6:30 p.m. Fritz Wilhelm is picnic chairman for the event.

The Home Platers will also hold a "Johnny Powers Night" at Jet Stadium on Aug. 19 when the popular Columbus Jet outfielder will be feted by club president Barney Clapsaddle and the Home Platers, before the Syracuse contest.

El Rancho Hosts Cleveland Club

Dr. Bud Strouss, the Bexley veterinarian who has offices on Wilson-rd, has been making quite a difference in the play of the El Rancho Polo Club since his return to the lineup following his vacation.

El Rancho, winner of its last three games, will be at home to the Cleveland team at 3 p.m. Sunday, on the field located on Route 161 just west of the freeway. Gate receipts benefit the American Cancer Society.

Shriners In Benefit Game

The ninth annual Sabre Shrine Brotherhood Night will feature four Little League baseball teams playing a doubleheader for the benefit of crippled children.

The event will be held Aug. 20 at the North American Aviation Recreation Park on Hamilton-rd. All proceeds will go to the Aladdin Crippled Children Association. Last year's program brought $1,900 for the fund.

FESTIVITIES FOR the evening begin at 6 with flag-raising ceremonies. At 6:15 the first game will be held with a team from Whitehall playing the Jewish Center.

The second game will feature Christ the King players versus a team from North American Aviation. Each game will last four innings.

Entertainment between games will highlight a grand parade by members of the Aladdin Temple. Units will include the temple band, chanters, picadors, clowns and the Brutal Brothers. In addition, representatives from the four teams will be introduced to the audience.

GENERAL CHAIRMAN is Ray Watkins, President of the Sabre Shrine Club is Charlie Kraliman while Harold Kelley is vice-president.

Tickets for the games may be obtained from any Little League coach or player, the Columbus Division Recreation Office (BE. 1-1851, Ext. 1761) or at the Recreation Park on Aug. 22.

MURRAY CROWDER

Under Buckeye Skies

by Ken Mack McCreary

The Family Who Plays Together Stays Together

If you're like me, you get a boot out of meeting colorful and interesting people, particularly if their interests run along same channels as yours.

Such an "unforgetable character" is Murray Crowder, veteran outdoorsman, jounalist and authority on outdoor recreation. Crowder, who is a member of the Ted Williams Sports Advisory Staff for the Sears company, was in town a few days ago in connection with the opening of the new Sears store in the Northland Shopping Center.

IN SPITE OF a hectic schedule he took a couple of hours out to join me for some informal conversation and lunch.

Our talking topics ranged over most areas of outdoor recreation and sports, including hunting, fishing, guns, gear, camping and conservation. Some of the genial old expert's ideas are well worth repeating.

Much of our bull-session centered on the problems which face Ohio and the nation in the field of outdoor recreation. Murray outspokenly feels that the biggest dilemma to be solved is lack of facilities where families can get away and relax together. He urges cooperation of citizens with local, state and federal agencies to provide more areas for outdoor enjoyment.

TO CROWDER (and to me) family recreation out-of-doors can provide a mighty powerful force in keeping families together and preserving youngsters' respect for their parents.

As Murray puts it: "The family which plays together, stays together!" He points out that you seldom ever see a youngster who's been taught to hunt, fish, camp and have a love of the outdoors end up in court in any serious trouble.

This expert goes so far as to think that when a father buys equipment to start his son or daughter on the outdoors trail that the best equipment should be purchased with the dad using the second-best if necessary.

CROWDER EMPHASIZES that the the field of outdoor recreation is becoming a wide family one with everybody included from the baby to the oldest member of the clan.

As our conversation drifted to other topics Murray reported that from his observations during extensive trips around the country it appears that this will be one of the best duck hunting seasons in recent years.

Because of a large expected hatch of new ducks in the Canadian provinces, he predicts a 40-day season with a four-duck limit for most states in the Midwest.

PERHAPS ONE of the biggest reasons I thoroughly enjoyed meeting Crowder and chatting with him is his total enthusiasm. Even though he's been at the outdoor game for almost half a century he has not lost his zest or perspective for the outdoors and its place in our lives.

And since he's a native of the Ozark region of Missouri it's not too surprising that the "you'll have to show me" attitude of this personable gentleman shows through occasionally.

Turning to other topics under Buckeye skies — three more prospective state record fish catches are being checked out by the Outdoor Writers of Ohio. One is a two-pound, 12-inch sunfish caught from Magador Reservoir up in Portage County by Vic Zinn of Akron. That category is currently marked "open."

ANOTHER POSSIBLE record-breaker is a 13½-pound, 38-inch northern pike landed from Aquilla Lake in Geauga County, by Ron Kaczmarek of Cleveland. It apparently beats the current pike record by a pound and three ounces.

The third fish under consideration came from Franklin County waters — a 46-inch long-nose gar taken with bow and arrow from the Big Walnut Creek between Lockbourne-rd and Rt. 665, south of Columbus by Lance Wilson of 4925 Meadowbrook, Columbus.

The bowfishing category for gar is "open" at this time. Wilson says the creek is loaded with gar.

MOST FISHING experts are crediting the very wet spring and summer we've had with keeping fishing success from dropping into the doldrums. The more consistent water levels make life easier for both the fish and the fisherman.

For an up-to-the-minute report on fishing prospects and other outdoor sports, dial in the radio edition of Under Buckeye Skies, each Thursday and Friday evening at 6:30 on WTVN-Radio.

Sports-A-Rama At State Fair

Governor Rhodes has proclaimed Aug. 28 as Youth Day at the Ohio State Fair and a new feature this year will be the Junior Sports-A-Rama, a track and field event. The Ohio Youth Commission, the Ohio Junior Chamber of Commerce and All Star Dairies combined to make this program possible.

Columbus had local meets Saturday, Aug. 1, at Central High School and over 210 boys from 10 to 18 years of age participated.

The first three winners of the 50-yd. dash, 75-yd. dash, 100, 220, 440 and 880-yard dashes plus all other first place winners have qualified for the Columbus Regional, which will be held at the Ohio State Fairgrounds on Aug. 15, at 9:30 a.m.

THESE WINNERS will represent Columbus in the Regional against Worthington, Lancaster, London and Grove City.

The winners of this Regional will represent their locals as well as the Columbus Regional against five other Regionals throughout the state at the finals on Youth Day, which will be held on Aug. 28, 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at the opening of the Ohio State Fair.

Promise Me Anything But Give Me The Facts

Some baseball observers tell us that pennants which fly in September are won in April and May. This might be true but the diamond axiom isn't nearly as accurate as the one that goes: political votes in November are won in August.

Somewhere between the barbecued chicken and roast corn last week at an Elks picnic, we stumbled across an old college chum who's currently campaigning for a local political aspirant this summer.

"JACK, OLD buddy," he says, "why don't you put a plug in your column about the candidate?"

"Impossible," we told him, gropping for the salt, "we sportswriters can't do that sort of thing anymore."

"Why not," he asked, offering us all of his barbecued chicken.

"Well, first of all — he's a high school coach; secondly, he's a Democrat and thirdly, he's running for county commissioner."

"WHAT'S THAT got to do with it," he asked, taking back the wing and leg.

"Sorry," we said, sorrier since he took back his chicken.

"Well how about working him into the Coaches Corner bit you have in the paper."

"Not since we took the pledge," we replied.

"Pledge?" he asked.

"The pledge all sportswriters had to take after that coach running for mayor got his interview into print in '56."

THE INTERVIEW went something like this:

"Coach, the team has been working out for three weeks now. What kind of condition are the players in?"

"Excellent. You know I always employ the conditioning program I learned in the Marines. Without it, I probably couldn't have survived '44 in the Pacific and got those three Purple Hearts.

"WILL STATE U. have good balance this season?"

"The best in years. I'll have John Jones at quarterback, Kelly and Silverstein at the halfbacks and the campus president of the John Birch Society will open at fullback."

"How about that opener? Will you be ready?"

"WELL, THE opener would have been nice but the present mayor, who was asked to throw out the first football as a civic gesture, can't make it again this year. He'll be vacationing in his $100,000 Florida home, you know."

"How about recruitment? Any top 'out of state' boys we'll see this fall?"

"I don't recruit. There's nothing wrong with the fine boys we have right here in our fair city. I might mention that the team will look real sharp in their new red, white and blue uniforms this season."

"BUT I THOUGHT the school colors were black and blue."

"What's the matter? Something wrong with red, white and blue? Besides, I saved the school a couple thousand dollars on the uniforms. I've got this overwhelming thirst for thrift in everything I do."

"Your second game, against Central State, the big rival. Will you have closed practices?"

"MY PRACTICES, like my record, are always open to inspection. I've never had anything to hide."

"Have you had any injuries so far?"

"No injuries at all. However, both my ends were flunking a political science course. Due to my experience and understanding in the field of politics, however, they'll be out there Sept. 27."

"HOW ABOUT the schedule? What kind of season do you look for?"

"The schedule, like the progress on street repair, is cloudy. But, we'll win our share."

"How about a bowl bid if you have a good season?"

"I'm all for it. It would be wonderful for the boys. That's all I'm interested in. I treat them as if they were my sons. I just want to see them get a fair shake."

OUR FRIEND felt a little ashamed. "I see what you mean," he said. "Well, at least take these matches."

"Sorry," we said.

"Why not?"

"That's another story."

State Fair Trot Card, Purses Set

Early closing races, those events in which owners put up a substantial amount of the purse through nomination, sustaining, and starting payments, now make up 10 of the 14-race program released by the Ohio State Fair for its Aug. 31-Sept. 3 harness racing meet.

Familiar are the four major stakes. They carry an aggregate value of $100,000 with about 40-percent owner contributed. They carry much national prestige in the harness racing world, and to all intents and purposes determine Ohio championships at age and gait.

THE COMPLETE four-day racing program, as released by the Speed Department of the Fair, with estimated purses is as follows:

Monday, Aug. 31 — 2-year-old filly pace, $5,000; Ohio State Trot, $27,000; 2-year-old pace, $1,500.

Tuesday, Sept. 1 — 2-year-old filly trot, $5,000; Buckeye State Pace, $29,000; 2-year-old trot, $1,500.

Wednesday, Sept. 2 — 3-year-old filly pace, $4,500; Director of Agriculture pace, $25,000; 3-year-old trot, $1,500; Early closing trot, $2,500.

Thursday, Sept. 3 — 3-year-old filly trot, $4,500; Governor's Cup Trot, $24,000; 3-year-old pace, $1,500; Early closing pace, $2,500.

MADISON TWP. LITTLE LEAGUE MVP

CHRIS HELLER, who recently pitched a no-hitter for his Dodgers team in the Madison Township Little League, accepts the league's Most Valuable Player Award from his coach Lowell Burton (kneeling) and circuit president Ronald Klein. The rotating John Mayes Memorial Award is presented annually to the player in the league who demonstrates the best leadership, sportsmanship and attitude during the season. The trophy was presented to the 12-year-old Heller at Saturday's picnic at Big Walnut recreation area.

THE WEST JEFFERSON Invitational Slo-Pitch Tourney will be highlighted with the presentation of the three trophies pictured above. The twin-elimination tournament, which runs Saturday and Sunday and Aug. 22 and 23, will host eight teams from all over Central Ohio. Pictured with the tourney trophies are (from left): Jerry Clark, tournament director Bob Thatcher, Francis White and Dick Ater. All four men are members of the Strauss Lounge team that takes on Lakeview Inn at 6:45 Saturday evening in a first round contest.

SCHWARTZ STREAKS — Walnut Ridge distance star Ken Schwartz outdistanced his nearest competitor by 40 yards Saturday in the Junior Olympic mile run at OSU as he turned in a fast 4:41.0 time in the four lap event. Kenny breasts the tape above at the completion of the race. Kenny's brother Larry finished fifth in the same race Saturday.

Milo Roc 9 Cops Alum Creek Title

Milo Roc Mendel AC recently captured the Alum Creek Valley Little League baseball crown by downing Dick Arnold's perennially-tough Cochran Drug nine, 8-0.

The Alum Creek All-Stars are currently competing in the Shadywood Invitational Tournament with two players from each team represented on the All-Star entry coached by Don Frantz and Jim Smith of Milo Roc and Dick Arnold of Cochran's Drugs.

MILO ROC'S representatives on the All-Stars are Bob Thimmes, Tennis Ooten and Brad Hoffman, while Cochran's players are pitcher Steve Califf, Jeff Jarvis and Joe Helmick.

The Alum Creek Pony League entry also grabbed a share of the baseball success as Herah Cartier's nine rolled up an impressive 14-1 mark while winning the Twin County Pony League crown.

W-J 'Invite' Will Open Saturday

The West Jefferson Invitational Slo-Pitch Softball Tournament will get under way Saturday afternoon on the West Jefferson diamond when eight teams take to the field in a six-game card.

The tournament will be played this Saturday and Sunday and the 22nd and 23rd (Saturday and Sunday) in the double-elimination affair according to tourney chairman Bob Thatcher.

THE EIGHT TEAMS accepted for tourney play are Ternstedt Division, Phillips 66 (Lincoln Village), Joyce Shoe Co., Otis Elevator, Lakeview Inn, London Methodist Church and two local teams, Strauss Lounge and the White Kitchen.

Three trophies will be presented in the tourney with awards going to the winner, runnerup and the team displaying the best sportsmanship in the contests.

West Jeff officials accepted only eight teams for this year's tourney but hope to expand to a 16-team lineup next summer. Any questions on the tourney can be cleared up by contacting Bob Thatcher at TR. 9-8983.

SATURDAY'S CARD has Joyce Shoes vs. White Kitchen (1:30) and Phillips 66 vs. Ternstedt Division at 2:45. The winners of these two contests play a 4 p.m. game to determine Sunday's representative in the upper bracket. In Saturday's lower bracket, London Methodist tries Otis Elevator at 5:30 and the tough Strauss Lounge entry takes on Lakeview Inn in a 6:45 hassle.

The winners of these contests will play an 8 p.m. contest Saturday to determine the lower bracket representative for Sunday's 8 p.m. game against the upper bracket winner.

Schiller, OTC Jr. Olympic Cinder Kings

A record-breaking field of 2,685 boys and girls, ranging from 17 years old and under, competed in Saturday's annual Junior Olympic Track and Field Meet in Ohio Stadium which was sponsored by WBNS-TV and conducted by the Columbus Recreation Department.

Schiller Recreation copped the playground team title by rolling up 116½ points while the fast and experienced Ohio Track Club nabbed the meet's Open Division crown with 111⅓ tallies.

THE LOCAL Olympic times will be compared with times from all the other Junior Olympic Meets in the United States to determine national places and records.

An interesting event took place Saturday in the 220-yard relay race for girls in the nine and under age bracket.

An unidentified contestant, in the leadoff leg of the relay, raced past her three teammates and won the event single-handedly. However, her efforts went for naught as the fast "onesome" was disqualified by the meet officials at the wire.

THE TEAM totals in the Playground Division at Saturday's Junior Olympics are as follows: Whetstone 76⅓, Eastgate 60⅓, Beatty 52⅓, Tuttle 45, Palsgrove 44, Shepard 43⅓ Weinland 40, Secondav 36, Lincoln 35, Brentnell 31, Watkins 29 North Linden 29, Maize 20, Windsor 19, Hanford 18, Ohio 18, Marburn 15, Glenmont 15, Westgate 14⅓, Sunshine 14, Glenwood 12⅓, Main 12 and Poindexter 11.

Open Division scores were: Burnside 81, Knox County 67, Zanesville 30⅓, Danville 24, Walnut Ridge 23, Marion 20, Gahanna 19½, Hilliard 18, Arlington 17⅓, Scioto Village 14 and Bloomingburg 10.

New Center Largest In Central Ohio

At 10 a.m. Thursday, Aug. 13, the new Northland Shopping Center will officially open its doors to the public.

The multi-million dollar center represents 15 years of planning and preparation, and is the first mall-type shopping center in Columbus, as well as the largest in the Central Ohio area.

The new center has parking facilities for over 4,500 cars, and all stores will be open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily to accommodate the crowds expected during the coming shopping seasons. Various free gifts and special sales by individual stores will highlight the three-day opening celebration.

The opening also represents other "firsts." This will be the first full-line branch store for the F. and R. Lazarus Co., and the first full-line department store in Columbus for Sears, Roebuck and Co. The center contains the first 1,000-seat theater in Columbus for many years, and the first clock tower with chimes.

Among the 43 firms serving Northland shoppers will be: Alber's Super Market, F. W. Woolworth, Gray Drug Store, Huntington National Bank, The Union, Singer Sewing Machine Center, Walker's, Economy Savings and Loan Association, Swan Dry Cleaners and Roger's Jewelry.

The Northland Center is the joint project of three companies: F. and R. Lazarus, Sears, Roebuck and Co. and Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Co. The Lazarus and Sears buildings occupy a combined area of over 210,000 square feet.

LAZARUS LIGHTS UP, along with 42 other local firms for the first crowd of evening shoppers at the new Northland Shopping Center this Thursday night. Stores will be open until 9 p.m. nightly.

John D. Taylor

Sears To Widen City Operations

The opening of Sears, Roebuck and Co.'s Northland Shopping Center department store on Thursday, Aug. 13, will mark the completion of the first phase of the company's program to enter the Columbus markets, John D. Taylor, general manager of the Sears operation, announced.

A number of branch appliance and catalog stores in outlying Columbus areas will open in the next few months, Taylor revealed.

Earlier this year, Sears completed a new warehouse at 521 N. Nelson-rd.

Taylor described the Northland Shopping Center department store as one of the company's most complete one-stop units designed by the organization.

New Agency Opens Here

Principals in James G. Smith & Associates, Inc., advertising and public relations agency opened Aug. 1 at 1084 S. High-st, are James G. Smith, president; Burton Schildhouse, vice - president and Sybil A. Smith, secretary-treasurer.

Smith has for the past five years been executive vice-president of another Columbus agency. Before that his experiences has been with major agencies in Cleveland, Milwaukee, Chicago and Detroit.

Schildhouse, formerly vice-president of another Columbus agency, has had extensive agency experience with Cleveland organizations before moving to Columbus in 1959.

The new agency will counsel approximately 15 accounts, primarily in the public relations, trade, farm, and industrial advertising fields.

Directors of James G. Smith & Associates, Inc., are Darold I. Greek, James G. Smith and Sybil A. Smith.

Barbershoppers To Swing Sunday At Roses Park

The Park of Roses will present one of its most popular concerts of the summer series Sunday, Aug. 16, when the sound of barbershop harmony will be heard at 7:30 p.m.

Making their ninth annual appearance, the 30 - man "Singing Buckeyes" chorus of Buckeye Chapter, Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, will sing under the direction of Robert Loose. The program will include a "sing-along."

Rounding out the evening's harmony will be the singing of the Wayfarers barbershop quartet.

Weak Parents Encourage Dropouts

Big-city school systems have met with some success in programs aimed at prevention of high school drop-outs. Informational brochures, counseling services and work-school programs have improved the situation.

But the big burden still rests with parents. Children dropping out of school are mostly in the 15 to 17 age group. These children are not making the decisions strictly on their own. In most instances they cannot legally leave school without parental consent.

Most drop-outs are those who maneuver parents — through pleading, bullying or other tactics — into giving their consent to the student to quit school. The efforts of school officials to make a high school diploma available cannot be meaningful unless parents stiffen their own backbone and let the kids know who's boss.

The toughest part of parenthood is not to secure the love of your children while they are with you. It is assuring their undying respect after the time when they must fend for themselves. It is only after today's children must face responsibilities as adult members of society that they judge the job done by their parents.

Parents must weather the short-lived adolescent storm of protest and demand that their children stay in school. Then they will have won the long-range battle for the peace of mind that comes with having met their own responsibilities.

Logan's Racial Plea Still Applies

The silent giant of Pickaway County is no more; the Logan Elm is dead.

Beneath its spreading branches the Indian Chief Logan is said to have made his plea for peace between his tribesmen and the whites in 1774. It was an eloquent plea by a brave warrior who had seen every one of his living relatives fall before the onslaught of the white soldiers.

"There runs not a drop of my blood in the veins of any living creature . . . for my country I rejoice at the beams of peace . . . Who is there to mourn for Logan? Not one."

The Logan Elm spanned some three centuries of time, and for almost 200 years has kept a plea for peace between the races. It is a plea that requires new emphasis in our generation.

County Fair Enters Golden Age

It's a "fair" guess that most local roads will lead to Hilliard the week of Aug. 17. The reason, of course, will be the 51st annual Franklin County Fair to be staged from Aug. 17 through 21.

There are prizes to be won, exhibits to be seen and thrills for all. The Senior and Junior Fair sections of the program will be balanced by a speed program of horses and daredevil motorcycle and car driving.

A King and Queen will be chosen for the Junior Fair, and the Tuesday program will include a grandstand show by Flippo the Clown and a Teenage Hop with Gene Fullen.

There will be demonstrations and judging, and for all who attend there will be a generous measure of good fun and entertainment.

And this year's fair takes on added significance for several hundred people who will join the fair in celebration of the golden years. Couples who will proudly display golden ribbons are those who will attend the Hartley Spectator Golden Wedding Party to be held Thursday afternoon in the fairgrounds' youth tent.

Here's to the fair — we'll see you there!

Says License Editorial Missed Few Points

To the Editor:

In your edition of July 30 there was a long article entitled "Stiffen License Laws." The author of said article has, in my opinion, failed to use his eyes and reasoning to what is of more importance.

1. Sit for one hour on any street or road in Franklin County and observe the number of vehicles that are lacking in proper lighting, inadequate braking systems, and occasionally defective steering mechanism, and obviously faulty tires.

2. I agree with paragraph 6—the most accident-prone age group is between ages 40 and 46. (My insurance agent agrees.)

3. Modern drugs are good, maybe not perfect, but they enable many people to lead a fairly normal existence that would otherwise be denied them. These people are in the majority more careful of themselves and their vehicles than the average once-a-week driver. Additionally, these people are not a tax burden on the county as they would be if denied a fair chance.

4. As for myself and family, I prefer to take my chances on any highway against the epileptic, the heart patient or the diabetic, as against the "Joe Joker" who cares not for his piece of machinery and has had one drink too many.

"UNCLE DOC" ROSS — U.S.A.

The present "tempest in a teapot" in the South China Sea, seems to have gotten the whole free world all "hotted up" and up to this moment I have seen nothing in any paper about the smart psychology back of the whole business. Someone who is a genius in motivation psychology is back of it.

The entire free world went into a temporary tailspin because Barry Goldwater won the Republican nomination for President. On second look, and too much second guessing, a far clearer picture of the Senator's victory in San Francisco is apparent.

The whole leftist clique in Washington are a lot closer to "whistling in the cemetery" than they will admit to anyone. So, what could be smarter than stirring up a little ruckus in some far away spot that 90 percent of our people are ignorant about and only slightly interested in?

The whole business smells to high heaven, but it does divert attention for a few days from the Goldwater attack.

The senator is the first honest choice since 1928. People are fed up to the gills on "me-tooism" and a constantly evaporating dollar. Add to this the disgust at giving the whole country away to the rest of the smelly and unwashed world, now controlled almost exclusively by opportunist "soldiers of fortune." The fact is that millions now seek a president who is for this country.

The Senator has the pinkos and double talkers and one worlders worried sick and they had to cook up some flash-in-the-pan deal that would "take the heat off," since Goldwater's nomination. Mr. LBJ is in a horse-race and he knows it. Bobby Kennedy finally got the bad news also. Now we will see if Hubert catches the brass ring at Atlantic City. Goldwater may not beat down this Welfare State the first time around, but he has a lot of professional parasites on the public payroll very close to some psychosomatic dispepsia at this very moment.

This is the season of fairs. Already at least one county fair has been held as this is written. Regional and other county fairs and the Ohio State Fair are yet to be staged and attended this year.

Fairs are an old institution in human experience. In Europe the tradition goes back to the Middle Ages. In our land fairs of one sort or another began in colonial days. Their primary purpose was to promote the production and sale of fruits of the soil. In recent years the products of industry have received a proper attention, for industry and agriculture now are irrevocably interdependent.

Relaxation and entertainment have always been a part of fairs. "Fun at the fair" has been enjoyed by visiting friends and neighbors for many generations.

All this may seem old stuff, but it is background for something new. This piece is neither a book review nor a sales pitch. But our friend John L. Foreman, in cooperation with the Grange Mutual Casualty Company, has published a book titled "The Management of State, Regional, and County Fairs." Mr. Foreman has directed his book primarily to fair managers, but it should be no less interesting to the general public. This desk has seen no better discussion of the subject anywhere.

Mr. Foreman's half-century of interest in fairs includes 17 years of service with Ohio's Division of Conservation (now Natural Resources Department). He inspected fairs for the State of Ohio for some years. He may be reached at 855 Miller-av.

It says here . . . The more one knows of what he sees, the more he enjoys it.

Encouraging Word--

To The Editor:

Your newspaper has been coming to our home for several years. I enjoy it more each week because it has some very good articles in it.

The Guest Pulpit for example is one — and stories on the good things that are being done in different communities. We need more articles of this kind published and fewer on scandal and the awful things. It might encourage our young folks, too. They are not all bad by any means.

Keep up your good work!

Is It Confiscation?

(Copy of letter sent by the Franklin County treasurer to the office of the Scioto Conservancy District, 155 N. High-st.)

Sirs:

Confiscation—Is it to be by flood or by conservancy taxes?

One of the most disheartening things about any tax collection is the situation of a person who is up in years and forced to meet rising costs with limited income. Hundreds of such people have come to us in tears. They have retirement incomes ranging from $40 to $75 per month. Constantly increasing taxes are forcing many to go without needed food or medicine in order to meet tax payments. Others are being forced to become delinquent and risk loss of their property because of non-payment of taxes. It many cases rental incomes are barely sufficient to pay taxes.

If the Scioto Conservancy District goes through with its planned assessment on these people of small incomes the tax delinquencies are almost certain to increase sharply. The question will arise—if a property owner is going to lose his property for non-payment of taxes or lose it by flood will he not be just as well off to risk the coming of another flood? If limited incomes and a high conservancy assessment force people to lose their property for non-payment of taxes does this not amount to confiscation?

Few Pray Effectively

Here are some excerpts from the writings of Dr. E. Stanley Jones on the subject of Prayer—

When the disciples asked Jesus, "Lord, teach us to pray," they uttered one of the most universal cries of the human heart. For men of all ages have instinctively felt that prayer is the distilled essence of religion. Where there is no effective prayer life, the heart of religion has ceased to beat and religion becomes a dead body of forms and customs and dogmas.

Dr. Jones

And yet how few Christians have an effective prayer life! Prayer tones up the total life. I find by actual experience I am better or worse as I pray more or less. If my prayer life sags, my whole life sags with it; if my prayer life goes up, my life as a whole goes up with it.

Here are some steps of prayer. You cannot pray with a part of yourself and expect God to answer, for he hears what the whole of you is saying. "In the day that Thou seekest me with the whole heart, thou shalt be found of me." Perhaps you are willing to pray with the whole of "you" but the other "you" is not co-operative. Then tell God you are willing to be made willing.

Longing I sought thy presence, Lord,
With my whole heart did I call and pray
And going out toward Thee, I found Thee,
Coming to me on the way.

Decide whether the thing you want is a Christian thing. Ask about all our prayers, "Is the thing I want a Christian thing? Jesus said, "If you ask anything in my name—that is in my character, according to my spirit—that will I do." Within the limits of the character of Christ, God is free to give you anything.

The stilling of the mind before prayer is a step in receptivity. "As many as received him, to them gave he power." The stillness of the mind is to allow God to get at you, invade you, to take possession of you. The stilling of the mind reminds you not of your pitiful little store, but of the fact that you are now harnessing yourself to God's illimitable fulness.

Talk with God about it. Note I say "talk with God" not "talk to God," for it is a two-way conversation. And the most vital part may be, not what you will say to God but what God will say to you. God wants not merely to answer your prayer, He wants to make you into the kind of person through whom he can habitually answer prayer. Talk with God about it in the confidence that he is aching to answer that prayer for you, if it is in line with his general purposes for you.

Thank God for answering in his own way. God will always answer the prayer, though his answer may be "no" as well as "yes." Don't keep the prayer at the center of your conscious thinking. Dismissing it from the conscious mind is an act of faith, that, having committed it to God, you leave it in his hands, believing he will do the best possible thing.

Prayer is not so much an act, as an attitude. Prayer is opening the channels from our emptiness to God's fullness, from our defeat to his victory.

Dr. E. Stanley Jones is a missionary, a world evangelist, founder and conductor of ashrams around the world. In 1928 he was elected a Methodist bishop, but declined so that he could continue his missionary work. Dr. Jones will speak Sunday, Aug. 16 at the Lancaster Methodist Camp Grounds, four miles west of Lancaster on Fair-av. Times of services are 10:30 a.m., 2:30 and 8 p.m.

An Editor's Outlook . . .

by Jenkin Lloyd Jones

'Save The States' Also Affects Pilots

The Air Line Pilots Association, which has been described, not too inaccurately, as a "union of capitalists," has issued a war whoop over the determination by a number of states to collect state income taxes from air crews for that portion of their earning time that they spend in or over these states.

Jones

The association's house organ, in its current issue, has a cover cartoon showing a modern Jesse James pointing a large pistol at a poor little airplane. It asserts that one state (unnamed) is even figuring out how to tax pilots who fly over but don't land.

Since 1962 several states have been trying to collect income taxes from truck drivers who are just passing through. You can't blame the tax commissions for looking skyward, as well.

Now, every red-blooded American should bristle at any effort by high-priced pilots to escape supporting the schools, highways and old-age pensioners in, let's say North Dakota, even though a lot of air crews that fly over North Dakota have never set foot on its soil.

True, the collection of these taxes may be a little complicated. Due to weather or the jet stream a crew flying non-stop between New York and Los Angeles may go on one trip via Omaha, the next via Kansas City, the third via Tulsa and the fourth via Dallas.

It will be important to remember that on Trip Two the plane spent 44 minutes over Kansas where the top bracket tax rate is 5.5 per cent, while on Trip Three the plane was 39 minutes over Oklahoma where the rate is 6 per cent.

Tax commissions must immediately compile complete lists of flight plans. Maybe logs would be better, because storms sometimes bar the way and pilots change course.

A log would show that over the Vichy, Mo., range a pilot saw turbulence on his radar above a squall line, so he got permission from air traffic control to deviate south over Walnut Ridge, Ark. At Walnut Ridge things still looked gooey on the right so he headed down to Shreveport before turning west.

Now you can see the antennas waggling at the Louisiana Tax Commission in Baton Rouge. They'll figure the plane must have come in about Shongaloo, La., and gone out at Greenwood. And that, by gosh, is 55 miles if it's an inch. At 600 miles an hour everybody on that plane crew owes Louisiana the income tax on five minutes and 30 seconds of pay. That's not counting headwinds.

Most long-distance flights today are routed according to "pressure gradients." Such courses may meander geographically but they promise the shortest possible time between take-off and landing.

But we may be in for an aviation era based on "tax gradients." Transcontinental plane riders might find weather conditions deteriorating permanently over the high income tax states and flights planned along low-tax isobars.

Thus, a flight from New York to San Francisco could go out into the Atlantic immediately, run down the coast, cut over Florida (no income tax), cross the Gulf, enter Texas (no income tax), hurry across the tax levying states of New Mexico and Arizona, stay as long as possible in Nevada (no income tax) and descend speedily on San Francisco from Lake Tahoe.

Of course, the plane would be two hours behind schedule and Operations would have apoplexy at the consumption of jet fuel. But a tax-conscious pilot could claim he feared clear-air turbulence over Iowa.

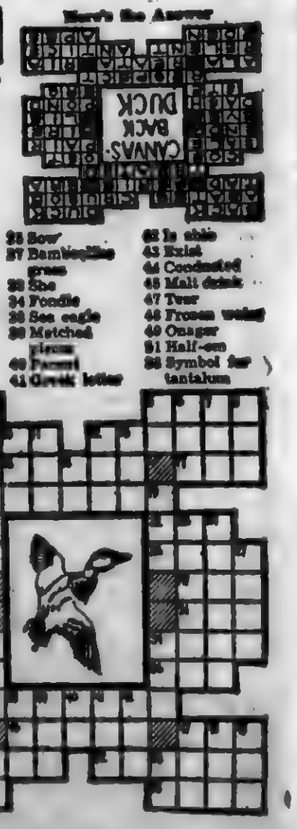
What the government should do is insist on giving lie detector tests to every pilot after every flight to ascertain if tax-evasion influenced his decisions. And this brings up the long-neglected problem of collecting proper liquor taxes on airline drinks.

Cocktails purchased over Colorado that bear New York stamps are clearly illegal, and the way I figure it, the saloon cart that is pushed down the aisle on a coast-to-coast flight ought to have a dozen complete sets of bottles.

Then there are states where sale by the drink is outlawed and the trains passing through have to close the club car bars. Planes should have beneath the signs, "Fasten Seat Belts" and "No Smoking," a third sign, "No Drinking." This will keep pilots flying above the clouds right on the ball with their navigation, which is a good thing.

It's time somebody restored the dignity of our boundaries. Here we've got space satellites whipping around the earth not stopping for customs or complying with building codes. And we have astronauts and cosmonauts crossing 30 national borders in 90 minutes without passports or tourists cards.

This is all very confusing and upsetting. It mocks the Mason-Dixon Line, belittles the Rio Grande, ignores the English Channel and makes the Berlin Wall look foolish.



Let's crack down!

Eat Your Troubles Away!

Good Food Habits Aid Health, Vitality

BY LELORD KORDEL

All the outward attributes of a prolonged youth can be yours, if you start to work inwardly on attaining them.

Kordel

The average person of middle age — and many younger people—exist on a diet woefully deficient on almost every nutritional count (proteins, minerals, vitamins).

Small wonder, that good looks and charm are so rare past 40.

How many men at this critical period in life make a conscious effort to guard against losing the sensations and appearances of youth in the only sure way — through planned diet? Too few, I'm afraid.

All too often the convert to a planned diet is the woman of the family, and her efforts to make friend husband realize the dietary facts behind his loss of energy and youthful appearance meet with indifference, if not open derision.

How To Start Meals

Start your meals with fruit, a cup of vegetable soup, a bouillon or meat broth. Why? Because these foods are rich in certain extractive substances.

The kindest thing you can do for your stomach is not to overload it.

The stomach that is given a smaller quantity of food every three to four hours is the stomach that will show its appreciation for this wise treatment by remaining healthy—and allowing its nearest neighbor, the heart, to avoid a lot of strain.

"Chewing Chart"

A lot of false information and erroneous advice has been handed out to the public for years on the subject of "proper mastication of food." In brief, here is your "chewing chart":

1. All vegetables, fruits and sugar-starch foods should be chewed thoroughly.

Carbohydrates are digested in an alkaline base. The saliva in your mouth is an alkali, and is the first step in the long and complicated digestion of carbohydrates.

Therefore, if you bolt your carbohydrate foods, you cause them to miss this preliminary digestive processing, with the result that they reach the upper intestinal tract inadequately prepared for the final steps.

2. All protein foods such as meat, fish, poultry, eggs and cheese require little chewing for good digestion.

No doubt this comes as a surprise to you —a complete reversal of everything you've ever been taught about mastication.

Food Combinations

In planning your diet of high-protein foods, keep in mind these important nutritional taboos which have a basis in scientific fact:

1. Never combine high-proteins (red meats, poultry, fish, eggs, cheese, milk) with high-starches (rice, macaroni, spaghetti, white bread, rich desserts) at the same meal.

2. Avoid combining pure fats with high starches in the same meal.

For instance, bacon (almost 100 per cent fat, and of the wrong kind, too), fried potatoes, cream, white sugar, white bread and jelly are a rather common breakfast menu in some homes, yet nothing could be worse nutrition.

What To Omit

It's absolutely impossible to plan a meal that doesn't include some carbohydrate with its proteins, or some fat with its carbohydrate. But the thing to keep in mind is this:

A meal should be predominantly either protein or carbohydrate. When it is predominantly protein it should include only those natural starches found in vegetables, fruits, milk and honey or raw sugar.

Don't delay in setting out to make your dreams of regained youthfulness come true. Put the program of better nutrition into practice, starting with your next meal!

Around the World With STAN DELAPLANE

"We would like your opinion of train vs. plane on our trip through Europe. We are in our sixties. In good health though my wife must use a cane."

Delaplane

Plane gets you between cities faster. But they bypass the countryside. Also, I like the more leisurely pace of train travel. European trains are excellent and not expensive.

One problem. You have changes of trains sometimes at borders or transfer points. While porters will put bags aboard for you, they won't come on and get them off . . . you have to heave them through a window to the platform.

It might be a problem for a person with a cane to negotiate from compartment to dining car. (I usually buy a couple of sandwiches and a bottle of wine at the station and have lunch in the compartment. You could do that.)

The comfort of plane travel is there's usually no movement. Easy to walk around. Lunch is brought to your seat. And airlines arrange wheel chairs if you want them.

"Is it cheaper to buy watches, music boxes, etc. at Shannon airport than in countries where they are made? Our last stop is Shannon."

Probably the same price. And more selection in the countries where things are made. Besides, the Shannon stop is only an hour. Shannon is excellent for buying if (1) you are staying overnight for that $20-tour-plus-dinner at Bunratty Castle; (2) for quick buying on the one hour stopover — the things made in countries you didn't get to; (3) for your tax free gallon of liquor. (They don't weigh it in as excess baggage at Shannon.)

"My husband is on business in Rome in December. After that we'd like to find a warm place with a beach on our way home . . ."

Usually warm on southern coast of Spain. The Costa del Sol around Malaga. Why not look into your return ticket possibilities? For about $16 you can route yourself to New York via Barbados or Puerto Rico. I'm pretty sure Californians can route themselves home via Mexico free.

When buying air tickets ALWAYS look into these possibilities: Seasonal rates and excursion tickets. (Sometimes these are just about to start. A week's change in plans saves you a lot of money.) Family plan rates. And check all the ways you can return with extra stops.

"How much money can we take into Tahiti?"

The French are generous about this. Take all you want. Take a million dollars. However, take it in small travelers' checks. And cash into Pacific francs only as needed. Hard to get back into dollars and nobody else will change Pacific francs for you.

Don't Teach Kids $$ Facts Of Life

By ADELINE DALEY

I thought I was all prepared to answer questions that normal children are supposed to ask their parents. I've been conscientiously reading all of the parent education articles, too — "Explaining Freud to Your Toddler," "Sex and the PTA Room Mother" and "What Parents Can Learn From Teenagers."

But do you think that my kinds want to find out about the birds and the bees? No! Instead, they keep badgering me, "Mom, are we rich or poor?"

They are not satisfied with a middle-of-the-road reply. We have to be either Rockefeller Rich or Pauper Poor. I have no other recourse but to explain our financial structure, which tends toward the latter. I have tried various methods.

The first was the "Mamma's Bank Account" approach, adapted after the Kathryn Forbes' story of a mother who provided her children with a blanket of financial security by telling them she had a bank account, which actually never existed.

If I persisted in using this method, our two teenage daughters would bankrupt us in one week. I would also be obliged to tell one white lie after another in order to retain their security — and our solvency.

"We don't own a Cadillac, because the fins would take up too much space in the garage, leaving no room for you kids to roller skate," or "The reason we haven't sent any of you kids to private schools in Switzerland is because we've discovered that you're all susceptible to nose bleeds in high altitudes."

The second alternative is to let Dun and Bradstreet prepare a financial statement and then hand out mimeographed releases to the kids at the breakfast table. They'd be afraid to ask for lunch money. The biggest drawback to this method, however, is worrying what the younger ones will reveal at the next "Show and Tell" session at school.

The third scheme is the Beat-Around-the-Bush plan. This is used when kids want to know what happened to the $$ they figure due them from birthday gifts. They also want to know how come their friends all have personal savings accounts, amounting to $352. The obvious answer is that their friends have wise, thrifty parents. (Also wise, thrifty relatives.)

A sneaky way out is to tell your child, "As your broker I have invested your savings in real estate." No need to explain that the real estate is none other than the house and lot you're paying off.

When all of these fail, there remains the poetic approach, which I tried last week. "Who is poor, Diane, when one can look at a sunset or watch a robin on the wing?"

"Just as I thought," she replied sadly. "We're poor."

Will Extremism Be A Vice Or Virtue?

By ROYCE BRIER

"Extremism in defense of liberty is no vice. Moderation in pursuit of justice is not virtue."

Brier

These 16 words stood out from several thousand in Senator Goldwater's acceptance speech, and were pounced upon by millions.

They bewildered General Eisenhower, and he asked for clarification. Some Goldwater aide told him he had employed extremism in the Normandy invasion then announced this had satisfied the General. But it subsequently appeared the General remained unsatisfied.

That could well be, because these dual Goldwater homilies are like passages from the Bible or Shakespeare—they can be upheld in logic, and they can be demolished by logic. Still, they have no true meaning until you can precisely define extremism and liberty in the first sentence, moderation and justice in the second.

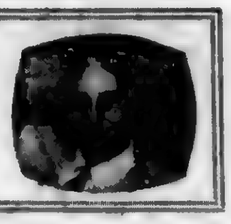
But if you will accept a loose meaning for all four words, the two homilies can be easily demolished by historical examples unrelated to logic.

Pose the first sentence against the French Revolution. "Liberty" was the key word in the upheaval, and all who sought to overthrow the monarchy professed to be in pursuit of it at its various levels.

In the first years, with abdication the French people attained to more liberty than they had had, but the revolutionary hierarchy was not content, and took ever-harsher steps to achieve liberty.

Now everybody, including Senator Goldwater, would agree The Terror (1793-94) was a stunning exercise in extremism, yet it was done in the sacred name of liberty. You perceive then that it depends on who is defining "extremism" and "liberty"—you and I, the Senator, Governor Scranton or Maximilien Robespierre.

So let us go to the second sentence, and historical example in our own country.



Congressman Thaddeus Stevens was the leader of a radical cabal dedicated, not to defeating the Confederacy, but to vengeance on the South. He preferred white Southern serfdom when the war was won, to Union, and with all the venom of his nature he hated Abraham Lincoln and his aims.

But the President was the foremost moderate of his angry time by any reasonable definition of the term. He would restore the Union, heal the wounds, bring the seceded states back to full statehood, not make them occupied provinces. "With malice toward none, with charity for all"—he said and acted it daily, defying the clamor of the Stevens radicals, and he died in utter devotion to his conviction.

So was this not moderation in pursuit of justice 100 years ago, and was it not virtue? Or do you hold that justice and virtue would have been better served by Thaddeus Stevens?

Assignment Television

By TERRENCE O'FLAHERTY

We've had the Republicans, and now television has slipped back into its old bad habits while we're waiting for the Democrats. Here are a few things that happened while the Grand Old Party played the Palace:

Love is a subject that television knows almost nothing about. Sex, yes; but love, no! However, Someone Down There has begun to see the light in a small way, and next season ABC threatens us with the prospect of love for Dr. Ben Casey.

Early last month, they shot the first love scene with the grim-faced Casey and Stella Stevens, one of five episodes in which she will raise his temperature next season. Now listen to this: Miss Stevens plays a girl in her mid-20s who wakes from a 13-year coma to find herself a woman with the mind of a teenager! How does this grab you?

Some of this may be to counteract Dr. Kildare's fling with a surf rider last season. Later, she died of an incurable malady and was seen no more, alas. Writers hate these female intrusions. They get in the way of their plots.

Another professional man to be given the love bug this coming season is the junior partner of the TV law firm on "The Defenders." It's all a part of the plan to humanize the characters after two seasons on the air. The girl involved will be June Harding.

By coincidence, the performers playing the roles — Vincent Edwards, Dick Chamberlain and Robert Reed — are unmarried off-stage. They should welcome the intrusion.

Arthur C. Nielsen, Jr., the president of the audience measuring system which bears his name, wrote a piece for the Associated Press explaining his ratings—which he allowed are "about as popular with some television viewers as ants at a picnic" A good start, but his closing statement was most curious.

"The rating process gives the viewing public a chance to vote its preference. From the point of view of the individual, this majority rule may conflict with personal taste. This is a limitation of democracy—in politics as well as television. But the alternative is to have somebody—or a group of people — decide what the public should watch and certainly this seems much less desirable."

No, Mr. Nielsen, the alternative is to have a more reliable audience sampling. At present, we have a "group of people which decides what the public should watch" — and it is YOUR 1200 rating families. This is neither desirable nor democratic.

The folks at ABC have finally decided to do something about a home-produced series during the heavy eye-lid hours after 11:15 p.m. to buck Johnny Carson and Steve Allen. Their answer is Rowan and Martin.

At last report the producer, Steve Binder, claimed he was given $50,000 for the pilot and "trying to get Kim Novak, Henry Miller, and Hugh Hefner to discuss obscenity" on the opening show. Ho hum.

Hope of the week: "We know that our program, 'Mickey,' will only be what the public wants us to be. I don't expect everyone to like it, but at the same time, we'll have enough ingredients to please many people." (Mickey Rooney)

Desilu is out of the red for the year, netting $794,261. I thought you'd be happy to learn this.

TODAY'S REPORT

By ABE MELLINKOFF

Everybody is always short of money — especially $20-bills. But the current shortage of pennies, nickels, and dimes is something else again. The United States Mint, which has a manufacturing monopoly in this field, is fit to be tied.

Director Eva Adams blames the speculators, who, she says, hope to make a pile by hoarding 1964 coins.

But speculation is legal and it seems to me Miss Adams should have been ready for them. She could have stashed away a few billion dimes — just in case.

After all we stockpile all sorts of things. We have so much wheat in warehouses, we can sell millions of dollars worth to Russia. A solution might be to make them pay for it in small coins.

Blessed Silence

PARIS, FRANCE — Ten years ago Andre Dubois, who was prefect of police, stopped the famous honking horns of Paris overnight.

It was a miracle in a city noted for driving by klaxon, and was intended to usher in a grand era of silence.

But now, a decade later, Paris is noisier than it ever was.

There are many times more cars today than in 1954, and their roaring European motors and screeching brakes at all hours of day and night are twice as annoying as the horns were.

Paris Presse, the afternoon daily, reported, "If the noise in our great cities becomes a little greater, we shall all risk being swept into a world of insanity and broken nerves."

Thus it came about that the International Convention to Fight Noise opened this month on the Avenue d'Iena in Paris.

Inside the convention auditorium, 300 representatives of 16 nations were talking in almost as many foreign languages, producing cacophonies as harsh as the noises they fight.

Professor G. Lehmann, president of the convention and head of the German delegation, announced that Dortmund will become the first city in the world to give its citizens guaranteed refuge from noise.

"Silent zones will be set up throughout Dortmund, and each apartment will have at least one sound-proofed room," he said. Noisy industries will be permitted only in outlying zones."

Since noise is proving expensive, noiseless inventions are becoming a new fad. The conference rooms were surrounded by appliances to prove the point.

The one we went up to was being displayed by two of the prettiest French hostesses you ever did see. It was a machine that beats rugs silently.

We were distracted from the machine and the girls by a noisy flare-up between Professor Lundberg, director of Sweden's Aeronautical Research Institute, and Francois Pierre Lienard, chief of the acoustical division of France's Aerospatial Office.

Professor Lundberg suggested that the world would do better to be content with its current places than to contend with the noise of future places that will make life unbearable. Dr. Lienard insisted that, "taking everything into consideration," the proposed Concorde will be less noisy than the current Caravelle.

The Swedish professor wanted to know what "taking everything into consideration" meant. The Frenchmen looked glum.

It was a good moment for the representative from the French Ministry of Public Health to interrupt and announce that France is leading the anti-noise movement.

The first French action this month is publication of a "Guide des Hotels Silencieux," listing hostelries that promise quiet.

The Wonderful World Of ANIMALS By Frank Miller, D.V.M.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Here is our situation. We have a fair-sized garden pool. It was stocked with goldfish and some small frogs. My son has an alligator that he has had for almost three years and it has outgrown an aquarium, a larger aquarium, and now, an old bathtub.

My son has wanted to put Al Gator in the pool but we wouldn't let him because of the fish and frogs. However, our tom cat, Spats, apparently cleaned out the pool this spring. (We caught him red-handed one day with a frog leg hanging out of his mouth.)

Now we don't care if Al is put out in the pool but my son is worried. He says Spats is so used to hunting in the pool that he may keep it up. What do you think?

—L. Y.

DEAR L. Y.: I don't believe your son, nor Al Gator, have too much to worry about. One quick look at Al's dentures should convince Spats that his fishing tackle is no longer adequate.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I have a little fox terrier (the kind that hops off and on ponies in circuses). She loves to go riding with me in the car with her head out of the window. Yesterday a friend told me Tippy would soon be blind if I continue letting her ride with her head in the breeze. Any truth to that? Thank you for an answer.

—L. M.

DEAR L. M.: The truth is Tippy could be struck in an eye by anything from a piece of flying gravel to a flying insect of almost any variety. Windburn alone is enough to cause eye irritation. While Tip may never go blind, there IS some risk involved . . . unless you can get her to wear goggles.

DEAR DR. MILLER: What about a tank of community tropicals? We will be gone for two weeks and wonder if they can hold out until we get back. Can you reassure us? Thanks.

—J. Y.

DEAR J. Y.: Provided the tank is reasonably large, and your fish healthy, a fortnight's fast should do them no harm. Heavyweights in the tank may actually be better off for that period on straight water rations. Any young fish in the tank might have their growth stunted slightly, but they could easily catch up later on.

If you have fish that vary considerably in size, then this prolonged fast could be fatal to the smaller "swallowing-size" species. (Friendships among the finny can be of the all-consuming variety when hunger pangs take over.)

DEAR DR. MILLER: We don't know whether you might have any suggestions, but here is our problem. Our 10 year old daughter has had trouble with a sort of asthma for many years. She is allergic to dust and many other things.

A few months ago, she was given a kitten and has since become completely wrapped up in this little animal. Lately her attacks have become worse and the doctor has said her cat must go. She refused to give the cat up and carries on bitterly when we try to talk to her about it.

Is there any way at all we could treat the cat so our daughter would be less sensitive to it? She would be completely lost without her little Mittens. We would be most grateful for any help.

—P. G.

DEAR P. G.: Some types of therapeutic shampoos used on Mittens might help slightly to reduce this allergic reaction. However, this effort is headed in the wrong direction. You can't really desensitize the cat, it is your daughter's reaction to the cat that must be modified if possible.

Recently, special skin extracts of animals have been successfully used to desensitize people to those animals. A series of small injections (a skin extract from the species of animal causing the reaction) sometimes results in the person being able to tolerate the animal that formerly caused a severe allergic reaction.

In case he has not already done so, your daughter's doctor might consider this approach which, if successful, will allow her to keep Mittens.

City Parks Set Movie Schedule

Movies are scheduled to be shown Aug. 12 at Blacklick Woods and Aug. 13 at Blendon Woods Metropolitan Parks.

"Out of the North" is a travel film following the migratory flights of Alaskan ducks and geese. "Land of the Great Smoke" tells the story of a tourist vacation in eastern Tennessee.

The movies begin at dusk. In event of unfavorable weather conditions the Blendon Woods showing is canceled and the Blacklick Woods program is presented indoors at Beech-Maple Lodge.

Wild cattle of Paraguay are said to be almost immune to disease.

POG CHUCKLER HELD OVER

"ENTER LAUGHING," the uproarious comedy about a stage-struck delivery boy, is being held over a second week at Playhouse-on-the-Green. Tickets for all performances are on sale at Central Ticket Office (Richman's), 37 N. High-st, and at the theatre. Contributing to the fun of the proceedings are, from left, Jo Ann Gockenbach, Sharon Turner, Ray Girardin and (standing in back) Ted Pritchard. Performances will run through Saturday, Aug. 15.

Hugh Down's Career Marked By Versatility

"Versatility" is the word for Hugh Downs, star of this week's Kenley Players comedy, "Love and Kisses," and his capacity to defy a label.

The genial host of the "Today" show and emcee of "Concentration" lists his interests form the banal to the esotoric.

He is an omniverous reader, tinkerer, hobbyist, writer and composer, an expert skin diver, hi-fi fan, amateur astronomer and painter. He has built his own hi-fi and telescope.

Downs is the author of an autobiography and has recorded an album.

A guitarist, he has composed popular and classical music.

Recently he studied celestial navigation.

In his career, Downs has been a comedian's straight man, an interviewer, narrator, newscaster, announcer, host and actor. He was born in Akron, on Feb. 21, 1921.

At 17, he became a radio announcer. In 1943, he went to Chicago as a radio announcer, disc jockey, interviewer and emcee.

In 1954, he went to New York to join the "Home" show as host. During the 1955-57 season he was announcer for "Caesar's Hour." In 1957, he joined "The Jack Paar Show" and was with the series for five years.

In August, 1958, he became host of "Concentration." He has been host of "Today" since Feb. 10, 1962.

Last January, Downs won for the sixth consecutive year the Fame Award as "Best Announcer," based on an annual poll of TV critics and columnists.

Downs is married and lives in New York. He has a son 18 and a daughter 15.

He is a member of the Citizen's Advisory Committee on Mental Hospitals of New York State, and on the board of directors of the Manhattan Mental Health Society.

'110 In The Shade' Closes Out Theatre Guild Series

The musical, "110 In The Shade," closes out the Columbus Theatre Guild Series for the 1964-65 season.

The adaptation of a comedy and later a film called "The Rainmaker," "110" is a piece of Americana set in the rural Southwest.

A winning young man appears in a drought-stricken community boasting powers as a rainmaker. Although the clouds will have nothing to do with him, a young woman doesn't care whether it rains or not as long as the rainmaker is around.

Songs by Harvey Schmidt and Tom Jones, whose score for "The Fantasticks" has, at present, kept the musical on a five-year run in New York, include "Is It Really Me," "Love, Don't Turn Away," "Simple Little Things" and "Raunchy."

Already announced for the Guild series are "Oliver!", "Barefoot In The Park," "Dear Me, The Sky Is Falling," "Any Wednesday" and "A Case Of Libel."

Prices for the six-play subscription series range from $16.50 to $36.50 and may be obtained by writing the Theatre Guild-American Theatre Society, Hartman Theatre, Columbus 43215.

Handicapped Artists Can Enter Contest

Handicapped artists of all ages who are receiving help from the Franklin County Society for Crippled Children are invited to enter the first nationwide art competition sponsored by the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

SCD Method Called Wrong

Sam N. Alford, president of the West Side Board of Trade, has critized the proposed Scioto Conservancy District flood control program as "going after the right thing the wrong way."

Alford said his group has not as yet taken an official stand on the local assessment plan of the SCD for the proposed projects, but that he, personally, would object to assessments listed for his property.

He said that those owning property on the West Side could not pass the extra rent burden on to renters even if they wanted to do so. Those renting in the area just could not absorb such increases, he said.

The West Side businessman pointed out that many small businesses in the area are just now completing repayment of Small Business Administration loans secured to repair damages caused by flooding of 1959. He said that proposed assessments are in excess of what local banks will allow for property improvement loans.

Alford said the assessment plan, if effected, would wreck efforts now underway to rehabilitate property in the lower West Side.

"How can you encourage people to improve property and prevent blight when you place an excessive tax burden on them?, Alford asked.

Harsha Favors Army Plan

Congressman William Harsha, (R. Portsmouth), newly appointed ranking minority members of the U.S. House of Representatives Public Works Subcommittee on Rivers and Harbors, has declared in favor of the Army Corps of Engineers for construction of the proposed Alum Creek and Mill Creek dam projects.

Harsha termed unfair the plan of the Scioto Conservancy District to construct the projects through assessment of benefiting property owners. He said construction of the projects by the SCD would not reduce federal taxes, and that federal funds would be used to build similar projects elsewhere in the nation.

Army Gains League Support

The League of Women Voters of Metropolitan Columbus has gone on record in favor of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers as building authority for the Alum Creek and Mill Ceek dam projects.

In a statement released Monday the League stressed the following points: Corps-built dams are operated as part of an integrated river basin system, recreational development of reservoir areas will be assured, flood control benefits are of a scope that call for federal funding and federal land acquisition policies would be less likely to cause delay.

Columbus Files Court Test

The Columbus City Attorney's office has instituted action in the 10th District Court of Appeals (Franklin County) seeking to block the Scioto Conservancy District from gaining approval of its appraisal record.

Seeking a writ of prohibition, the City of Columbus is challenging basic authority of the Conservancy Court's five judges to approve the SCD appraisal record on file with the court. The city has asked that the scheduled Sept. 1 Conservancy Court hearing on exceptions to the appraisal record be delayed pending a decision from the Court of Appeals.

Gahanna Accepts SCD Plan

Gahanna City Council rejected by a 4-2 vote a motion by Councilman John Wolfe that the village protest the proposed $5,123 flood benefit assessment carried in the appraisal record of the Scioto Conservancy District.

Council acted during a special Tuesday night meeting which included discussion of the flood control plans of the SCD and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. An Army representative, Donald T. Williams, was on hand to explain the Corps' plan for Alum Creek and Mill Creek projects. Williams, a civil engineer, told council that the Army has no plans or request for modification of Hoover dam.

The SCD declined to send a representative to the meeting.

It is the proposed modification of Hoover dam through addition of flood gates that affects the village under the SCD plan.

SCD—

ment by an agency official that Franklin County is a rich community that can afford to pay for the projects. He said there is no difference between accepting use of federal funds for dam projects and the accepted practice of using 90 percent federal money for the Interstate Highway System.

Williams explained the Corps of Engineers' position, detailing the estimated costs of the projects and explaining that all flood protection costs would be borne by the federal government if the Army builds the two projects. He said that the Corps of Engineers could complete the jobs by the end of 1970 if appropriations are forthcoming from Congress.

Williams said that the Army cannot initiate projects in any given area, but must depend on strong local support for its services. Such support must come from local citizens and groups, and particularly from Congressional representatives, he said.

In detailing recreational facilities that would be included in the Army plan, Williams listed the following expenditures as part of the proposed Alum Creek project: $1.4 million for recreational lands and $1,360,000 to be expended for basic recreational facilities.

Galena Attorney Marian Paisley responded to a WSNC request for some legal advice to those who wish to file exceptions to the SCD assessments, and provided the only incidence of humor during the otherwise solemn meeting.

In explaining how to list objections to the assessment schedule, she told the audience: "You can't put down 'I object because I don't like to pay taxes!'" And a voice from the audience replied: "But it's true."

The meeting was somewhat abruptly adjourned by Cunningham when the tone of questioning from the audience indicated that the meeting might get out of control if further questioning were permitted. Cunningham asked people to return in smaller numbers through Thursday evening for help in filing exceptions to the SCD assessments.

The overcrowded and hot auditorium contributed to the tenseness of the crowd, most of whom had to stand through the meeting of more than one hour in length.

A sampling of opinions following the meeting indicated that those there were bitterly angry about the SCD plan. Many said that they were living on fixed incomes and could not afford the assessments they termed as arbitrary and excessive.

One young father complained that he earned $4,100 a year as a state employe, and that this was barely enough to support his wife and two children and meet house payments. Others said the assessments would put them in danger of losing their homes.

Several people were circulating petitions calling for the Army Corps of Engineers to do the Alum Creek and Mill Creek projects, and they were getting no turn-downs from prospective signers.

In the event of rain the program will be held the following Saturday, Aug. 29.

This is one of the first major community projects of the Whitehall Kiwanis Club, now in its charter year.

Merchants helping to support the program with donations of refreshments and prizes are Pepsi-Cola Co., Seyfert Potato Chips, Zettler Hardware at Great Eastern, and Goodyear Tires on Hamilton-rd.

Mrs. L. W. Boda Listed As Fair

Mt. Carmel Hospital officials have listed the Wednesday condition of Mrs. Lydia Wilson Boda as fair.

Mrs. Boda was manager of the Haruman Theater from 1958 to 1963, taking over management upon the death of her husband.

Mrs. Boda has been hospitalized since July 24.

EXECUTIVES APPOINTED

TWO LOCAL MEN have been given executive appointments at the Lazarus branch store in the new Northland Shopping Center, scheduled to open Thursday, Aug. 13. They are Jack Boyd, left, and Richard Will. Boyd, of 1212 Striebel-rd, will be personnel and operations manager. Will, of 1769 Kenview-dr, has been appointed divisional merchandise manager in charge of furniture and housewares.

TB Cruiser To Visit East Side Today

Free Christmas Seal chest X-rays will be made available to residents of the East Side today, the Tuberculosis Society of Columbus and Franklin County revealed.

X-ray cruiser was to be located at the Great Eastern Shopping Center and was to be in operation from 2 to 5 and 6 to 8:30 p.m.

A total of 202 chest X-rays were taken July 27 when the Tuberculosis Society's Christmas Seal X-ray cruiser was located at the Town and Country Shopping Center.

Findings for that location included one cardiac condition, one case of emphysema, and three other chest abnormalities of the total 202 X-rays taken.

OSU To Confer Service Award On E. D. Reese

Everett D. Reese

Ohio State University will confer its distinguished service award on Everett D. Reese of 189 N. Parkview-av, at the summer quarter commencement Friday, Aug. 28.

Presented for outstanding service rendered to the university, the awards will be made in ceremonies beginning at 9 a.m. in St. John Arena.

Smith L. Rairdon, chairman of the university's Board of Trustees will read the citation. President Novice G. Fawcett will present the award.

Reese is chairman of the Board of Directors of the City National Bank of Columbus and holds a similar office with Park National Bank, Newark, and the First National Bank, Cambridge.

A Columbus native, in 1926 he became one of the youngest bank presidents in the United States. A 1919 graduate of Ohio State, he taught briefly at Ohio State and at the University of Georgia School of Technology before joining the Park National Bank in Newark in 1921.

Within five years he became president, and in 1956 was named chairman of the board.

In 1942 he was elected president of the Ohio Bankers Association and in 1953 president of the American Bankers Association.

He has taught banking courses at the University of Wisconsin and at Rutgers, where he served as chairman of the Board of Regents of the Graduate School.

He serves as director of numerous firms and has been active in several civic groups.

The tourney will also sponsor a "Celebrity Bowl" with prominent celebrities from the trophies.

Marks 35 Years With Bell Labs

Harry E. Ehrich, 3585 Seabrook-av, marks his 35th anniversary of service with Bell Telephone Laboratories this month.

He is an electrical engineer on the staff of the switching apparatus department at the company's Columbus Laboratory, 6200 E. Broad-st.

Ehrich

Ehrich began his telephone career at the Bell Laboratories New York City location, where he was stationed until the opening of the Columbus Laboratory in 1959.

A native of Brooklyn, he holds a B.S. in electrical engineering degree, cum laude, from New York University.

He and his wife, Lillian, have lived at their present address for five years with their four children, Betty, Ralph, Nancy and Kathie. They are members of Redeemer Lutheran Church.

REAL RINGER

Save Money On Courts

A savings of $11,000 will be realized in the construction of 32 new horseshoe courts at nine Columbus recreation centers.

The savings came about after Recreation Superintendent Nicholas Barack, received a commercial bid of $500 to build each court. After conferring with Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner and Parks Supt. Emerson Betz, Betz announced the job could be done for about $125 a court, using the Recreation Departments material.

Four courts each will be built at Beatty, Windsor Terrace, Goodale, Tuttle, Whetstone and Westgate; two at Glenwood and three at Sullivant Gardens and Senior Citizens Recreation Center.

Harmses Will Hold Reception

Dr. and Mrs. Harm Harms, former Bexley residents and members of the Capital University staff, will be in Columbus for a short visit this month.

Following the tradition they established six years ago on their first return from Guam, where they have lived since 1956, the Harmes are inviting their many friends and acquaintances to a repeption at Christ Lutheran church, 2314 E. Main-st, Sunday, Aug. 16, at 7:30 p.m.

Dr. Harm will show slides on typhoon Karen. Reception reservations may be made through the church office.

Area Artists Enter Contest

Steve Erwin, 806 Vernon-rd, and James T. Mason, 800 Grandon-av, are among the entrants in the 14th annual Christmas Seal Design Contest co-sponsored by the Tuberculosis Society of Columbus and Franklin County and the Columbus College of Art and Design. Deadline for entries is Sept. 8.

Clown Contests Featured At Playgrounds

Clown contests for children six to 18 will be held this week on all playgrounds operated by the Columbus Recreation Department. Ribbons will be given to winners in the following categories: cutest, saddest, funniest, most original and happiest, with a special award for the best all around clown.

Most of the playground craft programs will be geared to this special event, with children making costumes or parts of costumes.

A city-wide Clown Contest will be held at City Hall at 2 p.m., Friday, Aug. 14. Flippo, from WBNS-TV will serve as master of ceremonies.

This contest is open to all boys and girls six to 18. They need not be playground winners to participate in the contest.

Pinecrest . . .

Pinecrest Clown Contest will be held at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 13. The children are looking forward to the event.

Junior Jet Night is Aug. 18, and parents are needed to provide transportation.

Highlight of this week Junior Jet program was Paul Spraks' strike out of 16 batters while leading his team to a 11 to 4 victory over team C. The game clinched the league title for Team A.

The physical fitness program is continuing, with over 150 children passing the test. Children interested in taking the AAU Physical Fitness test may contact leaders at Pinecrest.

There is a need for teenagers to help with the costuming for the pageant.

Arts and Crafts is held each day at 1.

Pinecrest will hold a model and hobby show, Thursday, Aug. 20. Children who are interested should be on the playground at 6:30 with their hobbies.

Pinecrest Intermediate Girls' Softball team, known as the Pinecrest Petticoats, finished second in the league. The team consisted of Cheryl Mox, Sharon Schaub, Pookie Schaub, Lila Montgomery, Debbie Teeters, Karen Shrieves, Sue Sauner, Maria Mormino, Chris Koehler, Jo Cash, Sharon Lewis and Mary Farson.

Six boys participated in a stone pickers contest Thursday.

First place team was Scotty Bigler, Gary Rockefeller and Ray Horne.

Second place team was Robin Bigler, Jim Pritchard and Danny Whitley.

Instigator award went to Jeff Myers, while the official counter award went to Elizabeth Whitley.

Scottwood . . .

Scottwood boys and girls who participated in the Lantern Parade were: Barbara, Kathy, Connie, Kevin, and Charles Nuzum, Corinne Shaeirtz, Nancy Mara, Kathleen and Noreen Duerer.

Patty Nyeste, Janice and Steve Georgeff, Dick and Jo Traphagan, Roxanne Ault, Scott and Ed Stewart, Mike, Steve, and Craig Pierano, Karen West, Tereasa Wray, Suson Rosol, and Steve and Barbara Kosciuk.

Scottwood Junior Boys' Softball team defeated James Road, 9 to 6. Team members include Alan and Chuck Kletecka, Ron Case, Mike and Albert Yamkulov, Bob Attwood, Ed Mallory, Mike Marin and Steve Georgeff.

Scottwood Junior Girls' softball team defeated Fairmoor 15-1, winning the far East league and finishing league play undefeated. They will play in the city tournament the week of Aug. 17.

A family picnic will be held at Scottwood Aug. 26, 5:30 p.m. Parents are invited to bring picnic lunches for their families. Grills and soft drinks will be available. Activities planned include father-son and mother-daughter softball games and dancing.

Shepard . . .

Junior Jet Night at Jet Stadium is Aug. 20.

Fifty-two young people from Shepard participated in the Junior Olympics. Mary Aileen Holley set a new record of eight feet three and three-fourths inches in the standing broad jump. She won a gold medal.

Bobby Eiland's 220-yard relay team came in third. Donald Johnson's 220-yard relay also landed third place. Douglas Rutledge won a medal in the 120-yard low hurdles and another in the high jump.

William Curtis drove the bus which picked the contestants up at the playground and returned them that evening from the stadium.

August 13 will feature the playground clown parade and contest. The following day, Aug. 14, the city-wide clown contest will be held on the veranda of City Hall at 1:30 p.m.

Boys and girls must sign up if they want to be a clown in the playground parade. It is suggested they compete for distinction in one of the funniest, saddest, cutest, or happiest categories. This is strictly a dress-up contest. The judges will be three of four members of the advisory council.

Playground leaders will help entrants make costumes. Arts and crafts program will be geared to the clown-parade activities.

The children who go to the city clown contest will have to find their own transportation. Flippo will emcee the city clown contest.

Twelve more boys and 10 more girls completed physical fitness qualifications last week.

James Road . . .

Junior Jet Night will be Aug. 20 with all Junior Jet players admitted to Jet Stadium free of charge. Only requirement is that boys wear their Junior Jet tee shirts.

The Junior Jet program has two weeks to go. The Yankees are leading the league with an undefeated record. The Indians are close behind, having lost only one game.

James Road Intermediate Boys' Softball team played Leawood a practice game and won.

Activities on the playground every day are horseshoes, basketball, touch-pass football, volleyball, softball, tetherball, four-square and table games.

Girls interested in participating in the pageant began practice this week. James Road will follow the outer space theme.

James Road clown parade will be held Thursday, Aug. 14.

Woodcrest . . .

Junior Jet Night at Jet Stadium is Tuesday, Aug. 18, and Woodcrest boys must be at the school by 5:45 p.m. to meet their coaches.

Thursday, Aug. 13, 6:30 p.m., there will be a clown contest. All children are welcome to dress up as clowns, march in the parade and try for prizes.

Woodcrest and Willis Park playgrounds are working together on an act for the pageant at Schiller Park Aug. 31. Theme of the pageant is the Center of Science and Industry, and the act will be about the blacksmith's shop in the street of yesterday.

Willis Park . . .

Girls' champion in the tetherball tournament at Willis Park was Selma Mastenbrook, and the boys' champ was Brady Davis.

Intermediate Boys lost to Leawood in the league championship.

Intermediate Girls forfeited to Fairmoor, and the Junior Girls lost to Leawood, 9 to 7.

In Junior Jet, Team 1 is holding down the top spot with Team 2 in second place and Team 3 in third.

This Thursday at 6:30 p.m. the Willis Park clown contest will be held.

This week in arts and crafts the children are working on costuming for the clown contest.

Leawood . . .

Junior Boys' Softball team at Leawood finished the season with a 6-3 record to capture the league championship. Larry McKinney and Max Storts were the most valuable players on the team.

Leawood, however, was defeated in the district championship game by Courtright, 6 to 3.

Intermediate Boys' Softball team finished its regular season with a 5-2 mark, capturing the league title. The district championship game with Courtright remains to be played.

The team's most valuable player was Dale Thompson, who had five home runs in seven games.

Team 4 of Leawood's Junior Jet League won the league title with a 13-2 mark. Team 3 came in second with a 9-6 mark. The all-star game will be played Thursday, Aug. 20, at 5:45 p.m.

Team 4, the league winner, will play an all-star team composed of the best players from other teams in the league.

Players chosen for the all-star team are: Mike Sharbonneau, Max Storts, Don Stoner, Mike Blessing, Bill Croup, Phil Piotroski, Rickie Wicks, Lee Wickliffe, Del McKray, Phil Gerlach, Steve Oyster and Mark Hal.

Larry McKinney of Team 4 was chosen as the league's most valuable player. His pitching record was 13-0, and his batting average was .425 with nine home runs.

Fairmoor won the Intermediate Girls' Softball League F with a 4-0 record. Pinecrest was second, losing only one game for a 3-1 record. Leawood, Courtright and Willis Park tied for third with 1-3 records.

Leawood's Junior Girls' Softball team finished the season with a 2-3 record. The team beat Willis Park, 9 to 7, last week.

A group of children from Leawood and Fairmoor visited the Center of Science and Industry, Aug. 10.

Junior Jet Night for Leawood will be Aug. 18 at Jet Stadium. Further details may be obtained from Walt Grelle.

On Aug. 21 at noon, a group of children will attend a Lazarus puppet show. Anyone wishing to go should see Judy Kerr at the playground for details.

Fairmoor's Junior Girls' Softball team lost its first game to Scottwood, and finished the season with a 3-1 record.

Intermediate Girls' Softball team won the sectional softball title with a 4-0 record.

The playground clown contest will be held Thursday, Aug. 13, 2 p.m.

Eastern Kiwanis standings in the National League are:

First place, Dodgers; second, Pirates; third, Reds, and fourth, Giants.

WHITEHALL RECREATION

Senior Citizen Picnic, Drama Pageant Set

All senior citizens who are residents of Whitehall are invited to a potluck outing Thursday, Aug. 20, at Blenden Woods and Hoover Dam.

The group will leave the Senior Citizens Building, next to the Municipal Building on Yearling-rd, at 10 a.m. Everyone should bring a covered dish and table service.

Hugh Parker is club president. Further information on the Senior Citizens program is available by calling the recreation center, 237-8611.

All Whitehall playgrounds will participate in the drama pageant Wednesday evening, Aug. 19, in the auditorium of Whitehall - Yearling High School. Everyone is invited.

Reports from individual playgrounds are:

BEECHWOOD

The Beechwood Belles won their softball game against Kae Avenue Playground Aug. 4. New players were Suzy Parker and Michele Nobel.

Beechwood Bombers also won their game against Kae Avenue Aug. 5.

EAST MAIN

At East Main this week, Greg Simms won first place in the bike decorating contest. Pam Milford and Helen Fee won second and third prizes, respectively.

NORTON FIELD

Last week was the busiest of the summer at Norton Field Playground. The boys' softball team dropped a squeaker to Etna Road, 3-2. Bill Simpson had two hits for the losers.

The boys' softball team defeated the girls' team, 12-0, with Butch Sark getting two home runs. This concluded the softball season, except for the tournaments next week at East Main Street.

Joe Darnell finished the season with a .670 batting average, which was tops for the Norton Field Trotters.

Last Thursday night Norton Field had a "Hole in One" contest which saw Rocky Napier score the most points for 10 shots.

Dianne Holmes was the best among the girls while Tony Gallick hit the longest drive. Ribbons were given to the winners.

ETNA ROAD

The boys' softball team won its game against Norton Field with a 3-2 score. The girls' softball team won against Norton Field with a score of 37-24.

At far left, Bill smiles at well-wishers as he neared the halfway mark Thursday evening on the wheel in the Hamilton Shopping Center. Bill wasn't the only person setting records last week. The weatherman tumbled the mercury to 45 degrees later that night. But Bill slept soundly (second, left) and warm, wrapped in parka and blankets. Clown Contests Featured At Playgrounds

Clown contests for children six to 18 will be held this week on all playgrounds operated by the Columbus Recreation Department. Ribbons will be given to winners in the following categories: cutest, saddest, funniest, most original and happiest, with a special award for the best all around clown.

Most of the playground craft programs will be geared to this special event, with children making costumes or parts of costumes.

A city-wide Clown Contest will be held at City Hall at 2 p.m., Friday, Aug. 14. Flippo, from WBNS-TV will serve as master of ceremonies.

This contest is open to all boys and girls six to 18. They need not be playground winners to participate in the contest.

Pinecrest . . .

Pinecrest Clown Contest will be held at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 13. The children are looking forward to the event.

Junior Jet Night is Aug. 18, and parents are needed to provide transportation.

Highlight of this week Junior Jet program was Paul Spraks' strike out of 16 batters while leading his team to a 11 to 4 victory over team C. The game clinched the league title for Team A.

The physical fitness program is continuing, with over 150 children passing the test. Children interested in taking the AAU Physical Fitness test may contact leaders at Pinecrest.

There is a need for teenagers to help with the costuming for the pageant.

Arts and Crafts is held each day at 1.

Pinecrest will hold a model and hobby show, Thursday, Aug. 20. Children who are interested should be on the playground at 6:30 with their hobbies.

Pinecrest Intermediate Girls' Softball team, known as the Pinecrest Petticoats, finished second in the league. The team consisted of Cheryl Mox, Sharon Schaub, Pookie Schaub, Lila Montgomery, Debbie Teeters, Karen Shrieves, Sue Sauner, Maria Mormino, Chris Koehler, Jo Cash, Sharon Lewis and Mary Farson.

Six boys participated in a stone pickers contest Thursday.

First place team was Scotty Bigler, Gary Rockefeller and Ray Horne.

Second place team was Robin Bigler, Jim Pritchard and Danny Whitley.

Instigator award went to Jeff Myers, while the official counter award went to Elizabeth Whitley.

Scottwood . . .

Scottwood boys and girls who participated in the Lantern Parade were: Barbara, Kathy, Connie, Kevin, and Charles Nuzum, Corinne Shaeirtz, Nancy Mara, Kathleen and Noreen Duerer.

Patty Nyeste, Janice and Steve Georgeff, Dick and Jo Traphagan, Roxanne Ault, Scott and Ed Stewart, Mike, Steve, and Craig Pierano, Karen West, Tereasa Wray, Suson Rosol, and Steve and Barbara Kosciuk.

Scottwood Junior Boys' Softball team defeated James Road, 9 to 6. Team members include Alan and Chuck Kletecka, Ron Case, Mike and Albert Yamkulov, Bob Attwood; Ed Mallory, Mike Marin and Steve Georgeff.

Scottwood Junior Girls' to dress up as clowns, march in the parade and try for prizes.

Woodcrest and Willis Park playgrounds are working together on an act for the pageant at Schiller Park Aug. 31. Theme of the pageant is the Center of Science and Industry, and the act will be about the blacksmith's shop in the street of yesterday.

Willis Park . . .

Girls' champion in the tetherball tournament at Willis Park was Selma Mastenbrook, and the boys' champ was Brady Davis.

Intermediate Boys lost to Leawood in the league championship.

Intermediate Girls forfeited to Fairmoor, and the Junior Girls lost to Leawood, 9 to 7.

In Junior Jet, Team 1 is holding down the top spot with Team 2 in second place and Team 3 in third.

This Thursday at 6:30 p.m. the Willis Park clown contest will be held.

This week in arts and crafts the children are working on costuming for the clown contest.

Leawood . . .

Junior Boys' Softball team at Leawood finished the season with a 6-3 record to capture the league championship. Larry McKinney and Max Storts were the most valuable players on the team.

Leawood, however, was defeated in the district championship game by Courtright,

2—Adult Education Section — Hartley Newspapers

Adult Council Sees Continued Need For Learning

By DR. SAMUEL STELLMAN
President, Adult Education Council

Learning is a life-long process for all people. Today's adult must be prepared to cope with an ever-changing world, not just today, but in the years ahead, as technological methods and social changes continue to be a part of the American way of life.

The Adult Education Council of Greater Columbus believes strongly in this principle, that education is a continuous process, and that there will always be an urgent need for opportunities for adults to improve themselves as individuals either through formal or informal adult education programs.

Community Problems

The problems that plague our community are in almost all cases also the concerns of the Adult Education Council. Among these problems are those of school drop-outs, urban renewal, juvenile delinquency, technological changes which have affected employment, the problems of poverty, higher education for those who cannot afford the costs of the university and college, and the problems of millions of Americans who cannot read or write past a fourth grade level.

The Adult Education Council is the coordinating agency in the Columbus area which attempts to deal with some of these major societal problems.

Leisure Time

The council also is concerned about the leisure time of those citizens who are looking for worthwhile programs for which they receive no credit, but who are seeking personal satisfaction in their free time.

In all corners of Columbus and surroundings there are courses and classes in a wide variety of activities from which adults gain personal pleasure and enjoyment. These include such programs as art classes, hat designing, investment courses, rapid reading, modeling courses, bridge lessons, public speaking, etc.

Function Of Council

What is the Adult Education Council? It is an organization which works toward the welfare of the adults (regardless of amount of education) in the Columbus area. For example, the council during the past year has initiated a television program for under-educated adults; it has encouraged participation in vocational programs for those who need skills in order to become employed, or to become better employed. The council has initiated the program, "Great Decisions" on radio and television in order to develop a more enlightened community. It has defended the continuation of the State of Ohio Library in order to assure the best in reading for all citizens, but especially for those in the rural areas who do not have access to libraries, and who are provided such services by the state library.

Dr. Samuel Stellman

Offers Encouragement

The council is in the process of attempting to encourage more adults, regardless of age, to return to school in order to complete a higher level of accomplishment whether that is a high school diploma or a college degree.

The council is particularly anxious to encourage the establishment of more vocational schools and community colleges, and particularly to encourage universities and colleges to be concerned with the part-time student who must work but who would like to pursue further education on a part-time basis.

Council Make-Up

Making up this council is a dedicated group of volunteers representing the schools, the universities, the private agencies, libraries, television, settlement houses, PTAs, race relations groups, national organizations and other groups dedicated to the betterment of all adults in our community.

Continuous or life-long learning is vital for every person. Since adult education offers this learning to adults, regardless of age, the results of such education means an educated community or populace.

Meetings

The council meets monthly to map out programs which will aid the area with regard to raising the level of adult education. Membership in the council is open to individuals and organizations. The council participates actively in the program of the Ohio Adult Education Association, the Ohio Public School Adult Educators and the Adult Education Association of the U.S.A.

YWCA Classes To Begin Week Of September 28

The YWCA will open its fall season of adult classes the week of Monday, Sept. 28. Brochures announcing classes at the Central YWCA, 65 S. Fourth-st, and its neighborhood centers will be available after Sept. 1, by calling CA. 4-9121.

Featured are: languages, French, German, Spanish and Russian; practical home arts, sewing, upholstery, slip covers, furniture refinishing and antiquing, knitting; home hobbies, knitting, flower arranging, cake decorating, millinery, rug hooking; social skills, bridge, ballroom dancing.

Swimming, physical fitness, slim and trim, fitness and fashion classes are also offered. Classes are held both daytime and evening for the convenience of housewives, employed women and men.

Of special public service is a six-week fall series on "Money Matters," in which expert leaders of Columbus will discuss taxes, investments, food economics, real estate, credit buying, retirement and estate planning. These finance discussions will be held Monday evenings from 7:30 to 9 at the Central YWCA, beginning Oct. 5.

Detailed information is available by calling the YWCA at CA. 4-9121.

Adult Classes Scheduled At Upper Arlington Hi School

Adult classes will be held for the eighth year in Upper Arlington High School.

The courses are open to all adults in the Franklin County area and cover a variety of hobbies, interests and skills.

The program is organized on a three-term basis with classes beginning in October, January and March.

Annual enrollment is approximately 1,500.

The following classes comprised last year's curriculum: bridge, (three levels), ballroom dancing, antiquing, beginning sewing, ceramics, conversational French, conversational Spanish, cake decorating, creative problem solving, first aid, flower arranging, figure drawing, income tax planning, interior decorating, introduction to drawing and painting, investments, knitting, math for parents, speech, stenoscript, tailoring, typing (beginning and intermediate), watercolor painting, women's physical education and woodworking.

A brochure is available at Upper Arlington High School during the first week of October. A minimal fee is charged for the courses. Further information can be obtained by calling HU. 6-2901.

TEACHERS' SALARIES

According to a report by the Research Division of the Ohio has gone up $1,900 in the past decade but the increased purchasing power has amounted to only about $1,100. Compared to other employe groups the increase in purchasing power is low, says the report.

Once in a great while a real, golden opportunity comes whistling down the pike. Once in a great while a man will clutch that opportunity and ride it to a successful career. Do you have . . . a high school education and some administrative ability? Ability to get along with people? Ability to supervise responsibility? A willingness to work for success? Between the ages of 21-35? Ability to meet the public and secure and maintain good will? If the answer is yes to these questions, don't delay, see us right away. We have plans for your immediate future. You can be making $10,000 per annum just 6 months from today!

Any unemployed or underemployed person who is interested in training and education for better job opportunities should contact, in person, the Columbus Office of the Ohio State Employment Office, Division of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation located at 309 S. Fourth-st.

Background

Manpower Development and Training Act (MDTA of 1962) is an educational program for training unemployed and underemployed workers. The program is financed by the Federal Government through the U. S. Department of Labor and in cooperation with the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The public school systems of various areas provide the training facilities as well as the instructors. Ohio, with training courses in 37 cities, is one of the nation's leaders in the number of communities served with MDTA projects.

Beginning

Since the dedication of the Southern Ohio Manpower and Technical Training Center in Jackson, O., on Jan. 6, 1964, the Columbus Ohio State Employment Service, Division of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation, has helped recruit trainees in the Columbus area for routemen, custodians, nurse aides and home assistants.

The local recruits have been ready for training in these specific occupations and displayed a desire to participate in the training program at Jackson.

Local Action

Locally, the Columbus Franklin County Area Worker Committee, consisting of personnel from industry, labor organizations, public school systems, the general public and state departments, recommend and approve training, depending upon the occupational shortage in the Columbus area.

This committee cooperates constantly in these training programs to help up-grade workers and relieve unemployment in the Columbus area. Many meeting and surveys are made with specific employers to determine whether they would hire the trainees upon completion of the training.

Certain basic qualifications are established. In training a person for a job as cook-combination in the restaurant industry, restaurant managers volunteer information as to their minimum requirements, such as education, age range, and what the training should include.

All pertinent information is compiled and the necessary requirements are set up and selection begins. Selection necessitates a study of active applications as well as the walk in applicants who express a desire for specific training. Subsequently, applicants qualified for training are called in to the office for an interview.

Pay While Training

Most trainees are eligible to receive pay while learning a trade. There are certain stipulations, such as being the head of a household or family, before training allowance is approved. However, this is a part of the selection factor and is discussed in the interview and further discussed upon final selection.

The Columbus Office of the Ohio State Employment Service, Division of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation has selected trainees and classes have been completed in welding, for clerk-typists, clerk - stenographers, bookkeeping machine operators, auto service station attendant mechanics, and machine operators-general.

As a result of training, many of the trainees are now employed in the skills for which they were trained. These people were unemployed or underemployed and are presently able to compete with some of the same skills and abilities as other workers in similar employment in the community.

After Training

Upon completion of the training, the Columbus Office of the Ohio State Employment Service, Division of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation, located at 309 S. Fourth-st, undertakes the responsibility of placing these trained men and women in jobs.

This is done by screening the trainee against current job openings, contacting employers by telephone or in person to develop a job interview for the trainee. All segments of the office handling skilled, unskilled, service, sales, clerical and professional categories of jobs at one time or another enter into the placement of the trainees.

Other training classes are being processed and there are more scheduled in the future.

MEDICAL TERMS

Adults employed in medical centers, hospitals or doctors' offices will find a valuable aid in the course in medical terminology taught in Evening High School. Register for the class at the school, 75 Washington-blvd, Central High Building, on Thursday evening, Sept. 10 or Monday evening, Sept. 14.

Reading Perception Clinic Shows Johnny CAN Read

"Reading is the key to education. The poor student is almost adways a poor reader," says Dr. Benjamin Center, director of the Reading and Perception Clinic, 481 E. Town-st.

"The fact that the student is a poor reader is not always obvious — however there are symptoms that generally appear that indicate inadequate reading ability: Inability to concentrate; limited vocabulary; slow in completing assignments; poor attitude; difficulty in expressing himself in written work or verbally.

"The child who shows any of these symptoms needs help. Since symptoms only indicate a problem, the Reading and Perception Clinic makes a preliminary study to determine the cause of the problem." As a part of this examination, Dr. Center and his staff evaluates the youngster's visual-reading ability, his development in making proper sounds, and his ability to hear and interpret sounds correctly. Attitudes and mental capacity are determined.

An individualized program is then designed to teach the youngster how to read, how to study and how to retain and remember.

Clown Contests Featured At Playgrounds

Clown contests for children six to 18 will be held this week on all playgrounds operated by the Columbus Recreation Department. Ribbons will be given to winners in the following categories: cutest, saddest, funniest, most original and happiest, with a special award for the best all around clown.

Most of the playground craft programs will be geared to this special event, with children making costumes or parts of costumes.

A city-wide Clown Contest will be held at City Hall at 2 p.m., Friday, Aug. 14. Flippo, from WBNS-TV will serve as master of ceremonies.

This contest is open to all boys and girls six to 18. They need not be playground winners to participate in the contest.

Pinecrest . . .

Pinecrest Clown Contest will be held at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 13. The children are looking forward to the event.

Junior Jet Night is Aug. 18, and parents are needed to provide transportation.

Highlight of this week Junior Jet program was Paul Spraks' strike out of 16 batters while leading his team to a 11 to 4 victory over team C. The game clinched the league title for Team A.

The physical fitness program is continuing, with over 150 children passing the test. Children interested in taking the AAU Physical Fitness test may contact leaders at Pinecrest.

There is a need for teenagers to help with the costuming for the pageant.

Arts and Crafts is held each day at 1.

Pinecrest will hold a model and hobby show, Thursday, Aug. 20. Children who are interested should be on the playground at 6:30 with their hobbies.

Pinecrest Intermediate Girls' Softball team, known as the Pinecrest Petticoats, finished second in the league. The team consisted of Cheryl Mox, Sharon Schaub, Pookie Schaub, Lila Montgomery, Debbie Teeters, Karen Shrieves, Sue Sauner, Maria Mormino, Chris Koehler, Jo Cash, Sharon Lewis and Mary Farson.

Six boys participated in a stone pickers contest Thursday.

First place team was Scotty Bigler, Gary Rockefeller and Ray Horne.

Second place team was Robin Bigler, Jim Pritchard and Danny Whitley.

Instigator award went to Jeff Myers, while the official counter award went to Elizabeth Whitley.

Scottwood . . .

Scottwood boys and girls who participated in the Lantern Parade were: Barbara, Kathy, Connie, Kevin, and Charles Nuzum, Corinne Shaeirtz, Nancy Mara, Kathleen and Noreen Duerer.

Patty Nyeste, Janice and Steve Georgeff, Dick and Jo Traphagan, Roxanne Ault, Scott and Ed Stewart, Mike, Steve, and Craig Pierano, Karen West, Tereasa Wray, Suson Rosol, and Steve and Barbara Kosciuk.

Scottwood Junior Boys' Softball team defeated James Road, 9 to 6. Team members include Alan and Chuck Kletecka, Ron Case, Mike and Albert Yamkulov, Bob Attwood, Ed Mallory, Mike Marin and Steve Georgeff.

Scottwood Junior Girls' to dress up as clowns, march in the parade and try for prizes.

Woodcrest and Willis Park playgrounds are working together on an act for the pageant at Schiller Park Aug. 31. Theme of the pageant is the Center of Science and Industry, and the act will be about the blacksmith's shop in the street of yesterday.

Willis Park . . .

Girls' champion in the tetherball tournament at Willis Park was Selma Mastenbrook, and the boys' champ was Brady Davis.

Intermediate Boys lost to Leawood in the league championship.

Intermediate Girls forfeited to Fairmoor, and the Junior Girls lost to Leawood, 9 to 7.

In Junior Jet, Team 1 is holding down the top spot with Team 2 in second place and Team 3 in third.

This Thursday at 6:30 p.m. the Willis Park clown contest will be held.

This week in arts and crafts the children are working on costuming for the clown contest.

Leawood . . .

Junior Boys' Softball team at Leawood finished the season with a 6-3 record to capture the league championship. Larry McKinney and Max Storts were the most valuable players on the team.

Leawood, however, was defeated in the district championship game by Courtright, of children will attend a Lazarus puppet show. Anyone wishing to go should see Judy Kerr at the playground for details.

Fairmoor . . .

Fairmoor's Junior Girls' Softball team lost its first game to Scottwood, and finished the season with a 3-1 record.

Intermediate Girls' Softball team won the sectional softball title with a 4-0 record.

The playground clown contest will be held Thursday, Aug. 13, 2 p.m.

Eastern Kiwanis standings in the National League are:

First place, Dodgers; second, Pirates; third, Reds, and fourth, Giants.

WHITEHALL RECREATION

Senior Citizen Picnic, Drama Pageant Set

All senior citizens who are residents of Whitehall are invited to a potluck outing Thursday, Aug. 20, at Blendon Woods and Hoover Dam.

The group will leave the Senior Citizens Building, next to the Municipal Building on Yearling-rd, at 10 a.m. Everyone should bring a covered dish and table service.

Hugh Parker is club president. Further information on the Senior Citizens program is available by calling the recreation center, 237-8611.

All Whitehall playgrounds will participate in the drama pageant Wednesday evening, Aug. 19, in the auditorium of Whitehall - Yearling High School. Everyone is invited.

Reports from individual playgrounds are:

BEECHWOOD

The Beechwood Belles won their softball game against Kae Avenue Playground Aug. 4. New players were Suzy Parker and Michele Nobel.

Beechwood Bombers also won their game against Kae Avenue Aug. 5.

EAST MAIN

At East Main this week, Greg Simms won first place in the bike decorating contest. Pam Milford and Helen Fee won second and third prizes, respectively.

NORTON FIELD

Last week was the busiest of the summer at Norton Field Playground. The boys' softball team dropped a squeaker to Etna Road, 3-2. Bill Simpson had two hits for the losers.

The boys' softball team defeated the girls' team, 12-0, with Butch Sark getting two home runs. This concluded the softball season, except for the tournaments next week at East Main Street.

Joe Darnell finished the season with a .670 batting average, which was tops for the Norton Field Trotters.

Last Thursday night Norton Field had a "Hole in One" contest which saw Rocky Napier score the most points for 10 shots.

Dianne Holmes was the best among the girls while Tony Gallick hit the longest drive. Ribbons were given to the winners.

ETNA ROAD

The boys' softball team won its game against Norton Field with a 3-2 score. The girls' softball team won against Norton Field with a score of 37-24.

Recreational, Avocational Courses Will Be Offered

Worthington Public Schools sponsor two adult education terms each school year. The fall term begins in the middle of October.

This program has been primarily recreational and vocational in nature. Some of the offerings have been typing, art, sewing and conversational languages.

Anyone interested in further information can write H. R. Armstrong, assistant superintendent, 182 W. Granville-rd, Worthington, or phone 885-4690.

Central YMCA Offers Opportunities For Physical Fitness, Creative Living

The 109-year-old Central YMCA at 40 W. Long-st offers adults of all races and creeds many opportunities for self improvement through its Informal Adult Evening School, athletic programs, physical fitness programs, men's and family camping program and other social activities. Thousands of Columbus men have found that the YMCA offers a pleasant and effective way to get and keep in trim.

In the days of the old Third Street YMCA, the organization pioneered physical fitness of business men by having them run around the State House Square. Now, the Central YMCA boasts of one of the few indoor running tracks for its members.

The pool is used for social family groups, swimming events and water safety courses.

College - trained specialists map programs to fit their needs. And guide them toward their goal. Every step . . . every minute of their progress is fun!

Y members feel good, all the way through, when they join in any of a dozen or more sports and recreational activities. An exciting game of volleyball or a lively swim builds a glow of health. And it is genuine good health—the kind that will stand by you when the going gets tough. Exercise puts vital organs to work — something they don't do when you are bound to a desk all day, and flop in an easy chair all evening. And through sports and games the members make new friends and develop new interests while getting in shape.

The athletic facilities at the Y are among the best in the nation and the activities include swimming and skin diving, basketball, volleyball, handball, squash, paddle rackets, badminton, gymnastics, trampoline, judo, wrestling, weight lifting, fitness classes, track, sun bathing, health services and camping.

In the Informal Adult Education program, classes and activities are offered in season. The courses cover a wide range of creative and stimulating topics including crafts, languages, hobbies, social skills, religion and personal finance.

This is the 40th consecutive term of classes that meet the "Y" motto of "Night Life That Pays Dividends." We are constantly on the look out for new, unique, interesting classes that you might like to take.

Some recent classes that have met this criteria are: Basic Mountaineering, Guitar, Geology of Ohio, a systematic Bible course, Auto Know How (for women), Italian and Knitting. The whole thing revolves around what you like to do.

Social activities and clubs, which offer fellowship, fun and recreation include dancing, bridge, chess, hiking and youth hosteling.

All of the above activities and facilities have been planned to further the purpose of the YMCA which is to promote the spiritual, intellectual, social and physical education and growth of its members and constituency, consistent with the spirit and teaching of Jesus Christ; and in cooperation with the home, the church, the school and other institutions, to render such service in the community as will tend to secure better social, economic, moral and spiritual conditions for society.

'TWAS A 'HARD DAY'S NIGHT' BUT BILL (AND GENE) COUNTED 50

BILL ASTON JR. provided one of the week's biggest local news stories by taking a ferris wheel ride. What made Bill's whirl news was the longevity of his spin — 50 hours and 10 minutes. At far left, Bill smiles at well-wishers as he neared the halfway mark Thursday evening on the wheel in the Hamilton Shopping Center. Bill wasn't the only person setting records last week. The weatherman tumbled the mercury to 45 degrees later that night. But Bill slept soundly (second, left) and warm, wrapped in parka and blankets. Keeping the lonely vigil through the early morning hours was wheel owner-operator Gene Clark (second, right) who remained awake at the wheel during Bill's entire record-breaking ride. Young Aston reflects welcome re-entry to home base (far right) as he takes first steps off wheel seat Friday evening. Story on page 3. (Staff photos by Jack Wittenmeier).

EACH CASE IS DIFFERENT

More Education Can Add Up To Extra Income

By R. STEVEN MARCUS

I am often asked whether or not a person can expect to increase his income by increasing his education. The answer is not always a simple "yes."

Education is a definite asset and almost everyone who enrolls in an adult education course finds it most interesting and certainly a mental stimulus. However, it would be incorrect to assume that in all cases it will lead directly to higher income.

Every case should be considered individually, giving special attention to the objective—whether it is to earn more, to become more skillful in the same occupation, or just to learn for the sake of learning.

R. Steven Marcus

About the author . . .

R. Steven Marcus is the senior partner of International Personnel Service, located in Upper Arlington. He moved to Columbus from Michigan to take part in advising this company in the Columbus area. Previously he was franchise director of International Personnel Service, Inc., of Detroit, Mich., the home office of this expanding organization.

Wanted To Apply Skills

A few months ago, a very personable, middle-aged woman came to me for this kind of advice. She had been working in several charitable organizations during the past 15 years. Her daughter had reached college age and she now wanted to apply her skills to an income producing situation.

Prior to her marriage she had been a secretary and thought that she should go back to that type of work. She asked if she should go to night school and brush up on her typing and shorthand.

Had Greater Talent

If you could meet this wonderful person you would certainly agree that she had developed the ability to work with people and to understand their problems.

Any attempt to seek employment as a qualified office worker—typing, filing, shorthand, etc.—would have been a waste of much greater talents and would have reduced her to competing with younger women far more experienced in the basic office skills. Her salary would have been based on such a comparison and her wonderful personality would have been a secondary consideration.

Will Help Others

We discussed the various areas of employment which could utilize her experience with people. She still intends to brush up on her typing as it can be valuable in any office situation, but the important thing is that she will not attempt to find employment on the basis of that skill. The latest information I have is that she will be working in personnel, helping other women in making similar decisions.

This woman's case illustrates the need to assess the total situation very clearly. Often a person cannot make a self-analysis of his talents. The help of your supervisor or of a professional personnel consultant can be very useful.

Find Out Job Limits

Try to find out how much further you can go in your present capacity if you improve in certain areas. You may find that it would be far better to study for a major change in your occupation.

An example of this can be found in a successful engineer who had been working in computer applications. He had become the head of a section and was close to the top income bracket for such engineers in his company. Looking around his office, he could see very little chance of advancing in the next five or 10 years.

Would Have Gained Little

He wanted to know if he should enroll in some night courses to strengthen his knowledge of higher mathematics. He would certainly become more skillful in his work, but very little could be gained in his paycheck as a result of such studies.

Talking with this man, it became evident that he enjoyed explaining the details of his work and could do it in words I could understand. It was recommended that he take some courses in marketing and advanced salesmanship. Also, that he ask his superiors for an opportunity to study some government contracts and to participate in some negotiations on large installations.

Became Top Negotiator

Within a few years, this man who had been assigned to years as an application engineer, became a top negotiator for his company in contracts with the government. His income has risen to a level that never could have been achieved by simply improving his skills as an engineer. However, one of the most significant factors in this case is that the man is still employed by the same company.

Many employes who would change companies do not realize that a record of continually changing jobs can more than offset the advantages of a good education or of good manual skills.

Eliminates "Floaters"

A very respected personnel man once told me that the first think he looks at on an applicant's record is the number of jobs he has had in the last five years. If there is more than one employer listed in that period, the applicant is disqualified from any further consideration.

This seems a little harsh in some circumstances, but I point it out because it illustrates the value of careful career planning and of careful consideration before changing jobs.

Seek Competent Advice

The turnover of employes in this country is approximately seven percent each year. Many of these changes occur because the employes do not have the proper education to keep their jobs or because they feel that they must change employers in order to change jobs.

If you are thinking of joining this seven percent, give yourself a fair break by seeking the advice of your superior or of a qualified personnel consultant. You may find that a little more education, either in the same occupation or a new one, can go a long way with your present employer.

MORE BONDS APPROVED

According to the U.S. Office of Education, 71 percent of the nearly $2.6 billion in school bond issues offered in 2,000 elections in the 1964 fiscal year were approved. By comparison, voters approved 69.9 percent of the school bond issues in the previous fiscal year and 70.1 percent in fiscal year 1962.

Clown Contests Featured At Playgrounds

Clown contests for children six to 18 will be held this week on all playgrounds operated by the Columbus Recreation Department. Ribbons will be given to winners in the following categories: cutest, saddest, funniest, most original and happiest, with a special award for the best all around clown.

Most of the playground craft programs will be geared to this special event, with children making costumes or parts of costumes.

A city-wide Clown Contest will be held at City Hall at 2 p.m., Friday, Aug. 14. Flippo, from WBNS-TV will serve as master of ceremonies.

This contest is open to all boys and girls six to 18. They need not be playground winners to participate in the contest.

Pinecrest . . .

Pinecrest Clown Contest will be held at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 13. The children are looking forward to the event.

Junior Jet Night is Aug. 18, and parents are needed to provide transportation.

Highlight of this week Junior Jet program was Paul Spraks' strike out of 16 batters while leading his team to a 11 to 4 victory over team C. The game clinched the league title for Team A.

The physical fitness program is continuing, with over 150 children passing the test. Children interested in taking the AAU Physical Fitness test may contact leaders at Pinecrest.

There is a need for teenagers to help with the costuming for the pageant.

Arts and Crafts is held each day at 1.

Pinecrest will hold a model and hobby show, Thursday, Aug. 20. Children who are interested should be on the playground at 6:30 with their hobbies.

Pinecrest Intermediate Girls' Softball team, known as the Pinecrest Petticoats, finished second in the league. The team consisted of Cheryl Mox, Sharon Schaub, Pookie Schaub, Lila Montgomery, Debbie Teeters, Karen Shrieves, Sue Sauner, Maria Mormino, Chris Koehler, Jo Cash, Sharon Lewis and Mary Farson.

Six boys participated in a stone pickers contest Thursday.

First place team was Scotty Bigler, Gary Rockefeller and Ray Horne.

Second place team was Robin Bigler, Jim Pritchard and Danny Whitley.

Instigator award went to Jeff Myers, while the official counter award went to Elizabeth Whitley.

Scottwood . . .

Scottwood boys and girls who participated in the Lantern Parade were: Barbara, Kathy, Connie, Kevin, and Charles Nuzum, Corinne Shaeirtz, Nancy Mara, Kathleen and Noreen Duerer.

Patty Nyeste, Janice and Steve Georgeff, Dick and Jo Traphagan, Roxanne Ault, Scott and Ed Stewart, Mike, Steve, and Craig Pierano, Karen West, Tereasa Wray, Suson Rosol, and Steve and Barbara Kosciuk.

Scottwood Junior Boys' Softball team defeated James Road, 9 to 6. Team members include Alan and Chuck Kletecka, Ron Case, Mike and Albert Yamkulov, Bob Attwood, Ed Mallory, Mike Marin and Steve Georgeff.

Scottwood Junior Girls' to dress up as clowns, march in the parade and try for prizes.

Woodcrest and Willis Park playgrounds are working together on an act for the pageant at Schiller Park Aug. 31. Theme of the pageant is the Center of Science and Industry, and the act will be about the blacksmith's shop in the street of yesterday.

Willis Park . . .

Girls' champion in the tetherball tournament at Willis Park was Selma Masstenbrook, and the boys' champ was Brady Davis.

Intermediate Boys lost to Leawood in the league championship.

Intermediate Girls forfeited to Fairmoor, and the Junior Girls lost to Leawood, 9 to 7.

In Junior Jet, Team 1 is holding down the top spot with Team 2 in second place and Team 3 in third.

This Thursday at 6:30 p.m. the Willis Park clown contest will be held.

This week in arts and crafts the children are working on costuming for the clown contest.

Leawood . . .

Junior Boys' Softball team at Leawood finished the season with a 6-3 record to capture the league championship. Larry McKinney and Max Storts were the most valuable players on the team.

Leawood, however, was defeated in the district championship game by Courtright.

WHITEHALL RECREATION

Senior Citizen Picnic, Drama Pageant Set

All senior citizens who are residents of Whitehall are invited to a potluck outing Thursday, Aug. 20, at Blenden Woods and Hoover Dam.

of children will attend a Lazarus puppet show. Anyone wishing to go should see Judy Kerr at the playground for details.

Fairmoor . . .

Fairmoor's Junior Girls' Softball team lost its first game to Scottwood, and finished the season with a 3-1 record.

Intermediate Girls' Softball team won the sectional softball title with a 4-0 record.

The playground clown contest will be held Thursday, Aug. 13, 2 p.m.

Eastern Kiwanis standings in the National League are:

First place, Dodgers; second, Pirates; third, Reds, and fourth, Giants.

The group will leave the Senior Citizens Building, next to the Municipal Building on Yearling-rd, at 10 a.m. Everyone should bring a covered dish and table service.

Hugh Parker is club president. Further information on the Senior Citizens program is available by calling the recreation center, 237-8611.

All Whitehall playgrounds will participate in the drama pageant Wednesday evening, Aug. 19, in the auditorium of Whitehall - Yearling High School. Everyone is invited.

Reports from individual playgrounds are:

BEECHWOOD

The Beechwood Belles won their softball game against Kae Avenue Playground Aug. 4. New players were Suzy Parker and Michele Nobel.

Beechwood Bombers also won their game against Kae Avenue Aug. 5.

EAST MAIN

At East Main this week, Greg Simms won first place in the bike decorating contest. Pam Milford and Helen Fee won second and third prizes, respectively.

NORTON FIELD

Last week was the busiest of the summer at Norton Field Playground. The boys' softball team dropped a squeaker to Etna Road, 3-2. Bill Simpson had two hits for the losers.

The boys' softball team defeated the gir's' team, 12-0, with Butch Sark getting two home runs. This concluded the softball season, except for the tournaments next week at East Main Street.

Joe Darnell finished the season with a .670 batting average, which was tops for the Norton Field Trotters.

Last Thursday night Norton Field had a "Hole in One" contest which saw Rocky Napier score the most points for 10 shots.

Dianne Holmes was the best among the girls while Tony Gallick hit the longest drive. Ribbons were given to the winners.

ETNA ROAD

The boys' softball team won its game against Norton Field with a 3-2 score. The girls' softball team won against Norton Field with a score of 37-24.

4—Adult Education Section — Hartley Newspapers

Day, Evening Curriculums Are Offered At Franklin U.

Franklin University, Columbus downtown community university, is located in the Central YMCA at 40 W. Long-st. It was started in the 1880's, when the YMCA offered informal education in telegraphy, drawing, English and elementary subjects.

These courses were offered to help young men living in the YMCA. As the number and variety of courses grew and participation increased, the classroom work became formalized. Franklin University came into being in 1902, when formal classroom work began.

Today Franklin University occupies four floors in the east wing of Central YMCA. If offers day and evening curriculums in Electronics, Engineering Technology, Engineering Drawing Technology, Construction Drawing Technology, Accounting, Business Administration, Industrial Management, Law and Secretarial Studies. The university welcomes persons studying for degrees or those who are interested in only a few courses. Curriculums are kept up to date by the use of advisory committees. Recently new furniture was installed in all classrooms.

Polices of the university are set by a Board of Governors, composed of 12 business and professional men. The university isadministered by the director, Dr. Joseph F. Frasch. Each of the three colleges is headed by a dean. The faculty is composed of 15 full-time professors and 60 part-time professors. The university is a non-profit institution of higher education devoted to the purpose of helping persons to improve themselves on a full-time or part-time basis. Women students were admitted for the first time during the first World War. Today about one-fourth of the students are women.

Franklin University is one of the early pioneers in adult education. It offered the first courses in Electronics Engineering Technology and Drawing Technology in Columbus. It pioneered in the development of the trimester plan, when it adopted trimesters in 1946. In the fall of 1963 it opened day classes in the General College, to give Columbus its first junior college.

The main purpose of the university is to help youth and adults up-grade themselves intellectually. Offices are open 12 hours a day, and personal counseling is available at all times. Students have ready access to the dean of their college. Employment opportunities are made available to all students. Progress reports are sent to students' employers upon request by students.

A recent survey revealed that approximately one-half of its students received some financial help from their employers when they attended Franklin University. The employers' help varies from the payment of all tuition to a payment of only a part of the tuition. Employers also assist the university by serving on advisory committees.

Day classes meet for one hour each day during the week. A few day courses meet only three times a week. Evening classes meet for three hours an evening for one evening a week during the 15-week trimester. Thus, if a student enrolls in a class which meets on Monday evening, he will attend class from 6 to 8:50 p.m. each Monday evening for 15 weeks. Most evening students attend two or more courses. Saturday morning classes meet from 8:30 to 11:20 a.m. every Saturday morning for 15 weeks.

In addition to classrooms and a moot courtroom, the university maintains modern laboratories for drawing, physics and electronics. The library is open from 8 a.m. until 10:30 p.m. Monday through Fhiday; from 8:00 a.m. until 5 p.m. on Saturday; and from 1 to 4 p.m. on Sunday. The collection consists of over 30,000 volumes selected for use by the students of the General College, Technical Institute and Law School. Many periodicals and newspapers are available. Adult students use the library extensively. A special course, "Sources of Information for the Business Man" has been developed to teach students how to find and use materials dealing with business.

Sidney J. Kelly, 39, of New York recently joined the staff of the Technical Institute as dean.

Kelly holds the B.S. in engineering from Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn and the M.S. in engineering degree from Bucknell University. In addition to these professional engineering degrees, he also holds the M.S. in education degree from Hofstra University.

His education degree is in the field of technical institute administration. Prior to his coming to Franklin University, Kelly was Kellogg Community Scholar at Teachers College, Columbia University, from 1961 to September, 1963. As a Kellogg Scholar, he worked in the field of the technical institute cirriculum. Upon the completion of his dissertation on "Two Year Engineering Related Technical Education," Kelly is to receive the doctor's degree from Columbia University.

At Alfred State Tech., he was head of the Department of Engineering Technology. Of importance to the Adult Technical Education Evening training movement in the Columbus area is his considerable experience as evening advisor for the Division of Natural Sciences at Hofstra University.

James S. Lucas joined the the Technical Institute in May. He came from the Cambridge plant of Radio Corporation of America where he was an electronics engineer on the Minuteman missile ground support data processing system.

He brings with him 20 years of successful experience in varied electronics manufacturing and design fields. He received his bachelor's degree in electrical engineering from Kansas State University. Lucas teaches courses in computers, industrial electronics and solid state devices.

'TWAS A 'HARD DAY'S NIGHT' BUT BILL (AND GENE) COUNTED 50

BILL ASTON JR. provided one of the week's biggest local news stories by taking a ferris wheel ride. What made Bill's whirl news was the longevity of his spin — 50 hours and 10 minutes. At far left, Bill smiles at well-wishers as he neared the halfway mark Thursday evening on the wheel in the Hamilton Shopping Center. Bill wasn't the only person setting records last week. The weatherman tumbled the mercury to 45 degrees later that night. But Bill slept soundly (second, left) and warm, wrapped in parka and blankets. Keeping the lonely vigil through the early morning hours was wheel owner-operator Gene Clark (second, right) who remained awake at the wheel during Bill's entire record-breaking ride. Young Aston reflects welcome re-entry to home base (far right) as he takes first steps off wheel seat Friday evening. Story on page 2. (Staff photos by Jack Wittenmeier).

OSU Center For Adult Education Courses Offered At Several Levels

A recent Ph.D. graduate of Ohio State University, who majored in adult education, returned last fall to his native Ethiopia where he became Associate Dean of University Extension at the Haile Selassie I University.

He is Dr. Solomon Inquai and he received his training in adult education through courses offered by the OSU Center for Adult Education. He also studied sociology and audio-visual methods of instruction.

In his new position he supervises 15 training centers for teachers of fundamental and community education.

Other recent Ph.D. graduates who took their adult education training through the Center for Adult Education are Dr. Joseph Blair, who is now Director of Educational Services for the Nationwide Insurance Co. in Columbus, and Dr. Samuel Stellman, associate professor of Social Work at OSU.

In addition to those receiving doctor's degrees, several students have received the master's degree in recent years. These include nursing educators, "Y" directors, U.S. Armed Forces personnel, and others. Several persons who are working part-time in adult education enroll for survey courses to explore the field and to gain some of the fundamental skills.

RESEARCH SERVICES

Besides having a program of professional training, the Center for Adult Education engages in research and offers consultant services to agencies wanting to begin an adult education program or wanting to improve an already existing one. Organizations using the services of the center recently include Girl Scout Council, Central YMCA, Columbus Jewish Center, Columbus Adult Education Council, State Department of Public Instruction.

The center held its 15th annual Parent Education Workshop this summer. The workshop was co-sponsored by the Ohio Congress of Parents and Teachers. Forty-four officers and committee chairmen met for two full days to receive training in how to organize study groups and how better to discover and use various resources in preparing parent education programs.

In 1964 the center received sizeable grants from the U.S. Office of Education to search out, evaluate, codify and catalogue materials for teaching adults who are at a low level of functional literacy. This material will be used in the teaching of school drop-outs, juvenile delinquents who lack the skills of basic reading and writing; young adults in Appalachia and similar groups who need to improve their basic skills of formal education beyond their present levels.

Publications of the center include "Improving Adult Education in Ohio's Public Schools," "Annotated Bibliography of Materials for Teachers of Americanization and Literacy Classes," both of which are free; and a "Handbook for Parent Education Leaders," the price of which is 50 cents. Copies of these publications may be had by writing the center, 367 Arps Hall, 1945 N. High-st, Columbus 10, Ohio.

The Center for Adult Education is directed by Dr. Andrew Henrickson, who is professor of adult education in the College of Education. He received his Ph.D. degree from Columbia University and was formerly assistant dean at Cleveland College of Western Reserve University. He is the author of the book, "Trends of Public School Adult Education in Cities of U.S.," and many articles in educational journals. For a period of eight years he was secretary-treasurer of the Ohio Association for Adult Education and is one of the founders of the Adult Education Association of the U.S.A.

Education Clinic Diagnoses, Treats Learning Problems

In an effort to meet the ever-increasing needs of the community, The Educational Clinic, a private enterprise, in the Prudential Building at 4150 E. Main-st, was founded in July of 1962, for the diagnosis and treatment of learning problems.

Included in its wide scope of services offered are remedial reading, the teaching of phonics, rapid reading, speech and hearing therapy, language development, the teaching of study skills as well as guidance and counseling by school and educational-clinical psychologists. Its services are available to youths of all ages and to adults.

The staff of the Educational Clinic consists of trained and certified teachers, reading therapists and psychologists who also serve as consultants to various community agencies and public schools.

The clinic is under the direction of Gerald J. Pruzan, psychologist, and Georgia Trakas, who supervises speech and hearing therapy and engages in remedial reading services.

S-W Schools Adult Program Available To Non-Residents

In its third year, South-Western City District's Adult Education Program is growing. From a first year enrollment of about 250, the program has nearly doubled and is expected to expand even more with the opening of South-Western's new technical high school next year.

Both vocational and self-improvement courses have been offered in the program. Special courses sponsored by various industries and by the Ohio Manpower Retraining Program have been presented. More than 1,200 adults have taken one or more courses through the school in three years.

New course offerings are being added in response to demand. This year, new courses will include Slipcover Making and Furniture Upholstering, Cooking on a Budget, and a special series of workshops in Dramatics for Adults. The latter course is offered in conjunction with the Prairie Players Club, a Prairie Township-Lincoln Village little theater group.

After the opening of the new technical school, an expansion of adult education is planned. Courses in cosmetology, data processing and computer operation, electronics and others are contemplated.

The program is open to all persons. Residence within the school district is not necessary.

Classes for the fall term will begin with registration on Sept. 14 and 15. Classes will assemble for the first sessions on Sept. 28 and 29. A brochure describing all courses will be mailed to homes within the school district about Aug. 20. Other interested persons may obtain copies by calling TR. 5-2318 after that date.

Evening High Offers Wide Course Selection

Evening High School of Columbus with an enrollment of nearly 2,000 is able to offer most subjects of credit or review.

The school is chartered as a four-year high school but it has classes both above and below the high school level. While giving major consideration to courses required for a diploma it also caters strongly to students needing advanced or review courses, especially in the fields of English, mathematics, the sciences and commercial subjects.

Rapid reading and word study, accounting, creative writing, drafting, blueprint reading, public speaking, great literature, art with special emphasis on oil painting and design, foreign languages and citizenship preparatory classes are prominent in the curriculum offerings.

Registration evenings for the fall semester are Thursday, Sept. 10, and Monday, Sept. 14, between 6 and 9 p.m.

For complete information call CA. 4-3243 or write to Evening High School, 75 Washington-blvd, Columbus 22, Ohio.

'TWAS A 'HARD DAY'S NIGHT' BUT BILL (AND GENE) COUNTED 50

BILL ASTON JR. provided one of the week's biggest local news stories by taking a ferris wheel ride. What made Bill's whirl news was the longevity of his spin — 50 hours and 10 minutes. At far left, Bill smiles at well-wishers as he neared the halfway mark Thursday evening on the wheel in the Hamilton Shopping Center. Bill wasn't the only person setting records last week. The weatherman tumbled the mercury to 45 degrees later that night. But Bill slept soundly (second, left) and warm, wrapped in parka and blankets. Keeping the lonely vigil through the early morning hours was wheel owner-operator Gene Clark (second, right) who remained awake at the wheel during Bill's entire record-breaking ride. Young Aston reflects welcome re-entry to home base (far right) as he takes first steps off wheel seat Friday evening. Story on page 2. (Staff photos by Jack Wittenmeier).

Library Can Help 'Bootstrappers'

By GALVY E. GORDON
Columbus Public Library

The free public library is the last bastion of "bootstrap" adult education. It is the one place in the community where a man or woman possessing great determination and a grade school level of reading skills can acquire a liberal education or a specialized education second to none.

The Columbus Public Library, because of its large collection of some 680,000 books on practically every topic under the sun, is an invaluable resource to the "self-educator." Because of the great number of books for all ages, he can start at his present level of understanding and successively progress to the highest, in hundreds of fields.

The library constitutes "diploma insurance" for the man or woman who has had all the benefits of a good formal education but who is conscious of the fact that his diploma is "dated." Only by constant reading can one keep abreast of the changes that now occur with such rapidity that this entire era has been described as the age of the "knowledge explosion."

The library also affords opportunity for the conscientious citizen to fulfill his obligation to be part of an "informed electorate." It has become increasingly important that citizens know the problems posed by such "revolutions" as the unleashing of the atom, the conquest of space, the emergence of backward nations, the "shrinking" of our globe through rapid transport and instantaneous communication, and the continuing "cold war."

But books of fact, available by the thousands at Columbus Public Library, constitute only one portion of the free adult education available.

Cultural understanding and education also are available through fiction and the enduring books that constitute the lasting literature of this and other nations.

Reading is neither a gift nor an art. One is not endowed with reading ability at birth. It is a hard-earned skill, nurtured only with regular practice which has its own rewards. Skills acquired in reading for pleasure and relaxation carry over to reading for understanding, inspiration and the mastery of fields of knowledge.

Setting aside a short time each day for reading can pay lifelong dividends in understanding.

It has been calculated that if a person reads only 15 minutes each day, he would read two books a month, 24 books a year, or some 1,000 books in a lifetime.

Reading such a number of books "with a purpose" is equivalent to going through college five times and assures one of becoming an authority on any subject.

A library card enables one to write his own ticket to knowledge, information, learning, relaxation and higher personal efficiency. Obtainable in minutes at the nearest branch or at the Main Library, the card costs nothing. The only requirements are that one be a resident of Franklin County, that you can show adequate personal identification, and that you can provide as a reference the name of a friend or acquaintance who is listed in the telephone directory.

The membership is interchangeable among the Main Library and its 14 branches.

Whitehall Lists Adult Fall Course Offerings

Registeration for the fall semester in Whitehall City Schools' adult education program will take place from 7 to 9 p.m. in the high school office, Yearling-rd between E. Main and E. Broad-sts, Sept. 14 through 17. Non-residents of Whitehall are welcome to enroll, according to William W. Shipe, director of adult education.

Supt. Robert Crabbs and members of the board of education participated in an informal graduation ceremony this spring for a bumper number of adults who had earned the diploma. The graduates had transfered credits from institutions from many parts of the country and were a wide range of ages. Some needed a credit or two, some needed the entire 16 credits.

Persons desiring to return to classrooms for a diploma, for fun or for a night out may pick up a brochure describing the various offerings.

Fees are same for all enrollees regardless of residence.

Whitehall offers courses established by the State of Ohio as required material as well as many commercial studies. Cost is $15 per course per semester.

Others include languages, woodworking, drafting, dressmaking and sewing, interior decorating, knitting, ceramics, dancing, slimnastics, physical fitness and bridge playing. IBM key punch has been a popular course.)

Courses slanted to industrial uses include tool design, blueprint reading, basic electricity, basic electronics, college painting, public speaking, mathematics and business English.

St. Mary Of Springs Has Varied Courses

Adult education courses offered by the College of St. Mary of the Springs will begin the week of Friday, Sept. 21. Registration for the fall term will be held during the previous week.

Fall classes are open to men and women already enrolled in colleges and universities and to adults who wish to take courses toward certification requirements. They are also open to those wishing to take courses for college credit and eventually obtain a degree. Others may wish to enroll either on a credit or non-credit basis for personal development or professional improvement.

Adults working for degrees at the college and others who have special needs that cannot be met in the evening session courses may enroll in regular day-session classes. Courses will be offered in the late afternoon, evening and Saturday mornings.

Fall courses include principles of education, drawing and composition, intermediate French, principles of guidance, music appreciation, introduction to business, fundamental concepts of math, ceramics, freshman English, Shakespeare, accounting, constitution history of U.S., international relations, library administration, bibliography, reference sources, library field work, logic, public speaking, general moral theology.

Also, methods of the elementary curriculum, advanced reading skills, tests and measurements, recent U.S. history, Milton, 19th Century American fiction, linquistic analysis, recent Europe, art appreciation, methods in Latin and physics.

Further information on registration and course information is available by calling Thomas Albert, O.P., at 252-2137.

Clown Contests Featured At Playgrounds

Clown contests for children six to 18 will be held this week on all playgrounds operated by the Columbus Recreation Department. Ribbons will be given to winners in the following categories: cutest, saddest, funniest, most original and happiest, with a special award for the best all around clown.

Most of the playground craft programs will be geared to this special event, with children making costumes or parts of costumes.

A city-wide Clown Contest will be held at City Hall at 2 p.m., Friday, Aug. 14. Flippo, from WBNS-TV will serve as master of ceremonies.

This contest is open to all boys and girls six to 18. They need not be playground winners to participate in the contest.

Pinecrest . . .

Pinecrest Clown Contest will be held at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 13. The children are looking forward to the event.

Junior Jet Night is Aug. 18, and parents are needed to provide transportation.

Highlight of this week Junior Jet program was Paul Spraks' strike out of 16 batters while leading his team to a 11 to 4 victory over team C. The game clinched the league title for Team A.

The physical fitness program is continuing, with over 150 children passing the test. Children interested in taking the AAU Physical Fitness test may contact leaders at Pinecrest.

There is a need for teenagers to help with the costuming for the pageant.

Arts and Crafts is held each day at 1.

Pinecrest will hold a model and hobby show, Thursday, Aug. 20. Children who are interested should be on the playground at 6:30 with their hobbies.

Pinecrest Intermediate Girls' Softball team, known as the Pinecrest Petticoats, finished second in the league. The team consisted of Cheryl Mox, Sharon Schaub, Pookie Schaub, Lila Montgomery, Debbie Teeters, Karen Shrieves, Sue Sauner, Maria Mormino, Chris Koehler, Jo Cash, Sharon Lewis and Mary Farson.

Six boys participated in a stone pickers contest Thursday.

First place team was Scotty Bigler, Gary Rockefeller and Ray Horne.

Second place team was Robin Bigler, Jim Pritchard and Danny Whitley.

Instigator award went to Jeff Myers, while the official counter award went to Elizabeth Whitley.

Scottwood . . .

Scottwood boys and girls who participated in the Lantern Parade were: Barbara, Kathy, Connie, Kevin, and Charles Nuzum, Corinne Shaeirtz, Nancy Mara, Kathleen and Noreen Duerer.

Patty Nyeste, Janice and Steve Georgeff, Dick and Jo Traphagan, Roxanne Ault, Scott and Ed Stewart, Mike, Steve, and Craig Pierano, Karen West, Tereasa Wray, Suson Rosol, and Steve and Barbara Kosciuk.

Scottwood Junior Boys' Softball team defeated James Road, 9 to 6. Team members include Alan and Chuck Kletecka, Ron Case, Mike and Albert Yamkulov, Bob Attwood, Ed Mallory, Mike Marin and Steve Georgeff.

Scottwood Junior Girls' to dress up as clowns, march in the parade and try for prizes.

Woodcrest and Willis Park playgrounds are working together on an act for the pageant at Schiller Park Aug. 31. Theme of the pageant is the Center of Science and Industry, and the act will be about the blacksmith's shop in the street of yesterday.

Willis Park . . .

Girls' champion in the tetherball tournament at Willis Park was Selma Mastenbrook, and the boys' champ was Brady Davis.

Intermediate Boys lost to Leawood in the league championship.

Intermediate Girls forfeited to Fairmoor, and the Junior Girls lost to Leawood, 9 to 7.

In Junior Jet, Team 1 is holding down the top spot with Team 2 in second place and Team 3 in third.

This Thursday at 6:30 p.m. the Willis Park clown contest will be held.

This week in arts and crafts the children are working on costuming for the clown contest.

Leawood . . .

Junior Boys' Softball team at Leawood finished the season with a 6-3 record to capture the league championship. Larry McKinney and Max Storts were the most valuable players on the team.

Leawood, however, was defeated in the district championship game by Courtright,

10—Adult Education Section — Hartley Newspapers

Local Jewish Center Provides Free Leisure Time Activities

The Jewish Center, located on College-av, provides an adult education program for some 3,000 adults, including several hundred senior citizens.

A specially trained staff with planning assistance from a large number of committee members is at the center. It has become known throughout the community for cultural arts activity, as well as for its family-type programs.

All Persons Welcome

The Jewish Center, as one of 320 Jewish Centers across the United States, conducts programs for the community regardless of religious affiliation or place of residence. The staff for the adult activities is composed of professionals from the fields of adult education, physical education, social work and the cultural arts.

Painting And Sculpture

Classes and courses are conducted in painting and sculpturing. Art exhibitions, open to the public, are held regularly. The first fall showing will be a one-man show by Prof. William Kortlander of Ohio University on Oct. 17.

Gallery Players

The center's Gallery Players will present a full complement of stage shows. This year's program features "The Tenth Man," which opens Nov. 15; "Three Men on a Horse," which opens Feb. 20, 1965; and "Milk and Honey," starting May 15, 1965.

Education

Among other programs are activities for those interested in self-knowledge and growth. For the eighth year, the center will conduct its annual Family Life Education Series.

The Jewish Center Lecture Series will have its second year of public discussion with nationally known speakers invited to the center to discuss subjects of concern to both the Jewish and the general community.

Other programs of interest to adults are conducted in the following: bridge classes, social dance instruction, chess, rapid reading, English lessons for the foreign-born, cooking classes and bowling lessons.

Physical Education

Physical education classes are conducted for adults as a part of the extensive health and physical education program of the center.

Classes are taught by a trained physical education staff headed by Howard Banchefsky. Mrs. Nathan Nateman is director of women's physical education.

Fitness Classes

For men, classes are held in such sports as volleyball, handball, paddle ball, wrestling, golf, judo and fencing. Physical fitness classes which include calisthenics, body building and swimming are taught regularly.

For women classes are held in swimming, calisthenics, judo, golf, fencing, volleyball and badminton.

The physical education department also conducts health education lectures with the cooperation of local physicians and health specialists. Classes are also taught to women in the proper manner of grooming, including use of makeup, how to dress properly and the importance of proper posture and carriage.

Drama Workshops

The Gallery Players conduct workshops which are devoted to teaching drama techniques to would-be thespians. The Actors Lab group will perform two major productions under the supervision of Gene Gerrard, local radio announcer and actor.

Orchestra

Also in the cultural arts area is the Jewish Center Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Richard J. Suddendorf. The orchestra rehearses weekly and puts on two performances per year. Places in the orchestra are open to the public and amateur musicians may audition and are invited to join one of the few symphony orchestras in Columbus for adults.

Choral Group

A choral group for men and women who can read music and enjoy singing rehearses under professional direction of Alvin Beck. The first rehearsal is scheduled for early October; performances will be presented in early 1965.

Modern dance and ballet dancing are taught to adults who may register in the early fall for weekly classes. Rick Norris, well-known local choreographer, instructs the modern dance classes.

An extensive program is conducted for young adults, ages 18 to 20 years, who meet weekly for social and cultural activity under the direction of Armand Cohn, adult activities staff member.

An extensive program of Adult Education is conducted for Golden Agers. A group of over 100 people over 65 years, has classes in reading and writing, art, bowling, problems of the aging, and other aspects of aging which make the lives of our older people more enjoyable.

Miss Duell

Miss Drumel

Columbia Gas of Ohio, Inc., makes available to service groups, church groups, men's and women's clubs and other organizations two public speakers and a number of 16 mm. sound, color films about the exciting natural gas industry.

Presenting programs that are informative and entertaining are the talented speakers, Miss Ann Drumel and Miss Carolyn Duell.

TALKS

"Energy on the Move" . . . is a talk and film presentation describing the exciting modern gas industry. The film features some of the 26,000 industrial uses of natural gas, and the speaker shows products produced by Ohio industries using this versatile fuel. (Film 14 minutes. Talk 12 minutes).

"New York World's Fair" . . . is a program featuring our combination talk and colored slides giving you a guided tour of the 1964-65 World's Fair Gasland in New York City. You'll see that the gas industry has a number of "firsts" in connection with this Fair. (25 minutes).

"The Soaring Sixties" . . . describes the 1960's as an age of jets and rockets and tells how natural gas is a major source of "raw energy" in this new age. (20 minutes).

"What's in a Pipe?" . . . is a talk on the role of natural gas in Ohio industry. Wearing a "natural gas outfit," Ann or Carolyn describes how industry uses gas today as a tool, a fuel and a material. (20 minutes).

"The Mad Hatter" . . . Ann and Carolyn model the latest miracle fashions and take the audience on a trip through a natural gas "wonderland". (25 minutes).

FILMS

"Energy on the Move" . . . tells the story of the natural gas industry's efforts to keep pace with today's and tomorrow's energy needs. It is the story of movement . . . convenience for our homes . . . power for our factories and progress for the future. It portrays some of the more than 26,000 ways natural gas is used in today's modern industrial world. (28-minute and 14-minute versions).

"These are my People" . . . tells of the discovery of natural gas and its use in "America's Original Natural Gasland", and the story of how people made the industry what it is today. (28-minute and 13½-minute versions).

"The Underground Story of Natural Gas" . . . tells the fascinating story of how the gas company stores gas piped to Ohio from the Southwest by pumping it into underground rock formations. (28-minute and 13½-minute versions).

To arrange for a Talk by Miss Drumel or Miss Duell, or for the Showing of a Film, Call The Gas Company, 228-5611, Extension 534.

THIS NEWLY CONSTRUCTED building houses the Ohio Technical Institute, 886 Sunbury-rd, and contains 15,000 square feet of classroom and laboratory space. Facilities include air conditioning, a reference library and parking space for students.

Two New Technologies Added By Ohio Tech

An increasing need for properly trained construction technicians and civil engineering technicians has prompted the Ohio Technical Institute, 886 Sunbury-rd, to add two new technologies to its evening school.

A construction technology course is designed to provide men to industry who are capable of working as construction superintendents, aides to consulting engineers, aides to architects and as assistants to county engineers. The course covers 15 months of study.

The civil engineering technology course is designed to graduate men who are competent assistants to civil engineers in all phases of their activities. Study in the field covers a period of 21 months.

Enrollments in these classes are now being accepted. The program will begin Tuesday, Sept. 8, and will meet each Tuesday and Thursday evening from 7 to 10:10 p.m.

In October, 1963, the Electronics Engineering Technology Program of the Institute was accredited by the Engineers Council for Professional Development.

Considered the final authority in all engineering curricula, the council checks the caliber of the faculty, the facilities and financial structure of the school, the level of training offered and the performance of the graduate.

Ohio Tech is the only technical institute in Central Ohio, and one of four in the state with an ECPD accredited program.

This recognition means greater acceptance of graduates by industry, more active recruiting by out-of-state industry and a more professional status for graduates.

The newly designed modern facilities of the institute occupy 15,000 square feet of laboratory and classroom space.

As a member of the American Society for Engineering Education, the Institute, has an active chapter of the Institute of Electrical Electronics Engineers and an outstanding Alumni Association.

Enrollments are now being accepted for day and evening courses in electronics technology, evening; construction technology, evening; civil engineering technology, evening; as well as full-time electronics engineering technology classes which meet daily.

Successful completion of courses leads to the Associate in Engineering Degree.

Public Schools Offer Vocational Classes To Improve Adult Skills

The Department of Industrial Education, Columbus Public Schools, offers courses for adults who wish to learn vocational skills now needed by local industry.

A staff of three administers these courses to help adults earn a better living.

In addition, the department conducts programs under the Federal Government's Manpower and Training Development Act.

For consultation and further information, local residents are asked to contact R. O. Knight, director, Department of Industrial Education; J. E. Zupancic, assistant director, or C. H. Banker, coordinator, Manpower Training.

This year a total of 1,707 men and 72 women were enrolled in some type of adult training offered by this department.

Trade extension courses had 1,300 trainees including the foremanship courses; 298 trainees were enrolled in related trade courses for registered apprentices.

In the pre-employment programs, 68 women were enrolled at the School of Practical Nursing, 1485 W. Fifth-av, and at the Columbus Area Technician School, 245 W. Broad-st, 67 trainees were enrolled in the full-time day program for the first year of a two-year technician training program in electronics, mechanical technology and business data processing.

Thirty-three trainees studied business data processing in the evening part-time classes, and presently 13 are enrolled in a special summer quarter offering mathematics, physics and computer programming on a part-time basis for 10 weeks.

In addition to the trade extension and pre-employment programs, 292 men and women were enrolled in part-time distributive education classes sponsored by the Credit Union League of of Columbus and the Columbus Chapter of the American Savings and Loan Association.

Many classroom facilities of the Columbus Public Schools are used, including shops at Central High School, both the new and old building at the Trades and Industries Center, 278 E. Spring-st, Linmoor Junior High School, Foremen's Club classrooms, and facilities are made available to the finance trainees at various savings and loan companies.

The following courses and programs will be offered this fall to further develop the skills of individuals wishing to become proficient in certain trades:

Arc welding, 12 sessions; oxy-acetylene welding, 12 sessions; tungsten inert gas welding, 13 sessions; air conditioning fundamentals, 24 sessions; basic electricity, 12 sessions; electronics fundamentals, 12 sessions; communications electronics, 24 sessions; hydraulics, 12 sessions; machine shop, 24 sessions; metallurgy, 12 sessions; oil burner service, 12 sessions; Tool Design I, 24 sessions; Retail Sale I, 14 sessions.

Registration will be held Wednesday, Sept. 16, in Room 1 of Central High School from 7 to 8 p.m. Classes begin the week of Sept. 21.

All fees are to be paid to the instructor on the first meeting night of the class. No refunds will be made after the second class session.

The second semester, starting Jan 5, 1965, will offer many of the same courses and possibly new areas of study.

For further information, prospective students are invited to call the Department of Industrial Education of the Columbus Board of Education at 228-3821, Ext. 285.

Clown Contests Featured At Playgrounds

Clown contests for children six to 18 will be held this week on all playgrounds operated by the Columbus Recreation Department. Ribbons will be given to winners in the following categories: cutest, saddest, funniest, most original and happiest, with a special award for the best all around clown.

Most of the playground craft programs will be geared to this special event, with children making costumes or parts of costumes.

A city-wide Clown Contest will be held at City Hall at 2 p.m., Friday, Aug. 14. Flip-flo, from WBNS-TV will serve as master of ceremonies.

This contest is open to all boys and girls six to 18. They need not be playground winners to participate in the contest.

Pinecrest . . .

Pinecrest Clown Contest will be held at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 13. The children are looking forward to the event.

Junior Jet Night is Aug. 18, and parents are needed to provide transportation.

Highlight of this week Junior Jet program was Paul Spraks' strike out of 16 batters while leading his team to a 11 to 4 victory over team C. The game clinched the league title for Team A.

The physical fitness program is continuing, with over 150 children passing the test. Children interested in taking the AAU Physical Fitness test may contact leaders at Pinecrest.

There is a need for teenagers to help with the costuming for the pageant.

Arts and Crafts is held each day at 1.

Pinecrest will hold a model and hobby show, Thursday, Aug. 20. Children who are interested should be on the playground at 6:30 with their hobbies.

Pinecrest Intermediate Girls' Softball team, known as the Pinecrest Petticoats, finished second in the league. The team consisted of Cheryl Mox, Sharon Schaub, Pookie Schaub, Lila Montgomery, Debbie Teeters, Karen Shrieves, Sue Sauner, Maria Mormino, Chris Koehler, Jo Cash, Sharon Lewis and Mary Farson.

Six boys participated in a stone pickers contest Thursday.

First place team was Scotty Bigler, Gary Rockefeller and Ray Horne.

Second place team was Robin Bigler, Jim Pritchard and Danny Whitley.

Instigator award went to Jeff Myers, while the official counter award went to Elizabeth Whitley.

Scottwood . . .

Scottwood boys and girls who participated in the Lantern Parade were: Barbara, Kathy, Connie, Kevin, and Charles Nuzum, Corinne Shaeirtz, Nancy Mars, Kathleen and Noreen Duerer.

Patty Nyeste, Janice and Steve Georgeff, Dick and Jo Traphagan, Roxanne Ault, Scott and Ed Stewart, Mike, Steve, and Craig Pierano, Karen West, Tereasa Wray, Suson Rosol, and Steve and Barbara Kosciuk.

Scottwood Junior Boys' Softball team defeated James Road, 9 to 6. Team members include Alan and Chuck Kletecka, Ron Case, Mike and Albert Yamkulov, Bob Attwood, Ed Mallory, Mike Marin and Steve Georgeff.

Scottwood Junior Girls' [illegible] to dress up as clowns, march in the parade and try for prizes.

Woodcrest and Willis Park playgrounds are working together on an act for the pageant at Schiller Park Aug. 31. Theme of the pageant is the Center of Science and Industry, and the act will be about the blacksmith's shop in the street of yesterday.

Willis Park . . .

Girls' champion in the tetherball tournament at Willis Park was Selma Mastenbrook, and the boys' champ was Brady Davis.

Intermediate Boys lost to Leawood in the league championship.

Intermediate Girls forfeited to Fairmoor, and the Junior Girls lost to Leawood, 9 to 7.

In Junior Jet, Team 1 is holding down the top spot with Team 2 in second place and Team 3 in third.

This Thursday at 6:30 p.m. the Willis Park clown contest will be held.

This week in arts and crafts the children are working on costuming for the clown contest.

Leawood . . .

Junior Boys' Softball team at Leawood finished the season with a 6-3 record to capture the league championship. Larry McKinney and Max Storts were the most valuable players on the team.

Leawood, however, was defeated in the district championship game by Courtright.

WHITEHALL RECREATION

Senior Citizen Picnic, Drama Pageant Set

All senior citizens who are residents of Whitehall are invited to a potluck outing Thursday, Aug. 20, at Blendon Woods and Hoover Dam.

[illegible] of children will attend a Lazarus puppet show. Anyone wishing to go should see Judy Kerr at the playground for details.

Fairmoor . . .

Fairmoor's Junior Girls' Softball team lost its first game to Scottwood, and finished the season with a 3-1 record.

Intermediate Girls' Softball team won the sectional softball title with a 4-0 record.

The playground clown contest will be held Thursday, Aug. 13, 2 p.m.

Eastern Kiwanis standings in the National League are:

First place, Dodgers; second, Pirates; third, Reds, and fourth, Giants.

The group will leave the Senior Citizens Building, next to the Municipal Building on Yearling-rd, at 10 a.m. Everyone should bring a covered dish and table service.

Hugh Parker is club president. Further information on the Senior Citizens program is available by calling the recreation center, 237-8611.

All Whitehall playgrounds will participate in the drama pageant Wednesday evening, Aug. 19, in the auditorium of Whitehall - Yearling High School. Everyone is invited.

Reports from individual playgrounds are:

BEECHWOOD

The Beechwood Belles won their softball game against Kae Avenue Playground Aug. 4. New players were Suzy Parker and Michele Nobel.

Beechwood Bombers also won their game against Kae Avenue Aug. 5.

EAST MAIN

At East Main this week, Greg Simms won first place in the bike decorating contest. Pam Milford and Helen Fee won second and third prizes, respectively.

NORTON FIELD

Last week was the busiest of the summer at Norton Field Playground. The boys' softball team dropped a squeaker to Etna Road, 3-2. Bill Simpson had two hits for the losers.

The boys' softball team defeated the girls' team, 12-0, with Butch Sark getting two home runs. This concluded the softball season, except for the tournaments next week at East Main Street.

Joe Darnell finished the season with a .670 batting average, which was tops for the Norton Field Trotters.

Last Thursday night Norton Field had a "Hole in One" contest which saw Rocky Napier score the most points for 10 shots.

Dianne Holmes was the best among the girls while Tony Gallick hit the longest drive. Ribbons were given to the winners.

ETNA ROAD

The boys' softball team won its game against Norton Field with a 3-2 score. The girls' softball team won against Norton Field with a score of 37-24.

Stout Is "Submerged"

Hilltop Attorney Phil Stout has found himself really "submerged" in his Kiwanis work. As a member of the Kiwanis International Board he was one of a handful of men invited to hold a meeting aboard the Navy submarine USS Volador offshore from San Diego last June. The Kiwanians were in California for their international convention. Phil, who has been telling local clubs about his unique experiences, is pictured on Page 4 of the summer issue of the Kiwanis Magazine.

Flowers Of The Week

A thank-you bouquet from Rosebud Florist should go this week from us to Mrs. Howard (Ann) Thurston, 94 Eldonav. For many months she has been contacting the clergy and inviting them to write for "Guest Pulpit" on our Editorial Page. She also arranges to get a photo of the ministers, hand delivers the materials to us and then returns it — all as a voluntary service. She's never missed a deadline! The Spectator and its readers appreciate your efforts, Ann!

New Concepts?

Many new concepts of business are springing up right before our eyes. Some office buildings and plants are being built with such good taste that they'd go well in a residential block. Look for something nice to happen out at Nationwide's Industrial Mile on Georgesville-rd across from Ternstedt. They've set their sights high and probably will achieve them. Some 26 lots are ready to be served by water and sewers, a railroad, and soon the Outerbelt. Just one thing's missing — a nice little airport. Who's going to build it before the land is all gone?

Farming Different Today?

Bernice Tucker passed the following ditty from a down state paper. It's entitled "Down On The Farm (30 Years Ago)" and it goes like this:

Down on the farm 'bout half past four,
I slip into my pants and sneak out the door;
Out of the yard I run like the dickens,
To milk ten cows and feed the chickens;
Sneak out to the barn, curry Nancy and Jigg,
Separate the cream and slop all the pigs;
Work two hours, then eat like a Turk,
And, by heck, I'm ready for a full day's work.

Then I grease the wagon and put on the rack,
Throw a jug of water in an old grain sack;
Hitch up the horses, hustle down the lane,
Must get the hay in, for it looks like rain;
Look over yonder, sure as I'm born,
Cattle's on a rampage and cows in the corn;
Start across the medder, run a mile or two,
Heaving like I'm windbroke I'm wet clean through.
Get back to the horses, then for recess time,
Nancy got stung by the barb

Fair Clicks, Records Tumble; Ends Aug. 21

Bright, blue skies, crisp, fall-like weather, and huge crowds greeted the opening two days of the week-long Franklin County Fair at Hilliard.

The traditional ribbon-cutting took place at 6 p.m. Monday with a long list of notable names, headed by Ohio Governor James A. Rhodes. Hilliard Mayor Stephen King acted as host, aided by County Commissioner Henry A. Koontz.

On the distaff side, Miss Julienne Scofield, 19, of Amlin, last year's Junior Fair Queen, and Connie Jo Martin, 18, this year's Miss Hilliard, added their charm.

Indications are that this will be a record year in every area, including gate receipts, livestock, concessions and pari-mutuel racing. Entrants from every section of Ohio are registered.

In the first 24 hours 10,000 persons marched through the gates, at 50 cents a person over 12. Tickets were 25 cents higher last year. Fair officials anticipate that close to 40,000 persons will visit this 51st annual event by Friday night.

Monday night the midway and grounds were filled with hundreds of exhibitors, workers, concessionaries, and the like, who were putting on the final touches. Extra tents had to be erected as cattle and swine entrants filled the existing areas over the capacity level.

At Monday night's opening ceremony, 5,000 persons watched a thrilling auto show, and then most of the crowd moved through the grounds, becoming familiar with the exhibition and entertainment areas.

Tuesday morning the work really got under way, with judging of Angus beef cattle, swine, poultry, rabbit and farm products. Later, Hereford beef cattle were judged, and a flower show followed, and then the interviews of aspirants for the title of King and Queen of the Fair. Though

Bexley Schools Urge Students To Register

All Bexley Schools will open Thursday, Sept. 10

Opening hour for kindergarten through sixth grade is 8:45 a.m.; for seventh and eighth grades, 8:30 a.m. and for ninth through 12th grades, 7:55 a.m.

Cafeterias will all be in operation the first day of school.

Boundary lines for all districts are the same as in previous years.

New students in the district should be enrolled in the various principals' offices between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. Offices will be open Monday through Friday, except Sept. 7, 8 and 9.

Bexley Schools do not receive children whose parents are not residents of the Bexley City School District, either on a tuition basis or as regularly enrolled pupils.

Gas Station Robbed

Some $138 was stolen at gunpoint by a lone bandit Aug. 17 from the Spur Oil Company of Central Ohio station at Main-st and Nelson-rd, police reported.

St. Rita Residents Oppose Parking Ban

A request by a resident that Whitehall Council ban parking on both sides of St. Rita-ln, and a storm of protests from others living on the street sparked an otherwise quiet meeting Tuesday night.

A petition signed by 30 of the approximately 40 residents of St. Rita, voicing objection to the proposed parking ban, was presented by the delegation.

An open hearing was set for Friday, Sept. 4, 7:30 p.m. in council chambers, at the request of Charles Westerling, 4556 St. Rita-ln, who claimed that parking on both sides is a potential traffic hazard to small children who might dart in front of cars.

He also said that the practice sometimes limits access to driveways.

Westerling said he had taken movies of the street to prove his point, and would show them at the hearing.

Those opposed to the parking ban said that there have been no accidents on St. Rita for at least 10 years, and that no one but Westerling has complained of difficulty negotiating turns into driveways.

Mrs. Charles Bailey, circulator of the petition protesting a parking ban, explained

Theater's Benefactress Dies At 79

Columbus' "grande dame" of the theater is dead.

Service for Mrs. Lydia Wilson Boda, 79, of 219 N. Drexelav, former manager of the Hartman Theater, was held at 10 a.m. today in the Schoedinger State Street Chapel. Interment was in Milan, O.

For more than 40 years Mrs. Boda and her husband, Robert, brought to Columbus the best in legitimate theater.

Mrs. Boda became manager of the Hartman Theater after the death of her husband in November, 1958. He had been manager since 1915, continuing in that capacity for all but five years until his death.

Columbus theater has run in the Boda family for some 67 years. Lee Boda, father of Robert, was a member of the company that opened the old Southern Theater in 1896.

Mrs. Boda retired as Hartman manager and as a manager for the Theatre Guild, American Theatre Society of New York, just last year, marking the close of the Boda tradition and the absence of legitimate theater in Columbus for a year.

The operation of the Hart-

BICYCLE SAFETY CHECK SET SATURDAY

MORE THAN 50 PRIZES, including two bicycles, two tricycles, transistor radios, games and sporting equipment will be given away at the first annual bicycle safety check program at Whitehall City Hall, Saturday, Aug. 22. Sponsored by the Whitehall Kiwanis Club and the Police Department, the program will be held from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Arrangements have been made for an expected 2,000 youngsters, and free pop and potato chips will be available to each child who has his bike checked for safety. Minor adjustments and repairs will also be made. From left are: Kiwanian Joe Boyle, project chairman; his daughter, Teresa, 7; Terry Lee Cochran, and her father, Police Sgt. P. K. Jackson. Police M. E. W. Wells will also be on hand Saturday, as well as Kiwanis committee members.

Whitehall Schools Outline Procedures For Registration

Parents of children not previously registered in Whitehall schools are requested to register students between 9 a.m. and noon, or 1 and 3 p.m., Monday through Friday, Aug. 17 through Sept. 8.

Elementary and kindergarten pupils may register at the nearest elementary school, grades nine through 12 at Whitehall-Yearling High, 675 S. Yearling-rd, and junior high students, grades eight and nine at Rosemore Junior High School, 4735 Kae-av.

Elementary schools and their locations are: East Broad, 3877 E. Broad-st; Beechwood, 455 Beechwood-rd; Etna Road, 4531 Etna-rd; East Main, 3589 E. Main-st, and Kae Avenue, 4738 Kae-av.

Children five years old before Sept. 1 are eligible to attend kindergarten.

Those who have reached the age of six before Sept. 1, or who have completed a regular kindergarten program, are eligible to attend the first grade.

Children not meeting the age requirements will be considered for early admission to kindergarten or first grade upon special request of the parent and the completion of necessary information. Contact office of the superintendent for early admission information.

A birth certificate or other legal proof of the date of birth and complete immunization records must accompany registration.

Children who attended the Whitehall City Schools in the 1963-64 school year are not required to register.

Bus routes and school areas will be the same as last year.

Kindergarten boys only are to attend Sept. 8. Kindergarten girls only are to attend Sept. 9. All kindergarten children are to attend Monday, Sept. 14.

MISS MYRTLE HOFFMAN, retiring after 50 years as a teacher says of today's first graders, "They are better students I believe. They learn more quickly; television, I believe has helped." Her home is the house where she was born, in Waterloo just outside Canal Winchester.

Retires After Half-Century Of Teaching

By BETTY DAFT

Opening day at East Main Street School won't seem quite the same this September.

Miss Myrtle Hoffman, on hand for the past 32 years to launch two generations of Whitehall first graders on their school experiences, has announced her retirement.

She will continue as a substitute replacement teacher.

All but 15 years of her 50-year-career as a teacher have been in the Whitehall School System, and except for two assignments as a teacher of all elementary grades in country schools, she has always taught the first grade.

Singled out by educators as a particularly important year, which determines a child's attitude toward all the school years ahead, the first grade has always been Miss Hoffman's choice.

An appreciation program and reception, honoring Miss Hoffman, will be held at East Main Street School Monday, Sept. 28, 8 p.m., with all former students, associates, faculty and community friends invited.

School administrators and board members are among the invited guests.

All former students are invited to contact Francis Beard, principal, at the school office, 235-1516.

Miss Hoffman will be missed, not only by former pupils who had hoped she would teach their own children, but by the school system as well.

School Superintendent Robert Crabbs said, "Impossible as it sounds, she improved as a teacher each year. She is as young in spirit and interest today as she was during her first year of teaching."

Her retirement will mean, "More time at home."

Thousands Lodge Protests Against SCD Assessments

A song of protest, which has echoed up and down the Scioto Valley since the Scioto Conservancy District filed assessments to build two flood control dams, settled on the doorstep of the Franklin County Courthouse Monday night.

After the deadline for protests passed Monday evening 7,344 exceptions had been filed in the office of Joseph M. Clifford, clerk of the Common Pleas Court. Well over a third of these came from the Near West Side, where residents complained loudly about unreasonable appraisals.

The West Side Neighborhood Council was called into action and an "exceptions clinic" was set up at Gladden Community House. WSNC volunteers were assisted by members of the League of Women Voters and a team of 10 legal advisors in giving information to filers and helping them to fill out the necessary papers.

When Gladden closed for vacation at noon Friday, the clinic was moved to Avondale EUB Church. About 2,800 sets of formal West Side protests were completed and sent to the courthouse by Monday.

Exceed Loan Value

Many of the West Siders complained bitterly that their assessments exceeded even the loan values of their homes. Common Pleas Judge Kenneth L. Sater, who is also chairman of the five-county Conservancy Court, admitted that he was "shocked" by some of the assessments against property owners. He said he hoped the Conservancy Court would ask for a further and more realistic study of the situation, but added that he doubts that this can be done until two suits filed by the City of Columbus and the Board of Education against the SCD have been heard.

A temporary writ of prohibition issued by the 10th District Court of Appeals prevents the SCD Court from any action until after Sept. 19. Protest hearings originally were scheduled to start Sept. 1.

Among property owners who made public their protests in a more informal way were C. C. and Elizabeth Nance of 321 Demorest-rd. They distributed an 1,800-word statement which declared that they had received no post-card notice of an $8,824 assessment on their 50-year-old property at 1438-40 W. Broad-st. By their own calculations they said the assessments should be $279.88 "or even abated." They appealed to lawmakers to invite the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to build Alum Creek and Mill Creek dams.

The Columbus Board of Realtors steadfastly has campaigned against the SCD's building of the dams because of the tax burden on property owners. More recently the Farm Bureau Boards in Franklin and Ross counties and the Allied Conservation Clubs of Franklin County have gone on record as opposing the SCD plan.

Chillicothe residents were among the first to flood Clifford's office with the protests. They and residents of the low-lying Columbus land areas face the heaviest SCD assessments. The U.S. Army plans for dam construction involve no local assessments, using Federal funds instead.

Appropriations For Darby Creek Reach President

Meanwhile, proponents of the Corps of Engineers' proposals to build the two dams were cheered by word from Washington Friday. It was learned that the Army's related flood control project in Central Ohio is in line for $1,915,000 from the $4.4 billion public works appropriation approved by Congress and sent to the White House. This includes $1 million and $500,000 for start of construction of Big Darby Creek Reservoir near West Jefferson, and Deer Creek Reservoir, respectively; and planning funds totaling $316,000 for Paint and Salt Creek Reservoirs, also in the Scioto River Basin.

In other developments this past week:

- Mayor Sensenbrenner urged the City Treasury Investment Board not to extend time on the city's $950,000 loan to the SCD on a note which is due Sept. 15. SCD has spent all but $301,000 of it.
- Counciman Robert T. Southwick suggested that City Council rescind its 35 percent water rate hike voted last April. About one-third of the increased funds were to have gone for the purchase of water supply from dams if built by the SCD. The mayor, however, said he favors a complete investigation before changing water rates again.
- The water Management Committee on Aug. 12 voted 6 to 5 to urge federal appropriations for the dams and turned further discussions over to the DCGC steering committee.
- In Washington, Thursday, Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce President Kline Robert got assurances from local congressmen that they will continue 11th-hour efforts to obtain $100,000 this year for an Army survey of Alum Creek and Mill Creek dams.

Area Parochial Schools Open September 9

City parochial students will also report back to classes on Sept. 9 — in fact, 12,248 of them. This enrollment tops the 1963 figure by approximately 835 students, 500 of which are in the elementary system.

The elementary increase raises the figure of parochial grade school students in Franklin County to 18,111.

The only new facility opening for parochial school children this fall will be St. Stephan elementary on the West Side. St. Stephan will provide grades two through eight.

New class additions to other area schools include: grade five at St. Matthew (Gahanna) and grade five at St. Timothy (Upper Arlington).

Superintendent of Catholic Schools Msgr. Bennett Applegate announced that the new St. Anthony elementary (northeast Columbus) will open in the fall of 1965 if it can be staffed by that time.

Although the number of religous faculty members remains constant, approximately 35 more lay teachers will be added locally. This represents an increase of 57 lay teachers since 1962. School officials pointed out that enrollment has increased while the number of religious faculty members stayed relatively the same (209).

Looking to the high schools, Bishop Ready will graduate its first senior class this coming June while St. Charles and Aquinas graduate their final seniors. (An advanced class at the latter school will be graduated in September 1965).

Plans for the final two "master plan" centralized parochial high schools are now on the drawing boards. The schools will be located in the south and northwest sections of the city.

School Students Top 103,000; System Now Nation's 18th

Only a few weeks remain for Columbus School officials to complete their staggering, summertime game of "put and take" . . . take 4,800 new pupils, provide them with new teachers, textbooks, desks and chairs, and put all in new classrooms, ready and waiting in the areas where they are [redacted].

It takes practice to perfect such a plan, and Columbus School administrators have had plenty. This fall's enrollment will break, for the 17th consecutive year, all previous records in the city.

School doors will swing wide Wednesday, Sept. 9, to admit an enrollment of 103,327 pupils, making Columbus the nation's 18th largest school system.

A new junior high and four elementaries are scheduled for opening next month, as well as additions to seven existing elementaries.

An additional 140 teachers will bring the instructional staff to 3,800, and 20,000 new textbooks and 124,332 replacements will bring the inventory to about 715,000.

The steady enrollment increase, accelerated from a 4,500 annual average during the past several years to 4,888 over the fall of '63, is expected to continue in the foreseeable future.

A $36,650,000 bond issue will be placed on the Nov. 3 ballot to construct classrooms for the next four years.

Although Koebel Elementary at 2521 Fairwood-av, and Barnett, 1160 Barnett-rd, are far from completion, school officials are still hoping they may be finished by September.

Trevitt Elementary is farther along in construction progress, and Monroe Junior High and Maybury Elementary are nearly finished.

Also slated for September occupancy are additions to Alum Crest Elementary, 2200 Winslow-dr; Beaumont Elementary, 2155 Fenton-st; Cranbrook, 908 Bricker-blvd; Duxberry Park, 1779 E. Maynard; Parsons, 3231 Lee Eleven-pl, and Windsor, 1219 E. 12th-av.

Remodeling is also being completed at Linden-McKinley High, Lincoln Park, Pilgrim and Smith Road Elementaries.

NAAWP May Ask Resignation Of Negro School Board Members

Although Columbus Board of Education's Tuesday meeting was dismissed because of the lack of a quorum, visiting groups utilized the occasion to air their views on the school system's handling of the "de facto segregation" issue.

Julio Suarez of the Franklin County Anti-Communist Study Group requested board members present to put a referendum on the November ballot "to see if the voters are not in favor of maintaining school districts by neighborhood."

And, after the meeting had been dismissed, a spokesman for the NAAWP indicated that at the next full board meeting on Sept. 1, the group would ask for the resignations of Dr. Watson Walker and of Mrs. Norma Jones, Negro members of the board.

B. J. Stephens of Grove City, vice-president of the local chapter of NAAWP (National Association for the Advancement of White People) and others of the eight-member delegation talked at length with Dr. Walker, president of the board.

Robert Leavey, NAAWP Chapter president, said that Stephens' statement that "We will first seek their resignation, and then will take action to have them removed from the board" would be backed by the local NAAWP group.

Dr. Walker's announcement that the session would be dismissed because the number of vacationing board members would make it impossible to conduct official business came just 20 minutes after the scheduled starting time.

His invitation for visiting members of the public to speak was accepted by Suarez, who asked that the question of the neighborhood districting plan for Columbus schools, opposed by Civil Rights groups as contributing to the racial imbalance in certain schools be left for the public to decide.

"In view of the national riots," he said, "you should not leave this matter in the hands of seven members of the school board."

After the meeting was dismissed, the NAAWP delegation remained to speak with Dr. Walker.

Stephens said that he, as representative of the group, would seek to unseat Dr. Walker and Mrs. Jones from the board "because they should be bi-partisan."

He charged that Mrs. Jones' reported affiliation with a Civil Rights group, and Dr. Walker's published statement of personal opinion in an interview published in a daily newspaper this week, were evidence that they were not "bi-partisan on defacto segregation."

Stephens continued that "we have 500 members over 21 (in the local Chapter of NAAWP) living in Columbus and surrounding area, who will circulate petitions."

Leavey, president of the group, had intended, if the entire board had been on hand, to present a statement that the NAAWP was opposed to abandoning the neighborhood district school system, and suggesting that the educational and cultural standards of the Negro race be lifted by placing specially trained teachers in the schools they attend.

Bill Aston Wasn't Just Joking, Sets New Ferris Wheel Mark

Bill Aston took his place last Friday night in the Columbus chapter "Who's Who" but the 16-year-old Walnut Ridge junior did it the hard way—50 hours and ten minutes in the seat of a ferris wheel.

But young Bill stepped out of his seat on the giant wheel at the Hamilton Road Shopping Center as you and I would out of an easy chair after a couple of hours TV-watching.

Endurance on the ferris wheel is the current fad and Bill assumed the world title when he called it a career at 8:20 p.m. Friday.

Bill's father, William Aston Sr., 1924 Alsace-rd, didn't figure his son was serious when he started the marathon shortly after 6:10 p.m. Wednesday evening.

"They told me to go into one of the stores to get cheaper tickets for Bill's younger brother to ride. When we got ready to go home, he told me he was going to go for 50 hours."

The elder Aston returned with warmer clothes, plus gloves, blankets and a parka, when he realized Bill, clad in blue jeans and a T-shirt, was not joking.

Convinced that Bill was actually going for 50, Mr. Aston commented, "It's his ride. When he decides he wants to come down, he will. I figure he can't get into any trouble up there anyway."

Young Bill's intention to prove "a boy can beat any girl" in this kind of competition proved solid as he topped the mark set recently by Sidney's Patty Jones by almost ten full hours.

The effort by an Oklahoma counterpart, who had already passed the 70-hour mark before sundown Friday, couldn't erase Bill's mark, wheel owner-operator Gene Clark explained.

"The Oklahoma wheel is a cage type. This is an open air model. Somebody could go forever on one of those cage wheels."

This reporter shared a small portion of Bill's extended whirl Thursday evening. "You don't get sick on those things, do you?" was the youth's first question, explaining that one of the TV boys did that afternoon.

"The first two hours were the toughest," Bill said. Asked if it got lonely on the wheel, Bill replied, "No, I just talk with the people. There sure have been plenty of them out here watching me. When they all go home, I go to sleep."

And like a baby, he did, according to Clark, whose long sleepless vigil at the wheel might be somewhat of a record itself.

Young Aston admitted Thursday evening that he'd be glad when it was all over, hoping that an Ohio disc jockey didn't surpass his 50-hour target. (The D-J conceded early Friday).

Bill's diet was light (soup broth and fruit juices) and a doctor provided instructions on how to maintain his physical fitness.

Back on terra firma, Friday evening, Bill said his first desire was to take a bath and then "sleep forever" in a "soft" bed.

Besides the plaudits of several hundred fans and the feel of solid earth under his feet, Bill was rewarded with a collection of gifts provided by merchants in the Hamilton Center.

Operator Clark also provided a gift of his own — seat number three — Bill's home for his 50-hour ride.

Asked what he planned to do for an encore, Bill's only reply was an expressive, "Aw, man!!"

that 30 had signed, four had refused, and the street's remaining residents were not at home at the time.

He had objected to the appointment of Darrell Todd as safety director last month, on the grounds that it was an unnecessary expense to the city.

Earl Wrightson, Lois Hunt Coming To 'Wedding Party'

Earl Wrightson

Lois Hunt

Earl Wrightson and Lois Hunt, two of the nation's most sought-after supper club performers, will make a special guest appearance Thursday at The Spectator Golden Wedding Party.

The pair, appearing this week in the Kenley Players' production of "Camelot" at the Veterans Memorial Auditorium, have entertained concert and supper club audiences across the country with "An Evening with Earl Wrightson and Lois Hunt."

Wrightson, besides numerous television appearances, has appeared on Broadway in "New Moon" and "The Firebrand of Florence."

Miss Hunt has appeared at the Metropolitan Opera with leads in such classics as "La Boheme," "Rigoletto" and "La Traviata."

The Spectator Golden Wedding Party will begin at 2 p.m. in the Youth Tent at the Hilliard Fairgrounds.

For a complete list of activities and names of couples who sent in coupons, see the Women's Page inside this newspaper.

"MY, NELLIE! What big whiskers you have!" That's what six-month-old Randy Carr, 454 S. Terrace-av, ponders as he looks over one of daddy Glenn Carr's checkered giant bunny entries in the Franklin County Fair, in progress this week at Hilliard. Nellie, who has been a winner twice in "best of breed" competition, is two and one-half years old and weighs 13 pounds. Young Randy does a little better in the weight department, tipping the scales at a full 19 pounds.

more time to work in my yard," Miss Hoffman said.

Home is the rambling white house where she was born, set back from the road in Waterloo, near Canal Winchester.

"I have no wish to travel," Miss Hoffman says, wisely recognizing that the important things which have made her life worthwhile lie close to home.

Her closely-knit family of two brothers and a sister live nearby — Clarence just across the street, Francis in Columbus and Mrs. Dewey Cooper in Carroll.

And her teaching career has been in schools close to home. She first taught for two years in a country school in Violet Township, and then at Whitehall's East Broad Street School for three years.

A period in a one-room school in Hamilton Township, and 11 years as teacher of all elementary grades in Obetz was followed by her 32 years at East Main.

And during those years she watched E. Main-st change and Whitehall grow from a small rural village to its present stature as a city.

"And the school changed, too," she said. "The east wing was added . . . we even had children from Columbus attending East Main when I started teaching there.

"This is a nice year to retire," she continued. "I had such a nice class. And one of my students was little Jimmie Minkos. His mother was Josephine Ruh and I taught her, too, when she started in the first grade."

wire fence;
Joints all aching and muscles in a jerk
I'm fit as a fiddle for a full day's work;
Work all summer, 'till winter is nigh,
Then figure up the books and heave a big sigh.
Worked all year, didn't make a thing,
Got less cash now than I had last spring;
Now some people say that there ain't no hell,
But they never farmed so they can't tell.

Orientation For New High School Students Slated

An orientation program for new high schoolers is being inaugurated at Whitehall-Yearling High School, Austin Peel, principal, announced.

"The pupils will be high school pros after this course," Peel stated.

All entering ninth graders are invited to the program from 9 a.m. to noon, Friday, Sept. 4.

The program is not compulsory, Peel said.

An assembly is planned to introduce teachers. A student handbook, including school policies and a code of ethics, will be distributed.

From 10 to 10:30 a.m., a tour with a question and answer period will be conducted.

Schedules will be distributed and at 10:45 a.m. students will report to assigned homerooms.

From there they will go through their schedules with 10 minutes allotted for each period.

PROVIDES SUPPORT

Army Pfc. James M. Kenyon, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Kenyon, 1358 E. Fulton-st, and other members of the 396th Transportation Company recently provided support for the transfer and rotation of troops of the Berlin Brigade, in Germany.

Kenyon attended East High.

IN SCHOOL

Army Reserve Capt. Donald C. Wise of 118 N. Waverly-st recently participated in two weeks annual field training at Ft. Knox, Ky., as a staff member for an Army Reserve Command and General Staff College course conducted by the Ft. Hayes U. S. Army Reserve School.

The largest recorded hailstone fell on a Nebraska farm in 1928. It had a diameter of 5.4 inches and weighed one and one-half pounds.

NAA Receives New Airplane Contracts

The Department of Defense recently announced the selection of North American Aviation's Columbus Division to design, build and flight test seven new prototype aircraft, a new light armed reconnaissance airplane tagged "Lara," specifically tailored for counter-insurgency application.

Division president W. H. Yahn said that engineering efforts will commence immediately, with the first flight scheduled next summer. The plane is described as rugged aircraft featuring twin engines, twin booms with a horizontal tail mounted high on twin vertical tails.

The fuselage is mounted to the wing at shoulder height and provides unobstructed visibility for both pilot and observer seated in tandem ahead of the propellers.

It has a 111-cubic-foot cargo compartment inside and can carry either cargo or personnel, while external stores are carried on five racks located beneath the fuselage.

Yahn said the contract is extremely important to the Columbus Division and will offset some of the layoffs which would otherwise have been necessary.

He noted that immediate employment requirements will be concentrated in engineering and development activity only. "However, we are confident that this development contract will be the forerunner of sizable production orders," Yahn said.

The Lara is designed to "live with the troops," and because of its extreme versatility has been described as a flying squad car or flying station wagon.

Large tires inflated to low pressure will enable the plane to operate from unimproved fields in primitive areas. Its fuel system is designed to operate on fuels ranging from aviation fuels to standard gasolines used in army vehicles.

It will be armed with four fixed 7.62 mm machine guns of standard ammunition and therefore can be refueled and re-armed from the same supply lines used to support ground forces.

Fair—

the pair were selected from a wide field, they will not be announced until Friday night.

There were several incidents which marred the opening of the fair. The exposition secretary, 54-year-old Ray Dellinger, 3844 Amity, Hilliard, a hog, cattle and grain farmer, suffered a serious heart attack Saturday at his fairgrounds office. He was taken home but his chest pains increased in severity, and he had difficulty in speaking. The West Jefferson emergency unit took him to Mt. Carmel Hospital where his condition is reported as critical. During the interim, Robert Rarey, 200 Huron-av, and Ed Parker, 83 Morningdr, Hilliard, were named temporarily to Dellinger's post.

Late Saturday a water main broke under the main roadway and water spilled onto the midway. Workmen were called to the scene and by Sunday had channeled a 30-inch-by-six-foot trench around the break, thus by-passing it with a new section. Officials reported minor damage.

There was slight embarrassment over the weekend, when attention was drawn to misspelling on signs publicizing the fair. In bold letters, the signs announced the affair as running from Aug. 18 to the 22. Fair Secretary Ray Dellinger said it was a misunderstanding with an Ashley sign company. Dellinger added the state awarded those dates but the board decided on the Monday-through-Friday schedule, cutting out the Saturday show.

At this point, with many headaches and many joys, the 51st Franklin County Fair is considered by all involved, to be a huge success.

Gahanna Charter Changes Facing Voters Next Fall

Gahanna residents showed their displeasure with the local village charter by submitting a 293 signature petition to council, along with amendments on the charter in Monday night's meeting.

Council's public relations committee also had proposed a set of changes of its own but before action could be taken the petition was submitted.

Both proposals recommended a change in planning and zoning commission membership, limiting it to one member of an occupation. The body now has three members in the real estate business.

The Citizens amendments would make it mandatory for village officials to live inside Gahanna. The auditor, service director and law director now live outside the village.

Other provisions call for election rather than appointment of the law director; require the service director to be a civil engineer and the auditor to be a certified public accountant, and subject purchasing power of the service director to approval by the mayor.

The citizens amendments are apparently designed to give the village a stronger mayor-type of government. Another provision the petition proposed gives the mayor power to fire or discipline his appointees without council approval.

'Camelot' Stars To Join In Golden Wedding Festivities

Members of The Spectator Golden Wedding Party will be in for a real treat Thursday afternoon when they meet Earl Wrightson and Lois Hunt, stars of the current Kenley Players production of "Camelot," at Veterans Memorial.

The Broadway stars have accepted our invitation to make a guest appearance at the gala affair to be held on Thursday, Aug. 20, 2 to 4:30 p.m., at the Hilliard Fairgrounds.

They will be among some 230 persons expected to attend the event at the Youth Tent held in conjunction with the Franklin County Fair.

A "Second Honeymoon" will be awarded to some lucky couple by Jack Hale, manager of the Holiday Inn, 4601 W. Broad-st, and other prizes include decorated wedding cakes from Mrs. Helen Shade of Shade's Restaurant in Canal Winchester; studio portraits by J. Curtis Allen who has studios at 2373 W. Broad-st, and floral arrangements from Rosebud Floral Co., 351 N. Burgess-av.

Allen will also take a candid portrait of each couple attending.

Also billed on the program is the Grandmother's Drill Team, headed by Capt. Grace Warner.

A gold decorated wedding cake will be cut by its creator Mrs. Eugene Neumann of III Linda-rd, Hilliard, and coffee will be served, compliments of William B. Pickering of Admiral Coffee Co., 1717 Northwest-blvd. Tea and punch will also be available.

Passes to the Franklin County Fair and badges to be worn during the party were mailed this week to the following:

THE 'PERMANENT CURE'
The best way to combat a 'droopy do' is a new professional permanent wave. It's not just the easy swish swish you see on TV. Our plan starts with a professional "Shaper Cut" that practically guarantees your hair will behave. Then the permanent wave checked and tested to come out of the curlers at the exactly right moment. After that - the set we planned and incidentally which strengthens your permanent without adding a jot to its curliness.

WHAT TO DO FOR THE BLUES
Some women get rid of them by buying a new hat. Some of our patrons change the color of their hair instead. Try a rinse if you haven't graduated to anything stronger. One of our patrons carries a photograph of herself before she tinted her hair. She calls it her "Little brown reliative". She says it just lifts her spirits to take it out and compare it to her picture in the mirror as she is today — a really stunning blond.

LIMP, LIFELESS HAIR
Doesn't have to stay like that. Treatments do wonders for it especially if you take vitamins and are particular of your diet at the same time. You'll be amazed at the difference. And it takes just a few minutes under the skilled hands of our experts. Besides the lovely new hair, the lovely relaxing sensation of the massage relaxes every nerve. It's much more fun than taking a sedative.

MR. AND MRS. PAUL H. CASSIDY

MARRIAGE RITES READ AT ST. MARY MAGDALENE

Miss Beatrice C. Haney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Haney, 683 Wiltshire-rd, became the bride of Mr. Paul H. Cassidy, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Milo Cassidy of 1539 E. Rich-st, on May 28.

The nuptial high mass was solemnized by Fr. Raymond Bauschard with the assistance of Rev. George Fulcher and Rev. Alan Springer at St. Mary Magdalene Church.

The bride wore a gown of bouquet taffeta, designed with scooped neckline and brief sleeves. Floral sprays of seed pearls and crystals enhanced the empire bodice and front of the controlled skirt. The Watteau back flowed into a chapel train.

Her bouffant veil of imported illusion was held in place with a pearlize rose and orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white roses and lily of the valley centered with a white orchid.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Michael Murnane and honor attendants were Mrs. Harry Haney, Jr., Miss Victoria Verhoff, and Miss Margaret Schaeffing. The junior bridesmaid was Miss Katherine Brown and the flower girl was Miss Denise Brown, both nieces of the bride.

They wore floor-length linen sheath gowns in aqua, fashioned with scooped necklines and brief sleeves. A woven silk ribbon sash with a bow in front accented the waistline. Matching straw roses with jet veils completed their ensembles. Each attendant carried yellow roses surrounded by shattered carnations. The matron of honor's bouquet consisted of pale pink roses enclosed by the carnations.

Mr. Dennis Cassidy, brother of the bridegroom, was the best man. Ushers were Mr. Bernard Cassidy, Mr. Donald Frey and Mr. Robert Hinton. The ring-bearer was Master William Frey, a nephew of the bridegroom.

A dinner reception was held at the Everglades Restaurant following the ceremony.

Following a wedding trip West, the couple is residing at 980 King-av, Apt. 7.

Poolside 'Bonds For Israel' Luncheon Dated Aug. 26 by Hadassah Women

MRS. ABE YENKIN

Mrs. Abe Yenkin, a member of Hadassah, has been named chairman of the "Bonds for Israel" luncheon to be held Wednesday, Aug. 26, at the home of Mrs. Herman Katz, 725 Fairway-blvd.

Guest speaker at the poolside terrace luncheon will be Mrs. Charles Shulman, national chairman, women's division, State of Israel Bonds. Mrs. Shulman has lectured throughout the United States, Canada and Great Britain. Her close association with the leaders and people of Israel and her many trips there have given her a sound knowledge of the country, its problems, its economic development and its meaning to American Jewry.

INVITATIONS

Assisting Mrs. Yenkin in calling members are: Mrs. Joseph Baskin, Mrs. Carl Mellman, Miss Edith Skilken, Mrs. Morris Mathless, Mrs. Sam Rosen, Mrs. Morris Cohen, Mrs. Jack Kreske, Mrs. Melvin Deutch, Mrs. Ben Cohen, Mrs. Norman Hosansky, Mrs. Al Karmia, Mrs. Fred Levi, Mrs. Morris Swedlow and Mrs. Frank Nutis.

Goodwill Industries Extends Pickup Service In County

Goodwill Industries this week extended a Tuesday through Saturday daily home pickup service throughout most of Franklin County, and Began receiving pickup calls at the Columbus office from outlying communities.

Announcement of these two policy changes was made by the Rev. George Morey Evans, Executive Director of Goodwill Industries of Central Ohio, whose headquarters are at 1331 Edgehill-rd, Columbus.

Goodwill's daily pickups were previously limited to the heart of Columbus, and weekly or monthly pickups were made in suburban communities. Local voluntary representatives relayed the pickup requests to the Goodwill truck driver on the day he mades his rounds. Evans was high in praise of the service given by volunteers.

"These changes are made for a double purpose," Evans said, to provide "prompt pickup service to those donating clothing and household goods, and to increase our materials so that more handicapped persons may be trained to become self-supporting, productive members of the community."

Most household goods that are worth repairing are usable, according to Evans, and clothing, shoes and toys are always in great demand.

Requests for home pickups should be called to 294-5181.

Harrisburg and Darbydale will have pickups every Monday.

Goodwill contact representatives in Franklin County include: Asbury Church area, Mrs. E. J. Willeke, 4485 Madeline-dr, Columbus.

Council Provides Program For Retarded Youth

The Council for Retarded Children has sponsored a summer socio-recreational program for mentally retarded children, especially those below school level.

Two centers have been in operation during the summer months at Olentangy and Livingston Elementary Schools from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 daily.

Activities included outdoor physical exercise, arts and crafts, musical crafts, story hours and short field trips.

Livingston's program ended Aug. 14 while the Olentangy program will continue until Aug. 21.

Parents or friends who wish to support the program can send earmarked contributions to the Council for Retarded Children, Inc., 131 E. State-st.

Innerbelt Work May Be Finished Ahead Of Time

The east and south legs of the Innerbelt are expected to be completed by Nov. 15, according to an announcement this week by Robert F. Mott, expressway coordinator.

As of Aug. 1, approximately 76 percent of work on the east leg (Oak-st to Washington-av) was completed. Some 79 percent of the south leg (Short-st to Washington) was finished. The latter project will complete the Innerbelt.

The completion date called for in the contract is July 31, 1965.

An Added Touch of Beauty

Robert Louis Stevenson said:

"The world is so full of a number of things,
I'm sure we should all be as happy as kings."

God's world is filled with loveliness, but we need to add our own touch of beauty, so that we might be builders of a better world with Him. Each of us was given talents which would enable us to contribute to the world and mankind something great and lasting and beneficial. May each of us use these talents to the Glory of God. Add a touch of beauty to your life this week by attending church.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH ... THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

KENLEY PLAYERS

Arthur's Human Side Stressed In 'Camelot'

The Arthurian legend has fascinated the civilized world for centuries. Many works have drawn on the adventure for plots, and "Camelot", currently being presented by the Kenley Players at Veterans Memorial, is no exception.

Source book for the musical is "The Once and Future King" by T. H. White.

The difference in "Camelot" is the presentation of the Arthurian saga as a study of humanity, of Arthur as a person. It is a sensitive, artistic, musically - oriented portrayal combining the best of play and operetta.

Lerner and Loewe, the musical team of "My Fair Lady," have combined talents again for the challenge of "Camelot."

Originally, the musical had the same authors and director as "My Fair Lady." Such a team inspired so much confidence that, before the play was completely written, nearly half a million dollars worth of tickets were ordered.

After opening, advance ticket sales amounted to over $3 million.

A series of accidents and illnesses hit the cast and staff of the original production at the pre-Broadway tryout in Toronto, Oct. 1, 1960. Moss Hart, director, suffered a heart attack (he died one year after the New York opening), and Lerner endured an attack of ulcers.

Changes were being made during the first weeks of the Broadway run. A suggestion by N.Y. Daily News drama critic, John Chapman, resulted in a new ending and the pruning of several songs.

The play ran 873 performances.

In 1961, "Camelot" won four "Tony's".

In October, 1963, a national touring company set out to play major American cities.

Film rights were purchased by Warner Brothers for $2 million.

The Kenley Production of this prize-winning play is as star-studded as the history of such a piece would command.

Earl Wrightson as Arthur and Lois Hunt as Guenevere are backed by such veteran professionals as Bob Holiday, Jack DeLon and Thomas Barry.

Prairie Players Slate Tryouts For Fall Play

Prairie Players announce tryouts for the fall production of "Come Blow Your Horn." They will be held Sunday and Monday, Aug. 23 and 24, 8 p.m. at the home of the president, Carolyn Lane, 4650 Musket-wy.

The play to be staged in early October, will be the first of three major productions.

Elizabeth Noblitt, director, announces that there are parts for three men and four women in this comedy of bachelor life in the big city.

Tryouts are limited to members. Membership information is available from Mary Lou Hein, 878-4137.

Design Contest Opens

The 1964 local Christmas Seal Design Contest, co-sponsored by the Tuberculosis Society and the Columbus College of Art and Design, is open to anyone in Franklin County, amateur or professional. The contest closes Sept. 8.

'FOUR WINDS' BILLS WIDNER

JACK WIDNER has been appraised by Chicago's critics as "one of the most exciting young pianists today . . . (creating) magic that is . . . definitely an original sound." Combining professional and scholastic backgrounds, Clarence Williams and Dave Angus exhibit a fresh clean approach to standard music, swinging with the pleasant authority of a Nero, Brubeck or Garner. The trio will play every Saturday night at the Four Winds, 246 Hilliard-Rome-rd. After Sept. 1, the trio will perform every Friday and Saturday.

Golden Age Hobby Show Is Scheduled

The 16th annual Golden Age Hobby show is scheduled for the Columbus Gallery of Fine Arts, 480 E. Broad-st, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 18, 19 and 20.

Any Central Ohio resident 60 years of age or older is eligible to enter hobbies in the show. Articles or collections entered must have been made since the participant passed the 60 year mark.

Entries may be all types of craftwork, woods, metals, arts, sewing, painting, leather modeling or sculpture as well as other collections. All entries should be brought to the Art Gallery on Sept. 14 and 15 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Additional information is available by calling the Senior Citizens' Center at 221-6090.

Golden agers planning to enter items in the 1964 show should call the center if aid is needed in transporting items to the gallery.

AT LOUNGE

VOCALIST Patti Kent is now appearing for two weeks with the Patti Kent Trio at the Lincoln Lodge Lounge. The group's appearance began Monday, Aug. 17.

MacDonald In Benefit Recital

Lawrence E. MacDonald, pianist, will be presented in recital at Columbus Gallery of Fine Arts, Friday, Aug. 28, at 8 p.m.

The recital will be open to the public and will be for the benefit of patients at Columbus State Hospital. For tickets ($1) call 228-4344 or stop at University Music House.

The program will feature works of Bach, Brahms, Chopin and Debussy.

Trees Need Company

If you have an apple tree that blooms profusely but bears no fruit, it could be because it's not pollinated. You should plant two or more varieties of apples near each other. If your yard has room for only a single tree, get one that bears more than one variety. These are called 3-in-1 or 5-in-1 apple trees and many nurseries sell them. They provide cross pollination and give more than one kind of apples.

Other fruits that need another variety nearby to bear fruit are sweet cherries, Japanese and American-type plums and pears.

THEATER REVIEW

POG Laughing Matter Culled By Cute Casting

By TED BEARDSHEAR

"A jug of wine, a loaf of bread, and thou." Monday night POG served up a jug of tea, a warmed over loaf, and two thous in a double act comedy, "Captain's Paradise."

The tea was tepid; the bread was stale; but the thous carried a frolic to the spectators in the Guinness film classic of a man who has solved the problem of love and lust by marrying two different women . . . one on each side of the straits of Gibraltar.

By using his ship, the S. S. Piccolo, as a bigamist's commuter, Captain Henry St. James is able to carry on a double life with a sexpot wife in North Africa and a homepot in Gibraltar.

To the Latin love in North Africa, the captain is the champagne tossing, cha-cha hipping, man about the desert. On Gibraltar he is the tea tippling, slipper slipping, napper before dessert.

"Ah wilderness were paradise enow." Until the sexpot turns homepot and the homepot turns sexpot.

There are laughs to be had and the POG cast stocks them well.

Jean Martinez burglarizes the comedy as the tempestuous Nita, the wife in North Africa, is one of the most flawless accent-pouts of the [illegible].

Marilyn Trapp performs creditably and believably as the slipper-toting wife in Gibraltar.

Peter Harris is at the helm as Captain St. James, tripping lightly and with verve from life to life.

The first mate, Ricco, played methodically by Ray Girardin, opens and closes the port holes of chuckles.

Ted Pritchard, as Absolem, the taxi driver who takes the captain to his wild wife, is a match for Miss Martinez's winning portrayal . . . quite a match.

You'll go home "singing beside me in the wilderness."

Parks Slate Movies For Aug. 19, 20

Movies are scheduled Aug. 19 at Blacklick Woods and Aug. 20 at Blendon Woods Metropolitan Parks.

"Variations on an Italian Theme" is the first feature. In addition to the usual visits to well-known Italian cities, this film shows little-known areas where traditions and customs from the Middle Ages continue.

"The New Alaska" is a film that shows the work of the Forest Service in managing National Forests in the 49th state.

Movies begin at dusk. In event of unfavorable weather, the Blendon Woods showings will be canceled and the Blacklick Woods program will be presented indoors at Beech-Maple Lodge.

'Citizen' To Be Rerun On TV-4

"Citizen," a WLW television documentary on a refugee's efforts to gain United States Citizenship, is set for a reshowing on TV 4, Friday, Aug. 21, at 9:30 p.m.

The program recently received the American Bar Association's Certificate of Merit for "contributing to public understanding of the American system of law and justice."

Grand Squares Dance Club Sets Dance; Lessons Dated

Grand Squares Dance Club will hold an open dance at Westgate Shelter House from 8 to 10 p.m. Friday, Aug. 21. The public is invited and no admission is charged. Bill Burnside will be the caller.

Lessons Available

Persons interested in learning western style square dancing may take lessons. Instruction begins Tuesday, Sept. 15, at Westgate Shelterhouse.

All lessons are from 8 to 10 p.m.

East Siders may begin Wednesday, Sept. 16 at Shady Lane School.

North Siders may begin Thursday, Sept. 17 at Westgate Shelterhouse.

South Siders may begin Monday, Sept. 14 at Southview Shelterhouse.

For more information, call the Columbus Recreation Department at CA. 1-2211.

Formation Of Club

The Grand Squares Club was formed by a group which had completed a series of lessons sponsored by the Columbus Recreation Department during the winter of 1958 and '59.

Since that time, dances have been held twice a month with the exception of July and August.

The club is affiliated with the Central Ohio Corporation of Dance Clubs. Members have participated in exhibition dances, including dancing in the Statehouse yard and on Civic Center-dr at the Columbus Festival of Arts.

Other exhibitions include the Hilltop Bean Dinner and the open air theater at the Ohio State Fair.

Exhibitions are offered without charge to such groups as PTA's with the idea of promoting others to learn.

With 25 to 30 clubs in the Central Ohio area, the Hilltop and Hilliard area boasts three. They are the Grand Squares, The Hush-Puppies and The Northwestern Swingsters.

They would have thought there was something wrong with the kid who sat around thinking so much."

Still Time Left To Enter Spectator's Fair Contest

If setting a ferris wheel endurance record isn't your speed, and you would rather face a challenge which requires less physical energy, you still have a few days in which to enter the Spectator's contest at the Franklin County Fair.

Just stop in our booth in Exhibitor's Building and register your guess as to the number of classified ads to appear in the Aug. 26-27 issue of the Spectator.

If your guess is closest to the actual number, you will receive a $25 savings bond. If you are a paid subscriber, your prize will be a $50 bond. In the event of a tie, winners will be asked to answer a tie-breaker question by telephone.

Win or lose, we guarantee you won't come away dizzy.

Pageants, Softball Tourney, Junior Jet Night Close Out Playground Season

The annual playground pageants, which will be held at Schiller and Whetstone Centers, will be the final special events of the summer season for the 81 playgrounds operated by the Columbus Recreation Department.

Playgrounds in the southern half of the city, including all the West Side and two Hilltop Playgrounds, will participate in the Schiller Pageant at the outdoor band shell on Monday, Aug. 24, starting at 7:30 p.m.

Playgrounds in the northern section of the city will have their Pageant at Whetstone Recreation Center on Wednesday, Aug. 26, starting at 7:30 p.m.

The theme of this year's Pageant is the Center of Science and Industry. Each act will be associated with some aspect of science, history, health or industry.

Junior Jet Night at Jet Stadium is scheduled for Thursday, Aug. 20. All members of the Columbus Recreation Department's Junior Jet Leagues will be guests of the Columbus Jets. Over 5,000 boys 12 years of age and under are expected.

The city - wide Softball Tournament began Monday, Aug. 17. League winners from playgrounds in all sections of the city are participating in a single elimination tournament. Included are both boys and girls in the junior, intermediate and senior age divisions.

Finals will be held at the Sunshine Recreation Center ball diamonds Tuesday, Aug. 25 at the following times: Junior Girls, diamond 3, 2 p.m.; Junior Boys, diamond 2, 2 p.m.; Intermediate Girls, diamond 3, 5 p.m.

Intermediate Boys, diamond 1, 6 p.m.; Senior Girls, diamond 2, 5 p.m., and Senior Boys, diamond 1, 7:30 p.m.

Shepard . . .

Shepard Playground Clown Contest winners were: Ricky Cruem, cutest; Sherry Weber, funniest; Arleen Fisher, saddest; Priscilla Horton, happiest; Kathy Weber, most original, and Sherry Wright, special prize.

All winners were transpgged the following day to the city-wide Clown Contest held at City Hall.

The Softball Tournament started Aug. 17. Winners of the first round continue on Aug. 19 and 21, and finals are Aug. 25.

Senior Girls' Softball team drew a bye the first round and will play Lincoln Playground in the second round, at Krum Park.

A tetherball tournament for all age classes was held Aug. 18 at Brentnell, and a four-square tournament, Aug. 19 at Milo.

The girls' basketball tournament for seniors and intermediates only will be held at Windsor-Terrace Friday, Aug. 21. Also at Windsor-Terrace, a senior boys' basketball tournament will be held Tuesday, Aug. 25, through 28. Ages will be as of Sept. 1.

However, those going out for high school basketball will lose their eligibility. There will be eight men to a team, but no more than 10 men can be on a team roster.

More Junior Olympic results, fourth place; Donald Johnson, Dwight Cartier, Bobby Eiland, Vince Rutledge, and Ernie Osbourne; fifth place: Donald Johnson, Brian King, Preston Eiland, and Jimmy Edwards; third place: Dwight Cartier, Ronnie Eiland, and Randall Taylor, and first place: Vince Rutledge and Mary Aileen Holley.

Congratulations to the athletes who won 44 points for Shepard and sixth place in the 85 playgrounds.

The Senior Girls lost in a practice game to Windsor-Terrace last week. Bobby Eiland has a job painting a service station. The children enjoyed the animals in the Traveling Zoo. There were an albino skunk, squirrel, bobcat, grivet, squirrel monkey, ferret, South American red-shouldered hawk, ring-necked hawk, ring-necked dove and the kinkajou from India.

Ten people are ready to go to Indian Village Camp the last week of August. No further applications can be accepted, as all spaces are filled.

Woodcrest . . .

Junior Jet Night at Jet Stadium has been changed from Tuesday, Aug. 18, to tonight, Aug. 20. All boys should be at the school by 5:45 p.m., wearing their Junior Jet shirts.

Thursday night, parents and friends came to the playground to see the 60 clowns present in the clown show.

Ribbons were given in the following categories, for first and second places:

Funniest, Debbie Thompson and Leslie Shultz; happiest, Patty Baker and Larry Gallich; saddest, Diane Whalen and Timmy Holt; most unusual, Robin Wander and Mary Casserly, and Holly Feen.

Girls who will participate in Woodcrest's scene at the Pageant are Leslie Shultz, Debbie Schultz, Debbie Hughes, Mary Casserly, Betty Casserly, Robin Wander, Cindy Peterson, Deborah Paynes and Diane Jaynes.

Willis Park . . .

Judges for the Willis Park Clown Contest, held last week, were Mrs. Heller, Mrs. Haas and Mrs. Jones.

Jet teams were: Yankees, Clown Contest, in their redians, third.

Leawood . . .

Winners of the Leawood Funniest, Bahetta Turley, spective categories are, first, second and third place:

Danny Fox and Donna Schiff also won first places in their individual divisions at the city-wide Clown Contest last Friday.

Junior Jet Night at Jet Stadium will be held tonight, Aug. 20. Members of the league must wear their Junior Jet tee shirts.

Cars will leave Leawood at 6 p.m. and the game starts at 8.

James Rd. . .

Junior Jet season is drawing to a close. Two teams at James Road, the Yankees and Indians, are tied for first place. If the tie is not broken the two teams will play off the tie on Friday, Aug. 21.

There will be an all-star game played Tuesday, Aug. 25. Teams will be made up from players of the five teams in the league.

Children participating in the Clown Contest at James Road were: Kathy Dowler, Amber Churches, Timmy Rae, David Nelson, Danny Nelson, Kathy Nolan, Sharon Nolan, Mike Provanzano, Frank Provanzano and Johnny Yaste.

Girls at James Road are completing preparations for the Pageant, final event of the year. They have designed their own costumes. The twelve girls representing the signs of the Zodiac are: Karen Laihr, Brenda Laihr, Risa, Herman, Dianne Sasastrom, Karen Hall, Susan Wells, Susan Fletcher, Margaret Birch, Kathy Carpenter, Kathy Poe, Marion Birch and Laura Erlander.

Another part of the scene will be swirling sun, composed of Amber Churches, Susie Poe and Mary Ann Carpenter.

Scottwood . . .

Tennis instruction is being given at Scottwood. Members of the class are Betty Benedict, Roxanne and Pam Ault, Jo Trapagan, Barbara and Kathy Nuzum, Corrinne Schaeirtz, Barbara Kosciuk and Nancy Mara.

Scottwood Junior Girls' Softball team played Weinland playground at Franklin Park in the City Hall tournament.

Karol Kosciuk and Sherrie Ault dressed as bride and bridegroom clowns, won first prize in the Special Category in the city-wide Clown Contest at City Hall.

Tetherball and four-square tournaments have been held at Scottwood. Winners' names will be published next week.

The Junior Jet season finished with the All-Stars of each league playing team 3 of their league.

Scottwood boys and girls will participate in the Pageant to be held Aug. 24, at Schiller Park. They will dance to "When You Wish Upon a Star," as they represent stars in a planetarium.

The second annual Scottwood family night and picnic will be held Wednesday, Aug. 26.

Grills, soft drinks and coffee will be available.

Father-son and mother-daughter softball games will be played.

Fairmoor . . .

Fairmoor has been getting ready for the Pageant to be held Monday, Aug. 24.

Playground clown contest was held Aug. 13. First, second and third place winners were:

Cutest, Debbie Kauffman, Doug Kauffman and Cheryl Jones, tied with Yvonne Wishon; saddest, Tim Kauffman, Steve Caudill and Karen Ad-

Funniest, Cathy Nordholm, Mike Bell and Theresa Joseph; most original, Carol Neubauer, Linda Bell and Sharon Bosserman; happiest, Gay Georgeff, Theresa Slane and Laura Munsell.

At the close of scheduled league play in the Eastern Kiwanis American League, there is a tie for first place between the Indians and the Tigers. Both had 10 wins and four losses.

Red Sox are in third place with a 5-9 record. In last place are the Yanks with a 3-11 record.

Winner of Eastern Kiwanis National League Junior Jets are the Dodgers, with an 11-3 record. The coach is Dave Knight.

The All-Star game is Wednesday. All-Stars are: Case, Derr, Linhart, McLain, Barton, Gray, McDaniel, Vanschepen, Polly, Hanna, Vincent, Kennington, Neff, Belt, McCaulsky and Sirk.

Courtright . . .

Courtright's Junior Boys' softball team has won its league championship. Boys on the team are Moory Roffus, Dan Cowgill, Tim Cowgill, Dan Moore, Steve Moore, Darryl Ault, Bruce Kottinski, Bruce Herrmann, Mike Fields, Tom Hugerich, Mike Grubb, Bob Heisanaur and Tony Ianarino.

The Intermediate Boys' team, also winning in its league, is composed of Yoakum, Williams, Traphagan, Justice, Gronek, Snyder, Huegerich, McSchooler, Crossley, Stuber, Lainr, Fluke, Cooper, Gornail, Lech and Johnson.

Both Girls' Softball teams have experienced a fairly good season.

The junior team consisted of Roni Piephler, Sandy Allen, Linda Pencurak, Joyce White, Norma White, Angie Stapleton, Mary Lou Grubb, Debbie Barry, Connie Poling and Beth Clark.

The Intermediate Girls' team includes Linda Crossely, Rita Snyder, Dee Stoneburner, Margaret Grubb, Phyliss Brunet, Marianna McCullough, Michaela Downs, Cheryl Cardi, Linda Moore, Willy Markham, Cindy Fisher and Debbie Marmie.

Courtright is practicing for its part in the Pageant. Mary Lou Grubb, Debbie Barry, Angie Stapleton, Valorie Hawkins, Jan Stoneburner, Rita Gelner and Susie Herrman will perform a spaceman's dance.

The Clown Contest at Courtright saw many ridiculous faces and costumes.

Winners in various categories were: saddest, Lottie Brunet; happiest, Jan Stoneburner; cutest, Valorie Hawkins; funniest, Debbie Barry; most original, Angie Stapleton and the special went to JoAnn Hawthorn.

Pinecrest . . .

Happiest, Bruce Tinker, Bill Koenig and Dennis King; cutest, Eric Koenig, Jane Forbes and David King.

Special, David King, Gerald Huff and Rick Huff; most original, David Cash, John Koenig and Jane Forbes.

In final results of the Junior Jet program, the Major League pennant went to the Indians, while the Minor League pennant went to the Reds.

In the city-wide Clown Contest held at City Hall Friday, Pinecrest had two winners out of five entrants.

Theresa Schneider won a third place ribbon for her hobo costume and Bill Koenig won a first place ribbon for his spaceman in pajamas costume.

The model and hobby show, scheduled for Aug. 20, has been postponed until Tuesday, Aug. 25, due to Junior Jet Night at Jet Stadium, Aug. 20 at 6:30.

All children who have taken the AAU physical fitness test, but have not received their certificates should contact the leaders.

Pinecrest's act in the pageant will be "The Movement of Planets."

Grain, Wheat Payments Due

Payments will soon be made in Franklin County to farmers taking part in the 1964 feed grain program for corn, grain sorghum, and barley, and in the voluntary '64 wheat program.

Farmers are reminded that provisions of the '64 program extend throughout the 1964 calendar year and receipt of the final program payments does not mean an end to the program.

Farmers who diverted land from production under either the wheat or the feed grain program agreed to protect it and not harvest from it throughout the whole of 1964.

Such diverted acreage may be grazed starting Nov. 1, 1964.

FOOD MARKETS THIS WEEK

Cantaloupes Maturing Early; Are Sweeter

Fruits—peaches, cantaloupe, plums, summer apples.
Vegetables—sweet corn, tomatoes, cabbage, celery and carrots.
Meat, Poultry—fryers, beef "specials," ground beef, small turkeys, eggs (medium and small).
Other—canned corn, peas and snap beans, frozen potatoes, dairy products.

During August and September, cantaloupe harvest is active in Ohio. Peak supplies generally arrive on the market between Aug. 15 and Sept. 15.

Mrs. Franks

The dry and warmer — than usual — weather that we have experienced has made the crop mature early this year. This also means that supplies may be short in September. Consumers can expect especially high quality. Bill Brooks, horticulturist of the Cooperative Service at The Ohio State University reports that dry weather contributes to high sugar content in melons and thus an especially good tasting item.

This year's cantaloupe crop in Ohio should be a large one with approximately 2,000 acres to be harvested. Production is expected to be three percent above last year and five percent above the five-year average of 1958-62.

How to Buy Cantaloupe—Choosing melons is somewhat like buying a "pig in a poke." Even growers and wholesale buyers can be fooled on melon ripeness. Certainly the foolproof method to be certain of sweetness and quality is to taste the melon; however, this is generally impossible.

Consumers should anticipate their yen for cantaloupes and buy enough in advance to let their melons develop succulence. This is the advice of cantaloupe growers and shippers and the longer these melon men have been in business, the more zealously they try to get this message to the homemaker.

Cantaloupe to be marketed must be picked "on the full slip" or firm-mature stage. This means that the cantaloupe has reached that state of ripeness when the entire stem separates from the melon under slight pressure though the melon is still firm and yellow-green. It will be sweet, but not juicy. Harvested "on the full slip" leaves a scar, a smooth, shallow rounded depression in the melon —one of the best signs of a fine, sweet cantaloupe.

Don't forget the other signs of excellence: a coarse, corky, greyish netting over a yellowish background and a tempting ripe-melon fragrance at the blossom end.

Care at Home—Let this firm-mature melon stand at summer temperature for two or three days or as necessary —until it feels spongy when pressed gently and has lots of aroma. At that point it has become juicy, its flesh enjoyable right down to the rind. It should be placed in the warmest part of the refrigerator. Then about half an hour before serving, take it out.

Register Sooner, Not Later

It won't be long before the national political campaigns of the Democrats and Republicans will be in full bloom. Most of the seed-sowing has been accomplished by both sides in anticipation of a fine November crop.

Political campaign time is a season when reason too often is replaced by partisanship, and when almost everyone has an opinion. It is a time — sad to say — when the air is rife with the complaints and demands of those who will not participate in the outcome.

Never have the affairs of government been more important to the individual. Never has it been more apparent that meaningful politics is more than a spectacular sport. A citizen who cares not to secure his right to vote should not share in discussions bearing on the elective process.

The trip to the county board of elections to register is, at worst, an inconvenience — but it can make a citizen out of a resident. And (although past experience would seem to belie the fact) the law does not say that you must wait until the Sept. 23 deadline date to register. It just says that you can't register for this year's elections after that date.

Junior Achievement Not A Minor One

While the study of economics is often lost in theory (see editorial below), one group of high schoolers gains excellent practical experience in American business methods.

Junior Achievement of Columbus, Inc., which is financed by solicitations of businessmen, takes youngsters into the very jaws of business, having them form corporations and actually produce and market.

Participants learn the law of supply and demand first hand. Their companies rise and fall on their own merits.

Some 350 local businesses sponsor the program. Last year 34 firms supplied 140 counselors and advisors.

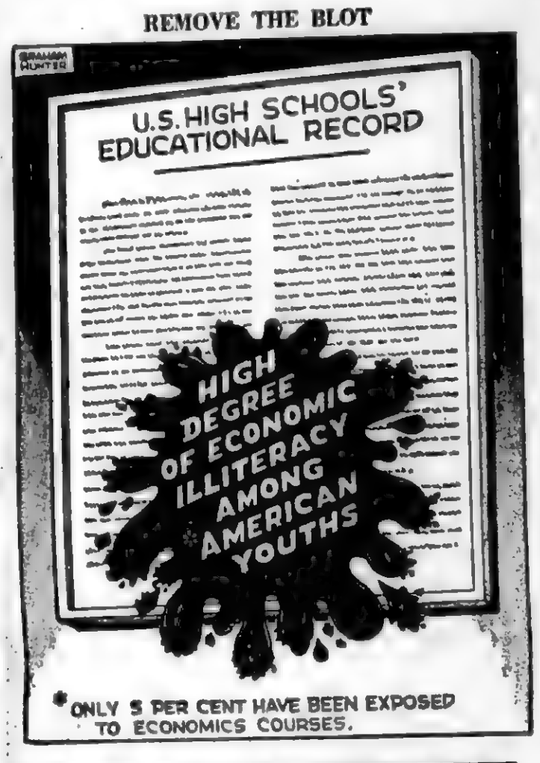
Thirty-seven companies form the present Junior Achievement program, but last year 2,300 high school students applied for admission when there were only 800 vacancies.

Almost $50,000 has been raised to accommodate a 50-company operation for the 1964-65 program year, so that 1,000 students can be accepted.

We congratulate Junior Achievement for supplying know how to youths who might otherwise know the name of Keynes but be lost on how American businesses flourish.

Economics Courses Important Today

America's high school students are being taught to drive cars but they are not being told how our economic system makes it possible for them, or their parents, to own automobiles.



A harsh indictment? Yes, but deplorably true. Although a vast majority of secondary schools provide driver-instruction, only a relatively tiny minority have regular courses in economics. The Brookings Institute is authority for the estimate that only five percent of high school graduates have been exposed to as much as a one-semester course in economics.

Our neglect in this area would be understandable if we had an economic system of which we were ashamed and wished to hide from our children. The very thought is preposterous, of course, since the American free competitive enterprise is the greatest and most dynamic system in all history.

We should, therefore, be boasting about our economic system and insuring that our youths are fully aware of the principles that have made possible the highest living standards the world has ever known.

America should not be complacent about economic illiteracy.

By "UNCLE DOC" ROSS — Ex-...

So what? They held a "lovefest summit meeting" at Hershey, Pa.

Everyone who is somebody in the official Republican political merry-go-round was there. Ike did exactly what he said he would do. Rocky is in the wrong business—he should be in "the big show" as a wire walker.

Goldwater looked fine, sounded healthy, and no one who watched the news conference on TV had to have a dictionary in order to know exactly what he was talking about and what he stands for.

Romney was silent as the political tomb that he seems to have built for himself. Scranton was "there" but no one would know it if they hadn't seen his face a couple of times on TV after the main show was over and he did get a little exposure on the olio.

The most impressive incident to me was Goldwater's sly sense of humor when he "greased the auger" for some reporter with his fast crack, "We both have to eat." That was a dilly and will be remembered long after most of the news conference is forgotten.

The whole business was typical politics and served only one purpose—to give Ike a chance to "put a little oil on the waters." He did it well and then closed by cutting short a pair who persisted in shooting some loaded questions. Ike's baldfaced statement that he asked for and received a "clarification" statement from Goldwater that satisfied him was his best punch line.

Nixon looked and listened and made no evident effort to shoulder his own map into the TV. How refreshing that is.

It was a good show and well worth the time of anyone who truly seeks some correct and honest answers. It can't fail to do Goldwater a lot of good and it proved one thing: everyone now knows that Barry is the nominee, period.

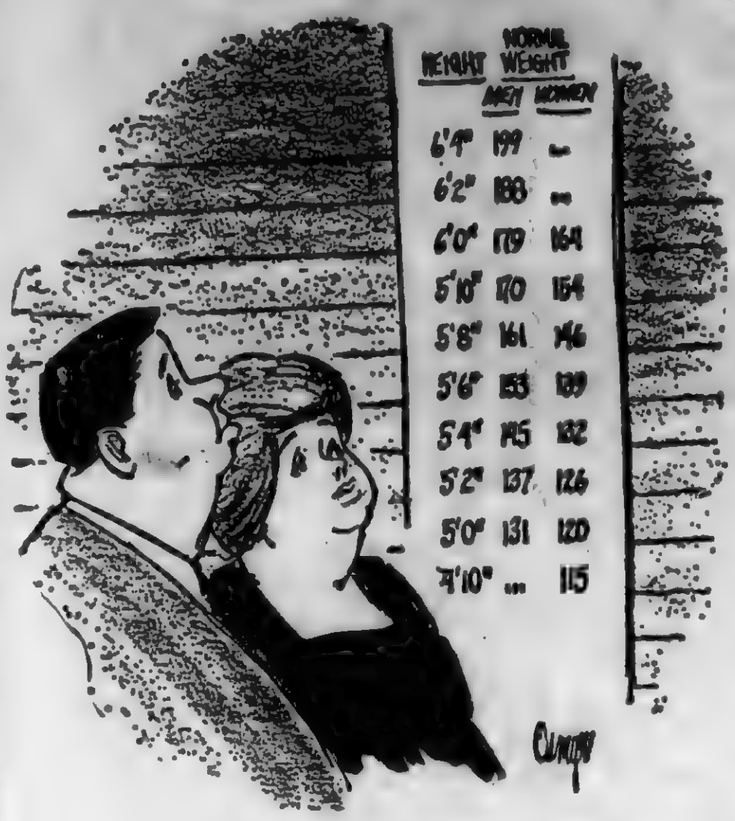
Deplores Glenwood 'Plans'

To The Editor:

Glenwood Recreation Center was constructed in 1915. A building that age could certainly not be called modern. At present the roof leaks, the gutters and downspouts have holes as large as some of the kids that play there. The toilet and shower facilities are laughable. Just about everything which would entertain kids on the inside is needed.



So what is the City Recreation Department going to spend its money for? — a blacktop parking lot. From Monday through Friday if anyone can count more than four cars over there I will be glad to eat them.

Another example — tennis is indeed a summer sport. So when is Glenwood's court being repaired? Now, in August, just when it would have been used most. The Recreation Department couldn't have waited until the kids went back to school.

I'm just a humble housewife, but I believe even I could do better planning at Glenwood Recreation Center than is now being done for our kids.

Dead Weight—Literally

ONE MAN'S . . . Opinion

Show me a man who diets and I'll show you a hungry slob.

Dieting is something you recommend to someone you don't really like very much because they need it.

Face it. Half the United States is on some sort of a diet.

Beardshear

Show me a man who isn't on a diet and I'll show you a skinny wretch.

Why? Because it's fashionable to diet. They sell so much diet food because it's stylish to save a few calories here and hog it up there . . . that's why they sell so much diet food.

And the thing about crash diets . . . the only crash diet you hear is yourself fainting at the desk where you work.

Which might really be better than looking at an inflated innertube usurping the place your lap should be.

I'm on a diet. And I think other dieters should do like I do. ADMIT you're on a diet. Make a public confession. It's stylish.

Sit at the table and tell your friends how many calories they're putting away.

Look HAPPY with tossed salad and unsweetened tea.

Relish meaty apple sauce and one calorie colas.

Shrink that belly and win followers.

Guest Pulpit . . Read Those Signs On The Highway of Life?

Recently I was on vacation. I had opportunity to travel on super-highways and turnpikes, all kinds of roads.

It is an education in itself to read the various signs. Jesus once spoke of the fact that signs are all about us and we never even notice some of them. May I share with you several signs I noticed that seem to me to have significance as we journey down life's highway?

Rev. Foster

Take this one: "Keep Awake!" This not only makes sense on highways, it makes sense for everyday living. How many of us are genuinely sensitive to what is taking place in our homes, in our communities, in the world in which God has created and placed us? Are we keeping awake mentally and spiritually? The Master of all the ages had this to say about spiritual awareness: "Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled."

Secondly, "Keep Right." This is a wise procedure, not only when traveling on the turnpike, but in our own lives, in our relationships one with another and with our Heavenly Father. Our own lives must be right and in good order if we are to be healthy, happy, whole persons. David prayed: "Create in me a clean heart, O God, and renew a right spirit within me." We must be right within ourselves, before we can ever be right with our fellowmen, and our Heavenly Father.

A third sign is "Danger — Men Working." How tremendous a world this could be if men truly worked together. The demonic forces of evil could be destroyed. But it would mean working together in communities, at your everyday occupation, in churches, in civic and service organizations the world over as brothers under the Fatherhood of God. There is danger when men work together . . . danger to prejudice, selfishness, greed, war, slums, tyranny, to anything that opposes the sacredness of humanity. We are to begin working together, to keep working together, to keep serving, to keep witnessing to your faith that we might in reality come into the fullness of life, even as God intended it.

A last sign is "Squeeze." (This was a sign on the East Coast denoting merging traffic.) Teenagers don't have to be told to do this — it comes naturally. Some of us adults still enjoy this, too. Life sometimes puts the squeeze on us — we get caught up in the rush of everyday living, we don't really take time for the development and nourishment of our souls, which should be our primary concern. As St. Paul has said, "Don't let the world around you squeeze you into its own mold, but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God." Let it be said, too, that there is a time when a squeeze is good. Sometimes Christ puts the squeeze on us when He says: "Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in Heaven."

The highway of life could be a great and fulfilling adventure if we observed and practiced these signs diligently.

Air Force Works Hard To 'Re-Rail' Men

AMARILLO, Tex. — Out here under the broad skies of the Texas Panhandle there is an experiment in saving men.

Every day two or three members of the U.S. Air Force, their uniforms bare of chevrons or insignia of rank, step off commercial planes at the Amarillo airport. Mostly they are young — average age 22. Some have come a long distance — Okinawa, Turkey, Panama. All are men under sentence, and not one has a guard.

Just east of the airport is the great Amarillo Air Force Base containing 14,000 men. In a corner of the base are the barracks and classrooms of the 3320th Retraining Group with a normal complement of about 200. Here, over an average period of six months, the Air Force attempts to rerail men who in the usual course of things would have served time in a military prison and been released with bad-conduct discharges with lively prospects of ending up in a civilian penitentiary.

Jones

A military court martial is a sad affair. There is the kid, frightened or resentful or defiant, who often doesn't realize that he has reached a fork in the road. But the court knows. The court knows that a bad conduct discharge stays with a man like a brand upon the cheek.

A military organization is not like a civilian employer. It can't solve a problem of bad behavior by simply firing the culprit. For a soldier or sailor signs up for a period of years. Willful misconduct can't be made a convenient device for being sent home. There must be punishment.

If there is not punishment for violating regulations and ignoring orders, a battalion or a ship's company becomes a mob. All armies and naval crews have lived in the shadow of the lash.

But only in recent years have thoughtful American commanders begun to wonder if somewhere beyond the gloomy disciplinary barracks of Fort Leavenworth and the bleak naval prison at Portsmouth there isn't a better way — at least, for some.

Colonel Leonard Shapiro's retraining facility at Amarillo gets what you might call the pick of the culls. The judge advocate general's office tries to decide which men should stay in the brig until they get the heave-ho out of service, and which are worth handing a ladder for the purpose of climbing back aboard.

Some don't want to climb, preferring the undemanding life of a prisoner to the perplexities of retraining. For, as the deputy commander, Lt. Col. R. E. Smythe says, "This is tougher than the disciplinary barracks."

The man comes in. There are 10 days of indoctrination. There are three weeks of formal schooling. He is given a history of the Air Force to pump up some morale. He is instructed as to his rights as a citizen.

He is told that he has a debt to society to pay, but that society has a debt to him. He is told that he has a right to a job, and that he has a right to a second chance.

Then he is given a course in financial management. Larceny, the most common offense after AWOL, is often committed by those who are chronically broke. If liquor is his trouble he is made to understand the nature of the problem and the way out.

"We get both ends of the talent spectrum," says Col. Smythe. "Some of these kids got into a jam because they weren't good at anything. They got specialized training. Some of them went haywire because they were unchallenged. These boys are shunted into jobs that keep them humping. The base is glad to have us here. We can supply any level of ability and our men work all over the place."

And what have been the results? Capt. C. J. Figura, chief of clinical services, is a former clinical psychologist for the Red Wing (Minn.) State Training School for Boys. He says:

"Briefly, we think that 'two out of three have it.' That is, about 65 percent are returned to duty in the Air Force, their bad conduct discharges are suspended. Of these, so far, 84 percent have completed their enlistments and left with honorable tickets.

"By the time a man has two years' experience in the service the taxpayers have sunk from seven to 11 thousand dollars in his training. If he gets kicked out we have to get another man and train him from the start. So you might say this school has a built-in profit.

"But in a larger sense, the honest citizen pays dividends to his community and the criminal lives out his years, not only as a danger, but as a deficit. The stakes we play for may amount to hundreds of thousands of dollars per man. Even the one-third who, we decide, can't be returned to duty are given an intensive course in citizenship before they are handed their red tickets and sent home. We try with everyone."

A more-than-casual observer of the retraining experiment is Paul Timmons, associate editor of The Amarillo Globe-News. He insisted on driving me out.

"We've got a thing going here — a human salvage yard," he told me. "But we don't just take men apart. We put most of them back together."

STRICTLY FRESH

A tree is something that stands still for 100 years and then suddenly jumps in front of a woman driver.

By the time a boy is old enough to know how much he owes his parents, some girl comes along and gets all the interest.

To be free is to be able to do what you please without considering anyone except your wife, the policeman, the boss, the life insurance company, the state, federal and city authorities and your neighbors.

An old-timer is one who remembers when a man did his own withholding from his take-home pay.

COFFEE BREAK

You Can't Miss It But We Sure Do!

By ADELINE DALEY

Now I know why nobody has been able to find the famous "Lost Dutchman Mine." The people who drew the map are the ancestors of the ones who now provide us with street directions to find their homes.

All I have to hear are the magic words, "You can't miss it," and I know that we'll be two hours late for the dinner to which we have been invited.

My husband and I show up at parties not speaking to each other because it was my fault for insisting we should turn right on Thistlewood Way when actually it should have been left on Thistlewood Road, two blocks further down.

But after all, weren't we supposed to turn right — or was it left — after the second stop sign, following the third intersection after the first stanza of the Burma Shave sign?

What throws us off first is trying to determine whether "Private Roads" and Cattle Crossings" count as "intersections." Some people include them, others don't.

A gas station used as a landmark, as if it were a standout like the Taj Mahal, is another thing that always throws us off the trail. Which gas station, among the 20 we've already passed?

Then there are the type of friends who give you directions on how to find their house, advancing from four different directions—north, south, east or west — as if one weren't confusing enough. It turns out that the easiest way is to parachute in from the heavens.

And we have loads of fun with the quaint breed who never give you the exact address but inform you that they live next door to the blue house with the wagon wheel fence, across the street from the white Cape Cod with the yellow marigold clumps.

However, we seldom seek help when lost. If we had been wandering about the African jungle, Dr. Livingston would have found us. I think that my husband feels that asking for directions is like cheating at solitaire.

My advice is never appreciated, nor asked for. So can you blame me for feeling somewhat smug the last time we were lost and after circling around the outer suburbs for 45 minutes my husband finally turned to me in desperation and said, "This has to be the house — we've crossed the little wooden bridge as we were supposed to, passed the schoolhouse with the flagpole, turned left at the water tank but I just can't believe that the Palmers live in an abandoned train station."

"Darling," I cooed, "you've followed every direction explicitly, with one exception, we're in the wrong town."

Around the World With STAN DELAPLANE

"We read about villas in Spain (rented through an agency in England). Who are they? Where is the best place? Are they reasonably priced?"

No, don't do it that way. You can get a villa at cheap prices—particularly during the winter off-season. But if you go through an English agent, you get his mark up plus a Spanish agency mark up. Go to Malaga — that's warmest in the winter. Get a hotel and shop the local agencies.

Delaplane

"I will be flying to Frankfurt, Germany, with two children, one eight months and the other four. Is there any special way of handling this? We will fly tourist."

The eight-month-old child pays a minimum fare—something around $30—and gets no seat. (There's usually an open seat you can use though). The four-year-old pays half fare and gets a seat.

When you buy your tickets, ask for the front seats. Just behind the first-class bulkhead. Tell them you have children. They'll hold the seats for you. There's more leg and floor room. Also, most planes are built to snap on a child's bed in this area. They have the beds.

The plane will carry milk and can heat it. Carry your own canned food. The airline may say they carry it. But what the directives call for and what the plane actually has on board aren't always the same thing. I've hauled a lot of kids around. And the rule is: Don't wait until you're in the air to see if they've got all the advertised equipment. Ask on the ground.

"... and can a woman go alone into an English pub?"

Yes. You see a lot of women alone or together in pubs. You go in the side marked "saloon bar" or "private bar." Do one of the more elegant ones and have lunch, too. Try "The Grenadier" in Wilton Place. Very good food and most pleasant, old pub atmosphere.

"We would like to know how dressy it is in Hawaii?"

Coat and tie in the evening at the Royal Hawaiian, the upper room of Canlis Broiler, the dining rooms of the Hawaiian Village and the Kahala Hilton. Everywhere else, muumuus, aloha shirts or whatever you like.

"We would like to find a relatively unspoiled island in the Caribbean."

The British Virgin Islands I'd say. However, "unspoiled" usually means native and not-so-good food, primitive plumbing and some hardship living amid a lot of poverty. There is a new resort at Little Dix Bay, Virgin Gorda, British Virgin Islands. You could write for a folder. Stay there and explore.

Assignment Television

By TERRENCE O'FLAHERTY

By TERENCE O'FLAHERTY

Several seasons ago, the ABC network showed courage above and beyond the call of money by throwing out most of its television shows and starting off with a clean slate of new ones.

Such a housecleaning astonished an industry used to less drastic change.

Starting this fall, ABC once again tops the other networks in the number of new shows (16), and the network previewed them for the press. The following new shows will all be given their premiere performance during the week of Sept. 14-20:

"Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea"—an hour-long dramatic series starring the atomic-powered submarine "Seaview," its top hands played by David Hedison and Richard Baschart. Plenty of research and intrigue from an unnamed foreign power.

"No Time for Sergeants" — an adaptation of the novel, the play, and the movie that made Andy Griffith famous. This time around, the role of the silly hillbilly is played by Sammy Jackson.

"Wendy and Me"—described as "a half-hour situation comedy about a zany girl (Connie Stevens) who knows what she's doing every minute, if it isn't clear to anyone else."

The Bing Crosby Show—starring the crooner as an electrical engineer with a wife and two daughters.

"The Tycoon" — starring Walter Brennan as the chairman of the board of Thunder Corporation under fire to retire because of his age.

"Peyton Place" — a TV adaptation of the boudoir almanac of a small town — popular on book stands some years back. It will introduce a new concept in TV programming by being telecast twice a week on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Although the network emphasizes this is not a soap opera, the scene shown this week looked mighty soapy to me.

"Shindig"—ABC's newest musical series which, according to the program, "carries the sound of a music-filled get-together, youthful and spirited." It is directed by an English pair. Judging from the scene shown, the pair must be Mandy Rice-Davies and Christine Keeler.

"Mickey" — the story of a hotel owner played by Mickey Rooney. In the sequence shown Rooney fell into the pool twice with his clothes on and escaped in the buff wearing a lady's mink coat. Rooney's co-star is Sammy Tong of "Bachelor Father."

"Bewitched" — looks very funny indeed. It's the story of a newly-married New York advertising executive who discovers his pretty wife is a witch — the kind that can make clothes fall apart and furniture move. Dick York is the husband and Elizabeth Montgomery is the wife.

"Jonny Quest" — a new animated color cartoon show about a youngster and his hair-raising adventures. A combination of Dennis the Menace and Fu Manchu.

"The Addams Family" — a dramatization of the famous New Yorker cartoon family come to life with Jackie Coogan as the bald-headed moron and Caroline Jones as his "Vampira"-like wife. In this family, the kid's electric trains are designed to collide.

"Valentine's Day" — stars Tony Franciosa as "a dashing, debonair senior editor of a publishing firm" (an unlikely place to find anyone to fit that description).

'Big Stick' Still Demands Respect

By ROYCE BRIER

In his acceptance speech William E. Miller, Republican vice-presidential nominee, summoned us to "a nation-wide crusade to regain respect abroad for this land of liberty..."

It is a laudable purpose. We all want respect individually, and historically we want it for our country.

But it is not likely of unqualified attainment very soon, either by Mr. Miller's party, or by the opposition party headed by President Johnson. There are some good reasons for this, bearing on human nature and the vicissitudes of history.

Brier

The founding fathers wanted respect for the United States. They hoped liberty would earn it, and it did among the downtrodden of Europe, but not in ruling circles, which hated republicanism and rightly feared it.

So in the immigration period (1830-1910), the immigrants didn't respect their rulers, and did respect our liberty (and opportunity), and so came. The rulers were only glad to be rid of malcontent emigrants.

Unhappily respect, while related to liberty in idea and practice, is far more intimately related to stark power. Hence there are three periods when the European rulers respected us.

The first was in the last two years of our Civil War, when the Union had the biggest navy afloat and the biggest armies existing. The second was near the end of World War I, when anybody could see we were developing an unexampled power. The third was after Midway, 1942, when it became manifest that America aroused was a suicidal target.

This respect receded somewhat postwar, revived when we built a nuclear arsenal, receded again when it was apparent we did not intend to use the arsenal for impulsive adventure.

Meanwhile, the world fell into a revolutionary state with the Soviet challenge to us.

In the communist world, in most of Asia, in chaotic Africa throwing off colonialism, free liberty in our sense of self-government and individual freedom has no meaning, and the respect we gain from having it is thin. Even in much of Latin America, born in liberty 140 years ago, the reality is a will o' the wisp.

We are respected — when we are — because we are filthy rich, technologically unbeatable and dangerous to monkey with too far. Comrade Khrushchev knows that from Cuba, and even the befuddled Senor Castro knows it.

We welcome Mr. Miller's support of liberty, but his party won't "regain" much respect by it. It can be achieved, though, by doubling our nuclear arsenal, then telling all mankind: "Keep a civil tongue in your head if you don't want a hydrogen bomb shower."

And they all would be as reverent as heck while it lasted. One is loath to be cynical, but history often is, and it's Mr. Miller's project.

HEALTH CLINIC

Nibblers May Eat Longer

What are the consequences, if any, of eating one big meal a day as opposed to several "nibbling" meals?

Eating habits may be as villainous as what is eaten.

Dr. Grant Gwinup, assistant professor of medicine at the Ohio State University College of Medicine, has been studying effects of nibbling versus gorging.

Human volunteers were fed identical diets for two weeks. One group ate 10 times daily; another had three meals, the third ate all the food at one time.

Nibblers fared best. They had, among other things, lower blood cholesterol than their gorging counterparts.

What are the effects of vibration on the human body?

Vibration, rocking-chair type, is what man prefers when he relaxes. He avoids severe vibration, but can tolerate moderate levels when necessary.

In a research study at the Ohio State University College of Medicine, a team has been working on vibration problems to better understand environmental stress and its effects.

It has been found most activities, in or out of industry, are rarely acute hazards to man's health or well-being.

Vibration, however, may interfere with efficient performance. It can cause fatigue, interrupt concentration or cause detrimental reactions to performance of a task.

Can perfume ever have any adverse effect on the skin?

Perfume is two-faced.

Its aroma delights, but it can cause problems for some people. When applied directly to the skin, the path of application sometimes leaves streaks on the skin which are permanent.

Dermatologists at Ohio State University College of Medicine caution that perfumes should be applied in the hairline. When used on visible, exposed skin, the chemical compounds are sometimes photosynthesized and cause pigment damage.

TODAY'S REPORT

By ABE MELLINKOFF

Who's "morally offensive" these days? I'd say offhand everybody is to somebody in this big land of ours.

That's why very little mail will ever get through if this new bill that whooped through the House of Representatives makes it in the Senate. It provides that anybody who feels he is getting "morally offensive" mail can get the government to stop it.

I'm already making up my list of people who will be barred from clogging my mail box. On the top of the page are all my leaders in Congress who regularly send me copies of their speeche — printed at government expense. Waste is immoral and I am offended.

The Wonderful World of ANIMALS

By Frank Miller, D.V.M.

DEAR DR. MILLER: It's about our year old Siamese, So Hai. We have air conditioning in our house this year. He hates it and when brought in will rush right back outside again, no matter how hot it is. We thought the air conditioning would be good for him. Now we wonder if cats ever get sunstroke.—R.C.

DEAR R.C.: While cats CAN get sunstroke, it occurs infrequently with felines. For one thing, cats (unlike dogs) are seldom tied in the sun, or locked in hot cars. Then too, cats have more sense than dogs in this regard. When the temperature soars, a cat will insist on rest. Many dogs, if encouraged, will run and play until they collapse.

DEAR DR. MILLER: It may not do any good, but would you please mention something about spoiling dogs? My wife is spoiling our young Samoyed something awful. She says she got the dog to spoil and so what's the difference? The dog (Jammy) is her dog. Am I wrong to worry?—S.V.

DEAR S. V.: All too often behavior that appears to be "cute" in a puppy develops into difficult or "impossible" behavior patterns in the older dog. The pup that never has to do anything it doesn't want to will quickly assume it really is the boss.

As long as it is pampered and catered to, it may seem all is going well. The difficulty where Jammy is concerned may begin when your wife decides she doesn't like the way things are going and wants to bring about some changes.

Even one little episode, when she tries to block Jammy, may blow up into a major confrontation. By this time the dog may be reluctant to yield the "top dog" position. Resentment may flare into everything from snapping to more devious get-even tactics of destruction such as chewing or messing on rugs.

DEAR DR. MILLER: In one of your columns recently, you recommended shoeing a horse. My horse has appeared to do very well without shoeing and I have been riding him quite a bit over the last five years. Would you say I had been wrong in not shoeing this horse? Now I'm a little worried.—T.W.

DEAR T.W.: Certainly not. While shoeing may be necessary to protect the hoof (or for correction) it is not always indicated. If you ride in an area where the hoof doesn't need the protection shoes afford, then forget them. An occasional hoof trim may be all that is necessary (and sometimes, not even that). Actually, even though shoeing has become a status symbol, many horses would be better off "barefoot."

DEAR DR. MILLER: Pamela is a devoted pet parakeet of mine. She is such a sweet little thing. I always like to know all I can about these little birds in case the information might someday be useful. I just read about a parakeet in England that had a successful caesarean operation performed on her. I was shocked. Could you give me some information on this—B.D.

DEAR B.D.: Such an operation must have shocked the parakeet involved, too. In all probability the term "caesarean" was used rather loosely in this case. Delivering a live infant with the aid of surgery would be a neat trick in the case of a parakeet, no matter how skillful the surgeon. (It is more likely the hapless hen was relieved of an impacted egg.)

DEAR DR. MILLER: My son brought back a "pet" clam from an expedition. He has named it Shelly. He fusses over it considerably. He often packs it off to visit neighbors in a sand bucket. I have no doubt this clam will someday give up the ghost. How can I determine when that time arrives? I hate to have my son feel foolish over a dead clam. It is bad enough, I think, with a live one. —G.S.

DEAR G.S.: You are absolutely right, this clam will give up the ghost eventually, they all do. Undoubtedly Shelly's survival time is more limited than most. When Shelly succumbs the muscle that holds the shell sections together will give up the job, so that the sections will either pop open or can be easily pried apart.

Another clue would be the rapid decrease in weight of the clammy corpse, plus an odor that should not belong to the living.

Does your favorite animal have problems, physical or emotional? Dr. Miller will answer all letters sent to him, care of this paper, provided a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed.

TALK OF THE WORLD

Taxi's Occupied - Driver's At Bank

BEIRUT, Lebanon — There's a mad scramble in this capital to get one of the new cab license plates. It's no wonder — a red plate is worth its weight in gold.

There are some 6000 cabbies in this city of 1.5 million, a high number for a city that size, but recently the local government announced that another 1000 plates would be released. The public announcement didn't say so, but its a cinch most of the plates will go to the deserving.

If you're fortunate enough to get a license—or have enough clout to get one—you're just about set for life.

It's expensive — about $3300 — but once you've acquired one, it takes an act of the devil to have it taken away from you. And, best of all, it's negotiable, and brings up to $7500 on the black market.

Why so much money for a cab plate? Because the hack business is a gold mine by local standards. An enterprising cab driver can make $20-$30 a day, which is a lot of bread in local currency (by comparison, a bank clerk with a BA degree makes about $50 a month), and when he's ready to retire he can peddle his license to the highest bidder.

Small wonder there's a run on the new licenses. Some cabbies have been known to mortgage their homes to the hilt, or even sell them, to get money for a plate. They know that before long, they'll probably be affluent enough to afford an even bigger home.

Early trading in new plates is brisk. A cabbie out of cash may borrow the money, then sell the license to the lender at a handsome profit.

Heavy palm greasing of officials — to get ahead of the line — is standard operating procedure in this racket.

One of the wealthier men of the town is a goat who does not drive a cab. He owns 300 plates accumulated through shrewd business deals.

Aside from the profit motive, which is substantial, owning a cab is a matter of pride and prestige in this city. Nearly all of Beirut's cab drivers own large American cars—many of them air conditioned.

The price of a Chevy starts at about $4000, but it is not at all unusual to see a driver hustling business from his 1964 Lincoln Continental. Considering the cost of a plate, the price of a big luxury car seems like small potatoes.

The Lebanese cabbie obviously is an astute businessman who lives by his wits and the most advanced promotion methods. He is not beyond offering a free ride to a tourist in the hopes he'll later get a long trip from an appreciative guest.

Foreigners quickly become impressed with the acumen of Lebanese cab drivers — not to mention their reckless driving at a breakneck pace.

The other day, a tourist who accepted a free ride asked innocently how the driver could afford to give such gratis accommodations.

"Simple," said the driver as he turned to his passenger with a broad grin. "I'm rich."

Gregory Win Streak Hits Six At CMS

Don Gregory extended his sportsman feature win streak to six, but Ralph O'Day had his stopped at four in the late-model division in the Sunday night program at the Columbus Motor Speedway before more than 2000 fans.

This coming Sunday, the sportsman and late-models will be back for another eight event program with two features that carries $1500 in guaranteed prize money.

ON SATURDAY evening, Aug. 29, A.R.C.A. (Automobile Racing Club of America) will bring in the top-notch new-car drivers from several states for the Capitol City New-Car championship races on the Williams Road oval.

A.R.C.A. will climax the program with a 100-lap feature on the fast third-mile blacktop oval, in which such outstanding drivers as Jack Bowsher, Iggy Katona, Jim Cushman, Paul Parks, Mike Klapak, Dick Dunlevy, Harold Smith, Dick Freeman and Wimpy May will be competing in 1962 through 1964 cars.

All racing at the South Side raceway gets under way at 8 o'clock, following the 7 p.m. time trials.

THIS COMING Sunday, in the speedway's free game "Total," there will be $200 in cash, waiting for the fan or fans able to pick the first five finishers, in order in the sportsman main-event.

Palmer Putting Sweepstakes Set

The Arnold Palmer Putting Course and Driving Range Companies will stage a "Vacation In Paradise" Sweepstakes from Aug. 10 thru Aug. 29, it was announced today by Jeff Brandon, manager of the Arnold Palmer Putting Course located at 4767 W. Broad-st.

National prizes include all-expense-paid vacations for two in glamorous Puerto Rico, Las Vegas, Miami Beach and Atlantic City. Valuable local prizes will also be awarded.

A DRAWING will be held to select local winners at the conclusion of the contest. Local winners' ballots will then be forwarded to the Arnold Palmer Putting Course and Driving Range Companies' home office, where a national drawing will be held.

Full details on the "Vacation In Paradise" Sweepstakes can be obtained at the Arnold Palmer Putting Course at 4767 W. Broad-st.

'Hot' Golf Balls And Here Comes Football!

Well, now they've gone and done it!

For the past five years, we've often blamed our despicable golf score on the quality of balls we've been able to purchase.

NEVER MORE! With horror, we found these words beginning a piece of mail we opened recently — "Imagine combining atomic energy . . . with golf! (we hadn't). We've done it! (they have)

The letterhead — Oak Ridge Atom Industries, Inc. —proved they weren't joking. But . . . read on.

"The Oak Ridge Atom Industries, Inc. is a scientific company . . . licensed by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission to own and operate our own source of atomic energy."

"OUR COMPANY started research on golf balls in 1959 . . . improving distance and toughening the cover of a ball by the effect of atomic radiation on rubber polymers and steel." Frightening — but there's more!!

"The energized golf ball . . . is treated with gamma rays from radioactive Cobalt 60 in our laboratories in Oak Ridge. It has a steel center and carries an exclusive guarantee that compression will be a constant 95 plus."

Each ball bears an atomic symbol on the cover and retails in direct mail outlets, sporting goods stores and pro shops for $2 to $2.25 per ball.

THAT'S A lotta' gamma rays for your money but we'd rather slice than switch.

After all, most of our "fall-out" would occur over the woods and lakes, probably polluding all kinds of wildlife.

And read between the lines as we did, we saw no special additional offer for geiger counters.

WE MIGHT still be behind in the race for space, my friends, but take heart in the prospect that the Russians will never be able to beat us to the greens.

With the turn of the weather several days last week, our thoughts couldn't help but turn to football.

Calls to physicals have gone out to many area high school hopefuls and many of them will have taken that first step toward opening night by the time this column sees print.

IN TEN instances, grid prospects around the area will be seeing new faces under the coaching cap this fall.

At Pleasant View, Don Eby will take over for Bob Walker, Jim Veeley moves over from Aquinas to replace Jack Deppher at Bishop Ready. Al Chonko will take over the reins at Aquinas.

Bill McCann will fill Glenn Johnston's shoes at Groveport; Steve French replaces Bud Trapp at Rosary and John Thompson will assume Marv Lutz's old duties at Reynoldsburg.

ELSEWHERE, Doug Kerns takes over at Watkins Memorial, replacing Larry Lintner; Don DeJong spells Ben Tenwalde at Bexley and the dean of area coaches, Jack Ryan sets up shop at Bishop Hartley, replacing Paul Drotovick.

Dick Geyer will be Ryan's replacement at St. Charles.

Actually, five of the faces won't be exactly "new" to their grid charges with Eby, McCann, Thompson, DeJong and Geyer moving up the ladder from assistant capacity at their respective schools.

BOTH AQUINAS and St. Charles will kick off final football seasons in September vacating thereafter spots in the City and Central Catholic Leagues respectively.

The '64 season will see the inauguration of a new league — the South Suburban — composed of Franklin Heights, Pleasant View, Hamilton Township and Teays Valley.

Heights and P-V vacate the South-Central circuit, Hamilton dropping out of the Franklin County loop and Teays Valley departing from the Darby Valley lineup.

CANAL WINCHESTER will fill H-T's loss in the FCL, leaving the Mid-State one eleven short.

If the balance and weather that was so perfect in most instances last season can hang on for another schedule, this time around should be another humdinger.

Gene Fekete, head mentor at West, said last week the City race could very well build up to its thrilling '63 climax (tri-champs) again this November.

WE — AND thousands of grid-hungry local fans — hope you're right, Gene!

Shrine Game Slated Aug. 20

Brotherhood Night, the Ninth Annual Sabre Shrine Little League Baseball benefit for crippled children will be held Aug. 20, at the North American Aviation Recreation Park. All proceeds will go to the Aladdin Crippled Children Association.

Ray Watkins, general chairman for the event has announced coaches for the evening. They are Ben Golden, Marv Balen and Ben Horowitz, of Jewish Center, Ted Oyler and Charles Evans of Whitehall, Dick Weisgerver, Wally Teeters and Derrell Hauser of Christ-The-King, and Jim Mullard, Dick Newsom, Charles King and Des Defourney of North American Aviation.

FESTIVITIES will begin at 6 p.m. with flag raising ceremonies. At 6:15 the first game will be held and the second game will follow the between - games entertainment.

A grand parade by members of the Aladdin Temple will include the Temple Band, chanters, picadors, clowns, and the Brutal Brothers. In addition, representatives from the four teams will be introduced to the audience.

President of the Sabre Shrine is Charlie Krallman, with Harold Kelley as vice-president.

Tickets for the game may be obtained from any Little League coach or player, the Columbus Division Recreation office (BE. 1-1851, Ext. 1761) or at the Recreation Park on Hamilton Road the night of the game.

Recent measurements reveal that a tree farm near Orick, Calif., contains the three tallest known trees in the world. These are coast Redwoods measuring 364 feet four inches, 366 feet seven inches, and 367 feet in height.

CBS Track Now Open

The CBS Park Speedway, located four miles north of Lancaster on Rt. 33, will continue racing after a brief closing period.

Last week, Charles Sparks cleaned house in the C classes and East Fultham driver Dick Pettit won two events in the B frames. Other top winners at CBS last week were Gary Sterling (East Fultham), John Gaddis (Roseville) Harold Newell and Charles Eichinger of Chester, O., and Doug Ervin and Bill Rice of Columbus.

THIS SUNDAY afternoon, CBS officials will put the official record up for grabs. The track record is owned by Bill Mercer of Zanesville but two racers turned in 9 flat times after the races last week.

Dual-powered carts are welcome to compete on the 1/10 mile high-banked black top, 30-ft. wide oval on Friday and Saturday afternoons in practice runs.

Pits open at noon Sunday and the high-powered modified, sports, mighty midgets, Corvets and motorcycles will begin racing at 2 o'clock sharp. For additional racing information, call SK. 6-4187.

The largest white oak in the U.S. stands in one of the smallest state parks. Wye Oak State Park, Md., consists of only one tree, a huge white oak 425 years old and 95 feet tall.

Want A Buffalo Steak? U.S. Gov't. Price: $200

The population "boom" here in Ohio and the other 49 states is responsible for creating many problems. Not the least of these is providing outdoor recreation for the fast-mounting number of persons who want to get outside.

A particular case in point involves conservation in general, and game management in particular. With land suitable for wildlife habitant shinking and changing, wildlife experts are faced with numerous and perplexing dilemmas which must be solved.

SOME FINE examples of these problems have come to our attention, and although they may not involve us in Ohio directly, they are worth noting.

Change of habitant often results in disappearing species of game with game management men faced with providing other suitable species for the citizens who pay for hunting licenses.

Here in the Buckeye State most of the experiments with new exotic species have met with less than spectacular success, such as the Reeves pheasant. However, the ring-necked pheasant has caught on in this country to the point of being one of the most popular game birds.

OUT IN New Mexico they're really going off the deep end trying to import exotic species to replace vanishing natives. Conservation officials of that state are going to try to solve their problem.

Listen to what they're attempting to adapt to the desert lands of New Mexico . . . (1) the ibex, a big goat-like animal weighing up to 125 pounds. It comes from Sibera, can withstand severe winters and short hot summers, and can clear an 8-foot fence from a standstill.

(2) From Africa will come the kudu, a desert-dwelling antelope which weighs up to 700 pounds, and looks like an elk.

(3) FROM the Kalahari desert in Africa will come the gemsbok, a large antelope with a long tufted tail, and a roar like a lion. New Mexico game men expect to make the new species available for hunting within 10 years — if their experiment works out.

The federal government has another type of wildlife problem — not too little but too much. The Interior Department's going to hold a surplus big game sale to thin its herds to a size compatible with feeding ranges.

This year they're selling 228 buffalo, 89 elk and 91 bighorn cattle. If you're interested you can order the animals either alive or butchered for the freezer. A live buffalo will dent your billfold for about 200 dollars; butchered ones run a little more.

A FEW PARAGRAPHS ago we mentioned the successful stocking of old "Mr. Chink," the ring - necked pheasant here in the U.S. However, one of the most heavily-populated states, South Dakota, is passing along some bad news for those hunters who annually tre kto the state for fabulous pheasant shooting. (I hestitate to call it hunting).

Because of a sharp decline in the number of birds this year, the South Dakota fish and parks commission has cut the length of the season from 74 days to 60 days, and reduced the daily bag limit from four to two or three birds, depending on the area of the state.

Speaking of seasons, in the next day or so Ohio's duck hunters will be advised on the length and bag limits for this fall. The federal wildlife folks make the decision, based on the breeding success in the Canadian prairie provinces. Right now the outlook appears bright.

A FINAL NOTE — the League of Ohio Sportsmen will again sponsor the "Fishing For Kids" program at the 111th Ohio State Fair which opens next week.

Since the success of the program depends on the number of fish which the youngsters land, the league says that a mesh fence will confine the finny foes within cane pole reach, and out of the middle of the pond.

Even if you don't fish yourself it's worth the time to stop by and watch the kids having the time of their lives —goin' fishin'.

Jets To Host Jr. Sluggers

The Columbus Recreation Department in cooperation with the Columbus Jets will hold its annual Junior Jet League night at Jet Stadium Aug. 20.

All players in the Junior Jet Baseball program (8-12 year old boys) will be the guests of the Columbus Jets for the ball game.

In addition, the volunteer coaches who helped in this program will accompany their team and be recognized along with the league winner.

All boys in the Junior Jet League Baseball program should check with their playground leaders for further details.

Linden Headpin Tourney Ready

The Linden Little League Football Bulls and Steers (members of the Ohio Boy's Football Foundation) will hold a headpin Tourney at Northern Lights Lanes Aug. 22, 23, 29 and 30 from 1:00 to 10:00 p.m.

Tickets are $1 per line with all net proceeds going to the purchase of equipment for the upcoming season.

Your participation in this event will enable 60 boys to be adequately protected while participating in this worthwhile sport.

El Rancho Hot In Loop Race

The El Rancho Polo Club of Worthington stands a good chance of carrying its string of victories to seven when it faces the Poland, O., Rangers this Sunday at 3 p.m. on its home field, 2932 E. Granville-rd.

El Rancho's 6-5 victory over Cleveland last week put it in serious contention for the Central Ohio Championship playoffs in October.

Their season record includes only two losses and one tie. One of the losses was against Cincinnati in a non-league game and the tie was against Cleveland earlier in the month.

EL RANCHO'S team lineup of both players and horses has been relatively free of injuries this year. One minor injury was when Jim Anderson was unhorsed in last week's game.

In that game Anderson's smooth light horse "Scotty" was injured and will probably be out for the rest of this season.

The club offers a free "Tips to Watch" polo pamphlet to all spectators who attend the home games. The admission fee of $1 per auto is given to the Franklin County Unit of the American Cancer Society.

'Rama Thins Eye State Fair Meet

The local Junior Soprts-A-Rama Regional Track and Field Meet was held last Saturday at the Ohio State Fairgrounds oval with 235 boys competing for State Meet berths Aug. 28 on State Far Youth Day.

The winners of the local regional will represent their locals as well as the Columbus Regional against five other Regional winners throughout the state on Aug. 28.

THE STATE MEET will get under way on Aug. 28 at 9:30 a.m. and run until 2:30 p.m. The Ohio Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Ohio Youth Commission and the All-Star Dairies combined to make the Junior Sports-A-Rama possible this summer.

Doug Patterson of Columbus stood out in the Senior Boys Division as he turned in a blazing :22.5 win in the 220 dash, anchored the winning quarter-mile relay team and won the shotput event with a 43'11 heave.

Other Senior stickouts were Leonard Dent, who leaped to a regional record 6'4 in the high jump, and John Wilder who won the broad jump (18'10) and ran second to Solomon Espe (10.0) in the 100-yard dash.

DENT, WHO has never high jumped on the high school level, outleaped his nearest competitor by an even 8 inches. Tyrone Hyatt hurled the discus 125'4 to nab the Senior shotput crown at the meet.

The Intermediate winners included Dan Douglas (50 Dash — 5.8), Bob Linkens (100 Dash — :10.8), Dwight Cartier (220 Dash — :24.6), James Mayes (shotput — (37'9) and Parry Jack (discus —110'6).

In the Junior Division, Don Likens was a standout as he won the 75-yard dash in 8.9 and placed second in the broad jump behind Grove City's Mike Grotsky (17'8½) with a 17'6" leap.

OTHER JUNIOR Division winners included Rick Spencer of Lancaster (50 Dash — 6.2), Richard Thompson of Grove City (high jump — 4'8) and the Lancaster 440-yard relay quartet of Rick Spencer, Bill Miller, Moon Beveridge and Gary LaBonte.

Rick Newlin parkled in the Midget bracket as he flashed to a 75-yard dash win, placed second in the broad jump behind winner Dean Fosnaugh (13'11) and anchored a fast 220 relay team with mates Tim Cunningham, Dave McNeal and Duane Heard.

Tom Ellison rounded out the Midget scoring with a swift 6.6 clocking in the 50-yard dash event.

League-Leading Chiefs Visit Jets

The International League's front-runners, the Syracuse Chiefs, wind up a four-game Jet Stadium visit Thursday night (Aug. 20) with an 8 p.m. Ladies' Night contest.

Ladies will be admitted to the upper grandstand for 50 cents and 50,000 Buckeye Premium Stamps will be given away at the Thursday evening contest.

THE FIFTH - PLACE Rochester Red Wings invade the W. Mound-st ballyard on Friday night in an 8 p.m. YMCA Men's Night game. The YMCA will be selling ducats to the game to aid their organization.

The Red Wings and the Jets will play a single contest on Saturday evening (8 p.m.) and close out the eighth Columbus homestand on Sunday afternoon with a twinbill that gets under way at 1:30.

PBA Tourney Coming Soon

The Professional Bowling Association Tournament will move into Columbus on Nov. 11-14 at Amos Lanes (Cleveland-av and Innis-rd) to provide Central Ohio bowling buffs with some top-notch entertainment.

The tournament, which will be the largest ever in Columbus, will have a $27,500 jackpot with $3,000 going to the first place winner.

A pro-am tourney will be held the first day with a $6,000 purse thrown in to make the kegling interesting.

ESPIE EXCHANGE—Solomon Espie, 2702 Roxbury-rd, takes a handoff from teammate Ralph Marinello Saturday at the Junior Sports-A-Rama Regional at the Fairgrounds in the Senior 440-yard relay event. Espie, a standout sprinter on Lee Williams' East cinder squad, copped the 100-yard dash (:10 flat) and teamed with Oliver Harden, Chuck McNeal and Marinello to take a second place in this event.

PATTERSON PUSH — Columbus strongboy Doug Patterson flashed across the finish line first Saturday afternoon in the Senior Boys' 220 event at the Junior Sports-A-Rama Meet in a fast :22.5. Patterson didn't let any moss grow under his feet, however, as he also won the shotput (43'11") and anchored a winning quarter-mile relay team at the meet.

COACHES' CORNER

GEORGE HAMRIC

(This week's guest on Coaches' Corner is George Hamric, head diamond mentor at Hamilton Township High School.)

Q. — WHAT ARE SOME OF THE DUTIES A CATCHER PERFORMS WHILE WORKING BEHIND THE PLATE?

A. — A catcher directs a large part of the defensive infield play and is one of the most important players in the defensive setup.. Two physical requirements essential to the job are rather large hands and a strong throwing arm.

The smart catcher constantly studies the batsman, batting styles, stances, strides and swings in order to determine batting strengths and weaknesses of opponents.

The catcher should continually keep his pitcher informed as to the position of the baserunners, the number of outs and the proper play to make in the current situation.

THE CATCHER receives the ball from the pitcher with a knee action as much as, if not more than, arm and hand action. The fingers of his bare hand never point toward the pitcher when receiving the ball.

The whole side of the hand, from the tip of the little finger to the bottom of the palm, should be the only part of the hand visible to the pitcher when the catcher takes the ball above the waistline.

The thumb of the bare hand, as well as the thumb of the mitt, point toward the ground and the palms are held toward the pitcher when the ball is thrown below the waistline.

IF THESE directions are followed, the ball will hit either the bottom part of the hand or the top of the thumb if the batter tips the ball.

The catcher tries to stay as close as possible to the batter behind the plate so that the bat just misses his mitt. Closeness to the plate gives a catcher a better opportunity to catch low pitched balls, especially the low curve.

The low ball is the most difficult to catch and a good catcher never gets down for a low pitch with only the open edges of the mitt and hand ready to handle it.

A BROKEN finger, a split thumb or a passed ball can easily result when these small parts of the mitt are used. The face of the mitt and the palm of the hand should face the ball as it comes toward the catcher.

A high pitched ball should be caught with a downward motion and a low pitched ball should be caught with an upward motion in order to obtain the proper throwing position and balance.

A.K. Set Opens Third Round; Women Linksters Honored

Martin's Market took a well-earned win over Wolman's Insurance by an 11 to 9 count for their third win of the season. Stan Freedberg, Henry Grinsfelder and Earl Hazan each blasted three hits in the Martin's attack while Hazan also hit a bases loaded home run.

Wolman's Mort Rising and Hal Paris led the attack with three hits each as both hit a triple and a double.

Wolman's led through the first three innings but a five-run forthcoming for Martin's iced the contest.

B E E B'S RESTAURANT buried Ontario, 17-5, on a 19-hit outburst as Ben Braff, Hal Block, Harvey Roth, Benton Block and Julius Margulis all collected three hits in the win. Larry Gordon and Margulis each blasted a three bagger.

Dave Madison connected for five hits to lead Ontario's 16-hit display while Larry Lawrence homered and Jim Jacobs contributed three hits, one a triple.

Margulis took the win as Leon Marks took the loss.

B'nai B'rith caught fire in the last two innings to subdue Hackman Realty, 14-11, after being held hitless for four innings by Milt Glas.

A circus catch by Burton Berk saved the game in the last of the seventh with the tying runs on base.

MILT PINSKY crashed a home run and Bud Milenthal a triple to lead the B'nai B'rith attack.

Don Erkis nailed three hits and a home run and Nate Fechheimer hit a circuit clout for Hackman.

Ike Cohen took the win and Howard Byer the loss.

Women golfers in both the Beginner and Intermediate Leagues of the Jewish Center were honored last Monday at a luncheon at the Sands Restaurant.

In the Intermediate League, the following received trophies and awards:

Flight A champion, Sarah Salle; Flight B champion, Ruth Beck, and Flight C champion, Rosella Shiff.

Most improved players:

Flight A, Bernice Beckman; Flight B, Ruth Beck, and Flight C, Minna Landers.

Low putt gross contest:

Flight A, Sarah Salle (53); Flight B, Sylvia Fireman (106), and Flight C, Rosella Shiff (78).

Low putt contest:

Flight A, Betty McCarthy (14); Flight B, Ruth Beck (18), and Flight C, Minna Landers (15).

The Beginners League award recipients were as follows:

Flight A champion, Norma Schwartzberg, and Flight B champion, Betty Talis.

Low putt contest: Norma Schwartzberg.

Low gross pair: Rosalea Stone and Lillirn Kanter.

Low gross score: Joan Wassersirom.

Ohio National Raises Interest

The Ohio National Bank has increased interest rates to 4 percent on savings deposits, it was announced by Leland A. Stoner, president.

The new interest rate is retroactive to July 1, 1964, Stoner said. The 4 percent rate (the maximum amount allowed) will be paid on new certificates of deposit, as well as new savings deposits, he added.

"This move was made," according to Stoner, "to attract additional funds to help finance the tremendous growth of this community."

"Demand for home mortgages and construction and expansion loans has increased greatly in recent months. Our higher interest rate will help supply the money to meet this need and will, at the same time greatly increases the return enjoyed by the customers of Ohio National."

Parade Slated On Labor Day At Pickerington

Pickerington Lions Club will sponsor the annual Labor Day Parade Sept. 7.

This year's parade will have the units from the Aladdin Shrine Temple of Columbus, bands, floats, bicycles and a drill team. New this year will be the addition of awards for antique and classic cars.

Prizes for the floats are as follows: first, $30; second, $25; third, $20; fourth, $15; and fifth, $10. There are no entry fees for the floats nor is there a theme. The floats will be judged according to originality, manner of presentation and use of color.

Entry is open to the public. There will be cash awards to the best decorated bicycles.

The parade moves at 11 a.m. and all floats and bicycles must be in place for judging by 10:15 a.m. The parade will form at the Pickerington High School.

All entries must be preregistered with parade chairman Gary Taylor at TE. 7-2119.

Girl Is Killed In Rt. 40 Accident

A 19-year-old North Columbus girl was killed and four others injured Saturday morning in a car-truck accident on Rt. 40, just east of Wagram.

The victim was identified as Nina Perkins, of 78 W. Blake-av. Her girl friend, Joyce Morton, 23 of the same address, was admitted to St. Anthony Hospital with a broken pelvis. Both girls were Ohio Bell Telephone Company operators who had moved to Columbus from Barnesville.

Three east side boys were also injured in the accident. Listed in serious condition were: William Bocock, 22, possible broken jaw, and Gary West, 21, possible leg fracture and head cuts.

Fletcher Bocock, 27, was treated for minor cuts and released. All three reside at 356 S. Champion-av. The driver of the truck, Jack W. Vandeventer, 37, of Springfield, Mo., was apparently uninjured.

The State Highway Patrol reported the occupants of the car were returning from Zanesville and had run out of gasoline. A sheriff's deputy had brought them gas for their stalled auto. Patrolmen said the car had apparently just started out again and was in the highway when the accident occurred (about 4:45 a.m.)

Vandeventer said a small patch of fog covered the highway and he did not see the car as it pulled out until he was nearly on top of it.

Patrolmen said the truck driver tried to swerve to avoid hitting the car but the right front of his cab hit the left rear of the car. The impact knocked the car nearly 122 feet and the truck about 398 feet.

WORK OUT DETAILS

PLANNING AHEAD for the Central Ohio Retail Grocers Association's new building open house are Louise Schafer, left, and Dorothy Lemming, co-executive directors of the organization. The association's new headquarters building open house will take place Sunday, Sept. 13. The new building is located at 1029 Harrisburg-pk. The Central Ohio Retail Grocers Association is a service organization serving the member grocers of this area.

Westinghouse To Rehire In '65

Westinghouse Electric Corp. resumed production Aug. 17.

Some 900 employes were laid off after the two week shutdown for vacation.

Industrial Relations Department John J. Schaffer said the layoffs involved hourly employes and that full employment is expected shortly after the beginning of the year.

EXCESS GAS STYMIES DRILLING PROGRESS

The well on the Gale Wright farm, Wright-rd, was a problem to all concerned at press time.

When the Trempeleau sand was hit at 3,229 feet last Friday, there was a show of gas.

As drilling continued over the weekend, the gas increased. As a safety measure everyone except those working with the well were barred from the site.

The search for oil continued but was bogged down Tuesday afternoon.

According to Mrs. Wright, ordinary methods of sealing off the gas while drilling continues has not worked on the well.

She stated that the Stewart brothers, originally of Bremen, who are owners of the well, were seeking a method of harnessing the gas.

The well is located about three miles east of Canal Winchester. Several other wells have been drilled in the immediate vicinity this summer and spring. One is reported to have tested at five million cubic feet a day, while the others were either dry or so nearly so to be commercially impractical to produce.

Buckeye Steel Continues Work Despite Strike

Buckeye Steel Castings Co., 2211 Parsons-av, is continuing production, despite a strike by 26 union pattern makers, which began when a two-year contract expired.

The strike occurred at 12:01 a.m. Sunday.

Officials stated that the pattern makers were offered an economic package similar to one recently accepted by 1,350 members of the United Steelworkers of America, who are still on their jobs

Foster Parents Urgently Needed; Franklin Village Asks For 153

"I want to go home, but there is no place to go."

That is the cry of not one but 153 children at Franklin Village, a community of the Franklin County Child Welfare Service.

All of these cases, have one thing in common: A lonely youngster is waiting at the center, hoping and yearning for a home with love and warmth, compassion and guidance.

In Franklin County there are presently about 2,500 children who come under the village's jurisdiction. Many do have homes of their own. However, due to immature parents, deserting mothers or other circumstances, the village serves as temporary haven until the problems can be resolved. Of these 2,500, 800 are in foster homes and 900 live with relatives or parents, where there is a good chance of rehabilitation. The remaining number are divided into other related agencies.

The number cared for by the agency increases every day. By 1968 the number will be doubled with an estimate at 5,000.

The urgent need at present is for a minimum of 153 foster homes. About 350 homes soon will be needed.

For some unexplained reason, according to officers, there is a frightening apathy regarding homeless children. The agencies that handle these problems are regarded as something short of weird, and the average citizen has the feeling of, "let George do it."

In 1962, when the welfare levy was defeated, the much-needed staff was cut in half. Thirty people had to do the work of 100. Last November, when the levy passed, the staff was immediately redeveloped, and today there are 70.

Through this trying period, the small staff held on and maintained this most important service. Many children weren't left out on the street. They had a shelter to go to. The shelter, however, is just so big. Right now, there are bunk beds, three high, in rooms that are normally offices. The staff is doing its best, but the odds are against them.

For other children, the future is dim. At one West Side high school, several months ago, three boys were left to shift for themselves. They ended up in the Boy's Industrial School.

One of the contributing factors was that no one cared. There was no home to go to. Had Franklin Village been notified, it might have been a different story.

At the village there are on record reports of foster children who hove grown up, married, and settled in Columbus and have, in turn, become foster parents. Others have become doctors, nurses and university students. Many are self-supporting in other areas, and all are a credit to themselves and their community.

Potential foster parents are provided an instruction course preparatory to the venture, and there are interviews and discussion sessions.

Anyone interested in providing a home for a Franklin Village youngster is asked to call 276-3541. The agency is listed in the white pages, under "County" as "Home-finding."

Pastures and crops continue their survival fight as the watertable drops. In Madison County the corn situation is one of deep concern. True, some areas have had frequent showers, but the overall picture is rather depressing.

I emceed a special farm meeting in Rio Grande at the Bob Evans Picnic Grounds recently and enjoyed a two-hour discussion with our good neighbors in Southern Ohio. Opposition to much of the farm legislation earmarked for 1965 was in evidence, though most feel the year 1965 could be the start of better things for Mr. John Farmer, USA.

Popularity of saddle horse projects has prompted 4-H officials to schedule two area 4-H saddle horse judging programs this year, one Sept. 19 at the Franklin County Fair Grounds in Hilliard. Their purpose is to develop skills among older 4-H club members in selecting horses, in evaluating horsemanship and equitation classes, and in organizing horse classes and speaking clearly about them.

In 1950, only 141 boys and girls carried saddle horse projects. That figure has now soared to more than 7,800 in 86 counties.

Candy apples, popcorn, taffy, and all the delicacies one can expect at a county fair are in evidence this month as our 90-plus county and independent fairs unravel. The rides, horse racing, and grandstand shows add to the merriment.

Your reporter would like to suggest to our thousands of metropolitan readers that they take time at the fair to visit the agricultural, 4-H and livestock shows. Certainly this is a great way to introduce the "little ones" to the world that surrounds him and her. County fairs are truly Americana.

The annual West Jefferson Ox-Roast, sponsored by the West Jefferson Business Men's Association, will feature many of its usual things but on Sunday, Sept. 6, at 2 p.m. there'll be a Celebrity-Business Men doubleheader softball game! This should be exciting and one of the funniest exhibitions of 1964 sports. Many "sports" will be participating. All of our esteemed gentlemen of the press are invited to bring spikes, gloves, sneakers and liniment! ! !

Senior Citizens To View State Fair On Sept. 3

Senior Citizen Day at the Ohio State Fair will be Thursday, Sept. 3.

Tent headquarters will be near the 11th-av entrance. Program opens at 11 a.m.

At noon a box lunch will be served in the headquarters tent. At 1:30 p.m., show featuring "Golden Days of Columbus and the State" will be held.

Regular admission to the fair is charged but free shuttle bus service is available by getting tickets at the tent.

Special exhibits from senior citizens will be displayed from Aug. 28 through Sept. 7 at the Arts and Crafts Building. Displayed will be ceramics, painting, leathercraft, woodwork and woodcarving, weaving and rug making.

Civitan Sponsors Hospital Egg Fry

A total of 87 patients of the Columbus State Hospital were treated to an egg fry recently, sponsored by the Civitan Club of West Columbus. This was one of the largest groups ever to attend the annual event at the State Hospital.

Due to unseasonably cool weather and threatening showers, the picnic was held inside the club rooms.

RIGHTS RALLY SET

Two Mississippi Civil Rights workers, Mr.. Annie Moody, and 13-year-old Gene Young, will appear at a Congress of Racial Equality rally at 8 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 23, at Stewart Memorial (CME) Methodist Church. Funds collected are to be used for a community and recreation center in Meridian, Miss., to be built in memory of three civil rights workers who were killed there. For details on personal appearances call AX. 9-7147 or AX. 1-1982.

MORE THAN FOUR

Your savings at City National now earn 4%—but there's more

4% + 4% + 4% + 4% +

Your savings can earn 4% interest at most financial organizations in this area. But your family financial needs go far beyond just earning the highest return on your money.

Our point is this. Your savings account at City National is a "door-opener" to a vault full of other banking needs. Unlike most other financial organizations, we can weave these services into a strong network of helpful family financing.

For instance, using all the other services of our bank is even easier. Getting a loan can be as simple as saying, "I need one." As a savings customer, you automatically rate special attention.

And you get it. We become a partner in all your financial affairs. Only a bank can do that.

Your savings and checking accounts can work together to give you an added plus. At City National, your checking account can help you save automatically. All you do is to tell us how much you want to put aside each month. Then we take the amount from your checking account and put it in your 4% savings account. No will power needed. And the interest starts to add up.

We make it easy for you to save, too. There's a "Good Neighbor" office in almost every neighborhood. We are nearby and neighborly.

Of course, you can bank-by-mail, use our 24-hour depository or drive-in window facilities at any office. These are plus features that give you more than just the highest interest rate.

When you can bank is important too. Only City National has special evening hours on Monday night. Most of our neighborhood offices are open 'til 8:00. It's a great time to do your family banking.

Even our drive-in facilities give you a plus. They're open every day from 8:00 to 5:00. And that's customer hours, not bankers' hours.

The biggest plus of all is "Good Neighbor" service. It's the difference you'll notice in the way you're treated. We put special effort into giving real personal service.

So, don't settle for just 4% interest on your savings. Get the FOUR AND MORE, with the plus features at City National.

your DREAM HOME comes true

A home of your own is a good investment

PRIDE OF OWNERSHIP

70% of the families in Columbus own their own home.

For most families, the purchase of a home is the largest single investment they will ever make.

Home ownership, more than anything else, gives to a family a feeling of dignity and prestige in their community. The thrill of caring for and beautifying a home and its surroundings affords a wonderful sense of satisfaction.

Children growing up in a home of their own, develop a respect for property not found in families accustomed to renting.

The dream of owning a home is the fondest dream of a lifetime.

NCFA Reports Family Budget Spent On Cars

"What would more money mean to you?"

Ask that question of 1,000 people and you will get 1,000 different answers.

However, evidence offered in the August issue of Finance Facts, a monthly publication on consumer financial behavior published by the National Consumer Finance Association, indicates that the bulk of replies would likely fall into one general category, new clothes and a car.

Extensive surveys conducted in 66 metropolitan areas throughout the United States showed that families in the middle income brackets spent a larger proportion of their incomes on clothes and transportation than did families in the lower income brackets.

On the other hand, the report states that middle income families spend a smaller share of their incomes on food and basic shelter than the low income group.

Similarly, as a family moves from the low income bracket into the middle income group, a smaller share of that income is devoted to the cost of operating the household — such as furnishings and shelter. Later, however, when family income reaches and passes the $15,000 mark, the portion spent for house operation begins to rise again, attributable in part to the cost of hiring domestic help.

LAST WEEKEND TO SEE ALBEE HOMES

THE WINDUP OF THE SUMMER FESTIVAL of new home designs such as the one above will be from 1 to 9 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 23, on Rt. 161, Columbus, and U.S. 62 S., Orient. Children of those touring the homes will be entertained with refreshments and gifts. Albee will supply a 40 page full color home design catalog featuring over 200 basic designs in modern home construction. The festival will highlight a price schedule which may save an Albee home buyer up to 40 percent in costs, a spokesman said.

Wood Windows Keep Out Heat

Tight fitting, well weatherstripped windows are a must in air-conditioned houses. Quality windows help keep cooling bills low, reduce strain on the air-conditioning system and help keep temperatures uniform and comfortably cool.

Stock windows of ponderosa pine are ideal for air-conditioned homes because wood units are particularly well suited for efficient built-in weatherstripping. Wood is a natural insulating material that helps keep cool air inside the house and hot air out during summer.

WATER CAREFULLY

When watering house plants from the top, be careful not to wash soil away from the crown of the plant. That's the point where the stem meets the root. And try not to get water into the crown as this may cause the plant to decay.

Plants Provide Home Privacy

Is your backyard as private as a fish bowl? A hedge, shrub or small tree planting near a patio or living area will screen views of adjoining properties and are less expensive than complete border plantings. Fence and plant combinations provide excellent screens with interesting seasonal effects.

Select high quality plants—such a screen is long lasting and prominent in the landscape. The following plants will grow to heights of six feet or more, are dense and require relatively little maintenance.

Evergreens — Keteleer Chinese Juniper, Dark Green Eastern Arborvitae, Hatfield and Hicks Yew, Canada Hemlock, and Pine and Spruce.

Deciduous Plants — Winter Honeysuckle, Tallhedge Buckthorn, Ibolium and Amur River Private, Virbinums and Washington Hawthorn.

INTERNATIONAL HOUSE

Did you know that when you paint your home, you are using a product made from raw materials from all over the world? Singapore, Tasmania, Borneo, Java, Sumatra, Canada, India, England and, of course, the United States are a few of the places that supply the raw ingredients which make up the quality coating on your home.

Decorating Fireplace Isn't The Easiest Thing, You Should Work At It

By RON BARLOW

I must have one of the world's largest fireplaces!

It wasn't really planned that way but I always wanted a fireplace. In fact, when I first saw this big stone fireplace, 28 feet long no less, I was as excited as a kid with a new toy. This was like a man dying of thirst stumbling into Lake Erie.

Without hesitation I signed the papers and the house and fireplace were mine. Visions of cold winter evenings and a crackling fire danced through my head and all that was lacking to make the living room complete was a big easy chair and a shaggy dog — at least that's what I thought.

Within a few days it became apparent there was a lot more lacking — like suitable decorations and arranging furniture so the fireplace—28 feet of it—isn't blocked by chairs and couches.

Then of course there is 28 feet of blank wall space above the fireplace that has to be covered with "something." Where can you find a stuffed boar's head and flintlock rifles in this day and age?

Boar's head!! I thought my wife would faint.

The man at the antique store assured me he could supply two flintlocks, in excellent condition (owned by an 18th Century schoolmaster who only hunted on weekends), for only $175 each.

One hundred and seventy five dollars!! I thought I would faint.

My next brainstorm involved the building of a miniature race track along the mantel with a blue sky and white fluffy clouds painted on the wall behind.

My wife offered at least 10,000 objections, but like the faithful postman, nothing could deter me from my appointed rounds — or so I thought.

I started carefully by purchasing 10 guaranteed easy-to-assemble, do-it-yourself model racing cars. My fireplace would be neater than Indianapolis on Memorial Day!

If you ever try to build 10 racing cars, take a tip from me—build them one at a time.

With glue spread from the kitchen table to my oldest boy's bedroom and a racing car with two hoods and six wheels, I conceded. Who wants racing cars all over his living room anyway?

My wife then prevailed with an idea to hang little pictures all over the wall but finding suitable little pictures — that maintain a central theme — and deciding upon which picture goes in what frame nearly shattered the neighborhood.

Most of the men sided with me while their wives headed to the side of my spouse. They're still talking about it even though we gave that up two years ago.

We finally settled on ships and after great effort and six more tubes of glue, I was able to reconstruct the "C.S.S. Alabama," a Confederate ship that was sunk during the Civil War.

I honestly believe the original vessel could have been rebuilt with less work than I put in on that tiny model—and probably cheaper too.

Last winter the fire got too hot and melted one side of the ship so now it looks like it's continually sailing uphill. Not too realistic considering that few oceans run uphill.

Now we are peacefully sailing on a sea of contentment and slowly adding bits and pieces to our collection of nautical artifacts, including a ship's wheel from Uncle Henry, that is too large, and an old sea anchor from our brother-in-law that resembles an oversize safety pin covered with rust.

Now all that's missing is the shaggy dog—which reminds me that last week this guy told me he would paint a hunting scene on the wall for only $180, I wonder how much a stuffed moose head would cost?

FOLLOW THE DIRECTIONS

When you use an exterior latex paint, be sure that you follow implicitly the manufacturer's directions as given on the label. Most manufacturers recommend the use of a specific primer and their instructions should be followed to obtain the results desired.

Home Decorator Booked At Fair

Fairgoers who want to combine elegant taste in home decoration with their budget will get plenty of encouragement and helpful hints at the 1964 Ohio State Fair from Harriet Clingman Kelley. She is a consultant and lecturer for F. Schumacher and Co., world's largest decorative fabric house.

A graduate of the New York School of Interior Design, Mrs. Kelley builds her lecture around every income group, and proves that price is not always indicative of style. Traditional and contemporary variations in decorating schemes will be discussed and samples from here and abroad will be shown.

Mrs. Kelley will appear in person at the 1964 Ohio State Fair in Columbus, during three mid-week days, Tuesday, Sept. 1, 2 p.m., through Sept. 3, 11 a.m. On Sept. 2 lectures will be presented at both 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. All personal appearances, lectures and helpful home decorating hints will be held in the Arts and Crafts Building.

Check Size, BTU Rating On Air Unit

Check the B.T.U. rating when purchasing a room air conditioner, says the Summer Issue of American Home magazine.

The bigger the unit or the more B.T.U.'s (British Thermal Units) it has does not necessarily mean it will be the correct size for your room, the magazine says. Too powerful an air conditioner may shut off before it has had a chance to remove humidity from the air. One that is too small will not provide the desired cooling.

To choose the correct size, American Home recommends giving the following information to your dealer: square footage of the room or area to be cooled; number and size of windows (Indicate those which receive afternoon sun; whether roof or ceiling above area to be air conditioned is insulated; whether outside walls are insulated; the size of floor area and what's beneath it; number of people in the family or who will be using room; if this is a room where doors will not be shut, indicate number of doors continuously open or archways between cooled and uncooled areas; Trees and foliage shading the area to be air conditioned.

Wood Grills Demand Less Wash Time

One way to cut window-washing time to a minimum is to use wood window units with removable grilles. This type of grille used on windows with single panes of glass creates the impression of a number of smaller panes. They are particularly popular in homes of traditional styling.

The grilles can be popped in or out of place in a moment, without using tools. When removed, they expose the uninterrupted surface of the window for easy washing.

Removable grilles to fit stock wood window units of ponderosa pine are available in both diamond and rectangular patterns.

Hardboard Gets Special Attention

Here's a quick lesson on painting hardboard from the National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association. Tempered hardboard is used for exteriors, table tops, bathrooms and places where a hard surface is required. Standard hardboard is used for interior walls and ceilings.

Countersink and putty all nails. Caulk exterior cracks and pits. Be sure that the surface is clean and dry. Unprimed hardboard and the factory-primed wood that has been damaged will require priming.

You can use any of the following primers: latex, shellac, enamel undercoaters, oil or alkyd base. The topcoat should be high grade exterior or interior paint. Be sure to apply two coats where the surface is constantly exposed to moisture. Consult your local paint dealer to be sure that the primer and the topcoat are quality products.

Moisture Poses Upkeep Problem

"Menace of moisture" . . . sounds threatening, doesn't it? Well, it can be a threat to the well-being of your home. Be on the look-out for the following danger signals:

Interior: stained plaster, peeling paint, a very humid attic. Exterior: peeling paint or stained areas around window frames, base of porch pillars, under-eave areas, downspouts, steps, and woodwork near the ground.

When you see the signs, take immediate action to locate the source of the moisture and eradicate it. Be sure to make any necessary repairs to the marred surface and apply a new protective coat of paint.

STORING ONIONS

Harvest onions when the tops on about two-thirds of the plants have broken over. Pull the entire plant and pile in rows so that the tops protect the bulbs from sunburn and rain. Leave onions in these rows about 10 days, depending on weather conditions.

When the tops have dried, clip them off leaving one-half to one inch of stem attached to the bulb. Don't clip the stem too close to the bulb — decay may start. Cure the bulbs further by holding in a 50-to-60 degree room three to four weeks. Then store at the lowest temperature possible but don't freeze them.

FROM JAMES-RD the house on the corner, at 3177 Dale-av, residence of Dr. and Mrs. Raymond Bethel, sparkles brightly in the sun. The spacious grounds and the surrounding trees and evergreen plantings diminish the apparent size of the house, and visitors are constantly surprised at its spaciousness. A formal dining room is at the left of the entrance foyer, the living room at right and, at far right, the master bedroom.

The Personal Touch Makes East Side Home Showcase

The rambling white house on the hill at the corner of Dale-av, serenely aloof from busy James-rd, draws admiring glances from passing motorists; its wide, immaculate lawn seems to surround a world apart from the rushing traffic.

And inside, the home of Dr. and Mrs. Raymond Bethel is, indeed, a world apart . . . a haven from life's daily pressures on a doctor and his wife, Nita Hutch to her radio fans

And for the four little Bethels there is room to grow. With six bedrooms, a den and a large family room, as well as a formal living room and dining room, there is room for the luxury of privacy and for enjoying each other's company, room enough to sink family roots deep.

Behind the house and across the drive the grounds extend to include a swimming pool and play area and even farther, a small woods with a pheasant preserve, chipmunks, squirrels and wild birds.

The house was planned for the family, tailored to their individual needs and tuned to their taste when it was purchased last summer.

Mrs. Bethel served as her own decorator, and subcontracted all the work herself. "We started with steamers to remove all the old wallpaper," she said, "and then there were plasterers, painters, plumbers, electricians and carpenters — 22 crews. I could write a book!"

The result is a home indelibly marked as the Bethel's own, mainly Italian and French in decor. And everywhere rooms sing with color, predominantly blues and orchids, with pinks, some green and plenty of white for sparkle.

Mrs. Bethel's ingenuity, and her perception in seeing the possibilities in oddly assorted items add immeasurably to her home's charm.

"I made all my own drapes, everywhere in the house," she said of the unusual window treatments. "And I've antiqued much of the furniture."

Many of the prints in the home's imaginative groupings are also framed inexpensively, "in dime store frames, rubbed with gold and appropriate colors."

"I wish every woman would try doing these things," Mrs. Bethel said sincerely. "It's such fun to make a lovely addition to a home by a little bit of work on an inexpensive piece of furniture or an accessory, and it really takes such a little bit of time."

The guest room and each of the children's bedrooms is expressed in a different period, and color-keyed to an interesting lamp or to the rapers fabric. And the colors of each bedroom are carried over into the adjoining bath.

Bedrooms of the two babies, Blair, nine months and Brooke, two, are on the first floor, and all evidences of a nursery can be removed as easily as their cribs when they are outgrown.

Blair's room in country French is furnished in maple with a canopy bed, and decorated in avocado and orchid.

The more masculine, Danish modern room of Brooke's is done in walnut with drapes' mint green, royal blue and turquoise repeated in soft green walls and bright blue carpet.

Their shared bath and dressing room is a gay circus motif, childhood's favorite with animals, clowns and balloons on the walls.

Seven - year - old Blythe's berdoom on the second floor is a little girl's dream, with antique white furniture and palest pink and bright burgundy colors.

Also on the second floor is Bradley's bedroom, done in American revolutfonary period, to reflect a 10-year-old's interest. The guest room is early American.

Two huge walk-in closets on the second floor, one lined with cedar and the other equipped with compressor for perfect storage control, and on the first floor, a long hall, lined with closets and storage space from floor to ceiling, are every homemaker's dream.

In addition to the youngsters' rooms on the first floor, there are an immense master bedroom, formal living room and dining room, family room, kitchen with two walk-in pantries, morning room and a small mud room.

"We haven't started the basement yet," Mrs. Bethel said, "and we have such interesting plans. There will be a huge recreation room, toy rooms for the children, a dressing room for the pool

THE FORMAL DINING ROOM, a real luxury in modern homes where space is limited, is large enough for gracious dinner parties, easily accommodating 20. The walls are covered in a reproduction of the wallpaper used in the living room of Nathaniel Hawthorne's "House Of The Seven Gables." The table, high cane-backed chairs and buffet are in fruitwood.

PALEST PINK AND BRIGHT BURGUNDY, with antique white French provincial furniture, make seven-year-old Blythe's bedroom a confection. The colors are repeated in her adjoining bath.

THE BACK OF THE HOUSE overlooks the driveway and the outdoor recreation area beyond, with a pool and small woods. Garages, laundry and a dressing room for the pool, and areas to be developed into a recreation room and playrooms for the children occupy the lowest, basement level. Stairs at right lead to the main floor and a door opening into a small mud room. From right, across the back of the house are the morning room, a powder room, family room and, in the nursery wing at left, the youngsters' bedrooms. Kitchen with two walk-in pantries, and a butler's pantry converted into an area for desk, telephone and housekeeping records, are located in the center of the house. On the second floor are Blythe's bedroom and bath, the den, guest room, Bradley's bedroom and bath, a walk-in cedar closet, and several storage areas, including a room equipped with a compressor for the storage of furs and clothing.

THE VIEW FROM THE FAMILY ROOM is of the outdoor recreation area across the drive. Mrs. Bethel, with eight-month-old Blair and Brooke, 2, watch while Bradley, 10, and Blythe, 7, splash in the pool.

THE SPACIOUS MASTER BEDROOM, 20 feet square, is furnished in white with gold accents, and the delicacy of its pastel pink decor is heightened with touches of purple, orchid and blue. The chaise lounge at right, is purple velvet and, not visible in the picture, are slipper chairs upholstered in pink velvet. The square table at left has a white skirt shot with gold, and a pink cover.

ELEGANT AND DELICATELY LOVELY, the huge formal 20 by 23-foot living room, with its high, modified cathedral ceiling keynotes the home's Italian and French decor. Walls and carpeting are white, and drapes are antique satin under overdrapes of orchid and lilac. In the view at left, the fireplace on the mirrored wall is of pink Italian marble, and the painted antique French provincial love seat is pale blue, upholstered in pure silk damask brocade. The sofa under the seaman's ballet scene on the wall at right is in antique white damask, and the coffee table is one of several marble-topped, Weiman tables. In the view at right, facing the front of the house, the little Lowrey spinet organ is a particular family pleasure. Mrs. Bethel plays, and this fall she, Bradley and Blythe will take lessons on the instrument. The chairs repeat the room's colors of blue, orchid and rose, in brocades and damasks.

THE FAMILY IS ASSURED a bright start to every day with breakfast in the morning room. Oyster white walls and white wrought iron furniture are accented with turquoise blue and orchid, and the colors are repeated in the floral arrangement made by Mrs. Bethel and hung over the table. The mud room is visible in the background.

IMAGINATIVE ARTISTRY of Mrs. Bethel is visible throughout the house. In her bath and dressing room an old vanity, painted white, has one drawer filled with purple flowers and green foliage. Carpeting is light royal blue, walls are oyster white, and the tiles, blue, white and pink.

A BELL, left in the entrance foyer by the former owners, was antiqued in white and gold, in keeping with walls papered in white with gold lyres.

and, eventually, a maid's room."

Most of the fun in the house has been in the planning, and the entire family takes a hand in the project. "For Mother's Day," Mrs. Bethel said, "the children gave me the cuckoo clock in the kitchen, painted in the same blue, green and white of the kitchen wallpaper and matching drapes.

"And my birthday gift was the garden on the slope at the back of the house."

Future family projects, in addition to the basement, is a sunken Oriental garden in the outside recreation area. Mrs. Bethel admits happily it will "take 20 years to do all the things we want to do to the house."

And it's a pretty good guess, they'll have a lot of fun along the way.

Remember...

It was ramshackle.

The ceilings were so high a little boy couldn't reach them by throwing his toys.

There was the smell of fine wood and varnished paneling.

The floors creaked in anticipation of a footstep.

The gateway door frames grew to carved and twinkling eyes.

A fireplace in the front living room used to shine red in winter, throwing eerie shapes into familiar corners.

Snowflakes frittered away their lifespan in front of a picture window.

A grand piano hummed the tunes of Christmas carols.

It was the home I knew.

The kitchen still smells of roast beef.

The bed is still there, somewhere . . . somewhere among the cherry colored door jambs and talking floors.

The place I spent my boyhood.

Somewhere.

A memory in the heart.

CONSIDER MOTHER WHEN BUILDING, BUYING HOUSE

Building or buying a house? To meet family's future needs, plan it around mother.

Research shows that mother's activities change more than any other family member, and she performs the greatest amount of work in the home, says Dorothy Lawrence, Ohio State University Extension housing specialist.

Families and individuals vary greatly, but most families follow a general pattern of how they use space in their homes throughout the family life cycle. A Pennsylvania State University study of 100 farm families considered family activities and how they related to house arrangements and use of space.

Needs Kitchen Space

In the study, the homemaker's activities changed more than any other family member. For example, the family with preschool children had the greatest concentration of activity in the work area of the home . . . most of it involving mother. Most of her day was spent in food operations, planning, preparing and cleaning up after meals, and child care. So the mother with preschool children needs a kitchen with space for care and supervision of small children or a combination kitchen-family room or kitchen-dining room.

She also needs a view of the play area from her own work area. Preschool children two to five years old spend four times as much time outdoors as mother. Storage for wraps and toys used outside is needed near the family entrance.

Age Changes Needs

House planning becomes more involved when the family is in the overlapping period with preschool and school age children. Then the family must provide activity and study space for school age children. Bedrooms become more important since the school age child will carry on his personal grooming in this area.

The homemaker with all school-age children finds the house most crowded during the after-school hours. Mother's major activities now are food operation and leisure.

Other Requirements

Additional storage is needed for leisure time activities of all family members. A study space with adequate light also is needed for each child.

The all-adult family finds Mother still busy with food preparation, which accounts for one-third of her time. Still more time is spent on leisure activities, but the pressure for space has decreased. Now she need not put hobby materials away after each use. The family now needs to consider a downstairs bedroom and bath in anticipation of senior years or a family illness if they live in a two-story house.

Look toward Future

In all Stages, the laundry equipment is more convenient if located on the first flooor.

Families need to look ahead at future needs and wants rather than back at what the family needed or wanted in the past.

STACKING UNITS make more floor space and provide more storage in smaller bedrooms than most typical bedroom pieces. Here they make a study-guest room combination. Inlaid borders are elm burl, accenting the highly figured walnut panels of doors and drawers.

Stack Furniture Units To Increase Space

Sociologists picture us, in our far flung interests and activities, as a nation of hoarders of possessions and nomads. Approximately 27 million families move every year. Probably the question of where to hide away family "things" plagues that many more U.S. families either in new or long lived-in homes.

A 20th Century furniture idea answers those two problems and provides architectural interest in a room. Relatively small pieces of furniture that can be placed along a wall, and around a corner, if need be, stack together like children's blocks. Drawer, door, open shelf, desk, bar, dressing table units, are all designed and scaled to fit together in a most needed combination.

In the big new collections of modern furniture attention has been given these flexible units to create the effect of a handsome wood paneled wall. Ease of mobility, ample storage and the plus that only a hardwood paneled wall gives a room, makes investment in such units worth while.

Borders inlaid with contrasting toned, or straight grained woods define the panels; of doors and drawers. The modern art fan will see the storage wall as a huge Mondrian style panel. The natural wood grain patterns with their deep browns highlighted by golden and coppery tones appear as abstract paintings set in asymmetrical horizonial and vertical panels.

Other units have simple moldings defining recessed, matched veneer panels. One group features interchangeable panels combining two popular woods . . . rosewood and walnut. Alternating panels may show both woods, or more conservatively, all may be turned to expose only one species.

Suggestions Listed For Boys' Room Decoration

Boys will be boys . . . and every son's mother should keep that in mind when decorating his room.

Of course, the unwritten law is no fuss or frills. But that doesn't mean you must necessarily resort to dark, rough woods and plaids. His masculinity can be expressed as many ways as there are little boys.

Washability Helps

You've got a head start on housekeeping if the walls have washable paint and the floors are covered in a vinyl or linoleum. When using a rug, stick to those that can pop in and out of a washing machine. Window treatments should be simple and fabrics throughout the room sturdy and, if possible, soil resistant.

Strong, durable furniture is an absolute must. The Home Furnishings Industry Committee happily reports that shoppers will find an abundance of good juvenile furniture available. Most all comes with mar resistant finishes, and in this age, it is impractical to buy anything else. Shoppers will also find that much of this furniture is budget-priced.

Sleeping Comfort

First essential for the young man's room is a comfortable bed (and keep in mind that a good, firm mattress is important for his health). For two in a room, brothers or "spending the night," box springs arranged end to end, bunk beds or the revised trundle beds are ideal.

In addition to a chest for clothes, some sort of chest is needed for toys. There are many varieties of the campaigne chest around, and they are especially good buys, for toys today, sports equipment later.

Study Area Needed

Another essential for a school-age child is a good desk and chair and a good desk lamp. Several manufacturers offer desk and bed units that are quite handsome and economize space.

Since most boys are incessant collectors, plenty of storage space is another must. Adequate storage will help clear the floor for more play area and help to encourage his housekeeping as well. Many parents have found that the new systems are a good investment in a child's room. They make use of wall space as well as display his treasures.

Follow These 7 Pointers To Prevent Wet Basement

Basement drainage problems can be solved while the house is being built. They can be corrected later, but at considerably more expense, notes Melville L. Palmer, Ohio State University Extension agriculture engineer.

Palmer lists these suggestions for insuring a dry basement:

Be sure the lot is graded so that the land slopes away from the house in all directions for a distance of at least 10 feet. If the house is on a hillside, build a shallow waterway on the uphill side to divert water around it.

Tile Basement Footer

Place four-inch drain tile completely around the outside of the basement footer and backfill with at least a foot of gravel. Better yet, place tile both inside and outside the footer to relieve water pressure on the floor and walls of the basement. This pressure can cause cracks in the concrete where there is inadequate drainage.

Drain all tile lines and surface waterways into a suitable outlet, such as a storm sewer or ditch. A gravity outlet is best, but if the outlet is not deep enough for drain tile they can be drained into a sump and the water pumped out with an automatic sump pump.

Plaster Outside Walls

Plaster the outside of the basement walls with two one-quarter inch coats of cement mortar and a final coat of bituminous material, such as hot tar. Inside walls also can be coated with waterproof cement paint. Don't rely on these materials alone to keep a basement dry without properly installed drain tile.

Use at least four inches of gravel, covered by a plastic vapor barrier, under the basement floor.

Keep Gutters Fixed

Keep all roof gutters and downspouts in good condition Drain them into tile or over splash blocks to keep the water from running around the house foundation.

Drain tile spaced about 25 feet apart and three feet deep in the yard will provide better drainage for grass, shrubs, trees and gardens. They also will help prevent waterlogging of heavy soils in the area of the septic tank leach bed.

Food costs in recent years have risen more slowly than the costs of other consumer products, due partly to the development of less expensive ways to market food, the USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service reports.

Tips On Termite Control Given By University Expert

A house will not be ruined or collapse because termites are present. Consider termite control as another repair job that may be necessary to maintain the house in sound structural condition, advises Dr. W. K. Delaplane, Jr., Ohio State University Extension specialist in pest control.

"Buy termit control service with the same care and discrimination that is necessary in the purchase of any other service for property," the specialist says. "Always be assured that you are dealing with a reliable firm which has an established place of business."

Dr. Delaplane suggests five ways you can help assure yourself of reliable termite control service:

- If a firm offers references of work done in the past, take time to check such references carefully.
- When considering a local firm, check your Better Business Bureau or county extension agent to find out whether or not the firm is responsible.
- When considering an out-of-town firm, make sure it has a street address as its principal office and that it is responsible. Check the firm's references. Dependable companies welcome this.
- If your city has a structural pest control law, make sure you are dealing with a licensed firm.
- Consider membership in the National Pest Control Association or a state pest control association as evidence that the firm is dependable and has met certain admission requirements. The association will provide you with a list of members in good standing in your area.

Once you decide on a firm to do the work, ask the operator to provide you with a written statement of the work he proposes and its estimated cost. It is customary to guarantee termite control work, Dr. Delaplane says. Sometimes the guarantee is on a year to-year basis, sometimes for five years.

"You probably will be asked to sign a work order when you engage a firm," says the specialist. "You should understand clearly what obligations you are assuming and what you are getting in return."

Landscape Check Necesary In Home Buying

Buying a new home? Then check the land and the landscaping, advises the American Association of Nurserymen. Modern advances in landscaping and planting may make the difference between enjoyment of your land for living, and not.

Check the design, the position of the house on the lot and the quality of the landscaping. It usually will pay a prospective home buyer to hire a good landscape nurseryman to go over the property with him and offer advice. He will check the grades before any planting is done, and might sometimes be able to save good trees. Some builders install the cheapest of plants in a skimpy row along the front of the house just to take away the bareness. Others do a capable landscape job. The nurseryman can help you decide whether or not you are receiving sound value in the planting. If the builder allows a rebate for landscaping, the nurseryman can tell what you may purchase for this sum.

Some builders do a basic planting job and then provide a landscape plan for the home owner to have completed by a recommended nurseryman. This is sound procedure, too, resulting in good landscaping values that increase the resale value of the home.

If little or no landscaping is offered with the house, it can be achieved by experienced landscape nurserymen, by means of an F.H.A. home improvement loan up to $3,500, or more, being available for this purpose. Other types of loans also are available for the purpose.

HARVEST EARLY

Remove cucumbers and squash from the vines as soon as they mature. If the fruits are allowed to get too old on the vine, the plants will stop bearing and yield will be reduced.

Devonshire Offers Homes By Many Local Builders

Devonshire, developed by Metzger Brothers Co., Inc., is a self contained community off the North freeway at State Route 161, with areas reserved for schools, churches, shopping and recreation. Service and convenience are being offered to residents.

One concept in the development is the selection of homes being offered. Homes have been built by 17 different builders who, in some cases, have constructed as many as seven different types.

The volume of homes each builder produces, enables construction of custom homes for near project prices.

Home sales in the new area are being handled by the Metzger Brothers Realty Co. The company has tailored its sales organization to include house specialists schooled in new house construction, finance and sales. Complete service is essential because many people buying a home in one of the new sections currently own homes in other locations, and the previous home must be sold in order to make a down payment on the new home.

A spokesman for Metzger Brothers stated that the department is in need of additional listings, since more than 150 existing homes have been sold in 1964. Anyone desiring to sell their present home will be given quick service by contacting a representative at AM. 7-5491.

Any family interested in purchasing a new home in the $17,950 to $20,000 range should look at the model home in Devonshire. For those interested in the $20,000 to $30,000 range there is a selection remaining in section six of the Forest Park area.

Variety Of Floor Finishes Causes Selection Problem

Puzzled about which finish to use on a wood floor?

The secret of selecting a satisfactory finish is to understand what each finish will do and what care it will need, says Doris Snook, extension housing specialist at Ohio State University. No one finish is superior in all respects.

Shellac, varnish or lacquer gives a high gloss, lustrous finish. They form a coating over the surface of the wood. Use only the kind clearly labeled for use on floors. Be sure the product is fresh. Follow the manufacturer's directions about ventilation, temperature, and application, Doris Snook advises.

Shellac Easily Scratched

Shellac dries quickly, so a floor may be ready for use in a short time. Water or long expcsure to high humidity turns shellac white. It is a brittle coating that scratches easily.

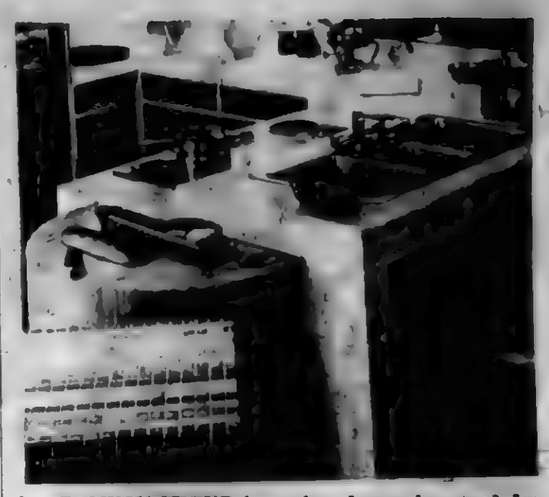
Varnish is a slow-drying finish. It requires long intervals between coats and needs time to harden after the final coat before it is used. A good varnish finish is less easily scratched than shellac and is water resistant. It will gradually darken with age.

Lacquer Doesn't Darken

Lacquer dries as fast as shellac, is as water resistant as varnish and generally does not darken with age. Many more coats of lacquer are needed to make a finish that compares with varnish. Brushing lacquers dry so quickly they are hard to apply evenly on large areas.

These coating finishes do not need frequent replacement or maintenance but work is needed when they are replaced, Doris Snook notes. Generally, certain areas of a floor receive more traffic than others. With coating finishes, it is seldom possible to renew just the worn area without having the edges of the patching show.

Floor Wear Uneven



If the entire floor is resurfaced a thick layer of finish builds up in areas of little traffic. These become darker than the thinner layers in the traffic lanes. At this stage, it is necessary to remove all the old finish with a remover or sander.

A wood sealer finish produces a more natural appearance with less gloss and luster. A sealer penetrates and saturates a thin layer of the wood. No coating is left on the surface.

This type of finish requires more frequent treatment but the application is simple. There is no surface buildup when the sealer is properly applied, so traffic lanes can be patched without the edges showing. The entire floor does not have to be resurfaced. Instructions for application differ with manufacturers, so follow directions, Doris Snook says.

TOUCH UP DAY

To keep your home at its brightest, it's a good idea to check up on all the painted surfaces once a month. Set aside one day, make careful note of any areas that need to be touched up, and then get out the brush and paint bucket. This will assure you of a home that is free of unsightly marred surfaces and that is always in prime condition.

FASHION TREND in modern homes is use of durable, easily cleaned ceramic tile for heavy use areas of the kitchen. Because it is waterproof, heatproof, stainproof and scratchproof, tile is used around the sink and countertop stove units, on the lunch-bar-divider partially shown in the left foreground and on the floors. Kitchen was designed by noted architect Harris Armstrong of St. Louis.

Ceramic Tile Is Favored Material For New Homes

Ceramic tile, because it does so many things so well, has become one of the most favored quality building materials for today's new homes.

In bathrooms by tradition, and in kitchens in increasing numbers, ceramic tile is a material that literally "will outlast your mortgage," giving years of service with little or no upkeep. An occasional wipe with a damp cloth usually is all that is needed to keep it bright and sparkling like new.

The easy - cleaning, long-lasting durability of ceramic tile has made it the favorite material for bathrooms for years. Today, architects and home builders find the same qualities make tile ideal for kitchen countertops, backsplashes, lunchbars and similar heavy-use areas.

There is no slicing from sharp knives, nor scorching from hot pans, when real tile is used in the kitchen. Grease, stains and the normal meal-preparation mess can be cleared away with a damp cloth.

The wide range of colors (more than 250 shades to pick from), sizes, shapes and new methods of installation can make each kitchen "one of a kind" creation that eliminates the sameness in tract built homes.

LET IT SNOW, LET IT SNOW . . .

Weather Won't Worry Family Living In Unique Home Built Underground

Any unsuspecting card-carrying mole is in for a shock if he bumps into one of the most unusual exhibits at the World's Fair. It's an entire 10-room house—with terrace, living flowers and shrubs, and wood-burning fireplace — all entirely underground.

Chances, are, most humans who visit this exhibit are in for a shock, too, albeit a pleasant one. The idea of living in a house that's 15 feet below the ground takes a bit of getting used to. But the designer-builder has gone to considerable trouble to help you get used to it and even enjoy life in it.

No Living Problems

And this house is designed to be lived in. Texas builder Jay Swayze has lived in one like it for two years and so have other families who commissioned him to build similar homes.

The house he now has up (or is it down?) incorporates many features designed to overcome the possible psychological problems of living in this strange atmosphere.

Wood windows for example, are used generously throughout the house. The owners can sit inside and look out through their windows at the patio and fountain—just as they would if they had a conventional house.

In the bedrooms, illuminated murals of outdoor scenes are placed outside the windows to give a feeling of space and to add interest. The windows used are double-hung units of ponderosa pine equipped with removable grilles. The grilles snap out to make washing easy, but in a house that is virtually dirt-free this doesn't have to be done very often.

The Underground Home is equipped with an array of modern appliances. The kitchen includes a high-oven electric range, built-in dishwasher and an electric refrigerator-freezer.

Natural Lighting Effects

One of the most interesting features of this house is its lighting system—a combination of blue and gold fluorescent lights with dimmer controls. Used together daytime light is produced. When the gold is dimmed, a night effect is achieved. With only the gold lights used, bright, morning sunlight is simulated. Amber floodlights create a sunset.

The fluorescent lights provide ample energy for growing plants.

Why live underground, anyway? Proponents of underground living list a number of reasons, including low humidity, a dust and pollen-free atmosphere, maximum security and pleasant weather every day of the year. It costs less since heating and cooling are negligible, and with no harsh weather, maintenance and major replacement costs are virtually non-existant.

On top of this, they point ou that an underground-home owner gets double used of his land. The ground above can be used for recreation such as tennis courts or swimming pool, or for a wooded area to be enjoyed when the weather is pleasant.

PRETTY guide demonstrates ease with which grilles are removed from ponderosa pine windows.

GRILLED wood windows and live plants welcome visitors entering Underground Home.

Expert Gives Painting Tips

Painting interior walls?

Improve a do-it-yourself job by following these pointers, suggests Doris Snook, Extension housing specialist at Ohio State University.

First, assemble supplies and equipment. Select a good quality paint in a suitable type, color and in quantity sufficient for the job. A paint dealer can help in judging quality, type and quantity. Choose and use a thinner according to label directions. Gather brushes, roller, masking tape, drop cloth, foil or paper plate for can and brush, rags, and a solid step ladder.

Second, prepare the room. Remove curtains, shades, blinds, pictures, hooks, accessories and as much furniture as possible. Cover any remaining furniture. Use masking tape to protect window glass, light fixtures and other fixed items.

Third, prepare yourself. read label directions. Wear old clothes, comfortable, firm shoes and gloves.

Fourth, prepare the surface. Wipe or brush off dust. Wash off heavy soil or grease. Apply primer if needed. Fill all cracks or holes. Caulk around windows and bathtubs. Remove the gloss from varnish or enamel. Scrape off any loose paint or varnish. Remove rust from metal.

Fifth, follow a good order of work. Paint the ceiling first, then window sills, then interior walls. Start at a corner. Paint from the ceiling down to the baseboard. Complete the ceiling or wall before stopping. Paint woodwork before papering a wall. For windows, do the sash first, then the frame, and the trim last.

Leisurely Life Offered At Hide-A-Way Hills

Hide-A-Way Hills, five and a half miles south of Lancaster off U.S. 33, is a completed 500-acre resort offering year-round leisure living.

The eight million dollar development, which is 50 miles from Columbus, is in a wooded area in the Hocking Hills.

During the winter, a ski slope is available with an illuminated 1800-foot ski tow.

The slope and trail is a half mile with a 200-foot vertical drop.

Also available for winter sports is an 8,000-square foot lodge with dining facilities and bar.

There are four lakes on the resort, which any member can use for fishing, boating or water skiing.

An Olympic-sized swimming pool and supervised children's swimming pool are available to members.

Other activities include golf, tennis, baseball, volleyball, badminton, horseshoes and archery.

A fully stocked stable is maintained for members' horses or rentals. There are two regulation horse show rings and qualified instructors.

Some 100 acres have been set aside for hunting.

A model farm supplies vegetables for the lodge dining room.

A children's zoo is maintained.

Not only does Hide-A-Way Hills provide vacationing advantages, but it qualifies as a retirement area, F. M. Donelson, delveloper, states.

Donelson reports that leisure homes sell from $5,000 to 13,000 and range in style from the A-frame to the exotic new designs. All dwellings have Westinghouse electric heat, hot water tanks, kitchen appliances and ranges.

But home ownership is not necessary to enjoy the resort's activities, Donelson reports. A purchase of a lot entitles one to membership.

The resort also has camping grounds and a 2,500-foot airstrip.

A shopping center and marina are to be built in the near future, Donelson revealed.

Consider Landscape Carefully

When the home and its grounds are well landscaped and planted, pride of ownership increases greatly, reports the American Association of Nurserymen. This, in turn, is of tremendous interest to mortgage bankers, since the funds loaned are a lot safer than if the property deteriorates. The home owner gains by higher resale value for the property, as well as happier and healthier "garden living."

Landscaping symbolizes the better neighborhood. Landscaping has grown rapidly in recent years. It serves several main purposes, as follows: (1) it makes the home more acceptable in the neighborhood; (2) good landscaping increases the resale value of the home up to 20 to 25 percent of its value.

If properly done, landscaping increases the pleasures of having a beautiful garden setting with plenty of lovely cut flowers like roses, camellias, lilies and many others for interior decorating. It also provides a setting for family recreation, as well as garden entertainment of friends and neighbors.

Landscaping should tie the home into its natural setting by plantings of shrubs and trees and lawns where needed. If properly done the appeal from the sidewalk should be one of beauty, with passersby thinking: "I'd like to live there!"

The size of the home is immaterial when landscaping is considered. Small homes can be made to look more beautiful while professional planting by a landscape nurseryman can make a small yard look much larger. Even a small city yard can have a feeling of "distance" if planted for such an effect by a trained nurseryman.

Foundation plantings, rose gardens, shade tree plantings, fruit orchards should be established as early in the year as possible to take advantage of the lower prices. Hedges for privacy and screening should be ordered before the season advances, says the American Association of Nurserymen.

Some of the best bargains on the most desirable plants for planting are also available in the fall.

PREDICT RETURN TO 1940 CONCEPT

Report Indicates Color Trends

Very often a run-down on the latest colors in vogue leaves one feeling that everything is "in." Dame fashion seems to smile as sweetly on one as the other.

Actually there are very definite trends in colors. They are, of course, simply the reflection of a buying public, perhaps encouraged a little by those who guide the taste of the American public. But, the Home Furnishings Industry Committee reminds us, colors are like advertised products. However much they are pushed, they must be used or they won't be tried but once.

Buying Shows Trend

In a comprehensive report to the industry, the Color Research Division of House and Garden magazine provided a long range view of the buying trends in color for the past 24 years.

Perhaps the most notable change has been in the concept of color. In the early 1940's, home owners were guided to "bottom-up" color schemes with dark colors for floors, medium for furniture, pale for walls and white overhead.

Post War Contrast

Just after the war, color ran rampant, and contrast was the guide to decorating. Cool gray was often the foil for bright rich colors. And this was the period of the dark ceiling.

Then came the pastel and muted era. Remember the rule of beige? Everything was quite uniform and monochromatic during the late 50's and early 60's.

"Today the white wall is the thing, any variation of off-white. Carpet preferences are revealed in olive and fern green, rich golds, light oranges, vivid greens, blues and reds. A general preference for purer, deeper colors is indicated. Another interesting note on carpeting is the growing preference for melded effects, textures and patterns as opposed to plain broadloom.

Contrast in upholstery fabrics is also the trend of the day; multicolor rather than plain fabrics. Colors are bright, rich, sharp.

And this desire for contrast and brightness will continue, according to the H and G prediction. By 1970, if the magazine's crystal ball is accurate, the concept will return in principle to that of 1940, with walls, furniture and flooring different in hue.

FHA Releases Statistics On Mortgage Insurance

From establishment in 1934 up to Jan. 1, 1964, the Federal Housing Administration has written mortgage and loan insurance over $88 billion, covering some seven million homes, more than a million living units in multi-family projects, and 26.7 million property improvement loans, the Federal Housing Administration revealed.

Of this total the Columbus FHA insuring office accounted for $1 billion, covering 77,585 homes, 10,705 multi-family project units, and 374,595 property improvement loans.

Congress provided the FHA mortgage and loan insurance system to encourage improvement in housing standards, to promote sound financing practices in the housing field and to act as a stabilizing force in the mortgage market. The FHA is self-supporting through income derived from fees, insurance premiums, and interest on investments, and its insurance reserves are well over a billion dollars.

In addition to its original programs of insurance for home improvement loans, home mortgages, and multi-family rental housing mortgages, FHA now insures mortgages through its 76 field offices on housing for families of low and moderate income; housing in urban renewal areas; housing for the elderly; nursing homes; cooperative housing; condominiums; experimental housing; housing at military installations; and on long-term loans for major home improvements.

FHA has helped to make the low downpayment, long-term, fully amortized mortgage the standard in mortgage lending.

NEW BOGEN PLANT AT 490 N. HIGH-ST.

Bogen Moves To New Quarters

In keeping pace with the rapid growth of the city, Bogen Heating and Air Conditioning, one of Columbus, Ohio's oldest and largest heating and air conditioning firms, has recently moved to a much larger building at 490 N. High-st, according to Arthur Bogen, president.

Now in its 43rd year in Central Ohio, the organization specializes in planning and installing air conditioning and heating equipment in all types of homes, offices, commercial establishments and industrial plants.

Since it was established in 1921, Bogen Heating and Air Conditioning has installed more than 50,000 heating and cooling units. A staff of 75 persons, including service men, salesmen, installers and three professional engineers, provides customer service for planning, designing and installing modern systems for every requirement.

A. E. Bogen, now chairman of the board, established the company which for 43 years was located at 334 E. Livingston-av. His sons, Art and Ed, serve as president and vice-president, respectively. A third generation of Bogens is now also actively engaged in the business. Jack and Tom Bogen, sons of Ed and, in the near future, Art's sons, Jim and Andy, will become associated with the business. The Bogens are all active in civic and community organizations, including various Masonic orders, Lions Club and Kiwanis.

Bogen Heating and Air Conditioning is the exclusive dealer in this area for both Chrysler Airtemp and Luxaire gas and oil-fired furnaces and electric operated complete home air conditioners and window units. The company also carries a complete line of electronic air filters, humidifiers and dehumidifying equipment.

Bogen's new headquarters is located just north of the Union Station in the building which was formerly the Columbus Terminal Warehouse, and contains 100,000 square feet of space. The entire five-story building has been completely modernized and there is parking area in front of the building to accommodate 100 automobiles.

The remodeled building has facilities for offices, display areas, a warehouse, a metal shop and a parts department. The company has a fleet of 26 radio dispatched service trucks to provide 24-hour service in the Greater Columbus area.

Lighting Essential To Room's Theme

One of the most important aspects of decorating any room is lighting it. Used well, lighting can be a dramatic accent to your decor as well as a primary service to health and convenience.

The Home Furnishings Industry Committee suggests the following lighting tips to consider when selecting your lighting.

Reflectance Important

Remember that light colors reflect light while dark colors absorb it. Thus, the darker your walls, fabrics and rugs, the more light you'll need.

Also keep in mind that colors as well as textures will appear different under artificial light than in natural daylight. It is always wise to familiarize yourself with the various kinds of lighting available and experiment before selecting.

Lighting's Two Types

Almost every room will call for two basic kinds of lighting; general room lighting which should be soft and diffused, and specific, working light which should be direct.

Direct lighting for working is produced by most table and floor lamps. There is strong contrast of light and dark in this type of lighting as well as sharp shadows. If not used carefully, a strong glare results.

Gives General Glow

General or indirect lighting is achieved through many methods: valances, recesses, coves, in vases and urn, etc. In this type of lighting the light is directed to the ceiling or another surface from which it is directed into the room and it creates almost no shadows but rather a general glow.

In selecting equipment fixtures, they should be in the mood of the room, helping to establish the character or feeling you want.

Must Be Comfortable

Lighting is basic to the art of illusion. It can emphasize or all but hide; it can accent lines, scale or any decorative element. It can lend mystery or gaity. But above all, lighting must always give comfort to the eye.

Vacancy Survey Indicates 5.5% Of Apartments Empty

Results of an apartment vacancy survey conducted during January 1964, indicated an average vacancy of 5.5 percent in Columbus, according to Samuel J. Caldwell, president of Panohio Mortgages, Inc.

The survey reflected a wide variation in the vacancy picture in sections of Columbus ranging from 11.5 percent on the West Side down to 2.5 percent in the South Side of Columbus. In the Northern Area the 5 percent vacancy was about the same as the city average. A below average vacancy on the East Side was indicated by the survey with a 3.5 percent.

The survey conducted by Granville Fuller and T. J. Tobbe, Panohio Commercial Loan Officers, covered more than 4,400 units in four-family or larger multiple unit buildings. Monthly rentals for these units ranged from $70 to $140. The survey did not include units more than 15 years of age. Efficiency, one, two and three-bedroom units were included in the survey.

Caldwell stated from the results of the survey, it is apparent there are still areas where investors might profitably construct new apartments.

These are several thousand units under construction and planned during 1964.

Tractors and other farm power equipment should be equipped with fire extinguishers, says the National Safety Council.

AUG 1964

THE VIEW FROM the patio is deceiving, with the new additions disguising the fact that the Weitzel home has been built around a restored log cabin. The family room is to the right with sliding glass doors making it truly an "outdoor room." The site of the house on Westwood-rd was once a fruit orchard, and many of the old trees still stand. A previous owner of the home stated she had learned more about "God's creatures" from observing the wildlife in the yard than from a thousand books.

AT THE BACK of a deep lot on a quiet street nestled among the trees is a log cabin that once stood in Vinton County. It was dismantled and brought to Columbus in 1935. The home has been completely modernized with a family room, two bedrooms, kitchen, two baths and utility and traffic areas added. It is the residence of Miss Kathryn Weitzel, catering manager at the Neil House, and her brother John.

THE KITCHEN, carefully designed, would undoubtedly be a wonderland to the pioneer woman who cooked over the open hearth of the log cabin almost a century and a half ago. The burners of the range (above) pull in and out like a drawer, a feature of the stove insisted upon by Kathryn Weitzel's brother. His sister, it seemed to him, was forever burning herself when baking and he wanted the burners out of her way. The south end of the kitchen, formed by the outside wall of the cabin, makes a sharp contrast (below) to the ultra modern facilities of the space-age "galley."

PAD RUN DOWN? DIG THIS SCENE

Hey, Man! Didn't I hear your woman buggin' ya at the coffee house to spend some coin on the hovel?

And ya told her to ice it, that the pad was like gone and you weren't about to send good scratch after bad?

Well man, if you're flat, that's a cool way of playing it.

You say you're loaded, but you really believe that jazz?

You're crazy, man, crazy. Better divorce that dream.

A pad being too old — that's straight from Goose land.

If you don't dig me, cut the strings and let's peel up to this pad at 168 Westwood-rd.

You know — up near the park where the posies grow.

After ya case that joint, you'll be playing a different bongo beat.

I know. Your shack went up when hootenanny was still in the hills.

But just button it until you rest your eyes on this layout.

It was older than yours back when the pony express was big news.

Ya see, in 1820 down in Vinton County this cat had a spread of a thousand acres. And he built himself this crazy log cabin.

It stood there for a 115 years when a great-granddaughter of the old square looked it over and lit on the idea of taking it apart, bringing it to Columbus and rebuilding it as a studio. (Ya see, she was pretty cool with a paint brush — maybe you remember her — she was Grace McGrath who taught art at Central for so many years.)

Well, that was the beginning of what's about the toughest shack around.

A few years ago Miss Kathryn Weitzel and her brother John bought the cabin which through the years had become a three room spread.

And they sure wouldn't buy that jazz about a pad being too old to do something with.

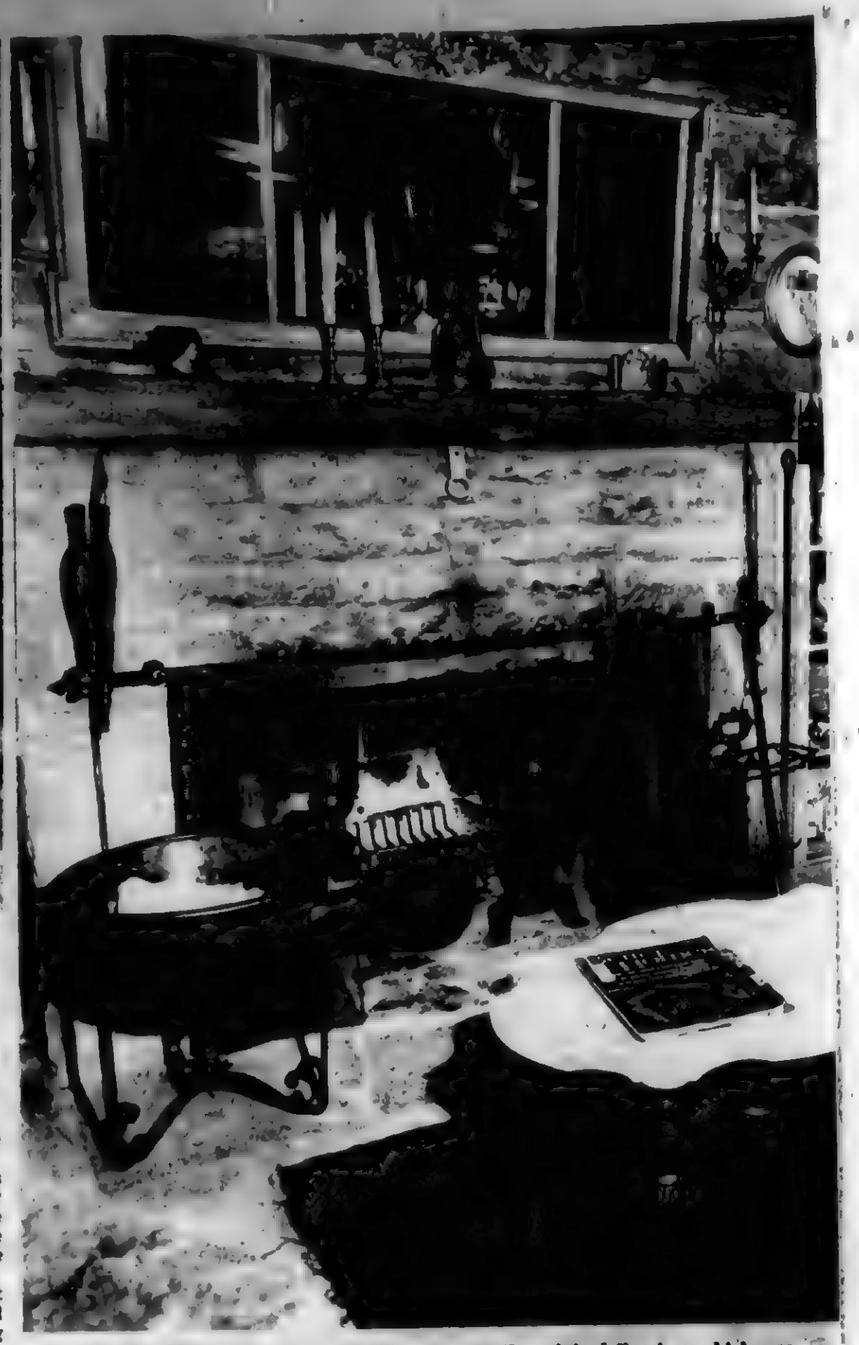
By the time they quit remodeling last year, the cabin looked like an ad in House Beautiful.

Did ya ever hear of a log cabin with baseboard heating?

No? Well, that's just one way they've made a 144 year-old pad into a place any cat would be proud to call home.

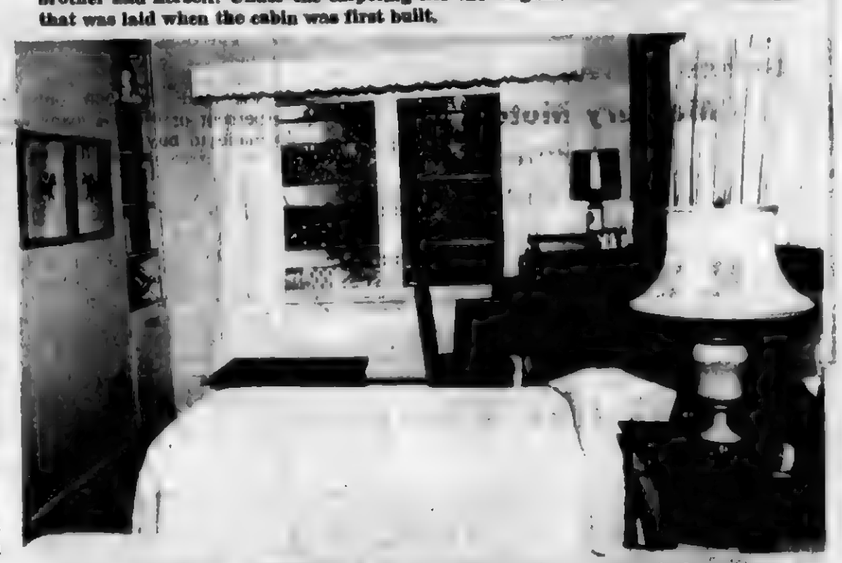
The family that lived there after Miss McGrath sold it had literally raised the roof. A loft was okay for sackin' in a hundred years ago, but these people didn't go for the idea of a bedroom where you couldn't even stand up.

And they didn't think too much of climbing a ladder every time they wanted a little shut-eye. So the stairway was built.



And the Weitzels needed two bedrooms, so another room went on the back.

The kitchen was too small to suit them, so . . .



Beginning to read the scene?

Okay, gate, let's get swingin! Weitzels are good Joes—they'll be glad to show you their pad.

And if you don't dig it man, you've got a one-way ticket to Squaresville.

THE FOCAL POINT of the living room is the original fireplace which was brought with the logs from Vinton County to be rebuilt. The antique copper candy kettle to the left serves as a magazine rack. Miss Weitzel named her home "Back Log," thinking of the big back log that keeps the winter fire burning. She also looks at the home as an investment which creates a back log of security for her brother and herself. Under the carpeting lies the original random width flooring that was laid when the cabin was first built.

THE LATEST ADDITION is the downstairs bedroom which looks out over the patio. The book shelves and storage area to the left of the window was created from "dead" space in the kitchen which backs up the south wall of the room.

THE BASIC CABIN forms the spacious living room of the Weitzel home. The beamed ceiling and the uncovered log walls are as sturdy appearing as when first hewn from the white oaks felled on a farm in Southern Ohio in 1820. A problem of termites was discovered early and no serious damage was done. The secretary is a Biedermeir desk, the work of the famous German cabinet maker who plied his craft in Paris about the time the log cabin was built. In the left foreground is a "goat stool," designed to rock as the suffering rocker moves to and fro.

CONVERTED GARAGE ADDS SPACE

Looking for more space? One of the most practical ways to add an extra room to a house is to oust the car from the attached garage and convert parking space into living room. A relatively inexpensive carport will take care of the dispossessed car.

BEFORE: This development house has attached garage next to small family room.

A big problem in remodeling a garage — what to do with the door — can be solved by replacing it with a window —or windows — and siding to blend with the rest of the house.

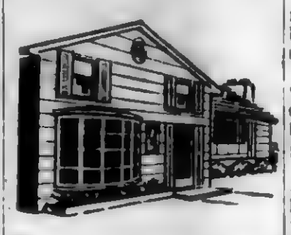
Many types of ponderosa pine windows are available in stock sizes to suit various needs and tastes. Traditional double-hung wood windows may be used, or, if it's a two-car garage, a large, fixed window can be flanked with two smaller, double-hung units. A new bow window where the garage door used to be will improve the exterior appearance and add to interior space. Ponderosa pine shutters painted to match house trim add a decorative touch.

Wood windows are available with double-glazing (insulating glass), which pays off in lower heating bills and increased winter comfort. In all except the most frigid climates, double-glazing eliminates the need for separate storm sash.

AFTER: Garage door is removed and wood windows with diamond grilles installed.

Since wood is a natural insulating material, it blocks heat loss and is virtually free of the condensation that plagues home owners with other types of window sash and frames.

If a door is required, a trip to a building materials dealer will turn up a variety of prepackaged panel doors of wood that are already hung in frames. They can be installed quickly and will fit well.



For an indoor-outdoor feeling, the new sliding wood patio doors can be used. These units glide easily, fit tightly to keep out driving wind and rain, and provide both a door and a big expanse of window. Most sliding wood patio doors are double glazed.

A must for year-round comfort is adequate insulation. To be sure of using the right amounts in the right places, follow the Quality Home Requirements of the National Mineral Wool Insulation Association. Properly installed, mineral wool insulation will help keep the new room cool in summer and warm and draft-free in winter.

The use of both adequate insulation and double-glazed wood windows often makes it possible to heat a new room with the existing heating system. This eliminates the expense of adding an auxiliary heating system or installing a new, larger one.

Thorough insulation and double-glazed wood windows, studies show, combine to pare both heating and cooling costs to the bone. Savings often equal initial cost in a few years and these savings keep on piling up as long as you own the house.

These quality improvements also add to the house's resale value and make it easier to sell.

AFTER: Wood bow window floods enlarged family room with light and adds feeling of space.

ASPIRIN, ANYONE?

Noise Can Crumble Suburban Castles

BY THE SUBURBAN SPECTATOR

We are told a house is not necessarily a home. But a home, one can add, is not necessarily a man's castle.

Castles have lords who get what they want; we want quiet in our castle; but quiet is what we don't get.

You know all those stories about Suburbia? Don't believe them! They're fairy tales compared to what happens in my neighborhood.

First of all there's the traffic. But that's to be expected when there are 240 unsynchronized traffic lights, 16 no-left turn streets and several million women drivers between office and home.

One of the kids' bicycles is in the driveway. You yell at your wife and then yell some more when you find out she doesn't have any of those headache tablets in stock.

Of course, you're not "understanding" since she's been at the pre-PTA meeting all afternoon and got home just in time to heat up that TV dinner you've avoided eating for three weeks.

When you finally find the ringing telephone under the two-year-old's playthings, it's the friendly TV survey wanting to know what program you are viewing.

You refer them to your five-year-old son who views everything from the morning prayer to the national anthem at signoff.

Right now, he's halfway through Buzzy Bee, whose lively antics are amplified everywhere in the house.

The den used to be inner sanctum, but that's been converted to the music room. (My daughter's started on the recorder and as any music teacher will tell you, Buzzy Bee just doesn't fit in).

Upstairs would be fine except for the baby who can detect matter (like a shoeless foot) crashing upon matter (like a well-padded Bigelow) with such alarm, we're thinking of peddling her to the government as an early warning system.

Everyone should sleep well then, I know I would.

Of course, we are fortunate in that we have a large backyard. By dividing it into four sectors, you can tune into (1) four teenagers twisting to the Beatles, (2) my neighbor's power mower which sounds like the grass is winning, (3) the sweet old couple next door who barbecue every night (she hasn't seasoned his steak right for 42 years) or (4) the lousiest badminton ensemble ever assembled on opposite sides of a net.

My only hope for them is that they make the Olympic squad when it visits Berlin. (They'll all get shot in the first five minutes, retrieving the bird on the wrong side of the wall.)

It's evenings like this that I make my way down here to the basement. Nothing beats reading Alfred Hitchcock by candlelight. Besides, he always has such nice solutions for all these problems.

He must live in a "castle" too.

DON'T BURY PEONIES

It's too early to move peonies. Wait until early September when the foliage has died down naturally. Moving them too soon removes foliage which is needed to store food in the roots for next year's bloom. At moving time, plant them shallow. Just barely cover the "eyes" with soil. If planted too deep, peonies will not bloom.

Modern Furniture Design Has New Look Of Elegance

Design conscious buyers visiting the mid-summer furniture markets were pleased with the number of firms showing modern styles.

"Styles," is right, because there are marked differences of appearance between various groups. Buyers in close touch with the demands of their customers feel these new collections of furniture will delight many homemakers who rate themselves as "just not the traditional or provincial type."

Understatement Keynote

Understated elegant simplicity of line and form keynote the collections. But the new groups have more to offer in the way of richness and warmth of effect than many experimental modern groups offered in the past two decades.

Designers have selected hardwood face veneers of many species to enliven and give pattern and texture interest to sleek smooth surfaces.

Friendly, Home-like

This choice, alone, contributes greatly to the over-all friendly and home-like effect of the new pieces, in contrast to the austere coldness of many previous modern groups.

Stark, cold, institutional, were often the critical adjectives applied to modern furniture ever since a new design concept was introduced way back in 1925. At the time, and for many years afterward, the grace and beauty of exciting natural wood figures and patterns was largely lost by the method of slicing veneer, called quarter slicing. This method, applied to almost any species of hardwood, results in a rather plain striped grain effect, as compared to flat sliced veneers, that show more pattern.

Shop For Wood

In recent years, appreciation for the beauty and natural irregularity of wood figures has grown. Sophisticated shoppers now select wood furniture as much for the beauty of the wood as for the style, form and function of the pieces.

The new groups are made from a wide variety of hardwoods, some well known and popular like walnut, mahogany, cherry, pecan and oak. But others less familiar, like avodire, zebrawood, pollard oak, and several others both domestic and foreign, add their color and patterns to this 1964 modern furniture showing.

Style Shows Off Wood

Confined within the limits of smooth, unadorned surfaces, frame and leg lines of structural directness, the woods appear even more handsome than when topped with filigree brass drawer pulls or other extraneous decoration, typical of "period" styles.

From the ancient Chinese forms and details, to classic arches, to the square bulky lines of California Mission, and back again to the gentle curves and trim lines of the 18th Century, to the fluid sculptured quality of the modern Danish school, there are distinguishing details aplenty to stir the imagination of modern fans.

Less New Home Interest Revealed By VA Statistics

More than 62 percent of GI home loans made in the past year were to purchase existing and previously occupied dwellings rather than newly constructed homes, the Veterans Administration reports.

Veterans are not using their GI loan entitlement to build or buy new homes, the VA said. In 1960, only 31 percent of the VA loans were made to buy existing homes. The percentages rose to 41 percent in 1961; to 53 percent in 1962, and slightly more than 62 percent in 1963.

The 1963 average GI home buyer had a little higher take-home income than last year's buyers, paid a little more for his home and, was a little older than his 1962 counterpart.

The average price paid per home by the GI purchaser in 1963 was $15,385—in 1962 the average price was $14,655. The average price for new homes was $16,310, as compared with $15,595 in 1962, while the price for existing homes in 1963 averaged $14,665, as against $13,585 last year.

Most veterans, about 66 percent, bought homes in the $12,000 to $19,999 price range. About 21 percent (as against 25 percent in 1962) paid less than $12,000 for their homes and 13 percent (as against eight percent in 1962) paid $20,000 or more.

Approximately 20 percent of the veterans in the survey made down payments averaging about 10 percent of the purchase price. The other 80 percent made no down payments, but paid closing costs when these were not absorbed by the seller. The overall average down payment was about two and one-half percent of the purchase price.

The monthly housing expenses of the 1963 veteran home buyer averaged $143—equivalent to slightly more than 29 percent of his monthly income. That expense averaged $136 in 1962. These amounts include principal and interest payments on his loan, taxes, insurance, fuel, maintenance, utility, repair and maintenance costs.

The average monthly income (after taxes) of the GI home-buying veteran in 1963 was $492 a month, up from $477 in 1962, and up from $472 in 1961.

The percentage of veteran home buyers 30 years or older increased from 78 percent in 1962 to 84 percent in 1963.

Tips On Cleaning Furniture

The Home Furnishings Industry Committee advises that even if leather upholstery and tabletops don't look dirty, they should be washed regularly because soil can discolor leather and also make it sticky.

To keep leather clean, sponge the surface with very thick suds skimmed off the top of a soap or detergent solution. Follow up by rinsing with a clean damp cloth, and then wipe dry. A minimum of water is sufficient since leather is non-absorbent, soil settles only on the surface and comes off with just the "swish of a sponge."

To keep rattan, cane, reed and rush chair seats clean, simply sponge the surface with warm soapsuds and rinses. This also helps to "shrink" any sagging seat taut again. After drying for several days the seat can be shellacked.

If you ever need to restain then apply a finish coat of white shellac and denatured alcohol mixed in equal parts. Besides sealing the stain, this mixture provides a washable finish which can be sponged clean with warm suds and rinses.

Painted or enameled furniture can be kept clean by applying "dry" soapsuds, made by beating a handful of soap with a little water to produce a stiff, meringue-like lather. Simply sponge the furniture with this, rinse-wipe several times with a damp cloth and dry with a clean cloth. Then wax or polish may be applied.

Plastic upholstery is a pleasure to keep clean. All you have to do is sponge the surface often with warm soap or detergent suds and rinses, completing one section of the furniture at a time. Little water is needed in washing, since soil remains on the surface of non-porous plastic, and woven plastic upholstery simply sheds the surplus water.

Although some plastic surfaces are enhanced by a light wax coating, never use it on upholstery. The reason: wax does not penetrate the surface and some excess might later rub off on clothing.

Tuaregs or "blue men," a nomadic tribe of western Africa, keep their faces covered with veils leaving only the eyes visible.

Questions and Answers about Lake Choctaw

The more you know about LAKE CHOCTAW... the more you'll want a cottage site on this wonderful, carefree lake development

A TYPICAL SCENE ON AN AMERICAN REALTY LAKE DEVELOPMENT

1. Question: WHAT IS LAKE CHOCTAW?

Answer: Lake Choctaw is a private lake development regulated by sensible restrictions. Lake Choctaw was planned and constructed for the use of property owners and a limited number of invited guests.

2. Question: WHAT IS THE SIZE OF LAKE CHOCTAW?

Answer: Lake Choctaw comprises nine hundred twenty acres of beautiful Ohio countryside with a 275 acre lake and over five miles of picturesque shoreline.

3. Question: WILL THE LAKE BE OPEN TO THE PUBLIC?

Answer: NO. Purchasers must apply for and be accepted as members of a private property owners association before any sale is final. Facilities are designed for the use of members, their families and guests. The public is not allowed use of the development.

4. Question: ARE LOTS AT LAKE CHOCTAW EXPENSIVE?

Answer: NO. Lake Choctaw lots are reasonably priced for immediate sale and liberal financing can be arranged at the development.

5. Question: WILL FACILITIES AT LAKE CHOCTAW BECOME CROWDED?

Answer: NO. Lake Choctaw will be perpetually maintained and controlled by The Lake Choctaw Property Owners Association, Inc. This association is regulated by its board of directors which is elected by the property owners.

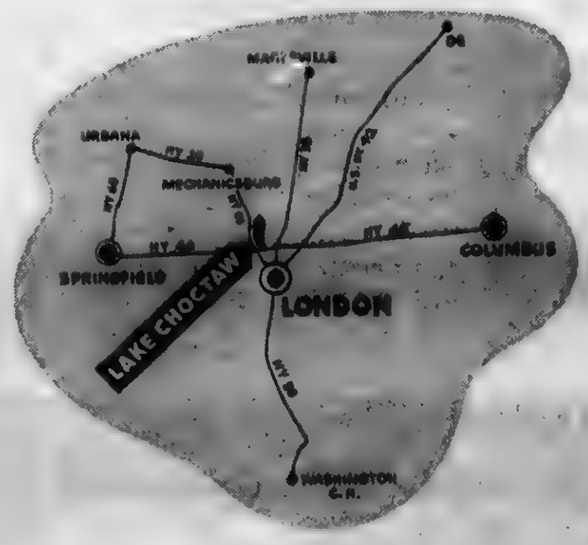
6. Question: HOW WILL LAKE CHOCTAW PRIVACY BE MAINTAINED?

Answer: The development will be policed by qualified and deputized guards for your maximum protection. Guests will be permitted in the company of members or if they hold guests cards as applied for by a property owner.

7. Question: DO I HAVE TO BUILD A COTTAGE TO ENJOY LAKE CHOCTAW?

Answer: NO. There is no specified time to start your cottage. You can enjoy the picnic area and many recreational facilities being made available to property owners.

8. Question: ARE THERE RESTAURANT AND COMFORT FACILITIES?



Answer: A restaurant will be located just above the beach with adjoining rest room facilities.

9. Question: WILL THERE BE A MARINA FOR BOATS AND A COMMUNITY BEACH?

Answer: YES. A marina and numerous boat docks are available around the lake. In addition, Lake Choctaw has a large sandy beach with protected kiddie play area.

10. Question: IS LAKE CHOCTAW THE PLACE FOR ME?

Answer: That is for you to decide. However, we believe that if you would like your own spot around a beautiful lake in a sensibly restricted private development—then Lake Choctaw is definitely the place for you.

The Spectator Says:

By C. C. Hartley

Happy Golden Wedding!

It was a grand party! And why shouldn't it be with 115 of the finest couples in Central Ohio gathered for the seventh annual Hartley Newspapers Golden Wedding Party last Thursday at the county fair grounds.

The party was announced to start at 2 p.m. but most everyone was on hand about an hour earlier and this gave the opportunity to meet old friends and chat a bit.

It was interesting to learn that more of the couples were married in May than in the traditional month of brides, June. And "Love you in December as I did in May" was true also since December was tied with May as a month of weddings.

Those married on Christmas eve included the Frank Shipleys, and on Christmas day the Henry Wines and Mr. and Mrs. Elias Byerly. Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel Rouse started toward their Golden Wedding on New Years eve.

Other interesting bits included the fact that the George Skippers were married at 93 N. Terrace-av, and still live nearby at 146 N. Terrace . . . When Miss Dry met Mr. Spring they were never thirsty for love again . . . Wedding twins (those married on the same day) include Mr. and Mrs. Andy Fisher and Mr. and Mrs. John Daniels, on Jan. 27; Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Herron and Mr. and Mrs. Jessee Shade on Feb 16; on March 19 and both living in West Jefferson were the J. C. Majors and the Albert Engles; on May 5 were the William Conns and the Arthur Mailbergers.

June found Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bean and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bass married on June 17, 1914, and on June 25, 1914, the Elzie Radcliffs and the Carl Uckers. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sells and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wirth were married on June 27, 1912.

Married on Aug. 7 were Mr. and Mrs. H. M. McGarvey and Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Green and on Dec. 27 were Mr. and Mrs. Gideon Lambert and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Caris.

Sept. 5 was a popular day and included weddings of the Charles Coons, the Edgar Pringles, the Herman Rings, the Walter Bennetts.

Married on Nov. 28, 1912, were Mr. and Mrs. Gus Glassmacher, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Curlis and Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Nichols.

Couples that were a little impetuous and ran off to Kentucky to be married included the Pringles, Howisons, Stolls, Burwells and Dan Davis'.

It was a great day and several couples received awards.

Mr. and Mrs. William Schilling of Hilliard won the second honeymoon at Holiday Inn.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Hicks, 204 S. Murray Hill-rd, received a cake from Helen Shade for being first to register.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Shade, 915 S. Hague-av, longest married (66 years) received an orchid from Rosebud Floral Co. and portrait from J. Curtis Allen.

Mr. and Mrs. John Buehl, London, bride and bridegroom (celebrated 50th on June 25, 1964) are to get a portrait from J. Curtis Allen and the top of the wedding

Police Add 27 Recruits

Appointment of 27 new police officers for the Columbus Police Department was announced from Atlantic City by Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner, who is in the New Jersey city for the Democratic National Convention.

The new recruits will bring the department's uniformed strength to 483. Sensenbrenner said police ranks have reached a new high, but are still considerably below what our police requirements are for a city with almost 100 square miles and 550,000 persons."

The new policemen will undergo a 17-week training period at the new Columbus Police Academy on McKinley-av.

Raymond Norwood, 228 Marta-ln, is listed with the new recruits.

WITH ONLY ALUM CREST Hospital left standing, the entire residential area of the Franklin County Home is expected to take on a new look within the next few years. The antiquated home will be torn down and replaced with two large compounds, each providing ground-level living for 140 residents. The original drawings, as pictured above, have been modified, with the units being brought more closely together. Where employe quarters will be established is unknown at this point, as well as the location of kitchen and recreational facilities.

BRICK ON BLOCK construction is envisioned by the architects, Schooley, Cornelius and Schooley, for the units proposed by the joint plans of Columbus Metropolitan Housing Authority and Franklin County to provide unit housing for elderly or infirm persons who have been Franklin County residents for at least one year. The units will provide sleeping and living quarters and bathing facilities for the residents on an individual basis with community dining and recreation areas. It includes features incorporated in other Metropolitan Housing projects, such as Sunshine Terrace. Present residents of the County Home will be given top priority in room assignment.

Franklin County Home Hopes For 'New Look'

When persons living in the Franklin County Home on Alum Creek-dr were interviewed early this summer, they showed almost unanimous approval of the plans on the drawing board for new facilities on a ground floor level.

Columbus Metropolitan Housing Authority and the commissioners of Franklin County have been negotiating on a completely new concept of caring for those of the county who cannot care for themselves.

M. L. Huffman who is representing Metropolitan Housing in the negotiations during the illness of director Russell Taylor, explained that the goal of the proposal is to provide the housing needed for these people in a way that will make for them "a more enjoyable life."

The joint venture also presents the solution to the county's problem of operating a home that is over 75 years old and beyond the point where rehabilitation is practical.

The 100-bed County Hospital (Alum Crest) is much newer and will continue to operate in the present building.

The proposed one-floor compounds, to be built in two stages, will eventually include 280 units.

The first group of compounds, according to Huffman, would be built to the north of the hospital on what is now the part of the "county pig lot." Later the second half of the facilities would be constructed in front of the present Home. The old home which houses about 200 persons would not be torn down until the project was completed.

County Commissioner Henry Koontz emphasized that those now living in the county residence would be given first priority on the new quarters and that no one would lose their homes in the turnover.

Among the details to be worked out is overcoming of problems created by federal limitations of the scope of the facilities that can be provided by Columbus Metropolitan Housing.

One of the principal hurdles is that such facilities cannot come under the definitions of an "institution."

Another is that nursing and food preparation cannot be projects of the Housing Authority and that it cannot provide household furnishing for the dwelling units. (Lounge and recreation areas may be furnished, however.)

Although federal funds are

Water Rate Problems Await Council's Return

Columbus city councilmen will be weighing two possible courses relating to water rates prior to their next official session on Sept. 14.

Council President William Fornof and Councilman Robert T. Southwick each have asked for an immediate reduction of water rates equivalent to the amount anticipated for water supply needs.

The council members point out that the water rate increases enacted last March contemplated a water supply agreement with the Scioto Conservancy District. The SCD had planned to include water supply as part of its proposal for construction to a dam and reservoir at Alum Creek.

The district had also proposed other flood control and water management projects as part of its official plan for the Scioto River Basin and the five-county area it serves. But the district's controversial assesment plan caused council to drop its plans to enter into a water supply agreement with the SCD. Instead, council approved legislation asking that the U. S. Corps of Engineers construct the Alum Creek and Mill Creek projects.

In light of the failure of the SCD plans, which have now been withdrawn from the Conservancy Court, Councilmen, Fornof, Southwick and Alston have suggested that the water rate decrease. Alston said he did not feel the matter was so urgent that it could not await further study of the total rate structure. He indicated willingness to await results of a cost-of-service study if such a study is undertaken without undue delay.

Fornof said he does not feel it is necessary to undertake any study of water rates before lowering rates. He did say that any decrease at this time would necessarily be followed by a subsequent increase that would be higher than the contemplated rate cut. This, he said, would be necessary because the water supply feature of the Corps of Engineers' built project would be greater.

Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner has recommended that the question of changing the rates be considered only after study of all phases of the current rates. Service Director Warren Cremean has asked Frank Wright, water superintendent, to outline what elements would be considered in a cost-of-service study. Cremean said he will also ask representatives of the Development Committee for Greater Columbus and the Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce to define what they mean by cost-of-service.

The chamber, through Executive Secretary Kline Roberts, has asked councilmen to meet with chamber officials in an effort to begin a cost-of-service study as the basis for

SCD Withdraws Appraisals; Fight Shifts To Save District

By FRANK RYAN

The ill-fated plan of the Scioto Conservancy District for area flood protection and water supply is now officially dead. But the SCD as a functioning body is still very much alive, and will remain so if most of the responsible local leadership has its way.

Withdrawal of the appraisal record from the Conservancy Court means that all who filed exceptions have won their point. There can be no further action on the official plan as it now stands.

SCD officials surrendered to an avalanche of more than 7,000 exceptions from owners of the 11,000 properties affected. District leaders will now join the almost unanimous local support for the U. S. Corps of Engineers to build the Alum Creek and Mill Creek projects.

The SCD staff will now review projects within their plan not eligible for federal aid, and will attempt to determine the community feeling throughout the district for SCD construction of such projects.

The greater task for the district, however, will be to recapture the same degree of local civic and political support it enjoyed prior to filing of its appraisal record.

Lawsuits filed by the City of Columbus and the City School Board remain in effect in the 10th District Franklin County) Court of Appeals. The court had granted a temporary writ of prohibition against action on the appraisal record.

Historic Landmark Bows To Progress

Milk was five cents a quart and three cents a pint, deliveries were made twice a day, and "freeway" was merely a word, not a synonym for the modern way of life, in 1889 when the Schaaf Dairy Farm came into existence.

The historic Columbus landmark on College-av, in the path of the East-West Freeway, will soon be destroyed.

The home of the owner, Daniel Schaaf, 97 of 1844 College-av, will make way for a cloverleaf ramp, and across the road some 15 buildings of the dairy farm complex will be razed.

The original dairy was started in 1879 on a 275-acre tract by the father of Daniel Schaaf. One hundred acres of the original farm were developed into South Berwick, subdivision south of Bexley, by Schaaf through the D. and D. Co.

State and City Highway Department plans show that 50 acres will be taken out of the center of the farm, destroying all buildings, including two large homes, three barns, milking plant, dairy store, numerous small buildings and three tenant houses.

The freeway will run east and west across the entire width of the farm, along with the 12½-acre cloverleaf. And Route 33, running north and south through the farm, will be widened with a large divider.

The remaining land will be in six pieces, some as small as two-tenths of an acre.

The family, in deference to Mr. Schaaf's desire, is attempting to have his home moved. Built 60 years ago, the 12-room house is located on two and a half acres of land, surrounded by 50 large maple trees. His daughter, Miss Betty Schaaf, also makes her home here.

Schaaf has earned the distinction of Master Farmer, and for many years conducted experiments on his farm with Prof. Oscar Erf of Ohio State University. He contributed many purebred calves to youngsters in calf clubs.

He sold land for approximately half its price for the Berwick Elementary School, and has given Columbus many easements across his land for $1.

The farm has been known as a showplace in Ohio, and for many years homes in Bexley and East Columbus were served by the Schaaf milk trucks. Home delivery was discontinued about ten years ago when a dairy store was built on the property, operated by a son, Homer [redacted].

The store was the first

VISITORS FROM ALL OVER THE WORLD inspected the famed Schaaf Dairy Barn, visible across the road from the Schaaf home. Fourteen children from the playground are attending Indian Village Day Camp this week.

Physical fitness certificates were given to: Twanna Kelley, Kim Kelley, Brenda Steele, Merlin Rutledge, Jtonia Bridges, Desiree Murray, Robert Eliand, Juan Johnston, Walter H. Hicks, Melvin Taylor, Jack King, Jr., Raymond Taylor, Mathew Hunter, Mark Ballard, Larry Copeland, Gary Mixon, Preston Eiland, James Edwards, David Roddy, Tim Cunninghom, Gary Powell and Robert Brown.

Earl Moultry, a visitor from Cleveland, helped with the flag raising this week.

Eric Phipps has returned from a vacation trip which included sight-seeing at the World's Fair, the Statue of Liberty and Times Square. His family drove through Knoxville, Tenn., on the way back home. He also had a birthday while on the trip.

The playground ceases summer activities Friday, Aug. 28, at 7 p.m.

ON CARRIER

Navy Ensign David E. Reese, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett D. Reese of 189 N. Parkview-av, Bexley, is serving aboard the anti-submarine warfare aircraft carrier USS Kearsarge, operating in the Far East with the Seventh Fleet.

158 'GRADUATED' FROM READING PROGRAM

WHITEHALL BRANCH LIBRARY staged a party Aug. 17 in the basement assembly room of nearby Holy Spirit Catholic Church for 158 youngsters who read 10 books to qualify for diplomas in World's Fair Summer Reading Club. More than 600 enrolled in the reading program. Featured entertainment at the party was a magic show by Earl Sebber Tice of 107 E. Third-av, retired professional magician. Awarding of diplomas was followed by refreshments provided by library staff members. First diploma recipents were: Mark Cochran, 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Cochran, 4276 Doney-st, and Theresa Taliarico, 7, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carm Taliarico, 933 Exeter-rd. From left are Miss Barbara Campbell, assistant librarian; Miss Ellen Metzger, branch chief, and Tice.

KIDS COLLECT SAFETY TIPS, PRIZES

HUNDREDS OF WHITEHALL youngsters were on hand for the first annual bicycle check at the Municipal Bulding last Saturday, in spite of the rainy weather. Members of the sponsoring Whitehall Kiwanis Club and Police Department checked bicycles, made minor repairs, offered safety advice and then awarded more than 50 prizes donated by local merchants. Winners included, from left, front, Lolly Griffin, girl's bicycle; Billy Songer, boy's bicycle; Byron Knoblauch and Gail Campbell, tricycles. In back are, from left, Derwood Lowe, president, Whitehal Kiwanis Club; Mayor William Holshause; Larry Eveland, manager, Goodyear Store on Hamilton-rd, and Pete Knopiesch, Kiwanis chairman of the bicycle project.

Fairwood . . .

DEATHS

LANG, Clemens F. (Brownie), 72, of 2809 Parkland-pl, died Aug. 20 at the residence. Survived by wife, Margaret; two sons, 14 grandchildren, three great-grandchildren and three brothers. Requiem High Mass Monday in Christ the King Church. Interment, St. Joseph by Egan-Ryan Funeral Home.

High yielding grasslands may produce 12,000 to 15,000 pounds of milk or 600 to 700 pounds of beef or lamb per acre per year.

PUTTERS PICK QUEEN

JAN STUART, 778 Cottrell-dr, was selected from more than 400 girls in the National Professional Putters Association Tournament held at Putt Putt Golf Course, 599 S. Hamilton-rd. She will join 40 other winners in a try for the title of "America's Putting Queen of 1965" to be held at Fayetteville, N. C. In addition to the crown, the winner will receive a grand prise of $1,000 and a vacation in Miami Beach. Jan is a student in the Patricia Stevens Career College in Columbus.

ON OKINAWA

Marine Pfc. Robert V. McKeluey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. McKeluey of 4914 Barbara-ct, a member of "M" Company, Third Battalion, Third Marine Regiment, Third Marine Division, recently completed a 45-day training period for jungle and guerrilla warfare on Okinawa.

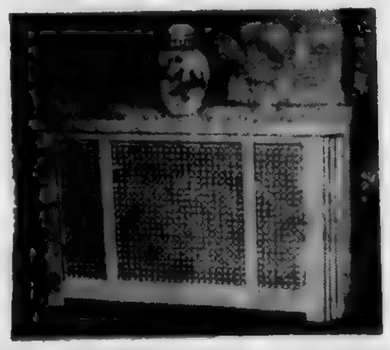
The state land office in Little Rock, Ark., received a letter containing a $21 check. The check was O.K., but the stamp on the letter was a trading stamp.

Municipalities Receive Safety Award Plaques

Mayors and police chiefs of seven municipalities attended a luncheon Aug. 19, to receive National AAA Pedestrian Protection Awards for their communities.

The following communities received award plaques for no pedestrian fatalities: Delaware, two years; Bexley, three years; Westerville, seven years, Grove City, nine years; Reynoldsburg, nine years, and Grandview, with the longest record, 18 years.

Park use in Ohio during the past decade has increased seven times faster than the population.



Worthington received a special citation for improvement in their record.

Plaques from the American Automobile Association were presented by Don E. Weaver, chairman of the Columbus Auto Club Safety Committee. Presentations took place in the Press Club dining room.

Synagogues Prepare For High Holy Days

A High Holy Day Institute will be held at Agudas Achim Synagogue, Saturday, Aug. 29, 10 p.m., preceding the traditional Slichos services.

The format of the program will follow the popular "Open Mike" radio series. An introductory set of questions, to be answered by Rabbi Rubenstein, will be posed by a panel of laymen to establish the theme. The audience will then "call in" their questions to be answered by the speaker.

The theme to be discussed will be the High Holy Days. The analysis will cover three levels . . . the "Days of Awe" as they affect the individual in his personal life, at home and in the synagogue.

The educational phase of the program will be held from 10 p.m. until 11:15 p.m., after which light refreshments will be served by the Sisterhood. At 11:50 p.m., the congregation will enter the synagogue for the Slichos service.

AT TIFERETH ISRAEL

A special seminar in connection with the approaching High Holy Days will take place at Congregation Tifereth Israel Saturday, Aug. 29, 11 p.m., preceding the midnight S'leechot service.

The seminar, which will be conducted by Rabbi Nathan Zelizer, Cantor Stanley Burstein and Mr. Saul Wachs, is designed to familiarize the congregants with the chants and melodies which are used at Tifereth Israel on Rosh Hashana and Yom Kippur.

Rabbi Nathan Zelizer, spiritual leader of the congregation, will discuss the key themes of the High Holy Days. The synagogue choir will also participate.

At midnight, the Rabbi, Cantor and choir will conduct the solemn S'leechot service that ushers in the High Holy Day season.

Following the service, a breakfast will be served by the Sisterhood of the congregation. An invitation is extended to attend the seminar.

AUBLE PROMOTED

John Auble, Jr., journalist third class, USN, son of Mrs. Florence Auble of 118 Maplewood-av, was recently promoted while serving aboard the anti-submarine warfare aircraft carrier USS Intrepid, operating in the Mediterranean with the Sixth Fleet.

FARM FORECAST

Mid-way through county fair season, reports from board members indicate this has been a record year for most. Attendance and participation can partially be attributed to dry weather, but increased 4-H and FFA memberships must be credited. Eyes now turn toward the 1964 Ohio State Fair which opens Aug. 28.

The 1965 voluntary wheat program is generally regarded as about the same as the 1964 crop program. Some program provisions have been modified for the coming year but participating farms should get about the same returns as from 1964.

The principal changes are: 1. Domestic certificates will be worth 75 cents per bushel, and export certificates will be worth 30 cents per bushel. 2. Price support national average loan rate will be $1.25 as against $1.30.

Wheat program notices will be sent to growers listing the 1965 wheat allotment, the farm's normal yield, the allocation for marketing certificates, the rate of payment available for wheat diversion, and the conserving base established for the farm.

The agriculture department said a recent study in west-central Ohio showed that 10 of 51 farmers would quit farming if they could be assured of an annual income of $5,000. ERS said that the amount was about $300 more than they had earned from farming during the previous five years.

A former Miss America heads the speakers' list for the 1964 Ohio 4-H Club Congress, to be held on the Ohio State University campus Sept. 12-16.

She is Marilyn Van Derbur Atler of Denver, Colo., Miss America of 1958. She will come to Columbus directly from Atlantic City following public appearances there in connection with the 1964 Miss America pageant. She is scheduled to address a general assembly of the Congress the morning of Sept. 15, speaking on "Goals and Dreams."

Sharing the spotlight with Mrs. Atler as speakers will be William H. Saxbe, attorney general of Ohio; Mylo Downey, director of 4-H and Youth Development, Federal Extension Services; Dr. L. Claire Warden, pastor of the King Avenue Methodist Church, Columbus; the Rev. Leopold Bernhard, pastor of the First English Lutheran Church of Columbus; and Dr. James Clark, Ohio State University campus planner.

State 4-H Club Congress, biggest meeting of the year for Ohio 4-H club members, will bring to the Ohio State campus more than 700 club members and nearly 200 advisors and staff members. The four-day program will carry out the theme "Enter To Learn, Depart To Serve Your Community, Your World, Your Government, Yourselves." Most sessions will be in the Ohio Union.

Sr. M. Angelita

New President Named At College Of St. Mary

Sr. Suzanne Urhane, OP, has been appointed new president of the College of St. Mary of the Springs, succeeding Sr. M. Angelita Conley, OP, who resigned this week due to ill health.

Sr. Suzanne has been head of the department of natural sciences and chairman of the chemistry department at the college.

The new president is from Marietta and attended Divi Thomae School for scientific research in Cincinnati. She has been a teacher at the college since 1941.

Sr. Angelita has been president of the college since 1947, and under her leadership the college has grown in student enrollment, scholarships, and student and faculty programs.

During her administration, St. Gabriel's parochial school became a demonstration school in which college students and scholastics of St. Mary of the Springs observe classes taught by highly trained teachers.

During the past two years the college has received grants totaling more than $80,000. The adult education program, started as a community service in 1951, increased fourfold by June, 1964, and in 1955 the college became a member of the Ohio Federation of Independent Colleges.

A recent master plan has been developed. Changes include dormitory, library, addition to science building and improvements in the liberal arts building.

Sr. Angelita announced last month that the college would enroll freshmen male students for the first time by 1965.

Sr. Angelita was dean of Albertus Magnus College, New Haven, Conn., before her post at St. Mary College.

Wheat Program Signup Dated

Signup for the 1965 wheat program is under way at the ASCS County Office, Owen VanSchoyck, chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee, has announced.

The signup will extend through Oct. 2.

Applications to take part in the program may be filed any working day from 8 a.m. to 4:45 p.m.

Chairman emphasized that the signup is the first step to qualifying for any of the program's benefits.

Participating farmers can get about the same returns from the 1965 program as they received from the 1964 program, and may get more by using new options that will enable many producers to adapt the program more closely to their farming operations.

Business Site Planned North Of Reynoldsburg

The Columbus City Planning Commission will decide in its meeting Wednesday, Sept. 9, whether to permit the Regional Planning Commission to study a proposal for business plans to be located just north of the Reynoldsburg city limits.

The project under consideration would involve a 20-acre site between the Reynoldsburg-New Albany-rd and Blacklick Creek, just north of Broad-st.

The Sabyr, Inc., is planning a large motel, bowling alley, miniature golf course, a par-three golf course and a small shopping center.

Over 250 Attend Golden Wedding Party

Where do the young at heart gather for fun?

Why, in the Youth Tent, of course.

And that's exactly where the members of The Spectator Golden Wedding Club met last Thursday, for the annual party held this year at the Franklin County Fairgrounds.

Love that knows no end and proof of same was the prerequisite for the affair given in honor of couples who had been married 50 years or longer.

It should be mentioned that the fairgrounds was the perfect setting for such a party, since the Fair itself celebrated its 50th anniversary only last year.

For details read The Spectator Says column, by C. Carlton Hartley on page one of this newspaper.

THE GRANDMOTHERS DRILL TEAM, under the direction of Capt. Grace Warner, put on a performance for members of The Spectator Golden Wedding Club last Thursday at the Hilliard Fairgrounds. Undaunted by the small stage, the 20-member team marched for 15 minutes ending with a cross formation. Afterwards the members joined the guests for cake and coffee.

THE CROWD listens (above) as Earl Wrightson and Lois Hunt (above right), stars of the Kenley Players production, "Camelot" give greetings. Wrightson told the group that the success of a Broadway play is determined by how long it runs. "I'm grateful to have had the chance," he said, "to see so many happy faces here. Being married 50 years or longer is certainly the best evidence of success!" Portions of The Spectator Golden Wedding Party were shown the same evening on WLW-C, Channel 4. The pictures of the Grandmothers Drill Team, the above crowd shot, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wirth and Mr. and Mrs. William Schilling were taken by J. Curtis Allen.

MR. AND MRS. FRANK WIRTH (left) of 1520 Fairwood-av, won a studio portrait from J. Curtis Allen and a large centerpiece from Rosebud Floral Co., 351 N. Burgess-av. The couple won "the most descendents" title with 38 children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. Mr. and Mrs. William Schilling (right) of Hilliard received a certificate entitling them to a "second honeymoon," compliments of Jack Hale, manager of the Holiday Inn, 4001 W. Broad-st. Their name was drawn from a box containing all the coupons received for the party. Mr. and Mrs. John Beuhl of London were the bride and bridegroom of the afternoon. They had been married the least amount of time over 50 years. "The newlyweds" received a studio portrait from J. Curtis Allen and the top of the wedding cake.

A country lot for a home site should be large enough to isolate the well from the septic tank. This means at least one-half acre of land, and usually more, according to OSU Extension agricultural engineers.

"WHAT A CAKE" was the comment made by all who attended the gala event. The seven-tiered confection was donated and cut by Mrs. Eugene Neumann of 111 Linda-rd, Hilliard. Coffee was served compliments of William B. Pickering of Admiral Coffee Co., 1717 Northwest-blvd, and Mrs. Helen Shade of Shade's Restaurant, Canal Winchester, poured for the guests. Mrs. Shade also brought small wedding cakes that were given for prizes.

In 1889, Gustave Eiffel and a group of top-hatted officials struggled up the Eiffel Tower's 1,900 steps to plant the French flag atop what was then the world's tallest structure.

Would you prefer to spread your cost of Winter Heating over the entire year?

You can — with the Gas Company's NEW Budget Payment Plan. You can avoid paying peak gas bills — for your home — in the cold winter months. With the NEW Budget Payment Plan, you normally pay the same amount each month. If abnormal weather conditions or other factors necessitate a change in the budget amount, your monthly payment will be adjusted. What would you pay each month? Look under "Budget Amount" on your gas bill due in September. You would begin paying that amount in October. To enjoy the advantages of the NEW Budget Payment Plan, check the square on the back of your gas bill due in September and return it to the Gas Company.

Ingrid Paulson, Samuel DeWorth Repeat Vows At Holy Spirit Church

Holy Spirit Catholic Church was the setting for the June 27 wedding of Miss Ingrid Louise Paulson to Mr. Samuel William DeWorth.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Florence E. Paulson, 4968 Vanderbilt-dr, and Mr. Kenneth Paulson. Mr. DeWorth is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Cope, 891 Antwerp-rd.

The bride was escorted down the aisle by Mr. Ralph Walker. The ceremony was performed before an altar decorated with white delphiniums, stephanotis and red roses. Fr. Ogerchock officiated.

Gowned in white peau de soie, the bride's dress featured hand embroidered lace and pearl motifs on the scalloped neckline and continued on the bell-shaped skirt.

Her elbow-length veil of illusion was attached to a rosette of pearls and she carried a cascade of red sweetheart roses and delphiniums centered with a white orchid.

Maid of honor was Miss Marie Sullivan and bridesmaids were Miss Donna Paulson, Miss Kathy Paulson and Miss Linda Paulson, sisters of the bride. They wore contrasting gowns of peau de soie and carried bouquets of shattered carnations.

Miss Donna Cope was flower girl.

Mr. Clinton DeWorth served his brother as best man and Mr. Robert Appleton, Mr. Michael White and Mr. George Cope, brother of the bridegroom, were ushers.

Master Bruce Patrick performed as ring bearer.

A reception was held at the church followed by a supper at the home of the bride's parents.

The new Mrs. DeWorth is a graduate of Whitehall-Yearling High School and attended Ohio State University. Mr. DeWorth also was graduated from Whitehall-Yearling and is employed as assistant foreman at Crane Plastics Inc.

Following a wedding trip to Pennsylvania and the Eastern states, the couple is residing at 1294 Berwick Arms Place.

Rush Party, Meeting Set By Chapter

On Sunday afternoon, Aug. 30, Xi Zeta Zeta Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi will hold its first Rush Party at the chapter's clubroom, 155 N. High-st.

Mrs. Richard Stoltenhoff and Mrs. Kenneth Hendrickson are in charge.

The group will hold its first meeting Tuesday, Sept. 1, 8 p.m., at the clubroom, 155 N. High-st.

A social hour will honor newly elected officers: Mrs. William Johnson, president; Mrs. Bernard McLoughlin, vice-president; Mrs. Raymond Caslow, secretary; Mrs. Glade Grable, treasurer and Mrs. Duane Lowe, extension officer.

Jerrie Mock Day Planned At Fair

Sunday, Sept. 6, has been set aside as "Jerrie Mock Day" at Ohio's 111th State Fair. Formal ceremonies for the first aviatrix to circle the globe will be conducted at the stage in front of the grandstand at 4:30 p.m.

Gov. James A. Rhodes has officially proclaimed the day so that Ohioans from every corner of the state may meet her. State and civic dignitaries will take part.

Beechwood Park Shelterhouse Set

Finishing touches on the new Beechwood Park Shelterhouse, adjacent to Beechwood School, were being completed this week.

An area for dancing is included in the 24 by 70-foot building, and a fireplace will be added at one end later.

Picnic tables and benches as well as charcoal grills are being installed.

Lions Auxiliary Card Party OK'd

Among applications approved when the Chartable Solicitation Board met last week was that of the East Columbus Lions Auxiliary.

The group had asked approval for a card party to raise funds to help the blind. A goal of $125 was set.

Most grasshoppers complete their life cycle in one year, but some species in high altitudes of the Rocky Mountains require two or three years for development.

Barnett Opening Delayed

School bells for the 270 students scheduled to attend the new Barnett Elementary, 1160 Barnett-rd, will ring on Sept. 9, but not at that building.

The school, only 35 percent completed, will not be ready for occupancy on opening day, nor for six or eight weeks after start of the fall term.

Detailed arrangements for housing these pupils temporarily in other schools or in rented church rooms, and plans for their transportation will be announced in next week's edition.

Students will be picked up at the school site and transported by bus to their temporary classrooms.

Parents will also be notified by letter from the school principal.

The progress report on the summer construction program was presented by Superintendent Harold Eibling at a special school board meeting Monday morning.

Koebel Elementary at 2521 Fairwood-av is also far from completion, as is the addition to Alum Crest.

Dr. Eibling explained to the board that contracts for the two elementaries were not let until May, and indicated that the summer building programs should be launched earlier in the season.

Band Day At McDonald Set Sept. 5

Whitehall School Bands will benefit from the proceeds of Band Day, to be held at Hamilton Road McDonald's, 45 S. Hamilton-rd, Saturday, Sept. 5.

The Band Boosters will sponsor the day, and proceeds will be used to purchase instruments and uniforms. Harry Blacker is Boosters' president, and Lawrence Griffin is band director.

Herb Hoffman of McDonald's said that the company will donate 50 per cent of the day's receipts to the band. The restaurant is open from 11 a.m. to midnight.

WORKERS NEEDED FOR 'WING DAY'

The Wings of Nightingale Cottage are in need of volunteer workers for "Wing Day" which will be held Monday, Sept. 14, in the downtown district.

Anyone who will volunteer some time, may contact Mrs. Daryl Williams, BE. 5-6529 or Mrs. W. L. Wayt, AM. 8-5652.

ATTENDS CONVENTION

Mrs. Philip F. Allen, 4126 Powell-av, attended the the Alpha Gamma Delta International Fraternity for college and university women's 60th anniversary convention recently in Portsmouth, N. H. She is an alumnae president.

Bantam Football Assured

Little League football in Whitehall will be sponsored by the Bantamweight Football Committee, rather than by the city, John LaCorte of the Whitehall Recreation Department reported.

Boys playing in the league must pay a registration fee of $3 to cover insurance.

There will be two weigh-ins from 9 a.m. till noon at the Municipal Building on Saturday, Aug. 29 and Saturday, Sept. 5. Parents are requested to accompany their children.

Bantam League participants from nine to 12 who weigh over 90 pounds may participate in the Middleweight or 110-pound football league for boys 13 and 14.

Mark Wilson has been elected president of the newly formed Bantam League. Wilson says that coaches for the league are still needed and any man who would like to coach a team should contact John LaCorte.

For further information, call LaCorte at 237-8611.

PLANNING DEDICATION CEREMONIES for the Rosemont School for Girls are from left: Carl Graf, president of the Rosemont Board; Mother Beata, Fr. Bernard McClary, chaplain at Rosemont; George Igel and Frank Lorenz, members of the board. The dedication will be held Sunday, Aug. 30, 4 p.m. at the school.

Bishop Issenmann To Dedicate Rosemont School For Girls

Columbus' newest residential treatment center for adolescent girls with emotional and social problems will be dedicated Sunday, Aug. 30 by Bishop Clarence G. Issenmann of Columbus.

Rosemont School for Girls, under the direction of the Sisters of Good Shepherd, is located on Dawnlight-av, north of Mock-rd, east of Alum Creek, and just south of Bridgeview Golf Course.

The 4 p.m. dedication ceremony will be highlighted by the Bishop's blessing followed by remarks from local city, church and school officials. Among guest speakers will be Mother Beata, Rosemont school administrator; Msgr. Lawrence J. Corcoran, Diocesan Director of Catholic Charities and Carl F. Graf, Rosemont board president. An open house will follow the ceremonies.

According to Mother Beata, the $1.8 million dollar multipurpose facility, consisting of a school, clinic, convent, residential and recreational area, has been panned and designed to be both functional and attractive. The new structure was designed by Emerick, Albert and McGee.

Mother Beata noted tha the new setting will have many more advantages over the former 160-year-old structure, W. Broad-st and Sandusky.

The new residencies will more nearly duplicate a family living situation. There is a reception unit for newly admitted girls and a transition unit for those girls who are soon to live again in the community.

The new buildings will provide opportunities for a progressive educational and vocational program. The recreational facilities include gymnasium, swimming pool, tennis courts and spacious grounds.

At this time nearly 50 percent of the girls in Rosemont are from Franklin County. Girls of all races, creeds and color are accepted, principally from juvenile courts and social welfare agencies in Ohio. Girls may be admitted from other states.

The girls at Rosemont live there all year with the exception of a few weeks' vacation. There is no set or predetermined length of stay. Release and placement is accomplished through mutual planning on the part of the institution and the referring agency.

Girls receive schooling from an accredited school program which begins at the seventh and continues through the 12th grade. The program and setting are theraputic in nature and include individual and group therapy.

The staff consists of a full time nurse, part-time doctor, and dentist, along with social workers.

Mother Beata noted the modern Home Economics Department, the area designed to study cosmetology, making it possible for girls to take State Board examinations in courses designed with keeping up to date in modern office equipment and methods.

Rosemont, which was originally established in 1865, is one of 400 such schools for girls under the auspices of the Sisters of the Good Shepherd located in 46 countries throughout the world, including South Vietnam and Ceylon.

These Sisters of the Good Shepherd have cared for troubled girls and women in the Columbus area for nearly 100 years. Many Columbus residents know of the nuns' work with teenage girls when the school was called St. Euphrasia.

Rev. L. G. Refsell

Capital U. Picks Campus Pastor

Rev. Lloyd G. Refsell has assumed duties as campus pastor at Capital University on a full-time basis.

He will be in charge of the university's twice a week chapel programs and will supervise the student congregation.

Rev. Refsell was graduated from St. Olaf College and holds advanced degrees, including a doctorate, from the Luther Seminary in St. Paul, Minn., Princeton and the Lutheran School of Theology, Maywood, Ill. He also has studied in Copenhagen, Denmark.

From 1947 to 1949, he was assistant professor in religion at Wittenberg University and from 1956 to 1962 was associated with the philosophy department at Dana University.

He held parish ministries in Weehawken, N. J., and in Sparta, Wisc. In addition, he was assistant chaplain at the Menninger Institute at Topeka State Hospital, Topeka, Kas., and worked with alcoholics at the Willmer State Hospital, Willmer, Minn.

He and his wife, Marguerite, reside at 529 S. Drexel-av, with two sons, Jonathan, 16, and Olaf, 15. An older son, Paul, 20, attends Dana University, while Stephen, 19, is a sophomore at St. Olaf College.

Rev. Refsell succeeds Professor David Owens, of the English department, who handled the chapel program last year on a part-time basis in addition to his teaching duties.

'Milk and Honey' Is Rabbi's Topic

Sabbath Services will be held at Temple Tifereth Israel Friday, Aug. 28, 8 p.m. with Rabbi Nathan Zelizer conducting and Cantor Stanley Burstein chanting the traditional liturgy.

Services on Saturday morning begin at 9:15 a.m. Rabbi Zelizer will speak on "A Land of Milk and Honey." The Bar Mitzvah of Steven Barry Silverstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Silverstein, 2707 Sonata-dr, will be celebrated.

Rabbi Nathan Zelizer participated on "Open Mike" on WBNS Wednesday, Aug. 26, at 2:10 p.m.

Drive-In To Show 'Angel In Ebony'

The Christian Free Drive-In Theatre located just south of 1900 W. Mound-st, Saturday and Sunday night, Aug. 29-30 at 8:15 is showing "Angel In Ebony" in color.

This is the true-life story of Sammy Morris, an African prince whose miraculous conversion in the jungles of Africa began a series of events that were to alter the course of an American University and transform the lives of those he met.

Free pop for each child 15 years old or under and the church group having the largest number present on Saturday night will receive a large painting of Christ by Sallman

Denise Strait, 3, Leaves Hospital

Denise Strait, three, of 390 Beaver-av, was released Aug. 25 from Children's Hospital.

She had suffered internal injuries and a fractured skull Aug. 19 when a parked car rolled over her after a six-year-old companion released the gear shift, police reported.

In 1889, Gustave Eiffel and a group of top-hatted officials struggled up the Eiffel Tower's 1,900 steps to plant the French flag atop what was then the world's tallest structure.

"If I take the wings of the morning, and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea: even there shall thy hand lead me, and thy right hand shall hold me." Psalms 139:9, 10.

What a wonderful promise. No matter where we go or what we do, God is willing to lead us and is there to help us.

Another comforting scripture recalling God's love toward us is this: "How precious also are thy thoughts unto me, O God! How great is the sum of them! If I should count them, they are more in number than the sand." Psalm 139:17, 18.

It is comforting and pleasant to let our thoughts wing upward to verses like these.

We invite you to read your Bible and attend church this week.

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH
THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

'Rama Thins Will Sprint At Fair

The Junior Sports-A r a m a Track finals will be held Aug. 28 on Youth Day as declared by the governor at the Ohio State Fairgrounds. The program will begin at 8:30 a.m. with a parade and many dignitaries will be present such as Tommy Henrich, a former New York Yankee baseball player, who will talk on "Youth Fitness."

Governor Rhodes will present the "Creed For Youth" and the awards for the outstanding boy in each age group.

COLUMBUS is represented by Doug Patterson of the senior age group. He participated in the 220, discus and anchors the 440 yard relay team.

Leonard Dent is outstanding in the high jump and he established a record of 6'4" without having any previous high school experience. The senior boys are well represented in every event and should be hard to beat, especially the 440-yard relay team which is comprised of Doug Patterson, Ed Patterson, Bob Berra and James Scott.

The intermediates have a s t r o n g performer in Bob Likens in the broad jump and 100-yard dash. The relay team is comprised of S h e r m a n Daniels, Carlton Watts, John Davis and Bruce Rayford.

HOWEVER, the intermediate relay team faces very stiff competition from Dayton, Cincinnati, Cuyahoga Falls, Lancaster and Bellefontaine.

The junior boys of Lancaster have a strong performer in Rickey Newlin in the 75-yard dash, broad jump and he anchors the 220-yard relay team.

All age groups face very strong competition from the 30 Jaycee chapters who sponsored the J u n i o r S p o r t s-Arama this year. There were 10,000 boys participating in the program and from all indications more will be entered next year as well as girls.

MADISON TWP. NATIONAL LEAGUE CHAMPIONS

Hunting Bag, Seasons Set

The Ohio hunting season dates and changes in fishing regulations, which were approved by the Wildlife Council of the Division of Wildlife after a statewide public fish and game hearing, are now official.

Both the hunting and fishing regulations become effective Sept. 1, according to Dale E. Whitesell, chief, Division of Wildlife.

FOLLOWING are the species, length of seasons, open and closing dates and daily bag limits (possession limit after the first day not to exceed two days legal limit, except for deer):

Bobwhite quail — state-owned or controlled land (no acreage limit), Nov. 16—Dec. 19, limit 6; public hunting areas, Nov. 16—Jan. 30, limit 6; ring-necked pheasant cocks and Hungarian partridge — private land, Nov. 16—Dec. 19, limit 2; public hunting areas, Nov. 16—Jan. 30, limit 2. Cottontail rabbit—statewide, Nov. 16—Jan. 30, limit 4. Hunting hours for preceding species 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

White-tailed deer—longbow, Oct. 9—Dec. 26; shotgun, two days, Dec. 3-4, limit one deer per season. Hunting hours, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Dec. 3-4; otherwise daylight to dark. All hunting except for deer and waterfowl will be prohibited during the period 12:01 a.m., Dec. 3, to 5:01 p.m., Dec. 4 (deer gun season).

RUFFED GROUSE—statewide, Oct. 9—Feb. 27, limit 3. Squirrel — private land, Sept. 11—Nov. 14, limit 4; public hunting areas, Sept. 11—Dec. 26, limit 4. Hunting hours for these two species are daylight to dark.

Racoon and opossum — hunting and trapping, Nov. 16—Feb. 15. Mink and muskrat — hunting and trapping, Nov. 16—Feb. 28. No limit except four raccoons a day per hunter; no possession limit. Hours are 12:01 to 6 a.m., Nov. 16; 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. thereafter.

Go-Karts Go For Titles

The 1964 Championship Go-Kart Races will be held at the CBS Park Speedway on Labor Day (Sept. 7) when the pits will open at noon and the races will get underway at 2 p.m. sharp.

The CBS oval, located 4 miles north of Lancaster on Rt. 33, is a 1/10 mile blacktop track with 30 ft. wide banked curves.

FREE KART rides will be offered for the kiddies after the races for children (2-10) in special children's karts. Also, CBS will hold kart races every Sunday afternoon rain or shine and a challenge to all powder puffs has been issued for Sunday's program.

Last week's winners were Columbusites Bob Congrove, Bill Rite, Wayne Fitspatric and Charles Sparks. Other winners were Jack Hanson (Williamsport), Carroll Moore (White Cottage), B. Linley (Grove City) and Gary Sterling of East Fultenham.

El Rancho Club Wins, Eyes Title

El Rancho Polo Team of Worthington rode the Poland (O.) Rangers into the ground Sunday by a score of eight to two at the home field on East Granville-rd.

The win puts El Rancho one step closer to the Central Ohio Polo League championship which comes up in October. El Rancho's closest rival is Cleveland Polo Club against whom El Rancho has a one win and one tie record. The season's record for El Rancho now stands at eight wins, two losses and one tie.

HIGH SCORER for the game was teenager Walter Durrett of El Rancho, with five goals. Durrett also plays in the starting line-up for Culver Military Academy's Polo team.

Next week, El Rancho plays a non-league game against Lexington, Ky., at the home field.

HORSESHOE ROUNDUP:

Rome Ringers Cop Crown; Ox Roast 'Shoe Tourney Set

The Rome Recreation Department'r Horseshoe "Count All" League has concluded its 1964 season and Rome Recreation Center's entry has locked up a second straight ringer title.

The Rome entry captured 77 Peterson Points and dropped only seven in the season competition. John Leach of Columbus led the ringer assault for the winners by tossing 64.7% ringers and averaging 109.9 points per 50-shoe game.

OTHER MEMBERS of the team were Charles and Robert Redding, Lester Rose, Howard Anderson, Forrest Dougherty, Carl Young, Herb Witter and Tom Pearce.

Robert Redding of Mt. Sterling recently won the Central Ohio AAU Horseshoe crown as well as the Madison County title. Redding averaged 66.3% ringers in the eight games of the Madison County tournament.

Qualifying dates for the 14th Annual West Jefferson Ox Roast Horseshoe Tournament have been set for Saturday, Aug. 29, and Sunday, Aug. 30, from 1 until 7 p.m.

ENTRANTS CAN pitch their qualifying rounds at W e s t Jefferson or R o e Moore's Dairy store located 1½ miles south of New Rome on Norton-rd

Entrants will be placed in groups according to their qualifying scores with the round robin finals being contested over the Labor Day weekend.

The Ox Roast Queen will present trophies to the top two places in each class in addition to a top-qualifying trophy.

Carl Young of Columbus is the defending champion and hopes to be the first man to maintain the crown for two successive years.

AAU Horseshoe Tourney Aug. 31

The Columbus Recreation Department will conduct the Ohio AAU Horseshoe Tournament at Sunshine Recreation Center Monday, Aug. 31 at the 677 Sullivant-av address beginning at 6 p.m. sharp.

Registration and tourney qualifying rounds will be from 4 to 6 p.m. the day of the tournament.

Center Slates Loop Playoff

The Jewish Center Youth Young Adult League playoff will be between United Roofing and Rosati Super Market as each team won a round in the two-round circuit.

Team rosters are as follows: Rosati Super Market: Mark Peppercorn, Steve Daniels, Irwin Katz, Harvy Wasserman, Ron Golden, Harold Post, Ken Haas, Steve Dworkin, Mike Basolin, Gary Beim and Dick Siegel.

HIGH SCHOOL COACHES, GRIDDERS PREP FOR SEPT. 11 'OPENING NIGHT'

ALTHOUGH THE opening kickoff of the 1964 high school football season is still two weeks away, Central Ohio coaches and players started "picking 'em up and laying them down" in preparation for the big Sept. 11 lid-lifter as early as Aug. 21. At the left, Bishop Ready's new line coach, Harold "Bud" Trapp, demonstrates a block on junior end Mike Ducey while senior flanker Rick Schwieterman (left) observes the coaching procedure during a lull in the Silver Knights' head-knocking drills. In the center photo, Eastmoor grid mentor Bob Stuart (left) diagrams a "classroom skull session" play on the blackboard for starting quarterback Jerry Groves (center) and halfback Ron Bollie. At the right, West Jefferson line coach and former OSU tackle Ron Weldy (center) sends Roughrider tackles Paul Cavinee (left) and Mike Quinn (right) through a "rough sledding" drill. The former stands 5' 11" and weighs in at 205 pounds while the latter stands 6'6¼" and tips the Fairbanks at 240. Area coaches will continue two-a-day practice sessions until school opens, hopeful of finding a winning combination for "opening night" contests. (Staff Photos by Larry O'Harra)

Under Buckeye Skies

by Ken Mack McCreary

'Under Buckeye Skies' In Sunday TV Special

Television cameras and telecasting equipment can take a lot of rugged treatment —of this I'm convinced. Following long hours of rehearsal, the electronic wizards who know assure me that when we go on the air this Sunday night they don't expect my countendance to blow any tubes, fracture any fuses or otherwise damage their expensive equipment. That's asking a great deal—I hope they're right.

Seriously, we ordinarily don't review television fare in this column, but the program coming up this Sunday evening at 10 p.m., on Channel 6, is one which I think you'll enjoy — I say this not because of my being on said show, but because of its content.

THE PROGRAM is entitled: "Under Buckeye Skies: A Report to Ohio." It amounts to a special one-hour report on outdoor recreation in Spectator-land and elsewhere across our Buckeye State.

The comprehensive "special" has been several months in the planning, production and editing stages.

Included in the 60 minutes of the show will be in-depth visual looks at such facets of outdoor recreation as camping, fishing, hunting, boating and swimming.

You'll see exclusive action films of pheasant and duck hunting, camping, fishing for such finny species as muskies, bass, bluegills and carp plus a special jaunt to Lake Erie for white bass.

AMONG THE other features will be a discussion of the problems facing us in outdoor recreation now and in the future and a look at some of the steps being taken to provide adequate recreational facilities for today and the years of the future.

Several special guests will be appearing, including State Representative Bob Holmes, a member of the House Conservation Committee; Tom Hicks, the immediate past-president of the National Campers and Hikers Association; Dr. Joseph Cross, former member of the Ohio Wildlife Council: Dale Whitesell, chief of the Ohio Division of Wildlife, and Ralph Seaman, Public Information officer for the State Department of Natural Resources.

All have some frank opinions which I believe you'll want to hear.

To the best of my knowledge this is the first time that a 60 minutee "Special" on outdoor recreation has ever been seen on TV in the Heart of Ohio, and I sincerely think you'll enjoy it.

SO WHY NOT tie a piece of fishing line around your finger now to remind you to be watching Channel 6, WTVN-TV, this Sunday night at 10 p.m. for "Under Buckeye Skies: A Report to Ohio?"

It's a bit late for some of the youngsters to be up, but be assured they'll find it better viewing than a lot of the present TV fare they watch.

Jim Cushman

CMS Hosts Capitol City Title Races

Jim Cushman of Columbus, one of the finest new-car drivers in the nation, will be piloting a 1963 Ford this Saturday, Aug. 29, at the Columbus Motor Speedway, when the top speed-pilots of the Automobile Racing Club of America, move into the South Side raceway for the Capitol City New-Car Championship races, highlighted with a 100-lap championship feature on the fast third-mile blacktop oval.

Other entries who will compete in 1962 through 1964 model cars will be ARCA's 1963 champion, Jack Bowsher, Springfield; Iggy Katona, Willis, Mich.; Dick Freeman, Harold Smith and Dick Dunlevy, all of Dayton; Wimpy May, Cleveland; Clyde Parker, Detroit, Mich.; Jerry Norris, Louisville, Ky.; Elmer Davis, Jeffersonville, Ind.; Jack Shanklin, Indianapolis, Ind.; Les Snow, Bloomington, Ill., and Hank Teeters of Columbus, plus several others.

The race will mark the first appearance of new-cars in the Columbus area in several seasons and speedway officials anticipate a crowd that will fill the 6,500 grandstand and bleacher seats.

THIS SUNDAY night, the late-models and sportsman cars and drivers will return for an eight-event program with two features and $1,500 in guaranteed prize money.

Time trails, both Saturday and Sunday, begin at 7 p.m. and the first race will start at 8.

Buddy Byers Ranks Second In Boating Ranks

Unlimiteds Incorporated of Detroit, Mich., announced recently that Columbus' Buddy Byers currently ranks second in the Unlimited boating ranks with 1469 points.

Byers has piloted his speedy watercraft to second spot slots at Guntersville, Ala., and New Town, N. Dak., and placed third at Seattle and Coeur d' Alene, Idaho. He also copped a fourth place finish at Detroit's Gold Cup Races with Miss Madison.

BYERS RANKS second in the ratings to Miss Bardahl and driver Ron Musson who have piled up 1975 points in this summer's Unlimited racing.

Most grasshoppers complete their life cycle in one year, but some species in high altitudes of the Rocky Mountains require two or three years for development.

FOOD MARKETS THIS WEEK

What Are Poultry, Egg Prospects This Fall?

THIS WEEK LOOK FOR:

Fruits—peaches, cantaloupe, plums, grapes, pears, summer apples.

Vegetables—sweet corn, tomatoes, lettuce, celery

Meat and Poultry—fryers, beef "specials," ground beef, small turkey, eggs (small sizes).

Other—canned corn, peas and snap beans, frozen potatoes, dairy products.

There's plenty of turkey this summer. So much so that the U.S. Department of Agriculture has placed turkey on its plentiful food list. Turkey growers are expected to raise about five percent more birds in 1964 than in 1963 and turkey meat production may be up two or three percent more than this because growers are likely to carry birds to heavier weights. The four-week period ending July 15 saw about an 18 percent increase in marketing over a year ago.

Mrs. Franks

Cold storage holdings of turkey on Aug. 1 totaled over 100 million pounds compared with 101 million pounds on the same date in 1963. Stocks, near their seasonal low, are likely to build up more rapidly than in 1963 because of the larger crop.

Broiler prices changed only slightly during the past months. Wholesale price in Ohio cities for ready-to-cook broilers decreased about one-half cent per pound. Current prices are about a cent above a year earlier.

As for the next 30 days, supplies of broilers will be up approximately one percent from a year ago. During the half of September and the first half of October, supplies will likely be three percent above a year earlier.

Based on these broiler supply prospects and continued heavy supplies of beef and pork, it is likely that broiler prices will show some decrease during the next month and a half. With this in mind, consumers can expect to see many "specials" on this item during this period.

Egg prices have been going up. During the past month in Ohio cities, the wholesale price of Grade A eggs increased about four cents per dozen. The price difference between large and medium eggs is about 10 cents. Shoppers are reminded that generally when the price difference between medium and large eggs is more than eight cents per dozen, the medium eggs are the more economical on a weight basis. Remember to compare eggs of the same grade.

Home Care of Eggs—Keep eggs clean, covered and cold in the refrigerator until used. Store eggs with the large end up. Cover leftover egg yolks with a small amount of cold water and store in the refrigerator and use as soon as possible.

'Retain Gibson' Group Organizes

Thomas C. Westropp, chairman of the State Committee to Retain Judge Rankin M. Gibson on the Supreme Court, has announced the chairmen of county Gibson-for-Judge Committees in Central Ohio.

Judge William H. Brooks and Arthur W. Wiles will be coordinators of the campaign activities.

Among county committee chairmen in this area are: Richard C. Addison, Columbus; Gilbert E. Easterday, Delaware; Maurice E. Beathard, London; Robert H. Huffer, Circleville, and Albert Spillman, Newark.

The Franklin County Committee plans an afternoon reception at the Columbus Maennerchor on Aug. 27 so that committee members and friends can mark the "official kickoff" of Judge Gibson's campaign in Central Ohio.

Traffic Routes For Fairgoers Given By Police

"Traffic volume will increase greatly this week as thousands drive to Ohio State Fair," Columbus Police Chief George W. Scholer stated.

Traffic will be heavy in the area of the Exposition Grounds, and it will be necessary to close off various streets and to re-route traffic in the vicinity, Scholer stated.

Effective at 6 a.m. Friday, Aug. 28, and extending through Monday, Sept. 7, 17th-av will be closed to all through traffic between Clara and Korbel-avs from 6 a.m. to 12 midnight each day.

Velma-av will be closed between Northwood and 17th to all traffic except fair traffic.

Chief Scholer suggests motorists utilize freeways, Rts. 1 and 71, and leave the freeway at the 17th-av exit, where large parking facilities will be available.

All motorists not going to the fair are advised to use Hudson-st or Fifth-av to avoid traffic delays.

Post Office Sets Holiday Sched.

Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 7, will be observed as a full holiday at all postal installations.

The Main Post Office and all stations and branches will be closed.

No city or rural deliveries will be made.

Holiday mail collection schedules will be observed.

Outgoing mail dispatches will be made.

Mails will be received and special delivery matter will be delivered promptly.

setting more permanent water rates.

A chamber committee has suggested several changes in the "stop-gap" rate structure approved by council. They have termed some areas of the present rate structure as arbitrary and inequitable, with a deterrent effect on orderly development of the Greater Columbus area.

THHE 12-ROOM, 60-year-old home of Daniel Schaaf, 1844 College-av, across the road from the dairy farm buildings and barns, will soon be razed to make way for the East West Freeway. Fifty stately maples surround the house on its two and a half acre site.

readily available to CMHA for the project the county's share of the monies is not so easily come by. When the state recently purchased county property east of the site for freeway right-of-way, the commissioners announced these funds would be earmarked for the project. A second source of money for the venture is the property left to the county in cash, Florida real estate and 14 acres north of Graceland to establish a home for elderly women as a memorial to Mary Louise Fink.

The courts have ruled that the will which stated the home would be built on the Graceland site may be broken, and a wing or annex to the regular county facilities constructed and dedicated to the late Mrs. Fink.

It is estimated that these two sources would provide about half of the three-quarters of a million dollars that is estimated to be required as the county's share of the $4,000,000 project.

The deeding of the county site to Metropolitan Housing is also expected to provide either in actual cash or as a credit, more of the county's share.

The tenants would be responsible to the Authority for rental payment if their income is such that it is paid directly to the recipients. Otherwise, the rent would be paid by the county or appropriating agency.

Under the present set-up a maximum of $92 is taken by the county from the incomes of those it provides for. In the case of those whose income is less than that figure, all but one dollar of the available monthly income is taken by the county.

In the hospital, which will remain strictly a county operation, income up to $187 a month is due the county.

The venture is expected to cut costs to the county by about 25 percent of its present annual expense of maintaining the home and hospital. Now costs total almost a half-million dollars a year more than the $290,000 collected from the residents and patients.

No one representing either the county or CMHA feels capable at this point of predicting the month or year the project will be commenced.

Huffman did commit himself to the degree that it was of saying that if it were not completed during the 1960's it would indicate to him it would never get off the drawing boards.

AN OLD LOG CABIN was on the property when the Schaaf family purchased it in 1889.

SCD—

withdrawn, city officials must now decide whether to drop their court action or test the points of the conservancy law which were challenged. Personnel in the City Attorney's office are awaiting instructions from the city administration and council.

SCD leaders will have some indication of the degree of local support for continued existence of the district prior to Sept. 15, due date for a $950,000 loan granted two years ago by Columbus upon request of city council. The same councilmen must now recommend whether to keep the district alive by extending the note, or precipitate its dissolution by calling up payment.

Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner and members of his administration have said that they favor maintaining the SCD to handle needed projects that can not be undertaken by the Corps of Engineers.

It is believed that withdrawal by the SCD of its appraisal record will bring support from the mayor for extension of the loan.

Both the Development Committee for Greater Columbus and the Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce have gone on record in favor of the Corps of Engineers as building authority for the Alum Creek and Mill Creek dam projects. But each group has also indicated a desire to maintain the SCD as a [illegible] accomplishing other necessary work in flood control and water management.

The SCD has taken much of the heat generated by assessments revealed in the appraisal record. But most local leaders concede that the main fault lies not with the district, but within the framework of the conservancy law. There has been some general discussion of efforts to seek changes in the conservancy district law.

One plan would substitute the present assessment procedure aimed at those who receive direct benefits from flood protection projects with modified assessments against all persons within the district.

Change in the law, if any, must be made by the Ohio General Assembly. The biennial session of the Ohio Legislature will convene in Jan. 1965.

There is one other important point that augurs well for an extension of the SCD note by the city. An extended loan keeps alive the hope that the city could recover the full $950,000.

If the district is dissolved as a result of the note being called up, there is some doubt that the city could gain more than the approximate $300,000 remaining in the SCD treasury.

The bet right now is that Columbus will extend the loan and thus kick the sod off an agency that some sources have attempted to bury alive.

Let's Stabilize Water Rates

Columbus city councilmen who favor an immediate decrease in water rates might do well to consider the saying "act in haste, repent in leisure."

Council's record to date in dealing with the water rate problem leaves much to be desired. The rate increases passed last March were, by council's own admission, of a temporary, stop-gap nature. They were to remain in force only until a permanent rate structure could be devised.

Now, at least two council members are calling for a decrease in rates because the city apparently will not need funds for water supply as early as had been anticipated. Their argument is that water rates should be reduced by the amount calculated to meet water supply costs consistent with construction of the Alum Creek dam and reservoir project.

They say it is now apparent that costs to local property owners under the Scioto Conservancy District's plan for local dam projects make such projects prohibitive. Council has formally requested that the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers undertake two of the projects proposed by the SCD — Alum Creek and Mill Creek.

There would be no property assessments if the Army builds the projects. But the City of Columbus would still be required to pay for the water supply feature at Alum Creek. And while city residents would save a minimum of $16 million under the proposed Army plan, the initial cost of water supply being built into Alum Creek would be about $3 million more.

The point to be drawn here is this: Does it make good sense to effect a temporary reduction in water rates in the face of a known need for even more funds than had originally been anticipated?

Council should be addressing itself to the more important problem of effecting a stable, long-term water rate structure. As recently as Aug. 14, council members were requested to meet with Chamber of Commerce officials to discuss recommendations dealing with a permanent water rate schedule.

The Development Committee for Greater Columbus and the Chamber had called for a cost-of-service study even before council enacted the water rate increases. Such a study was promised by council, but to date councilmen have not officially called for such information.

Both the Development Committee and the Chamber stand ready and willing to provide valuable services and advice in the water supply and cost areas. Had the suggestions of these groups been incorporated with recommendations of the controversial Sawyel report, the problem might have been solved long ago.

There are important areas of the present water rate structure to be scrutinized in the wake of the promised cost-of-service study. How can anyone presently determine that a rate reduction is in order when the very basis of the rate schedule is tentative?

The water rate problem is a matter of serious import that can and should be kept out of partisan politics. Present members of council can assure a sensible, bipartisan approach by avoiding any short-term grandstand plays.

U. A. Needs Neighborhood Volunteers

The 1964 United Appeal will not get into full swing until October. But campaign leaders are already hard at work lining up the residential volunteers who form the backbone of the drive.

Much of the hoped-for success of the UA campaign rests with volunteers at the neighborhood level. Remember this if you are asked to serve. And remember also that those who ask you to serve are also volunteers. They are asking you to join them, not to do their work.

Those who participate in the UA campaign share a two-fold reward. They help to provide material assistance where it is most needed and gain for themselves the satisfaction of having met both a civic and personal responsibility.

Millions now living as young adults are solely interested in any kind of behavior that "gets them what they want," no matter how violent or anti-social it may be. Respect for law and order is GREEK to thousands right here in this marvelous city of Columbus.

These young punks have no background of discipline or respect for any authority because they are now almost the third generation of spoiled brats from families that are also a third generation of professional paupers and parasites who live off the rest of us and breed like rabbit hutches.

Police officers who are able, honest, and dedicated men are striving constantly to make the work of peace officers more than just a job, but it is a heart-breaking battle against silly and even venal "politics." There was a time when anyone's no-good young ruffian was taken by the collar and got his behind warmed with a night stick. Once was usually enough.

Now if any cop gives some out-of-line kid "the business," his worthless parents have the cop arrested for assault and battery. Then some soft-minded judge chews out the cop instead of putting the offender and his anti-social parents all in jail.

It's no wonder top-grade policemen all over the country quit every year because they just can't take it anymore. Neighborhoods that stayed with the old beat patrolmen method learned who was who and why. Many a rambunctious kid was sent home and his "old man" told, "you straighten this kid out or we will."

Variety . . . by I. F. Howell

"I appeal to any white man to say if ever he entered Logan's cabin hungry and he gave him not meat, if ever he came cold and naked and he clothed him not. During . . . the war Logan remained idle in his cabin, an advocate of peace . . . . I had even thought to live with you but for the injuries of one man . . . Logan never felt fear . . . He will not turn his back to save his life. Who is there to mourn for Logan? Not one."

So spoke the Mingo Chief Logan almost two centuries ago under the Pickaway County elm that bears his name. The occasion was the signing of the 1774 treaty ending Lord Dunmore's war against the Shawnee and other Indian tribes of the Northwest Territory, securing their neutrality in the following War of the Revolution.

The death of the famous tree has been reported in recent news items. The small park surrounding it is preserved by the Ohio Historical Society. It is on Ohio 361 a mile east of U.S. 23. Besides the society's markers, there are others bearing Logan's speech, telling about the Captain John Boggs cabin, and describing Captain Michael Cresap's service in the Revolution and his burial in Trinity churchyard in New York City.

Actually Logan was called a "chief" by courtesy only. Born in Pennsylvania's Susquehanna Valley, he took the name of James Logan, a respected Quaker member of the Provincial Council that secured the good will of the Indians by fair dealing with them. The Indian Logan became an honored leader and orator among his fellow Mingoes, but not an elected chief.

It says here . . .

A just cause often attracts its own eloquent defense.

Methodist Youth Delegates Show The Way

To The Editor:

One of the outstanding accomplishments of the Ohio Annual Conference of the Methodist Church, held at Lakeside, O., this past June, was achieved not by the adult delegates but by the youth delegates in the form of the first annual report of the Methodist Youth Fellowship. Some 400 youth delegates, each chosen by his local church, representing 50,000 senior high-age Methodist youth in western and southern Ohio, spent three days in serious discussion and debate of a preliminary draft of the church's responsibility in the areas of faith, witness, outreach, citizenship and fellowship. Out of these sometimes heated deliberations, conducted by the youth themselves, this report came.

The seriousness with which they took their task can be seen in the hotly contested debate over whether they should be "opposed" or "actively opposed" to smoking. The "actively opposed" group won.

The efforts of these youth are but one example of what youth themselves can accomplish by constructively working together in democratic deliberation. This is in contrast to the often publicized delinquent acts in which a minority of youth are involved

The report, prepared by the youth themselves, stated in part:

"It has always been important to witness for Christ, but in our society today it is even more important since many people are over-emphasizing money, sex and other material pleasures rather than finding joy and peace in serving God. Christian youth believe they must witness to Christ every day in every way by thinking, acting and speaking out for what they believe."

"In light of the recent report of the dangers of smoking to health, we as Christians must take a stand against it. We believe that smoking is a slow suicide which is immoral by our Christian teachings. We have been made aware of the consequences of smoking, and the only Christian attitude possible is one of active opposition."

"Drinking is similar to smoking in its respect to health, but much more complex. Drinking even in moderation cannot be considered beneficial. Methodist youth must support our church's policy of complete abstinence."

"We recognize the current emphasis on sex and the so-called 'sexual revolution' which is occurring today. This debate on pre-marital sex with love must develop some constructive answers."

"We believe that sex is an emotional and spiritual relationship of the individual which cannot be regulated solely by social convention and civil law. Society and the church have issued conflicting double standards of behavior and have neglected debating the underlying issues."

"The church must provide guidance while also encouraging free discussion of the many avenues open to Christian thought. The individual must make his own decision in the light of his Christian faith with a full awareness of sex as being but a part of the whole person."

Slams Ohio Slogan

To The Editor:

"Profit Is Not A Dirty Word In Ohio" is the insinuating slogan of the Rhodes exclusively big-business administration. It falsely implies that profit is a dirty word in other states and was in the DiSalle regime.

This insulting motto which discounts average intelligence has failed to attract appreciable business to Ohio or produce the 200,000 jobs Rhodes promised. Automation is eliminating jobs.

The deplorable fact is that profit is the only word in the Rhodes vocabulary. The general welfare of Ohio is an obsolete consideration.

How long will Ohioans tolerate this selfish administration which frowns on federal aid but accepts it and which is accumulating a tax burden of interest on very expensive bond financing which will prove to be a cruel load on Ohio taxpayers who foolishly hoped they could escape the responsibility of taxes?

Pay-as-you-go has been replaced with mortgaging Ohio to the banks and bond-holders.

Repairing Glenwood

To The Editor:

In reply to the letter to the editor regarding Glenwood Recreation Center, the City Recreation Department has extensive repair work either under contract or being advertised for bids for the following repairs:

A new roof for the center, replacing of gutters and downspouts, redesigning roof overhang, painting of all outside trim, a new sidewalk and steps, replacing all outside doors with metal ones and adding additional lights to the park area.

Inside the recreation center wooden steps will be replaced with metal and concrete ones, installation of fluorescent lights, plastering and painting of rooms and replacing ceiling and floor tile, repair to toilet and shower facilities, redesigning locker room, new inside doors and remodeling and new equipment for kitchen and crafts room.

Participants at the recreation center have been parking their cars on Fairmont-av due to the fact the center has no parking lot. The present plans are to construct a parking lot for some 30 cars.

The tennis courts at Glenwood are repaired with new blacktop, new net poles and painting of the court lines. Tennis is played on the tennis courts in the spring and fall as well as the summer.

Overcrowding Sours Milk Of Kindness

The other day I received a letter from John Inman, a farmer of Smithland, Iowa, not far from Sioux City. He just wanted to tell me about his neighbors. Let me quote:

"On July 1, I sustained a fractured vertebra in a hay stacker accident and just returned Saturday from the hospital. I found that a few days after my mishap eight of my neighbors had come in and stacked part of the hay. A couple of days after that, with the temperature at 93 and the humidity almost as high, 18 good neighbors and friends in our church, including our minister, Rev. Keith Scott, had finished stacking the loose hay, hauled in about 300 bales from the field, sprayed some corn, and finished cultivating what wasn't already too tall. For this I am thankful. But there's more.

Jones

"Across the road from our home there is a watershed pond of several acres and lots of people come to fish. An elderly city man and his son of about 40 have been there frequently and last Sunday evening were there again. As was their custom the father fished near the road and the son cast here and there and went upstream a long distance.

"About 10 p.m. the old man came to the house and said he was worried about his son. He had been calling him and could get no answer. My wife phoned the marshal in Smithland and asked if he could send some help. In a few minutes the lost man returned and the fishermen departed.

"But immediately after they had gone a fire truck and 18 (yes, 18) carloads of people—men, women and youngsters — arrived from Smithland ready to search. Smithland's population is 350.

"It gave me a good feeling."

Well, Mr. Inman, it should give anyone a good feeling. And America could stand to ponder upon the spirit of Smithland.

A few months ago, you remember, poor Kitty Genovese, stabbed repeatedly by a maniac, staggered down a street in a New York suburb crying for help. Windows slammed down in a 10-story apartment building and startled people peered from behind their curtains. Only after the killer had returned and returned again and Kitty lay dying did someone timidly call the police.

You could have put all the citizens of Smithland in that apartment house. I'll bet they would have swarmed out like smoked hornets.

Yet it would be an error to say that the city-dweller is heartless. His problem is his shell. And he grows his shell because he is surrounded, crowded, shoved and generally inconvenienced by too many human beings. But the shell can be cracked.

Last winter in New York my 22-year-old daughter, new to the city, customarily walked down 77th-st from Lexington to Fifth-av.

"Daddy," she wrote, "it was awful. The days were bleak, the buildings grimy, but worst of all were the faces. Unsmiling, nervous, sour faces. Then I thought I'd try an experiment, and smile at and wave to all the 'regulars' —the cops on the corners, the news dealers, the janitors and doormen.

"Within a month I was walking down a rosy bower of smiles, and on the days after I had taken the subway or bus people asked if anything had been the matter."

In Hong Kong harbor the crowd on the ferry pays little attention to the floating corpse of a child. In the Calcutta dawn passersby step over the bodies of homeless refugees who have died in the doorways during the night. Yet at the death of a man like Jawaharlal Nehru, who, whatever his faults, had the wonderful magnetism of love, millions gather in anguish.

The chief evil of overpopulation is that gradually we come to see crowds but not men and women. We have to be reminded that the mass is only a collection of individuals. Where there is more space than men we don't need to be reminded, and even where the midnight stranger could mean peril, the door is opened.

Nevada in the middle '90s was full of tough hombres. Late one night in their ranch shanty along the Humboldt River my father's roundup outfit was awakened to hoofbeats. The lantern was lit and waved and six dusty, tired men came in. Quickly the Chinese cook heated the bacon and beans, brewed the coffee and cut the bread.

"Where you boys headed?"

"Why, we're fixin' to hold up the Overland Limited down near Golconda."

There was a good laugh around and at dawn the visitors whooped away, shouting their thanks. Darned if they didn't hold up the Overland. But even the sheriff agreed that strangers ought to be entertained.

"For I was an hungred, and ye gave me meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink: I was a stranger and ye took me in."

All honor to Smithland, Iowa, where the message from St. Matthew is remembered!

Everyone Must Meet Spiritual Crises

Again as we live the world and the individuals in it are passing through a fairly obvious crisis.

I submit to you that each of us is constantly faced with many crises. These that involve the world always seem especially awesome. Yet you and I are involved in these large crises even as we are faced with those of lesser degree with the same possibility of eternal death as a consequence of our decision.

Rev. Mann

You see, a crisis in our lives is nothing less and nothing more than an event which demands decision, our decision. In the case of the president of our United States, each of us has given him the right to make decisions for us. As individuals who believe in Christ, we have also faced a crisis and made a decision to believe in him, to follow him.

It is right here in our contemporary society that we find our decisions to be frequently uncomfortable. We don't like to remember that after having made a decision we must accept the consequence of it.

Being a citizen of the United States means I will accept the responsibilities of citizenship; being a disciple of Jesus Christ means that I will accept the responsibilities of discipleship; I may not like one bit performing in accord with what I know these responsibilities to be. But knowing what is right according to God's truth I am faced with the crisis of doing God's truth or rejecting it.

Christ was continually faced with the task of showing reluctant, sinful men their inconsistency of what they professed, as against the way in which they acted. There were constant attempts to evade personal responsibility even as men today want the rights and privileges of this life under God without the responsibility.

Read Luke 10:23-37.

People today continue to ask, "Who is my neighbor?"

"What would God have me do to serve my neighbor?"

Christ has given us the answer in the living of His life with complete obedience to His Father in Heaven.

"And Jesus said, 'Go and do likewise'."

The crisis we face today is whether we will obediently answer his command or whether we will disobey.

'A Thousand Clowns' Current Kenley Production At Vets

No stranger to Columbus theatergoers, Van Johnson has the leading role in John Kenley's current production, "A Thousand Clowns."

The versatile showman has achieved star status in theater, motion pictures, television and night clubs.

His present role in "A Thousand Clowns" follows success on Broadway in Garson Kanin's "Come On Strong," co-starring Carroll Baker; a tour of leading theaters throughout the country in "Bye Bye Birdie," and a previous tour of "Mud Man."

A recent headline appearance on the "Ed Sullivan Show" demonstrated Van's abilities as a song-dance-and-patter man.

Van hails from Newport, R. I., where he was graduated from high school with a football letter. After graduation, he went to work for his father, a plumbing contractor.

His first Broadway job was in the chorus of "New Faces," and he worked occasional productions afterwards. In the meantime, he studied acting, singing and dancing. While working in the singing-dancing group of eight men that supported Mary Martin at the Rainbow Room atop Rockefeller Center, he landed a small role in the 1942 hit musical, "Too Many Girls." Next he understudied Gene Kelly, the star of "Pal Joey."

Van Johnson

He was summoned to Hollywood by Warner Bros., but was landed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, which signed him to an exclusive contract. His career spanned the 15 years when movies were at the height of popularity.

"A Thousand Clowns" was penned by Herb Gardner, who gave up his comic strip, "The Nebbishes," to complete the script. Instead of offering the play to an agent, he collared the man he thought was the logical star for it, Jason Robards, Jr.

After Robards was free, Gardner took his combined package of play-and-star to producers Fred Coe and Arthur Cantor, who had just succeeded with "The Tenth Man" and "Gideon."

"A Thousand Clowns" opened in New York on Apr. 6, 1962, and continued for over a year.

STARS STUDY SCRIPT

CONFERRING ON THE SCRIPT in the upcoming Kenley musical, "Little Me" which opens the week of Sept. 1 are, from left: Gordon Mumford, conductor for all Kenley musicals; Mickey Deems, co-star with Phyllis McGuire; Phyllis; Leslie Cutter, producer for all Kenley musicals.

'Little Me' Production Stars Phyllis McGuire

Kenley Players present the former Broadway Sid Caesar smash musical, "Little Me," at Vets Memorial the week of Sept. 1. The rendering is a satiric treatment of the meteoric rise of a small town girl, Belle Poitrine, portrayed by Phyllis McGuire.

The naughty-but-nice story is based on Belle's "mistakes" which have the fortunate habit of paying off.

Portraying the many men in her life is Mickey Deems, the Broadway understudy to Sid Caesar. He was also featured in the Broadway musical.

The production is based on the best selling novel of the same title by Patrick Dennis, author of "Auntie Mamie."

A series of sketches, songs and dances trace the failures and foibles of Belle.

Ann Mitchel plays the older Belle who tells her story to Patrick Dennis, portrayed by Charles Caron.

The show's big dance production is "Rich Kid's Rag," choreographed by Mario Meiolla.

The show stopping song, "I've Got Your Number," is sung and danced by Eddie Gasper.

A take off on the silent film era is Jack Lee's and Bob Gorman's portrayal of the Buchsbaum Brothers, self-styled Hollywood producers.

OPENS

MARIAM PRATHER, well-known piano stylist, opens Monday, Aug. 31, at the Suburban Steak House, 1130 Dublin-rd. Mariam presents her keyboard magic Monday through Thursday from 7 p.m. until midnight; and Friday and Saturday from 7 p.m. until 1 a.m. Selections include show tunes, blues, jazz and favorite requests.

Color Programs

TV-4 will average more than 50 hours of color per week this fall. The 50-hour total is based on regular programming and does not count special and sporting events to be added periodically.

The line-up includes the week-night "Jamboree" at 7 p.m., "That Was the Week That Was," Tuesdays at 9:30 p.m., "Flipper" and "Mr. Magoo" Saturday nights, and several specials starring Jonathan Winters.

The schedule most Wednesday nights on TV-4 will be solid color from 7 p.m. until 1 a.m. with only a half-hour of black and white for news, weather and sports.

THEATER REVIEW

'The Jest' Serious Business At POG

By TED BEARDSHEAR

"The Jest" was no joke Monday night as Playhouse-on-the-Green served up great, bleeding hunks of melodrama guaranteed to put cotton in the playgoer's mouth and curdle his corpuscles.

The huge, sweaty slab of life, which is POG's last offering of the season, is based on the theme, "Never underestimate the cunning of a coward."

Set in 15th century Florence, the period piece's mellow drama centers around Giannetto, boy painter of madonnas, whose chicken-hearted quivering has forfeited his beloved model (alas) to bestial, base-hearted Neri, a professional slaughterer of men, women, wine and food.

Neri's brother, Gabriello, apprentice butcher and accomplice in conquests, also loves the painter's beloved who has become the pomegranate morsel of wiry, wicked Neri.

Ginevra, former fish monger's daughter, who of late has been honored with three men's loves, changes companions as quick as a hummingbird's wink and bestows her incomparable favors upon the hero of the moment as the swift battle between Neri the brute and Gianetto the sly changes direction.

By nefarious play on Neri's vanity, Giannetto manipulates his quarry into Neri the nut . . . all in fun, of course, just as repayment for a carving he received the night before from Neri and his brother—also all in fun.

But Neri isn't really the nut. He's just locked away so tender, dear-hearted Giannetto can sooth the loss for his former madonna in a way that any Middle Age priest would find blasphemous.

But woes have not ceased for the quaking hero who pits brain against brawn. Neri's brother, Gabriello has returned to find his beloved in the hands of a pipsqueak instead of his brother, and oh-so-many brother confined in the local version of the funny farm.

How the shaking hero manages to cope with a released Neri and his hot-blooded brother provides the climax of "The Jest" . . . a culmination dripping with globules of suspense.

The acting was superb; the lighting was excellent; the costuming was tremendous.

Special mention should go to Jay Sheffield as the wobbly legged hero, Giannetto. The sensitive artist-turned-avenger was portrayed so convincingly one couldn't help thinking of a boys' school reject.

Donald Barton as Neri was without parallel, depicting brutishness, madness, blood lust and plain-old-garden-variety desire with such convincing assuredness that one was convinced here was the baser qualities of the human animal personified.

Betty Keeney was convincingly fickle and seductive as Ginevra.

Two minor roles deservedly received mid-act applause. Jean Martinez as Fiammetta, a former, now blind mistress of Neri, stopped the show in an eye-ripping confrontation.

And Marilyn Samelson as Ginevra's maid made an exquisitely fat showing with a normally thin role.

Even the dialogue was impregnated with medieval scary speech.

For a real fun night, don't miss "The Jest" which will also play next week.

The real joke is it's a gas.

Drop-Out Documentary Scheduled

"One in Three," a TV-4 documentary on America's school drop-out problem, will be presented Thursday, Sept. 3, at 7:30 p.m.

The documentary examines "why" drop-outs leave school.

There is an analysis of what the future holds for the drop-out. Representatives from education and government examine the relationships between school drop-outs and persons on welfare, unemployment, or in prison.

Authorities on the subject who appear in the program include Dr. Harold H. Eibling, superintendent of the Columbus Public Schools, and George W. Scholer, Columbus police chief.

"One in Three" is narrated by Hugh DeMoss.

Choirs To Perform

Columbus Maennerchor and Damenchor will perform at the Park of Roses, N. High-st at Whetstone Park, this Sunday, Aug. 30, beginning at 7:30 p.m. The concert is one of a series presented by the Division of Parks and Forestry with the cooperation of the Civitan Clubs of Columbus.

City Parks Slate Movies

Movies are scheduled to be shown Aug. 26 at Blackfork Woods and Aug. 27 at Blendon Woods Metropolitan Parks.

"Northwest Wonderland" presents a trip to the northwestern part of the United States, including scenes of skiing, wild flowers, mountain trails and Crater Lake.

"Aspen-Winter Mood" is a skiing film for experts and beginners highlighting a winter vacation at Aspen in the Colorado Rockies.

LEIS TOOK THE PLACE of ties and sarongs replaced the men's suits at this exclusive shindig. The women, not to be outdone, were attired in grass skirts and flowered sarongs. From the time the guests started arriving at 8 p.m., until the party broke up at 4 a.m., there was fun and surprises to be had by all. Japanese lanterns lit the way for the "bunny hoppers" at the Richard Kesselring home, 2506 Franklin-av, Briggsdale. The efforts made by the hosts to construct Hawaii in Ohio will long be remembered by those attending.

Lu(Wow)

"Mother and Daddy don't go out often but when they do, they do it up big."

Norma Morse was explaining to her daughters why they couldn't go with her and their father to a luau that night.

It all started several months ago when Norma's brother in Florida described a luau they had held at their home via tape to his relatives in Columbus. "You really ought to try it, Sis, it's a lot of fun."

Norma's brother, Richard Kesselring, offered the use of his back yard for transformation into a one night vacationland and set to work building a grass shack. Two-by-fours, bamboo curtains and weeping willow branches were assembled and according to some, "looked more Hawaiian than Hawaii."

Others of the family were busy buying packages of green craft paper to construct palm trees, and fashioning monkeys from brown paper bags stuffed with old newspapers. Coat hangers were much in demand for monkey arms and legs and also for palm tree branches. Patio lights and torches were set up around the yard.

Meanwhile, kitchens were buzzing with chatter and the aroma of cooking filled the air. Sarong stitching occupied the hands of the gals and the hula dancers perfected the dance in the privacy of their own homes.

"It was a lot of work," said Norma, "but well worth it." She invites others who want to put on a luau to call her at BR. 95136.

A JOB WELL DONE was attributed to the chairmen of the luau. Through their planning and imagination, the fivesome provided atmosphere, food and entertainment beyond the call of duty." Sharing the spotlight with "Porky" are from left: Pat Beebe, Richard Kesselring, Winnie Mathews, John Mathews, Sr., and Norma Morse. Other members of the family worked on various committees headed by the five leaders and were rewarded by the merriment that echoed throughout the evening.

Luau Recipes

The recipes used for the luau aren't hard to make, but they took a lot of time, money and willing workers.

WATERMELON BOATS—Slice a watermelon in half and scoop out insides. Cut watermelon in squares. Add honey dew and cantaloupe balls, grapes and maraschino cherries and toss into watermelon boat.

PEAR PLATES—Soak pear halves in green mint juice overnight and place maraschino cherry in center of each before serving. Add fresh pineapple chunks to garnish pear plate. (Another plate held bananas that had been sliced lengthways and placed in orange juice overnight, preventing the bananas from turning.) Pineapple wings can be made by slicing fresh pineapples in half and cutting the halves in wedges to suggest a wing effect.

COTTAGE CHEESE SALAD—Mix together whipped cream, pineapple chunks, maraschino cherries, mandarin oranges, shredded cocoanut and cottage cheese. Chill.

LUAU KABOBS—On a long slender plastic pick, insert chunks of pineapple, and ham and olives. Top each with a maraschino cherry. Insert the other end of the pick into a pineapple candle.

THE GROCERY list belonging to Winnie Mathews read something like this: ham, cheese, watermelon, cantaloupe and one pig's head. Not many women have a "boar's head" on their weekly shopping list, but this was one of the necessities for the luau. After several phone calls, Winnie and four other gals found they could purchase the least sought after end of a pig at a local meat packing plant for $1.98. According to directions, "Porky" was basted in butter and placed in an oven for five hours. After his baking stint, "Porky" became the victim of 10 female hands, who struggled to pry his mouth open to insert a crab apple. Incidentally, we heard "Porky" was a real swinger compared to his cousins who went to the market, stayed home, ate roast beef and had none. "Porky" cried "Dig that crazy luau," all the way to the party.

Story by Janet Michael

WARMED BY THE gaiety of the evening, but chilled by the cold night air, Micky Deems (right) covered her sarong with an Army blanket and jacket. Her husband, Fred, donned slacks and a sweater and Winnie Mathews (left), also took refuge in a bulky sweater. Before long, however, the crowd warmed up during the hula and limbo

IT DIDN'T TAKE much coaxing for the guests to line up for dinner. Food that took hours of preparation, was quickly consumed by the nearly 100 persons in attendance. First in line is Sandy MacDonald followed by Mary Ann Eberts, Bob Spencer and Vivian Spencer. Members of the family who dreamed up and put on the luau plan to make it an annual affair. They claim "there's no place like home for going to Hawaii." And so, the most popular type of party for this summer made its debut and promises to make a comeback next year.

The Wonderful World of ANIMALS

By Frank Miller, D.V.M.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Doctor, oh doctor, can you please, please help me? It's my little white poodle, Mimi. She cries! (I don't know why because she gets everything her little heart desires.) Tears stream down her sad little face so much that she has little dark "cry canals" down each little cheek.

These dark streaks look just terrible. Make-up won't cover them and I'm afraid to try bleach so near the eyes. Do you have any idea what I can do for those pitiful stains? And how can I stop her crying? It is all so very sad. —G.H.

DEAR G. H.: Maybe Mimi's appearance can be salvaged, after all. Her tearstained face isn't due to the fact she has tears (all dogs need them to keep the eyes from drying out) but to the plugging of the tear ducts which normally allow the tears to flow away unnoticed.

The veterinarian uses many different approaches in treating this condition. Often the most effective is a systemic antibiotic (a general, not a local medication) to treat the inflammation and infection usually present.

Once the tear ducts are opened up, the tears are disposed of normally. The objectionable staining under the eyes will then gradually disappear completely.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I like Horned Toads. The trouble with them is they don't make good pets because they die all the time. Ugly was my third Horned Toad this summer and he just died. Why is this, I wonder?

I kept them in a nice old dishpan and put them out each day where they could be nice and warm in the sunshine. Wasn't that a good idea? I fed them morning and night but the bugs just crawled away. Why don't they get hungry? I guess that is all there is to my story. Why does this happen? —B.B.

DEAR B.B.: Horned Toads are among the most difficult of all lizards to keep. Even so, your story might not have been quite so sad if Ugly had been fed at noon. You see, he wouldn't eat at all until the sun had warmed his body to 70 degrees or more.

While Ugly was definitely a sun worshipper, he did need a chance to escape the direct rays of the sun, so you should have provided some means of shade. (Too much direct sun may cause sunstroke, even in a lizard.)

Then at night, this lizard likes to bury itself in sand (partly to keep out of drafts). One more thing, water should be served on clean leaves. (Dishes, and their contents, are usually ignored).

DEAR DR. MILLER: Moose is a three-year-old cat who has never seen the open road or the inside of a car. That is our problem. We have decided on a four-month tour of the country and have to take him along as we couldn't go and leave him behind.

Do we just start off across country with the car windows rolled up and hope for the best? Should he be penned in a cage on the back seat, or what? —L.A.

DEAR L.A.: First get him used to the parked car. Then try him with the motor running and, finally, very short, then longer, trips near home. A cat carrier might be handy, but training him to harness and leash would be even more useful. (It's safest never to open the car door unless someone has the leash in hand first.)

If you tried the direct approach, i.e. his first trip a long one, Moose might eventually calm down and accept the ride in stride. However, a frightened, unrestricted cat in a moving car is an ordeal better read about than experienced.

DEAR DR. MILLER: My wife and I are both in our 70's. We are considering getting our first pet and have about decided on a parakeet. At least my wife has. She wants to train it and especially train it to talk. She says we should get a mate as they talk the most.

Based on well over 50 years experience, I'd say she has things all turned around. I just told her if a male could outtalk a female, I'd give her the bird. What is the verdict, doctor? —B.Y.

DEAR B. Y.: One bird — male — coming up. In the world of feathered finery, it is usually the male who does the crowing, singing and, in the case of parakeets, the talking. Hen parakeets may learn to talk but (unlike the human species) it is a rare bird who can keep up with the male — conversationwise.

COOL CLEAR WATER

Any pet should have access to clean water at all times. The dog is often encouraged to drink more when you frequently provide fresh water. Some cats seldom drink water, and most should drink more. Having it always clean and available may help considerably.

Bird owners sometimes are too lazy to clean the water dish and simply add fresh to it. As a result slime often forms that will at least cut down water consumption. This scum may also be responsible for dangerous intestinal infections.

COFFEE BREAK

Oh, Hello There! I Just Got Home

By ADELINE DALEY

It isn't that I mind speaking to strangers who ring our doorbell, I just don't like getting out of a bathtub to be informed that the Salvation Army truck will be by Thursday. Nor am I fond of standing at the door dripping wet and clutching my robe around me while a divinity student reads to me from the Bible.

These unfortunate incidents happen because the members of this household feel duty bound to call me, and no one else, to the door or to the phone. I could be in an oxygen tent and if "Avon is calling," my kids would insist that I get up and inform the young lady personally that I do not need any moisturized night cream or perfumed bath talc today.

I cannot get to the door fast enough to please my kids. "Hurry up!" they insist as they bang impatiently on my bedroom door as I try to make myself presentable. A messenger from the White House would not get the attention our Fuller Brush man does.

Should I instruct them to tell a salesman that I'm out, I can expect them to announce, "My mother says to say she is out." Which is a cue for the baby to begin dragging and pushing me down the hall, where I have been hiding; thus, I have no resource but to emerge, chirping, "O, hi there. I just got home."

My husband is no different from the kids. "Just a minute, I'll let my wife talk to you," I will hear him inform a salesman, leaving me the task of explaining that we really aren't interested in buying aluminum siding for our home.

You would think that I was the strong-willed member of this family—forthright, emphatic and possessed of an inborn ability not to buy subscriptions to such magazines as Grit and Popular Electronics. If the truth be known, I am so easily persuaded that right now we subscribe to no less than 12 magazines, plus a few that have gone out of business.

It takes all the fortitude I have just to try to turn down the sweet-sounding Arthur Murray Dance Studio girl when she telephones with a free samba lesson if I can answer who was president of the United States during the Civil War.

I try to lose gracefully so that I won't be obligated to accept the "free" lesson by answering, "I just can't seem to remember — his face is on the penny — could it be Millard Fillmore?"

Meanwhile my kids are prompting me in the background, "It's Lincoln, Mom, Lincoln!"

Shall we dance?

"How can two teen-agers visit the World's Fair in New York and make it cheap?"

You could start by going Greyhound to New York. I don't know of cheaper transportation. Then join American Youth Hostels, 14 W. 8th Street, New York City. (Membership will run about $4).

This gives you entry to Mitchell Gardens World's Fair Youth Hostel. Supervised dormitory accommodations at $1.50 a night. You can use their free kitchens. You get bunk and blankets —but must rent sheets. (Or bring one. Sew up a double sheet in sleeping bag style.)

For all information on this, write the hostel at Stewart Avenue at Meadowbrook Parkway, Westbury, New York.

"We are going on our first trip to Mexico and would like to know what to do, where to stay, what to see. Money is no object . . ."

Since money is no object, I would stay at the Continental Hilton, the Reforma or the Presidente. Hire a guide and driver and go to Acapulco via Cuernavaca and Taxco. Las Brisas — with your own pink jeep and your own swimming pool— at Acapulco.

For people on short money: Stay at the Geneve or the Maria Isabel. And take the Estrella de Oro bus to Cuernavaca and Taxco. Acapulco is too expensive in big hotels. But there are a few pension-type places.

"Is there any trip to Mexico where you can go one way by air and back by boat?"

Try a letter to P-and-O-Orient Lines, 155 Post St., San Francisco. Their ships stop at Acapulco and pick up passengers.

"We are thinking of renting a furnished flat in London for a period of 10 weeks . . ."

These are very expensive. I had to pay $100 a week for such short-time rentals. (Though that's cheaper than hotels at that.) The American Embassy will know agents who have this kind of rental. The Time magazine office in London has a contact with an agent, too. They might tell you if you phone.

"We have a day in Madrid between planes and would like a typical restaurant . . ."

Have the taxi driver take you to the old Plaza Mayor —enormous square with a statue in the center. In the far corner are two restaurants — but don't stop there.

Walk past them and down the stairs into a little narrow street and, about a block up on your left, eat at Botin's. (If they're full — as they often are — go back and eat at one of the restaurants in the corner of the plaza.)

Sea food is good in all these places. The specialty is roast suckling pig. Wine's the drink. Or, if it's hot, get a wine-and-fruit punch. Ask for "sangria."

TALK OF THE WORLD

'Bad Guys' Turn 'Good' On Screen

MANILA—The face on the silver screen is familiar — but there is a friendly grin now where the leer was. And boos and catcalls for this familiar face have become applause that competes with the ring of the box office till in Philippine movie houses.

The face is that of a Japanese soldier, and the audience is the so-called Filipino "bakya" crowd — so-called because this bulk of moviegoers comes from the low and middle-income groups.

Twenty years ago, soon after Japan surrendered to the Allied Forces in the Pacific, Filipino movies began to grind out again after a four-year silence imposed by the Japanese occupation forces.

These "liberated" movie companies came back with a vengeance, and the cruelties and brutalities of the enemy became standard fare for scores of local movies made for the country's 5000 cinema houses.

It would have been unthinkable then to depict the Japanese soldier and officer other than as the classic "treacherous" villain in local firm productions.

In fact, even as late as ten years ago—when the Philippines extended a tentative handshake to Japan on a diplomatic level —it would have been box-office suicide to portray the Japanese otherwise.

But lately, there appears to be a turnabout in these portrayals which have humanized the Japanese conqueror to a point where he no longer is the villain but is the hero instead.

The theme and tone of current cinema productions in the country were set in 1960 when an independent film producer featured two of the Philippines' leading comedians in a photoplay entitled "Operation: Straggler" — a spoof on two holdouts in the central region of Mindoro.

In that picture, both comics play Japanese officers who, instead of spreading terror and death as holdouts, turn out to be protectors of hapless beauties from native bandits.

The "bakya" crowd loved it. The producers loved it. So, another film was produced, and still another one, with the former enemy getting nobler and better all the time.

Take for instance the film, "Scorching Earth." The top role, that of a noble Japanese officer who is fair in battle, was portrayed by the Philippines' top male star, Nestor de Villa. The picture was not only a box-office hit, but it earned de Villa a nomination for the local movie awards.

Another big-name Filipino actor, Zaldy Zhornack, played a Japanese prizefighter who befriends a Filipino boxer before the outbreak of the war. The war separates them, and when they meet again, it is in the battlefield where friendship transcends the colors of their respective flags.

The list has since grown longer, and future productions indicate the end is not in sight.

The Manila Daily Bulletin, whose publisher was jailed in the dreaded Fort Santiago during the Japanese regime, recently noted this fact in passing. It reported:

"If the screen art reflects the feelings of a people, it is safe to say that the Filipinos may not have forgotten the Death March but they have, generally, forgiven the enemy of yesterday.

"Which we should do in a world, where our former friends have turned out to be our potential or Cold War enemies, and our former foes have become our staunch allies. What's more, by offering our hand in friendship, we show the world that Filipinos can be good sports not only on the screen but in the real day-to-day world."

How Successful Was Ranger 7?

By ROYCE BRIER

It is probable many laymen were disappointed in the moon pictures. They do not tell him much more about the lunar crust than do telescopic pictures, and they lack sharp resolution.

But they tell much to the astronomer, bringing to view, topographical features of the lunar crust hundreds of times smaller than any ever resolved by a telescope.

The impact target was chosen because of its supposed smoothness, removed from mountains and large craters. The pictures reveal a sand-dune type of rolling terrain, with thousands of tiny depressions, called craters, and larger craters which were dark because the lips cut off sunlight.

Brier

It should be remembered the temperature here was about 240 degrees above zero, while shadows would register as many degrees below zero. This is an almost incalculably inhospitable environment for biological organisms.

In the first flush of their success (one of the most remarkable human feats of all time), the experts said little of this; they seemed preoccupied with the thesis that Ranger 7 markedly advanced the Apollo, man-on-the-moon, project. This was reflected in the President's announcement.

But there will be found many astronomers, chemists and biologists who doubt if Apollo is much nearer because of the success.

In answering questions, the experts were anxious to establish that dust-depth of the crust does not appear to them to be formidable. Some astronomers have speculated it might be many feet, engulfing any space vehicle.

The experts also thought the small depressions were caused by rocks spewed out by volcanoes in the remote past. This conflicts with theory that the telescopic craters were made by falling meteors. There have been one or two recent findings of current thermal action of the moon, but this is unconfirmed.

There may be more Ranger shots, but the big step, set for next year, is Surveyor, an unmanned rocket to land and perform certain functions.

This is a far more complex operation than Ranger. A vehicle would be set down on tripods. It must have a parachute speed descent, but as there is no atmosphere, it must be done by retro-rockets.

Television cameras would shoot landscape horizontally, and there would be devices for picking up and analyzing soil. Later Surveyors may attempt a return. There will also be Orbiters.

Obviously, Surveyor will be much tougher. We may expect Surveyor failures (six Rangers failed). It is extremely doubtful if the step-by-step pre-Apollo schedule, now zealously publicized, can be met.

Things are a little different up there. A newspaper caption said of the last picture, which went blank, that it was due to "noise" of impact. But sound is a function of air waves, so what "noise" on the moon?

JUSTIFICATION — Perfecting an insecticide that will destroy Beatles.

INTERPOLATION — Inserting a dam plank in the Democratic platform by Mayor Sensenbrenner.

PARTICIPATION — Hatching out a setting of political eggs in a rubber boat on a western mountain stream by a Lady Bird.

EXASPERATION — Smashing a TV screen, showing for the fourth season, the same sledgehammer head-pounding ad for pink pain pills for pale people.

RETALIATION — Sending a picture of the Rome-Hilliard-rd out to Trabue-rd to a world-traveling friend who sent you a picture of the Appian Way at Rome.

DISCRIMINATION — Referring by Snid Snyder, Gahanna barber, a (phtt) or a (phtt) razor blade to the one that refused to permit him to be the 16th barber to be shaved by it.

GOLDEN WEDDING

When Grace and Dusty got married up
They drank a pledge from a loving cup:

In quarrels, she simply wouldn't talk,
And he would go and take a walk.

Seven years beyond their Golden Wedding
Towards a good-health record they are heading:

She still stays young, avoiding strife,
And he, by living an outdoors life.

GOLDEN SILENCE

Hi'ye Dusty! Whaddaye say?"
Somebody greets me every day;
I answer, smiling and unharried:
"I don't say anything — I'm married!"

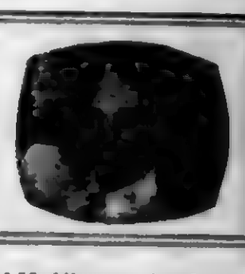
GOLDEN RULE

In the city of the famed board walk
Will be a lot of name bored talk.



The old reliables come in handy —
Like Jefferson, "Old Hick'ry" Andy.

And FDR, and JFK
"Give-'Em-Hell" Harry and LBJ —
But not a single shingle-shaker
Will even mention Bobby Baker.

Or say a word (you wanna bet?)
On adding nine billions to the debt.

Preserving the principle we seek:
The freedom of the right to speak.

Assignment Television

By TERRENCE O'FLAHERTY

Can two speak as sweetly as one? Three conventions ago, NBC discovered they could when they hired Huntley and Brinkley to rub knees in the announcers' booth and talk to each other while the nation listened. The H-B ratings exceeded those of the other two nets combined.

In San Francisco last month, ABC decided to follow the trend by eliminating the anchor man and pairing off a new set of knee-rubbers, Howard K. Smith and Edward R. Morgan. They were as successful as two strangers could be, thrown together for the first time.

..CBS has now announced that it will make it unanimous by replacing Walter Cronkite with the new pair of Robert Trout and Roger Mudd for the Democratic convention. The news was a surprise to the television industry which supposed that Cronkite would be around forever.

Yet, the exit of Cronkite as anchor man was not as much of a surprise as the choice of Trout and Mudd. (Cronkite will be busy with his evening news as usual, plus specials.) One would have guessed that Harry Reasoner and Eric Sevareid would have been the boys to get the top-act billing.

Yet, Reasoner is good enough to stand alone and, as we all know, Sevareid has built his own little tower—half ivory and half gold — from which he views the mortals below.

Robert Trout has been broadcasting since 1932 and is a seasoned reporter with a fine back-log of associations. Roger Mudd is a young man in the business (36), a broadcaster since 1953 and most recently CBS's "Capitol Hill Correspondent."

I have admired Mudd's reporting for several years and I particularly recall his appearance at the St. Francis Hotel here on the morning before the GOP convention opened. It was at a large breakfast held by CBS to introduce its top reporters and network news executives to the civic leaders of San Francisco.

Introductions were made by Bill Leonard, executive producer of CBS Election News, whose heavy humor was wholly weighted by anti-Goldwater assumptions which were improper for such an audience — particularly coming from a major network's electonic journalists whose impartiality should be unquestioned. Or if this was not possible, at least their partiality should not be displayed to such an extent.

Mudd was the last to be introduced and he was asked to comment on Goldwater.

"Despite what one may feel personally about the Senator and his stand on the Civil Rights Bill, a reporter should acknowledge the courage it took for a presidential aspirant to stand by his convictions and vote with the minority," he said.

It was a simple comment, but more to be admired for Mudd's courage in the face of an anti-Goldwater barrage, than for the Senator's courage on Capitol Hill.

And what on earth will CBS call the new team? Trout and Mudd or Mudd and Trout? Any way you look at it, it sounds like an angler's report for the upper delta.

But what they say is more important and one thing is certain: CBS is betting on tandem-riding to get back into the ratings sweepstakes.

TODAY'S REPORT

By ABE MELLINKOFF

In these perilous times, we citizens have to be alert to economy in government. It's a real danger. Everything runs to millions or billions of dollars. So when we read about an announced economy, we don't know if it's a misprint, a saving, or a national calamity.

Like when Washington said it was saving millions by closing a mint in San Francisco. Now the country is running short of dimes and nickels.

Then the other day Defense Secretary McNamara said he has saved us $2.5 billion. Has anybody checked to see if we have enough rifles to go around?

WHITEHALL RECREATION

Free Adult Dance Planned Saturday

An adult round and square dance will be held from 8 to 11 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 5, at the Municipal Building in Whitehall. No admission will be charged.

Friday evening's junior and senior high school dance has been cancelled.

Senior Citizens held a cookout at Hoover Dam Aug. 20. Two meals were served.

There will be a potluck dinner at 6 p.m. today for the Senior Citizens at the Senior Citizens building. All golden-agers are invited. Featured will be card playing and bingo.

Some 250 adults watched the city-wide Playground Pageant Aug. 19 at Whitehall Yearling High.

NORTON

Last week was the busiest of the season at Norton Playground. On Thursday evening, Norton Field held its second wiener roast of the season.

Some 75 children attended. Highlight of the evening was Darrel Parker's flaming marshmallows.

Children and their parents who made the summer season successful are:

Billy Dave and Kimmie Simpson and mother, Scotty Wallach, the Gallich family, the Rodgers family, Mrs. John Kelly and children, Mrs. Millie Fortney, Pat Monohan, the Delong family, Kelly, Tammy and Billie Gibson and mother.

The Trace family, Mrs. Donald Gall, the Federer family, Sharon, Chris and Steve Chapman, the Holmes family, Becky Fletcher, the Darnell family, Greg and Vickie Lachowsky, Terry and Ricki Carson, Butch Sark, Clarence and Sandy Cesco, Terry Kelly, Larry Anderson and Clarence Pitts.

Smith New Blue Plan Chairman

Harrison W. Smith, Jr., of 258 N. Parkview-av, Bexley, is the newly elected chairman of the Blue Plan Coordinating Committee. Smith is a member of the Wilson and Rector Law Firm, 50 E. Broad-st.

He replaces Robert G. Denmead, owner of R. G. Denmead and Co. Realtors, who has served as chairman of the Blue Plan Coordinating Committee for the past year, and chairman of the Interim Coordinating Committee during the Blue Plan's early organization stages.

Other officers elected were: vice - chairman, David A. Pierce, registered architect, associated with Ballard H. T. Kirk and Associates; secretary, Jack Different, secretary of the Development Committee of Greater Columbus; and assistant secretary, David A. Lieser, assistant manager Community Development Department, Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce.

The Blue Plan Coordinating Committee is responsible for developing a comprehensive plan for the Franklin County area and coordinating orderly growth and development of the region.

Work is progressing in inventorying Central Ohio's present land uses, transportation facilities, housing, parks, water and sewage systems, according to Philip D. Hertenstein, Blue Plan program director.

Community organizations will soon be asked to help make a determination as to what they will need in these areas in the future.

"A series of flexible Blue Plan standards to guide us in meeting these needs with the greatest efficiency and economy will then be developed," Hertenstein said.

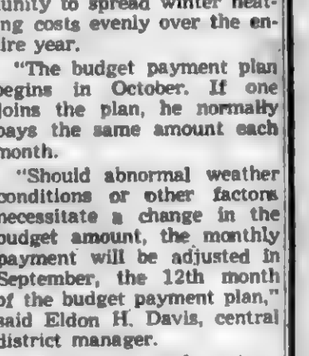
Attending Course

Maj. William R. D. Jones, whose mother lives at 807 S. James-rd, is attending an 18-week associate course at the U.S. Army Command and General Staff College, Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.

The major, a 1946 graduate of East High School, attended Capital University. A 1960 graduate of the U.S. Military Academy, Major Jones received an M.A. degree in 1960 from Columbia University, New York, N. Y.

Columbia Gas Reveals New PaymentPlan

Columbia Gas of Ohio, Inc., announces a 12-month budget payment plan which gives customers an opportunity to spread winter heating costs evenly over the entire year.



"The budget payment plan begins in October. If one joins the plan, he normally pays the same amount each month.

"Should abnormal weather conditions or other factors necessitate a change in the budget amount, the monthly payment will be adjusted in September, the 12th month of the budget payment plan," said Eldon H. Davis, central district manager.

"The amount each customer would pay monthly under the new budget plan will appear on the front of his gas bill due in September in a box titled Budget Amount," Davis said.

To take advantage of the new plan, customers need only a make a check mark on reverse side of the bill in the appropriate box.

"Customers who already are using the old budget plan need take no action to continue under the new plan," Davis said.

Former Ontario Building Hit By Two-Alarm Fire

A two-alarm fire at the old Ontario Store building at 1133 Alum Creek-dr caused an estimated $2,000 loss to the building and $500 loss to packaging material inside, Battalion Chief Elwood Werner stated.

Firefighter Kenneth Marshall was given oxygen for smoke inhalation at the site.

Cause of the blaze was undetermined, but obviously started in the packaging material, Werner revealed.

The blaze burned away part of the roof and drew a crowd of more than a hundred spectators.

The building is to be razed in the fall to make way for the East Expressway.

Ontario moved from the site last March.

Notes and Nubbins: Speaking of nubbins, our sweet corn is just that for lack of rain . . . Western Electric recently celebrated the production of their half millionth switch in the local plant . . . And speaking of big figures, Benny Collins and his White Castle boys estimate they will sell 3,100,000 hamburgers over the Labor Day weekend . . . Bob Perkowski, for some time desk man in our editorial department, is taking off this week to enter Miami U for further education . . . Big Bear has responded to the mayor's campaign to fly the flag . . . and ditto for Hartley Newspapers . . . One of our wiseacre friends advises that Ford has bought a 500-acre tract of land near London and then he confides that it will be used to raise hay for Ford Mustangs . . . Canal Winchester Kiwanians have chartered a bus to transport them and their ladies to Vets Memorial to see the Kenley show on Sept. 9 . . . Word has it that two prominent attorneys are involved in a big, big real estate deal near Mechanicsburg which will later be sold to the state as a site for a correctional unit . . .

Let's Find a New Way

After witnessing portions of two major political conventions we want to go on record in behalf of an immediate study commission to come up with a better and more dignified way of selecting candidates for the leadership of the greatest nation in the world.

When you stop to reflect on the antics of the conventions you must certainly agree that America is where it is today in spite of our way of doing things rather than because of.

We're Going To Build

If everything goes as per schedule a wrecking crew will demolish the old brick house next door east of our plant at 2465 W. Broad-st, next Tuesday.

Soon thereafter we will erect a new one-story addition to our present building which will house a portion of our composing room and provide for additional space for storage of newsprint.

Destruction of the old building brings to memory many events of years gone by. It was here for example that Shank & Saunders had their real estate and insurance office for so many years, and here that thousands of people once stood in line for hours to buy tickets for the old Hilltop Minstrel shows. More recently it was the home for many years of the Hilltop Play school.

Time marches on and the old gives way to the new.

Olentangy Alternate Would Double Cost

By FRANK RYAN

Governor James A. Rhodes will learn soon that he has hit a financial roadblock in his efforts to find an Olentangy Freeway construction design "which satisfies everybody and offends nobody."

Rhodes will soon be told by Highway Director Pearl Masheter that a proposal for tunneling under Ohio State University's campus would double the cost of the $16 million project.

This was revealed to The Spectator by informed sources who reported that a Highway Department study of the alternate construction design would be completed in a week or 10 days.

The study considered radical design changes for the roadway, although there was no substantial deviation from the "west" line previously endorsed by Masheter, Ohio State University officials and Columbus Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner.

The alternate plan proposed tunneling through the OSU campus area, and also included an elevated roadway to provide access roads for shopping center and other business traffic.

The plan was studied after complaints were raised by representatives of Industrial Nucleonics Corp., 650 Ackerman-rd, Riverside Hospital and the Union Cemetery Association. Industrial Nucleonics officials said adoption of the route west of Kinnear-rd would deter future expansion.

On the same day that Mayor Sensenbrenner announced support of the "west" line (May 19), Governor Rhodes held a meeting in his office and call-

IN WHITEHALL

Car-Wash Request Is Still Unresolved

A five-month-long effort by U-Kleen-It, Inc., to obtain Whitehall Council's approval of a coin-operated car wash at 164 S. Hamilton-rd is still pending, after an effort to make the measure an emergency ordinance failed Tuesday night.

The measure must be read at two more council sessions before it will come up for vote.

After the developer, who operates a similar car wash on Jenkins-av protested, the motion to suspend the rules, already voted down by Councilmen Les Ballenger and Gil O'Shaughnessy, was brought back to the floor.

Ballenger changed his vote to "yes," but O'Shaughnessy repeated his "no." Since a suspension of rules requires a three-fourths majority, and Ray Shipley was absent, the motion was defeated. Suspension of rules would have allowed councilmen to vote on the measure Tuesday night.

An open hearing on a request of Wilmer L. Swad for a special permit under general commercial district for parking automobiles on the west side of Hamilton-rd, directly north of Putt-Putt Golf, was postponed until Sept. 15, at Swad's request.

Haytcher indicated that when the hearing was held he would step down from his role as city solicitor and, as a resident of Whitehall, protest granting the permit.

Councilmen approved the appointment of Charles Evans, president of the Whitehall Baseball Association, to the City Recreation Board.

Final reading on the controversial ordinance seeking to combine the offices of service and safety directors will be held at the next meeting.

BEECHWOOD BUILDING READY FOR FUN

A ROUND AND SQUARE dance Saturday evening, Sept. 12, will officially open the new Beechwood Shelter House, located in the wooded area adjacent to Beechwood School in Whitehall. The adult dance, originally planned for this weekend at the Municipal Building, was postponed to the Sept. 12 date. Jim Polzer, Whitehall service director, inspects the completed 24 by 70-foot structure. An area in the center was made smooth for dancing, and tables, benches and charcoal grills will be installed in time for the dance. A fireplace will be added at the west end next year. Polzer, by designing the building himself and supervising its construction, was able to have the job completed for $2,200. Resting in the shelter's cool shade after a play session on Beechwood's adjoining playground are Linda, Susan and Kathryn McLain, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Jack McLain, 4071 Ural-av.

"WHICH SCHOOL, WHERE will we start," is but one of many questions challenging the administrators of Columbus Schools' new Division of Special Services. The division, with its special department on intercultural problems, was launched the first of August, and is devoted to the problems of educating socially and economically deprived children, and inclues the problem of "de facto segregation." Heading the division are, from left, Joseph Davis, assistant superintendent; James Wade, coordinator of the intercultural department, and Eugene Hast, vice-principal on special assignment.

Special Services Divison Begins Experimental Language Program

By BETTY DAFT

A concentrated effort to improve the language comprehension of disadvantaged children in primary grades will be started in Columbus Schools this fall.

The first grade has been particularly singled out by the new Division of Special Services as an area of special concern, and a new teaching program has been devised.

The experimental program is the first facet of an ambitious program of compensatory education, defined as "giving more to those children who bring less to school," and will go into effect in September in those schools who qualify and whose principals volunteer.

Schools eligible to volunteer are those that enroll a large number of pupils whose home conditions are poor and whose achievement levels are low.

A "five-to-one" unit of instruction will be used in participating schools, consisting of five regular first grade teachers and one enrichment teacher.

For the first four weeks of each six-week period, the enrichment teacher would spend one-fifth of each day in a different classroom. The plan would enable her to work separately with a selected group of children who need special help in the functional use of language while the regular teacher works with the remaining pupils.

For two of the six weeks,

'De Facto,' Intercultural Issues Concern Of New School Division

Columbus Schools' Division of Special Services, as new to the nation as it is on the local scene, completed its fourth week of existence last Friday, already confident that the program will be an effective means to its stated purpose.

The new division, and particularly its Department of Intercultural Education, is hopefully eyed as a tool to provide a better education for the city's "economically and socially deprived, culturally different youngsters."

And if enthusiasm and dedication to the task are any measure of success, the division's future is assured under the guidance of Assistant Superintendent Joseph Davis, Coordinator James Wade, and Eugene Hast, currently conducting a study on compensatory education for Harvard University.

Problem Shared

The problem of "de facto segregation" and culturally different groups is shared by all major cities; Columbus differs only in its approach.

By creating the new division, the school administration effectively aimed the entire system's resources towards the problem.

"For this is a team effort," Davis explained, "and we draw on all departments for help in 'giving more to children who bring less to school.'"

Davis was promoted to assistant superintendent from his post as executive assistant to School Superintendent Harold Elbling when the division was created.

Top Negro In Schools

Wade's position as coordinator of the section on intercultural problems, including "de facto segregation," makes him the highest ranking Negro in the school system's history.

Pioneering is no new experience for Wade, recognized as one of Columbus' most able educators. He became the first Negro faculty member of a Columbus high school in 1953, when he was assigned to East High, and became

Walker, Mrs. Jones Refuse NAAWP Demand To Quit

The Columbus Chapter NAAWP Tuesday night requested the resignation of Board of Education president, Dr. Watson Walker, and board member, Mrs. Norma Jones, charging the two Negroes had "disqualified themselves by being "biased . . . with views of racism."

The request was made at the School Board meeting by B. J. Stephens, vice-president of the local group, National Association for the Advancement of White People.

Both Dr. Walker and Mrs. Jones emphasized that they had no intention of resigning, and each pointed to a record of service as evidence of their sincere interest in all Columbus school children.

In the heated exchange following the regular business portion of the board meeting, views on "de facto segregation" and progress being made in the area were exchanged by civil rightists, interested parents, School Superintendent Harold Eibling and board members.

Stephens based his charges to Dr. Walker on the board president's personal opinion, expressed in a newspaper interview Aug. 14, that open enrollment (permitting students to attend schools outside their neighborhood district) might be a solution to racial imbalance in schools.

Dr. Walker pointed out that the statement was personal opinon, not a recommendation that the plan be adopted, and applied to all races, not just Negroes.

And Mrs. Jones, Stephens continued, by allegedly holding an office in CORE in 1961, "had disqualified herself to determine what is proper for

Bexley Approves Astor Project

Bexley Council, on vacation during the month of August, met in special session Aug. 26 to appropriate funds for the planned improvement of Astor-av, from Sheridan-av west.

Cost of the project will be about $13,000.

Next regular meeting of council will be Tuesday, Sept. 8, 7 p.m.

Jewish People To Mark Solemn Days Beginning This Sunday At Sundown

The Jewish people the world over will usher in the most solemn period of their calendar at sundown on Sunday, Sept. 6, with the holiday of Rosh Hashana and ending 10 days later with a Day of Atonement called Yom Kippur. According to a spokesman, these are days of soul searching and reflection. Jewish traditional belief is that God judges all mankind during these 10 days. The sounding of the shofar, or ram's horn, is a call to re-awaken to return to God.

AT BETH JACOB

Beth Jacob Synagogue is again sponsoring its annual program, called Religious Emphasis Week, for the Jewish Community of Columbus. For a period of four days beginning with Wednesday, Sept. 9, through Sunday, Sept. 13, the days between Rosh Hashana and Yom Kippur, there will be a special series of lectures, seminars, films and discussion groups.

Rabbi David Stavsky has chosen for this year's theme "The Three Gimel's of Judaism." The topic "G'ayrim" (Converts), the Jewish concept of intermarriage, and the serious questions of interfaith dating will be analyzed and discussed. The speaker for this session is Dr. Yitzchok Greenberg, professor of history at Yeshiva University.

Dr. Greenberg received his Ph.D. from Harvard University, and was ordained from the Beth Joseph Rabbinical Seminary. He has lectured to various groups throughout the United States, as well as at Brandeis University and Brooklyn College.

The topic "G'ulim" (Redemption) will be discussed by Rabbi Reuhel Stien, an orator and Yiddish speaker, representing the Lubavitcher Movement. He will speak Thursday, Sept. 10, 8:30 p.m. The rabbi will analyze the Jewish concept of man being created in the image of God, his personal redemption in life.

"G'rus'in" (Divorce) the problems of and issues pertaining to divorce will be discussed by Dr. Eliezer Berkovitz, head of the department of Jewish philosophy at the Hebrew Theological College, Chicago, Ill. He is the author of many books, and has lectured in American and European universities. Questions such as "Is the sense of morality in the Jewish Home changing?" will be discussed.

At the Sisterhood luncheon Thursday, Sept. 10, a physician and gynecologist, Dr. Frances K. Harding, will speak on the subject "Morality on the Campus." Dr. Harding is associated with the Ohio State University Health Service.

AT TEMPLE ISRAEL

Dr. Jerome D. Folkman and Rabbi Stephen A. Arnold have announced that "Rights and Responsibilities" will be the theme of their sermons dur-

Classified Ad Guess Contest Winner Revealed Next Week

The winner of a U.S. Savings Bond in the Spectator's "Guess the Number of Classified Ads" contest at the County Fair is still undecided.

The field was narrowed to two — Mrs. C. J. Delamore, 4699 Trabue-rd and Dorothy Clark, 4346 Marland-av — after a third correct entry was eliminated on the tiebreaker.

Don Pocock of Massillon, O., and the two ladies all submitted a guess of 733 classified ads — the exact number of ads in the Aug. 26-27 issue of the Spectator!

Since both ladies correctly answered the tiebreaker question they were asked to submit a list of words built from "Spectator."

Tabulations of their word list is now under way. The winner will be announced in next week's paper.

PLANNING THE GOLDWATER Rally to be held at Bexley High School tonight, Sept. 3, are Mrs. William L. Birch, 906 Pleasant Ridge-av, co-chairman; Mrs. Van Ramsey, 813 S. Cassingham-rd, south Bexley co-captain; Mrs. Roy R. Reed, 2524 Sherwood-rd, chairman of the Bexley Women's Division, and Mrs. James B. Legg, 883 Pleasant Ridge-av, co-chairman.

GOLDWATER COMMITTEE SLATES RALLY TONIGHT AT BEXLEY HIGH

Bexley Women's Division, Franklin County Goldwater for President Committee, will hold a rally Thursday, Sept. 3, at 8 p.m. at Bexley High School.

Bob Sherman, news director of Radio WMNI, will be the featured speaker.

Music will be by the Franklin County Republican Men's Glee Club, Goldwater Girls, and Mrs. Richard McGuire, soloist. Rev. Harrison Gruenler, pastor of Calvin United Presbyterian Church, will give the invocation.

John Metzger, Bexleyite who co-authored with Herbert Philbrick the "Red Report," and C. C. Crabbe, Bexley's own "Mr. Flag Day," will also speak.

Ushers for the rally will be from the Bexley Division, Youth for Goldwater. Bexley Post 430 of the American Legion will provide the color guard.

An added feature of the program will be a special message on tape from Sen. Goldwater.

Mrs. Lola Reese, 1453 E. Main-st, is county chairman of the Women's Division.

Area Youths Are Honored

Terry Keefe, 15, of 3472 Scottwood-rd, and Gregory Nesbitt, 17, of 1738 E. Fulton-st, have been picked as "City Recreation Department Top Teens."

They were honored at an award ceremony given by the department Aug. 31 and were recognized for qualities of character, leadership and personality.

They were chosen by the leaders of their playgrounds. The choice was approved by the sectional supervisor.

Forage seed production in the United States amounts to around 875 million pounds annually.

the enrichment teacher might teach an entire class one day a week, freeing the regular teacher for one day of home visits, and one day to attend a special class to further her own knowledge of compensatory education.

A new cycle would begin each six weeks.

The demand for services of the supervising principal, resource teachers, visiting teachers and other service personnel will be intensified by the program. They will be needed to provide the ever-increasing services of the five-to-one unit.

The principal's role in carrying out the five-to-one unit plan is emphasized, the potential cannot be realized without his cooperation. Therefore, the program will be established only in schools whose principals volunteer.

The ratio of one enrichment teacher to five regular teachers was arrived at as being most effective and "not spreading her too thin. She has more impact added to a team of five teachers than she would have being added to an entire faculty."

The intensified effort on language comprehension in the primary grades is only one of many goals outlined for the Division of Special Services to implement.

The school administration believes all these goals can be realized, but must be approached by degrees. Limited financial resources make the immediate adoption of all goals unrealistic.

Included in the entire scope of the program are, modifying curriculum to meet the needs of disadvantaged children, preparing new teaching material, on-service education for teachers, better communication between school and home, and encouraging joint efforts with community agencies.

WILL SUSPEND PERMIT

A liquor permit issued to Herbert M. Feldman, 1316 Beechwood-rd, will be suspended at noon Monday, Sept. 7, and will continue until two sales tax assessments are paid in full. The suspension was reached after a hearing before the Ohio Liquor Control Commission.

ed the route choice back to the conference table.

Rhodes' Administrative Assistant John McElroy said at that time that the governor hoped to find a solution that would satisfy everybody and offend nobody.

The governor's action leaves the prime "centerpiece" of the Innerbelt-to-Outerbelt Olentnagy Freeway without programming in the Highway Department's construction plans.

Sections of the Freeway from the Goodale Interchange to King-st and State Rt. 161 to the Outerbelt are scheduled to go under contract during fiscal year 1966. (Between July 1, 1965 and June 30, 1966.)

The King-av to Rt. 161 section will not be given program status by the Highway Department until a decision has been made on the route choice.

It will be approximately two years between selection of a route and the necessary planning and acquisition of rights-of-way for construction contract letting. Money is not a problem. Financing is available for the full Freeway route.

The Olentangy River-rd gained state-route status following a hearing in late July. This enabled the relocation project to qualify for federal and state financial participation. When built, the project will be financed by 50 percent federal funds, with the remaining cost divided between the state and city.

In declaring favor of the "west" location for the Freeway, Mayor Sensenbrenner had said: "We fully realize that no matter where this highway might be located, it could not possibly please everybody."

He said the plan was given exhaustive study by Columbus Service Director Warren J. Cremean, former engineer of our school children."

Mrs. Jones later said that "I have for a long time felt a concern for human rights, and have recognized problems in the area at different times. However," she continued, "my work on the school board has been directed always to what is best for all children."

Mrs. Jones' voting record shows she has consistently supported the school administration's policy of maintaining the neighborhood districts plan, with children attending the school in their own area.

Rev. Russell Jones of Community Resources, Inc., while commending the schools' new plan of focusing added effort on the education of children in depressed areas, renewed his protest of the continuing policy of building schools in predominantly Negro areas. This, he maintained, deepens the problems of "de facto segregation."

Dr. Eibling firmly restated the administration's purpose of attempting to find a solution to "de facto' problem but, he said, "Until we find a better way, we will stand with the neighborhood school concept, proven throughout the years to be successful."

Mrs. Helen Paxton, president East High PTA, expressed an appreciative view of the school administration's efforts and progress with, "We came to compliment you . . . we feel the board is doing a fine job, and we are behind you."

And Mrs. Gordon Grigsby expressed the views of Northmoor Fair Housing Association, with her comments that since their children must grow up in an integrated society, the group felt it an important experience for their children to attend integrated schools.

Dr. Walker injected a wry note with his comments that the public was always welcome to attend and to express their views at board meetings and, whatever the reason, evidence of this interest was encouraging.

The controversial "de facto" issue has drawn increasing numbers of interested people at the regular School Board sessions.

Children who have reached the age of six before Sept. 1, or who have completed a regular kindergarten program are eligible to attend the first grade.

Pupils in grades seven and eight who have not previously registered are to register at the Rosemore School, 4735 Kae-av.

Students of grades nine through 12 are to register at the Yearling High School, 675 S. Yearling-rd.

Bus routes are to be the same as last year.

Bus pick-up times: Rosemore School to begin 7:45 a.m.; Yearling High to begin 8 a.m.; Kae and East Broad to begin 8:15 a.m.; Etna and East Main to begin 8:35 a.m.; Beechwood children are to walk.

For further information, call 235-2385.

BARNETT PUPILS ASSIGNED TO TEMPORARY QUARTERS

Students scheduled to attend the new Barnett Elementary, 1160 Barnett-rd, not expected to be completed for a month or six weeks, will be housed temporarily at Scottwood Community and Christ Methodist Churches.

Students will assemble at Barnett to meet buses that will transport them to their temporary classrooms at 8:30 a.m. Buses will return the children at 2:30 p.m.

A shorter lunch period accounts for the early close of the school days. Since there are no cafeteria facilities at the churches, pupils will carry their lunches.

Teachers and patrol leaders will assist the children on the buses, and will ride with them.

Those pupils living in the area west of Courtright, east of Alum Creek, and from the freeway south to city limits, will be picked up by the buses near their home on the regular bus route.

Republican Rally Set Sept. 15th

The Women's Republican Club of Ohio, Inc., was formed on Jan. 20, 1920, by the late Mrs. John Gordon Battelle, who also served as the first president. This club is the first women's Republican club in Ohio, and has been actively engaged in promoting Republican politics and keeping women well informed on the current issues and party candidates. They meet the first Friday of each month at the Deshler Cole Hotel.

Each year they hold an annual rally and dinner at the Knights of Pythias Hall, 697 S. High-st. This year it is being held Sept. 15, with dinner served from 5 to 7 p.m.

Cong. Samuel devine will speak and all candidates, national, state and local, will be presented. William Schneider, Franklin County Republican chairman, and John Brown, Lt. Governor of the State of Ohio will present the candidates.

'Miss Columbus' Title Open To Single Gals From 18-25

The search for "Miss Columbus, Ohio," who will take part in the annual Columbus Day USA festivities here Oct. 9 through Oct. 12, is under way.

Single women who live in Columbus or its immediate surrounding area or suburban communities are invited to compete for the title. Age limits for candidates are 18 to 25 inclusive.

Professional models, past or present, and finalists in similar national queen contests are not eligible.

Entry blanks and contest rules may be obtained by writing to Miss Columbus Day Contest Chairman, Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce, 30 E. Broad-st.

The "Miss Columbus, Ohio," winner, to be selected later this month, will compete with "Miss Columbus" representatives from other cities of the same name for the national title of "Miss Columbus USA."

Winner of the national title will be awarded a two-week, all-expense paid trip for two to Italy via Alitalia Airlines.

The national winner will accompany a delegation of the Columbus Day USA Association when it presents the second annual $1,000 scholarship to Genoa, Italy. The trip and presentation will be made late next summer.

So far, 11 U.S. cities named Columbus have indicated they will enter a candidate. Besides Columbus, O., they are Columbus, Ark., Ga., Ind., Kan., Ky., Miss., N. Car., Pa., and Wis.

The winner will be crowned, and her court introduced, on Saturday evening, Oct. 10, at the Columbus Day banquet-dance at the Columbus Plaza.

She and her court also will ride a float in the Columbus Day parade Sunday evening, Oct. 11. "Miss Columbus U.S.A." also will take part in the traditional wreath-laying ceremonies on Monday, Oct. 12, at the Christopher Columbus statue on the City Hall lawn.

Winner of the "Miss Columbus, Ohio" title last year was Theresa Brown of 2540 Woodstock-dr, Upper Arlington.

JANET MICHAEL

Last spring I joined a group of wonderful people from all walks of life in a public speaking course.

Little did the college student, the clock repairman, the nurse, the fireman, the homemakers and the businessmen know what those 10 weekly course would do for them.

At the first session most of us had trouble telling our names, our occupations and why we were taking the course. Some voices were barely audible.

At the end of the course we were waving our arms and giving talks with real punch and ENTHUSIASM!

A fall session of the Gabriel - Richard Leadership Course will begin Sept. 24, at St. Mary Magdalene Church. This course, which is not a course in religion, is designed to arouse an awareness of personal responsibility in pressing family, community and world needs.

Ten weekly sessions will guide anyone, regardless of age, education, or position in life, in the development of ideas, self-confidence, personality and speaking ability. These talents which can be used to change the world from where you are.

I urge each and every one of you to call Fr. David Corcoran, BR. 4-3638 or Mrs. W. F. Bergman, BR. 9-3012 for more information on these lively, fun-filled-sessions.

Broad-st, at Ninth. Registration begins at 9 a.m.

Seminar leaders on the New Nations theme are Dr. Amalie Nelson, Rev. Roy Schutz, associate pastor at Brookwood Presbyterian Church and Rev. and Mrs. Charles Watson of Malaysia, students at the Methodist Seminary, Delaware.

Leading the "Spanish American" seminar will be Miss Florence Worrell, director of the local YWCA; Mrs. Ernest Williams, a former teacher in Chile and Rev. Donald Pendell, new director of the Ohio Migrant Ministry for the Ohio Council of Churches.

Mrs. Russell Herrold, chairman of Christian World Missions and Mrs. William Pelich, chairman of Literature for United Church Women, will be in charge of the visual aids seminar.

Seminar Chairman for UCW is Mrs. Karl Scheufler. Women's Guild chairman for the host church are Mrs. William MacNevin and Mrs. Carl Johnson. Reservations for the luncheon must be made by 6 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 13, through your local representative or president or Mrs. Bernard Higley, HU. 8-3794.

The seminar is open to women of all denominations and is planned to be of special help to those concerned with program planning and studies.

IF SO, CHECK HERE
TO JOIN BUDGET PLAN
If you are now on the Budget Plan you need take no action to continue.
The NEW 12-month Budget Payment Plan spreads your winter heating costs evenly over the entire year. You avoid paying peak gas bills in the cold winter months. Normally you pay the SAME AMOUNT each month. If abnormal weather conditions or other factors make a change in the budget amount necessary, your monthly payment will be adjusted. The amount you normally would pay each month on the new Budget Payment Plan appears under "Budget Amount" on the other side of this bill. You would begin paying that amount next month. To join, check the square at the left and return the stub to the Gas Company.
YOUR GAS BILL IS ON OTHER SIDE

Would You Prefer To Spread Your Cost of Winter Heating Over the Entire Year?

You can—with the Gas Company's NEW Budget Payment Plan. You can avoid paying peak gas bills—for your home—in the cold winter months. With the NEW Budget Payment Plan, you normally pay the same amount each month. If abnormal weather conditions or other factors necessitate a change in the budget amount, your monthly payment will be adjusted. What would you pay each month? Look under "Budget Amount" on your gas bill due in September. You would begin paying that amount in October. To enjoy the advantages of the NEW Budget Payment Plan, check the square on the back of your gas bill due in September and return it to the Gas Company.

Miss Margaret Hart of 2550 Dover-rd, attended along with seven other girls from Columbus. They will be entering the Cincinnati college as part of the freshman class. Mothers of the new students were also honored guests.

Mrs. Francis Wallenfelsz and Mrs. E. Dean Coffman were in charge of arrangements.

Fire Chief Urges Check Of Heaters

Fire Chief Arthur T. Reddy this week urged residents of Whitehall to make an early check of their heating appliances to make sure they will perform properly during cold weather.

"This is the time of year to make inspection," Chief Reddy said, "so that any necessary repairs can be completed before the heating season begins.

"Almost all home accidents involving heating appliances can be avoided by following ordinary precautions and common sense," the fire chief pointed out, noting that "Any heating appliance can get out of adjustment and should be checked annually."

Among the appliances which should be inspected, Chief Reddy said, are furnaces, water heaters, incinerators and room heaters. All should be checked for proper adjustment, proper ventilation and safe connections, he said.

"Any heating appliance must have proper ventilation to operate safely and efficiently," he cautioned, explaining that burning any fuel without a good fresh air supply can produce carbon monoxide. Vents carry away the products of combustion and therefore should be checked regularly, he added.

The following check list was prepared by Chief Reddy to assure safety and efficiency of home heating equipment:

1. Be sure that the heater is vented to a good chimney.
2. Be sure that the chimney is clean. Blow smoke into the chimney opening to make sure it is drawing.
3. Be sure that the vent pipe goes uphill from the heater to the chimney.
4. Use a safety thimble to keep the pipe from going too far into the chimney. Where it enters the chimney, seal around the pipe with cement or plaster.
5. Be sure that there is a cleanout opening with cap in the chimney under the vent (stove pipe).
6. Be sure that some outside air is fed to the space where the heater is located.
7. Don't use a cook stove for room heating.

"It is of prime importance," Chief Reddy emphasized, "that a qualified licensed installer connect and adjust the heater. This may cost a few dollars, but it may save many dollars in lower fuel bills and it may save your life."

Check That Check!

MRS. KURT THOMAS, president of Branch Four, United Cerebral Palsy of Columbus and Franklin County, is shown presenting a check to Mrs. Victor Warkin, director of the Cerebral Palsy Center, 1036 E. Hudson-st. The money was realized from last year's games party. This year it will be held Nov. 11, 8 p.m. at Bishop Hartley High School. Branch Four will have a booth on exhibit at the State Fair through Sept. 7.

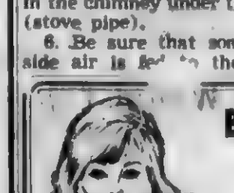
ARTIST TO BE AT SHOW

GAIL RUBIN, 97 S. Gould-rd, shows Jessie Cohen of Heritage House, the picture she made of her. Miss Rubin will be one of the demonstrators who will do free-lance portraits at the Golden Age Hobby Show, to be held at the Gallery of Fine Arts on Sept. 18, 19 and 20. Any Central Ohio resident 60 years or older is eligible to enter hobbies in the show. More information is available by calling the Senior Citizens Center, 221-6090.

World Traveler Slated Sunday At Scottwood

Richard I. Porter, minister at large for the Council of Community Churches, will be guest minister in the pulpit of Scottwood Community Church, 3330 Scottwood-rd Sunday, Sept. 6, 9:30 a.m. His sermon topic will be "Honest to God."

In connection with his present duties, and as editorial writer for the "Christian Community," Mr. Porter has traveled in all 50 states and 32 foreign countries, attending major ecumenical conferences and counselling on the community-centered ministry of the church. He accepted a call to First Community Church in 1951 where he shared pastoral responsibilities with the late Dr. Roy Burkhart.



Mr. Porter is a member of the National Council on Family Relations, Academy of Religious and Mental Health, the Advisory Council of the American Bible Society, American Academy of Political and Social Science, and the General Council of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A.

This will be the final in a series of summer services at Scottwood Community Church. The fall schedule will be resumed Sept. 13.

Services Set

Sabbath services will be held at Temple Tifereth Israel Friday, Sept. 4, 8 p.m. with Rabbi Nathan Zelizer conducting the service and Cantor Stanley Burstein chanting the tracitional liturgy.

Services on Saturday morning begin at 9:15 a.m. Rabbi Zelizer will speak on "The Great Convention As Told In The Bible."

Steel Company Strike Continues

A three-week-old strike at Buckeye Steel Casting Co., 2211 Parsons-av, by 27 members of the Pattern Makers League of North America was thrown into the lap of federal mediators Monday.

The Company met with union officials to end the walkout.

No settlement was made, but the meeting was the first since the strike began.

Chief difference is the classification of pattern repair jobs.

The plant has not stopped production and the picket line is not honored by more than 1,300 members of the United Steelworkers of America.

WHY CAN'T I LOOK LIKE HER!
Much as we love our customers, we sometimes make somebody mad at us! That's the nice lady who comes in, settles down in our comfy salon chair, and looks around. She sees the beauty just leaving, and says "There now! Please style my hair just like hers." Or she brings us a torn-out magazine photo of one of America's top models and says, "See! This is what I've been trying to tell you." Maybe it would be easier for us to acquiesce — but we won't say yes. If that look's not You.

TOTAL AWARENESS — WHAT IT MEANS.
The gas industry's talking about "total energy" . . . and we're talking about a new "total" too. It's a "total you." When you choose a dress, you don't just study the neck-line. You stand in a full-length mirror, to get the whole effect. That's the total you should seek in your hairstyle too! The fashionline you like on somebody else may be fine from the front — but how does it go with your profile? Does it fit the "balance" of your figure . . . and how does it balance in back? (You don't look behind you, but most everybody else does.)

BRING THAT PICTURE
Of course we love to please you . . . so please bring a picture of a style that tempts you. We'll study it together, and see how it shapes up for you. Chances are, we can take a swoop here, a part there — and come up with something twice as pretty. The point is, we'll use all our professional know-how to keep you from being a carbon copy . . . because there's only one "you" in the world! Dial BE. 1-4100 for your "total" beauty date. (But you'll be delighted!)

FROM UNDER THE DRYER:
But you didn't think your hipline had anything to do with your hairdo! Let us show you how better hairstyling can make them look smoother. It's part of that "total" picture.

MARY ANN IS BACK WITH US.

Husband And Wife Work In 'Harmony' At Church

A husband and wife team of musicians will assume directorship of sacred music at Scottwood Community Church, 3330 Scottwood-rd. Lawrence J. and T. Betty Gillum, 3447 Liv-Moor-dr, will be choir director and organist respectively. They have been associated in the field of religious music since 1949 when they began their joint career with Old Central Community Church on Mound-st.

As this church became what is now Scottwood Community Church, they will be renewing many friendships and acquaintances in their new position. In the interim the Gillums have been associated with Trinity Methodist Church of McConnelsville and the Fifth Avenue EUB here in Columbus, where they have just completed their eighth year of service.

Mr. Gillum, who is director of instrumental music at Groveport-Madison High School, is a native of Dayton and holds a Bachelor's Degree from Otterbein College, as well as a Master of Arts from OSU, both in Music Education.

His wife, formerly of McConnelsville, has a Bachelor of Music Degree from Otterbein College where she majored in organ and piano. In addition she has participated in numerous workshops under direction of noted musicians such as Dr. Wilber Held, Robert Baker and Marcel Dupre.

She is a member of the Central Ohio Chapter of the American Guild of Organists. The Gillums succeed Frank Hussey, who is to become organist at Indianola Presbyterian Church.

William E. Griffith, minister of Scottwood Community Church, extends an invitation to those interested in singing with their Chancel Choir to call Mr. Gillum at BE. 5-9310, or the church office, 235-6906.

Secretary Takes Absence Leave

The secretary of Scottwood Community Church, Miss Barbara Sheets, is taking a leave of absence from her duties at the church, 3330 Scottwood-rd, to enter the city missionary field. She is to be associated with the Christian Women's Clubs of America, who work through various Protestant denominations and church councils.

Miss Sheets, who is presently undergoing a period of training at national headquarters of the organization in Kansas City, Mo., attended Capital University. She has been active in all phases of religious leadership and education while at Scottwood Community Church.

The three really great things in this world are a mountain, the ocean and an ernest man at his work. The potentialities of each are beyond human calculation. — Edward W. Bok.

Dimes and Jeans Drive Under Way

All churches are invited to cooperate in the "Drive for Blue Jeans and a Dime for Algeria" program, Sept. 8 through 13. Churches can be collection sub-centers, or money and clothing can be brought directly to the community center, 135 N. Front-st. The center is open daily, except Saturday.

Donators are asked to do the following: pack materials in bags or cartons, weigh them, label them with your church name and keep shoes tied in pairs. Distribution cost is 10 cents per pound. This drive is conducted in cooperation with CROP and Ohio Council of Churches.

"LABOR IS LIFE"
Carlyle

Let's talk about labor — work, if you please, for that is what labor is. Labor has come a long, long way since ancient times when work was closely related to slavery. Aristotle described a slave as "a tool with life in it." In the Middle Ages, labor gained dignity and respect as slavery declined and Christianity spread. Then, later in the 1700's and 1800's the industrial revolution created conditions that led to the modern labor movements. Today labor has gained respect, wages and working conditions hitherto unknown before.

Labor is life. Work is satisfying. Through his work a man accomplishes, and creates, and provides for himself and his family. When deprived of the opportunity or ability to work, man often becomes depressed, even ill.

I Corinthians 3:9 tells us that "We are laborers together with God." We are His hands, feet, voice, and compassionate heart here on earth to spread the gospel, lift up the poor, eradicate ignorance and destroy disease.

Honor God and Labor this week by attending church.

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH ... THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

'Little Me' Star Wins Audience As 'Single'

Star of this week's Kenley production of "Little Me" is Phyllis McGuire, the tall, talent-packed girl-in-the-middle of the famous McGuire Sisters' act.

Last season, Phyllis starred in the title role of Kenley's production of "The Unsinkable Molly Brown."

Phyllis has branched out from her personality role of the McGuire Sisters trio, functioning as a solo performer.

In November, she made her debut as a single on "The Ed Sullivan Show." Recently, she completed a role in Frank Sinatra's film version of "Come Blown Your Horn."

The McGuire Sisters first began to sing hymns in the First Church of God, in Middletown, Ohio, where their mother, an ordained minister, was the pastor, and later in Miamisburg, Ohio.

In Miamisburg High School, the trio sang for church socials, Sunday School picnics, weddings, revival meetings and similar gatherings.

In 1950, they took a nine-month tour of Army camps and veterans hospitals all over the country with the U.S.O.

In Dayton, they were engaged with Kari Taylor's band. This spot won for them a local following resulting in regular appearances on television shows and an engagement at the Mayfair Room of the Hotel Van Cleve.

In September, 1952, they auditioned for the Arthur Godfrey Talent Scouts TV program, appearing in December. Before appearing on Talent Scouts they appeared for eight successive weeks on the Kate Smith show. In December, the girls took first honors with their Talent Scouts performance and a subsequent invitation to appear on the Godfrey Morning Show resulted in a six-year engagement as "Little Godfreys."

Phyllis, with her sisters, Christine and Dorothy, have recorded for Decca records and have waxed such hits as 'Goodnight, Sweetheart, Goodnight," "Something's Gotta Give," "Sincerely," "He," "Picnic," "Sugartime," "May You Always" and "Just For Old Times Sake."

Phyllis will now do solo recordings for Decca in addition to working with her sisters.

Traditionally the talker who handles almost all the non-singing chores in the act, Phyllis has a repertoire of popular imitations.

Critics' Forum Reveals Meets

Dates and speakers have been set for the 18th annual Critics' Forum sponsored by Columbus Circle, International Federation of Catholic Alumnae.

Speakers and book selections include: Sept. 23, John J. Duffy, judge of the 10th District Court of Appeals, will review "The Mind of the Catholic Layman" by Daniel Callahan; Oct. 21, Rev. Leonard J. Fick, Ph.D., of the faculty of the Pontifical College of the Josephinum, will review "The Spire" by William Golding; Nov. 18, Rev. John N. LeBauve, S.V.D., from Indianapolis, Ind., will review "The Keepers of the House" by Shirley Ann Grau.

All lectures begin at 8:15 p.m. in the Little Theatre at St. Charles Seminary. A question and answer period follows each hour-long talk. An informal reception will follow with refreshments and an opportunity to meet the critic.

Tickets are available at the Cathedral Book Shop, 205 E. Broad-st, or through members of IFCA.

Mrs. James Walz, 2759 Chester-rd, is general chairman.

Mrs. L. A. Breen, Jr., 455 Torrence-rd, and Mrs. James Lorenz, 241 E. North Broadway, are ticket chairman and co-chairman.

Mrs. William McCarrick, 2326 Commonwealth Park N., is hostess chairman.

Junior Theatre To Again Hold Performances

Columbus Junior Theatre of the Arts starts its second year Saturday, Sept. 12, at 2370 W. Broad-st. Prospective members may register there at 9 a.m. and meet directors and teachers.

This organization of young people, seven to 18 years of age, has an opportunity to study theatre and take part in all its phases under professional guidance. Each young person has a chance to act, sing, dance, design or build sets, work with sound effects and lighting, write plays or work with puropets. In this way he develops skills of self-expression and communication while having fun.

Members come from all parts of the city. Last year, Dickens' "Christmas Carol" and "Land of the Dragon" were given in 14 performances at various schools, while "The Emperor's New Clothes" was performed at Civic Center Drive for the Festival of Arts in the spring.

An interesting and varied program is planned for the coming season. For more information about the theatre, call Mrs. Herrell at BE. 1-9773.

Women wishing to join the West Unit which helps support the theatre may phone Mrs. W. H. McLaughlin, BR. 4-2106.

Old And New Classes Available At YWCA

Somethings old and somethings new will characterize the large variety of classes being offered by the YWCA this fall.

In the latter category is the Bishop Method of Sewing. It offers short cuts to sewing and is taught completely through demonstration.

Beginning German has been added to the roster of languages. Mrs. Irene Trachevski will be the instructor as well as continuing with her classes in Russian.

A class in various aspects of money management and investments will be offered on Monday evening from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Local experts in financial matters will lead the discussions. Among them are Arch Warren, County Auditor; Miss Fern Sharp, WBNS, TV personality; William McCorkle, instructor at Franklin University and Dr. Clinton Warne, Economics Department, OSU.

A number of courses which were taught last year will be repeated this year. They include: upholstery, knitting, antiquing and refinishing furniture, millinery, cake decorating, flower arrangements, rug hooking and dressmaking.

Both daytime and evening classes are being offered in millinery and dressmaking. The former courses will be taught by Miss Doris Spratley, a newcomer to Columbus.

The morning classes in dressmaking will be taught at the Hilltop YWCA Center and evening classes at the Central YWCA. Mrs. Godfrey Rings will be the Hilltop instructor and Mrs. B. C. Johnson for the Central classes.

Mrs. Lester Pepper will continue with her Thursday classes in rug-making at the Hilltop and in addition will hold a class from 1 to 3 p.m. on Tuesdays at the Central YWCA.

Daytime and evening classes in beginning and intermediate bridge will be taught at Central YWCA with Mrs. G. Eloise Neil, master teacher, in charge.

Oil painting will again be offered at both the Hilltop Center and Central YWCA.

French, Russian, and English for Spanish-speaking persons are also being offered at Central YWCA.

In the field of physical fitness and personality development, fitness and fashion, self-improvement, slim and trim, modern dance, ballroom dancing, judo, gym and swimming are offered.

For the young fry, tiny offered. Combination classes tots classes are again being offered. Combination classes meet twice a week and include swimming, active group games, rhythms and quiet games. Or boys and girls between the ages of four and six may come once a week for swimming, instruction either in classes for tiny tots only or in a mother-child class in which a mother assist her child in the water under the guidance of an instructor.

Brochures describing the classes and other program activities are available on request at the YMCA.

TO APPEAR

EMLYN WILLIAMS, the eminent Welsh actor, presents an impresonation of the great English novelist, Charles Dickens, as one of the Mershon Auditorium great artist series events for the 1964-65 season. Date of the presentation is Tuesday, Nov. 10, at 8 p.m. Series season ticket book sale continues until Oct. 7. Information is available at Mershon ticket office, 30 W. 15th-av.

Prairie Players Patrons Tickets Now Available

Prairie Players, a Lincoln Village-Prairie Township little theater group, is opening its 1964-65 patron membership campaign, according to Jinny Sutton, 429 Sturbridge-rd, Lincoln Village, chairman.

Patron membership costing $3 will entitle the purchaser to attend three major productions during the coming season.

Persons obtaining memberships by Sunday, Sept. 13, will receive a special invitation to the first fall meeting at which a one-act play will be presented.

For further information call 278-3705.

Gallery Players To Hold Tryouts For 'Tenth Man'

Gallery Players of the Jewish Center will hold tryouts for the opening production of the "Tenth Man" by Paddy Chayefsky. Tryouts will be held in the Green Room at the center on Thursday, Sept. 10, at 8 p.m.

Twelve men and one woman will be cast for the production. The playwright has taken the ancient Jewish legend of the Dybbuk and given it a modern setting in a Long Island Orthodox Synagogue.

The 18-year-old girl in the script plays the schizophrenic granddaughter to one of the regular attendees, who along with his cronies, decide that she is possessed by an evil spirit.

The young man they bring in to participate in the solemn and prayerful rite of exorcism, is a successful lawyer who has lost faith in life.

An energetic young Rabbi, a cautious policeman, an atheist and a teacher are some of the other characters.

Final tryouts will be held Sunday, Sept. 13, at 2 p.m.

Information concerning these tryouts or subscriptions for the Gallery Players series can be obtained by calling 231-2731.

Add Color Program

"The Paul Dixon Show" will be added to the WLW-C schedule beginning Sept. 28 when it premieres Monday through Friday from 9 to 9:30 a.m. in color.

The show is an informal, adult, musical variety program, which originates from the Crosley Broadcasting Corporation's studios in Cincinnati.

ONE OF THE new WLW-C series replacing the 4:30 to 6 p.m. feature film is "Leave It To Beaver." The lead-off family comedy stars, right, Jerry Mathers as Beaver Cleaver with, left, his brother, Wally, played by Tony Dow.

WLW-C To Fill Afternoon Film Slot With New Series

WLW-C will reformat its late afternoon programming schedule beginning Sept. 7, when it premieres three half-hour programs and discontinues feature films.

The ninety-minute 4:30 to 6 p.m. block will lead off with "Leave It To Beaver," the humorous sometimes touching stories of the Cleaver family. Following at 5 p.m. will be "Wanted Dead or Alive," a western adventure starring Steve McQueen, who has gone on from his role as bounty hunter Josh Randall to become one of Hollywood's leading men. At 5:30 p.m. WLW-C will present Dale Robertson as agent Jim Hardie in "Tales of Wells Fargo."

WLW-C's decision to drop late afternoon feature film programming and enter the syndicated field was caused by the rapidly declining supply of available films. In 15 short years, television has shown most of the existing film packages. The station will continue to program movies on Sunday afternoon and in the late evening hours.

Stella Becker Studio Opens Classes Sept. 14

Stella Becker Studio, 209 S. High-st, announces the opening of dance classes on Sept. 14.

Early registration is asked to place students in order of age and ability. Students are divided into three divisions, each giving its own performance at the end of the term.

Pre-school classes for four and five-year-olds are designed to create an interest in dance, develop rhythm, coordination and teach the child the necessity of discipline and concentration.

Pre-ballet classes are given to students from ages six to eight.

Ballet classes are given to students from age eight through senior high and college, as are tap and modern jazz.

Stella Becker stated that classes are formed according to the needs of the student, and classes are limited to small groups. She added that students are treated as individuals.

During the summer, Stella Becker and Carolyn Cates attended the Northeast Regional Ballet Conference at Keystone College for a seminar study in "The Crafts of Making Ballets." William Dollar of the American Ballet School gave an original ballet.

Mlle. Verdi of the New York City Ballet Company gave excerpts of Balanchines' choreography. A conference on musical accompaniment was also given.

Information and time schedule for all classes may be had by calling the Stella Becker Studio at 209 S. High-st.

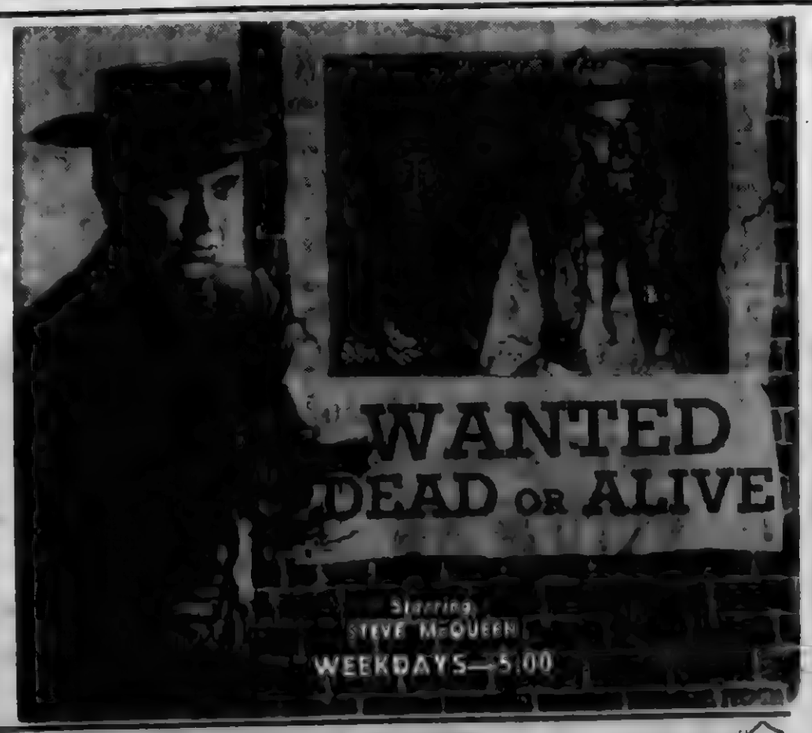
Punctuality is the art of guessing how late the other fellow is going to be.

Tryouts Slated By Independent Players Group

Independent Players Club fall production of Cole Porter's "Anything Goes" will start casting Saturday, Sept. 5 at 8:30 p.m. at King's Inn.

Tryouts for the musical will be Wednesday, Sept. 9, at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday, Sept. 13 at 2:30 p.m.

Needed are singers, dancers, chorus personnel, and production assistants for scenery, costumes, make-up, properties and other facets of backstage work.



Persons interested may come to the Players Club Rooms at 261 S. High-st, third floor.

TENDER, LOVIN' care and a special home-made "soup" are the ingredients Dominic Gallicchio (left) employs to keep his outdoor grocery store at 39 N. Central-av growing by leaps and bounds. Tomatoes, like the ones at left, provide Gallicchios with some 80 to 90 quarts per year in the canning department. At right, Mrs. Gallicchio gets a sampling of fresh grapes as husband Dominic picks supply from the 50 by 10 ft. arbor he constructed himself.

Gallicchio's 'Garden Of Paradise' Offers Gourmet Complete Course

By JACK WITTENMEIER

Historians and Biblical experts have often taken educated guests when quizzed on the location of the "Garden of Paradise."

But none of the guesses ever suggested the 166 by 50 foot plot of ground behind Dominic Gallicchio's home at 39 N. Central-av. After a guided tour last week, we wonder why.

Mr. Gallicchio, who retired from service on the NYC railroad in 1954, has just enough popping through soil in his garden to stock a supermarket's produce department.

You might start with the tomato plants whose lofty clawing for sky is matched only by the fruitfulness of the blossom.

The Gallicchios can from 80 to 90 quarts a year and are only now dipping into their 1962 store. The plants reached a zenith of 16 feet last year and three-pounders, weighing heavy on the vine this summer, are the rule rather than the exception.

Don't like tomatoes? How about grapes? The 50 ft. by ten foot high grape arbor shading the rear of the house produced eight bushels last year.

Of course, there's always the sweet peppers, pumpkins endive, corn or parsley. And for dessert, try cherries, nectarines, peaches or grapefruit. (Sorry, no pears this year. Dominic cut that tree down. The fruit was too small.)

And here's the clincher, Dominic likes to start everything from scratch, that is—seeds, soil and water.

Not just ordinary tap water, you understand. Mr. Gallicchio moistens only with pure rainwater. This is collected in a 250 gallon closed trough piped down the water spout from the garage roof.

The trowel, like the chairs, tables, wrought-iron grape arbor, etc. in the Gallicchio property were all constructed by Dominic who at 75 years young "likes to keep busy."

It's even accurate saying that Dominic's garden contains everything from "soup to nuts." The nuts are of the English Walnut variety and the "soup" is perhaps the secret of Dominic's success, production-wise.

The soup is made by combining the rainwater with manure, which Dominic stores in a three-foot deep open pit. The mixture is then fed through water spout tubing into the ground in the direction of the roots.

Mr. Gallicchio has been tending to his horn of plenty for some 20 years now but he admits its only been "full time" since his retirement 10 years ago. The work day runs from 8 a.m. till 9 p.m. during the summer months ("When I get tired, I rest").

When things aren't growing, there's plenty to be done in the garage workshop. (Dominic woke up one morning last winter, didn't like to see the snow on his back porch and built a door.)

And if you're thinking that no garden of paradise can be complete without beautiful flowers, forget it. Dominic tends to a colorful variety of garden petals in his "spare time."

Laden down with two baskets of fruit and vegetables, we left Dominic Gallicchio busy collecting more tomatoes for canning.

But we'll be back next week. Dominic's promised us that grapefruit tree.

BARNETT SITE SURVEYED

SURVEYING IS THE FIRST step toward construction of the community's long-awaited Barnett Recreation Center on Barnett-rd just north of Livingston. Melvin Dodge of Columbus Recreation Department said he has re-advertised for bids on the center and the architect will be advising the department on plan details next week. Barnett Elementary, adjoining the proposed center, will be completed within six weeks, and the school and recreation center will share some facilities. Surveyors from the H. G. Dill Co., consulting engineers are, from left, Peter M. Tettoni, P. Priede and Russ Wellman.

De Facto

principal of Champion Junior High six years later.

He sees his new duties as "the same, really, but on a much broader scale," than his work at Champion. "We are simply working for the welfare of these children."

Study Situation

The three are devoting most of the first month to comprehensive study of the situation, both locally and nationally. Careful research on other cities' findings on the problem will be followed by personal visits to these school systems.

And although in operation only since Aug. 1, the division will have its first policy of positive action ready when school starts this fall.

"Actually implementing this program, however, is still in the hands of teachers," Wade said thoughtfully. "There is no substitute for a dedicated teacher, and talking with them, working with them, and helping them to do the job is our primary object."

Wade defines the "culturally different" children as those whose background makes them incompatible to a modern world of technology.

Automation Brought Changes

"Before scientific and technological changes," he explained, "a community was staid, its people stayed as long as as they had work. Then came automation to mining and farming areas, and where people moved to big cities. They need help to adapt to urban living."

And children growing up in racially segregated areas "also need help," Wade continued, "to round out their limited background."

'Must Be Challenged'

"Principals, teachers and parents are the key people," as Wade sees it, "and we will work with them. They must be challenged, encouraged and helped to do this job."

Wade started his teaching career as a teacher at Champion Junior High and was assigned to East High in 1953.

Following a four-month cadet principal training program in 1953, he served as vice-principal of Franklin Junior High and, in 1959, was named principal of Champion. He also served as director of the school's adult evening classes, and of summer school.

Wade's wife, Ruth, shares his interest in education, and is an enrichment teacher at Eastgate School. The couple lives at 3308 E. Livingston-av.

He is a 1946 graduate of Canal Winchester High School and received an A.B. degree in 1953 from Heidelberg College, Tiffin.

Realty Broker Is Appointed Local Agent Of RFC

The Dick Strait Realty Co., 7362 E. Main-st, has been selected as the local agent of the Relocation Finance Corporation for the suburban east side of Columbus.

Relocation Finance Corporation of Clayton, Mo., the nation's first complete service for arranging and financing inter-city transfers of employes by industry and business, operates through a network of selected real estate agents from coast to coast.

Straight said the RFC service can be tailored to the relocation needs of any business enterprise, regardless of the number of personnel transfers annually. Companies using the service pay only a fixed fee for each employe transferred. The service has been designed to save companies valuable "down time" when hiring or transferring employes, and is being used effectively by leading corporations in food processing, retailing, electronics, aircraft, transportation and other fields.

The relocation services available under the program include accurate appraisal and merchandising of a transferee's equity in the origin area, and assistance of an RFC agent in the destination city to find new housing and provide whatever conveniences may be needed by the new arrivals.

About the time one learns how to make the most of life, the most of it is gone.

S-E Aces Star Again

The Southeast Archers completed a busy weekend as six Southeast entries competed in the Newark Open Archery Tournament that featured three types of shooting.

Frank Pennington, a Hilltop resident, competed in the Bow-Skeet Shoot (shooting flying targets with a bow) and downed 20 of 25 targets for first place and $40.

RALPH FUCHS competed with three other men as a team in the PAA Open. Fuchs' team placed third in a field of 10 entries and each man earned $15 for his efforts.

A 14-target Field Round was shot and Frank Pennington took first place in the Men's 350 Free Style and his wife Evelyn nabbed a first in the Women's 250 Free Style.

The Newark Tourney was held at the Flying 'M' Archery Center and was sponsored by the Schlitz-Old Milwaukee Co. and was first for this type of archery in Central Ohio.

SUNDAY, five SE archers traveled to Coshocton for a Jungle Safari Hunt (shooting at cut-out paper targets of animals) in the woods and 56 targets were shot. Don Daubitz copped a second in the 350 FS class with a 1042 total score.

On Friday, the SE Archers will travel to Plymouth (O.) to compete in the Ohio Archers State Field Championships when 56 targets will be shot on Saturday and 28 on Sunday afternoon.

City teachers and their suburban counterparts in Cleveland may temporarily trade classrooms here next year in a project to promote better human relations. The exchange was authorized in a resolution approved by the Cleveland Board of Education.

Under Buckeye Skies

by Ken Mack McCreary

'Fetch Your Gun Pa, Huntin' Season's Near'

KEN McCREARY

The arrival of this long holiday weekend celebrating Labor Day will be greeted with mixed emotions by most of us. It brings with it the beginning of another session of classrooms for the youngsters, the arrival of the cooler days of September and for most of us it marks the start of the autumn season even though fall doesn't officially arrive for over two weeks.

Many Spectator-land sportsmen will be turning their thoughts from the summer pastimes of fishing, boating and camping to getting ready for the fall hunting season.

THE CLEANING of shotguns and rifles and the preparation of hunting gear will be pointing toward the first fall hunting season — squirrel season — which arrives at daybreak on Friday of next week, Sept. 11.

Another shooting season which Buckeye marksmen will be sighting for is the waterfowl season. As we predicted a couple of weeks ago Ohio duck hunters have prospects for a rather bright fall of waterfowl shooting.

State wildlife officials revealed a few days ago that they've selected a split season totalling 32 shooting days. Actually the Buckeye state was allowed a 40-day season, but paid a 10 per cent penalty for the split and lost four more days which fall on "no-hunting" Sundays.

THE OHIO waterfowl season comes in at sunrise on Monday, Oct. 19 with the first portion ending at sunset on Wednesday, Nov. 18. The second segment begins at sunrise on December 29 and ends at sunset on Jan. 3, 1965.

The endof-the-year split was chosen to give us downstate marksmen a chance at the late migrating species.

You'll notice several points which should mean better hunting for local nimrods. In both portions of the split season the opening is set for sunrise rather than noon, providing an extra half day of prime time. There are other advantage points noted by Dale Whitesell, Chief of Ohio's Wildlife Division.

The daily bag limit of 4 ducks may include not more than 2 wood ducks, not more than 2 mallards, and — listen to this — not more than 2 canvasbacks or 2 redheads or one of each. Over recent seasons both the "cans" and the redheads have been on the "verbotin" list due to low population of the species. (A fact which gave plenty of marksmen grey hairs trying to figure out what not to shoot.)

WHITESELL ALSO points out that Buckeye hunters may take 10 coots per day, plus 5 mergansers. The goose season is again a liberal one running 70 consecutive days, beginning at sunrise on Oct. 19 and ending at sunset on Dec. 26 and the daily bag limit and possession limit is five geese.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service predicts that "duck flights (over Ohio) this fall are expected to be about the same as they were last year." — so, with the relaxed regulations and the 32 shooting days available it promises to be a bright autumn for waterfowl shooting.

Incidentally, a few one-day state permits for duck hunting on Magee Marsh on Lake Erie are still available. To make application, send a registered check for $10, made out to "Magee Marsh Permit" to: Ohio Division of Wildlife, 1500 Dublin-rd, Columbus 12. Enclosed a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

IN AN ABOVE paragraph we noted that many sportsmen tend to forget boating, fishing and camping when fall arrives. Fortunately, more and more of us are realizing that the colorful, crisp days of autumn provide some of the best and most beautiful days for angling, camping, boating and hiking.

Each fall a growing number of Ohioans is taking advantage of and enjoying the season. "Combination" trips are rapidly gaining popularity — such as float trips down scenic streams while fishing and squirrel hunting — or a weekend camping trip which includes some angling, some hunting and a bit of hiking.

It's little wonder that the arrival of the Labor Day weekend is eagerly anticipated by so many folks — not just because Mom is relieved to see the kids go back to school, but because autumn is hands-down the favorite time of year for thousands of outdoor-minded residents of Spectator-Land.

CMS Sets Labor Day Title Races

Speedster Don Gregory continued his winning way last Sunday night, at the Columbus Motor Speedway as he won the sportsman feature for the eighth-straight-time, but L. T. Cornette had his late-model win-streak stopped at two by Bob "Crash" James, of Maple Heights, O., who was making his first appearance at the South Side raceway in several years.

Last Saturday night, 5537 men, women and children were on hand for the Capitol City New-Car Championship races and they were all standing and cheering at the finish of the 100-lay feature, one of the most spectacular races ever seen on the Williams-rd oval, when Dick Freeman of Dayton, in a '63 Pontiac and Springfield's Jack Bowsher, in a '64 Ford, came down the home-stretch side-by-side with Freeman getting the checkered-flag, less than three-feet ahead of Bowsher.

BOWSHER HAD held the lead from the first to the 88th-lap, but Freeman went out in front on the 88th turn and stayed there for the balance of the event, although Bowsher's garrison finish had the crowd in an uproar.

This coming Sunday night, Sept. 6, the Columbus Speedway will hold the Labor Day Championship races for both late-models and sportsmen. It will be eight-events including a 35-lap late-model and a 25-lap sportsman championship feature and they'll be guaranteed $2000 in prize money.

Time trials will start at 7 p.m. and the first race gets going at 8.

There were three winners last Saturday in the free game of "Total," and no winners last Sunday, so the jackpot will have $200 this Sunday for the fan or fans able to pick the first five finishers, in order, in the late-model feature.

Dauntless 'Fearless' Due Back For '64 Grid Season

Well rested from his narrow escape from the hands of infuriated boosters last season, the "Fearless Predictor" will jet into Columbus tomorrow night.

"Fearless will be greeted at the airport by a cordon of policemen who will escort him to his dim, cellar office at Hartley Newspapers.

Thereafter, the Fearless One will begin penning his regular predictions on results of area high school football games, beginning Sept. 9-10 in The Spectator.

(Eds. note: Please do not send angry letters until AFTER Sept. 9-10.)

RETURNS NEXT WEEK—Back to his shenanigans making everyone feel superior in picking football games, the Fearless Predictor will return to The Spectator next week, preparing for his opening game picks which will appear in the Sept. 9-10 edition.

AT WEST JEFFERSON:

OX Roast 'Shoe Tourney Set; Redding 'Red-Hot' Qualifier

Fifty-two entrants will pitch in seven different classes at the West Jefferson Ox Roast Horseshoe Tournament and the first action is slated to get under way at 4 p.m. Saturday when Class D starts firing.

The A and B divisions will be contested on Labor Day and many of Central Ohio's finest ringer-makers have qualified for this event.

CARL YOUNG, the defending champion in 'A', will be matched with Robert Redding, John Leach, Lester Rose, Mel Montgomery, Leonard Linegar, John Nicholl and Tom Fearns.

Class 'B' will boast the strongest field in Ox Roast annals with sharpshooters Herman May, Howard Anderson, Robert Wilkinson, Francis Redding, Larry Mathews, Charles Redding, Columbus Brickles and Hamilton Township grid coach Glenn Hoddy dotting the card.

Carl Young and Bob Redding have both displayed fine form lately as Young won the 'B' title at the Pickaway Ringer Roundup and Bob the 'A' championship at the same event.

Redding, whose amazing 79 percent ringer total and 251 qualifying points set new Ox Roast records Sunday, also owns Central Ohio AAU and Madison County horseshoe crowns this summer.

'64 Cap 11 Has 33 Vets

Capital's Crusaders head into their 41st campaign with a better than even chance of coming out with a better than even record.

The eight-game schedule shows that Capital swings into the Ohio Conference conflict with a night game at Alliance and Mt. Union Sept. 26, meets Baldwin-Wallace and Akron on its home ground, ties into Marietta for homecoming and winds up at Bernlohr stadium against Otterbein.

DROPPED FROM the schedule in this "season of revenge," as labeled by Coach Gene Slaughter, were Wittenberg and Muskingum. Picked up were Heidelberg, a team Cap hasn't beaten in the last 12 encounters, and Wooster.

Slaughter will welcome back 33 lettermen and a veteran nucleus of 10 of 11 first stringers from the 1963 offensive unit headed by quarterback Ron Paxson, of Whitehall; and end Larry Gornall of Columbus East-[illegible].

Practice begins Labor Day, Sept. 7.

The schedule (home games in caps): Sept. 26—at Mt. Union (night); Oct. 3—BALDWIN WALLACE; Oct. 10—at Heidelberg; Oct. 17—at Kenyon; Oct. 24—AKRON; Oct. 31—MARIETTA (homecoming); Nov. 7—at Wooster; Nov. 14—OTTERBEIN.

M-R Picnic At Jet Park On Sept. 13

The Milo Roc Mendel Athletic Club will hold its 18th Annual Family Picnic day at Jet Stadium, Sunday, Sept. 13, beginning at 11 a.m.

Chairman Jack Wassmuth and co-chairman Charles Barr promise an enjoyable time for all. The picnic will be held rain or shine.

Contests, cards, games and races will be on tap as well as food and refreshments. At 3 p.m. the Milo Roc A.C. nine (champions of the Alum Creek Little League) will play for the fans.

Rosati Nine Nips Roofers; Cops Jewish Center Title

Rosati Super Market took a 13 to 12 cliffhanger from United Roofing to win the 1964 Jewish Center Youth Young Adult Softball League.

United Roofing started the game with a big four-run first inning and it looked like a rout was starting — they added two more in the second on a Chuck Becker home run to take to 6-2 lead.

ROSATI BLASTED out of a hitting slump with six runs on six hits including a Ron Golden circuit clout in the bottom of the fifth inning to knot the score. Back-to-back home runs by Ken Haas and Golden Put Rosati ahead 12 to 9 in the bottom of the sixth.

United Roofing bounced back in the top of the seventh with three runs to tie the score as Wes Rosenthal hit a four-bagger and hits by Denny Oppenheimer, Corky Friedenberg and Henry Gutter.

With one out in the bottom of the seventh, Mike Basofin legged out a double and scored on an overthrow of a hit by Harvey Wasserman as Gary Beim was the winning pitcher and Don Berman took the loss.

AN ELEVEN-RUN sixth inning broke up a 2-2 tie of an expertly-played game to ice a 13-4 Little League championship for Guy Elbin Engineers.

The game was a pitcher's battle for the first five innings as Guy Elbin scored two runs in the first inning and Jetcoat one in the first and fourth.

Guy Elbin's Scott Brandon pitched part of the game and played a great center field, making two important catches while Mike Siegel, Andy Laners and Mike Stan had two hits each for the Engineers.

Jetcoat's Jim Neustadt hit two home runs in a great performance and all the players and coaches are to be congratulated for a fine performance.

FOOD MARKETS THIS WEEK

Corn Tomato Supplies Reduced This Year

THIS WEEK LOOK FOR:

Fruits—peaches, cantaloupe, sour apples, watermelon, [illegible]

Vegetables—sweet corn, tomatoes, peppers, cabbage, and potatoes

Poultry—fryers, small turkeys, eggs, (small sizes)

Other—dairy products, frozen potatoes, canned corn, snap beans.

Supplies and quality of vegetables on the markets from local fields reflect the below normal rainfall of this season. Producers with irrigation systems have found them to be a valuable asset this summer. Generally, supplies are not heavy but quality is very good. Fresh vegetables from other nearby sources include beets, carrots, celery, snap beans, potatoes, sweet corn, tomatoes, cabbage and peppers.

Mrs. Franks

Sweet corn is plentiful now and should remain in good supply until the middle of September. Lighter supplies of corn will be harvested until frost occurs. This year production is estimated as being 11 percent below last year and 17 percent below average. Some corn is now being shipped in from Pennsylvania. The crop in that state is nine percent above last year and four percent above average.

Field Tomatoes from local production areas are on the market in good supply but supplies have been reduced as hot and dry weather has limited production and thus the volume available to the fresh market and canneries. Tomatoes are also from other states: such as New York, North Carolina, Michigan, and Kentucky.

How to Buy — In buying tomatoes, the purchaser should choose tomatoes that are:

- firm, well-ripened for best flavor,
- free from blemishes to reduce waste,
- of good color, depending on variety,
- fairly well-formed for slicing or to serve whole.

Irregular shaped tomatoes may be used for wedges pulp or juice. A bushel (50) pounds of tomatoes will 15 to 20 quarts when canned.

Handle with Care—keep ripe tomatoes in cool, not cold, place. To maintain high quality for several days, keep vine-ripened tomatoes at 50 to 55 degrees F., in a place such as a cool basement.

If tomatoes have not been allowed to color on the plant to the firm-ripe stage, keep them at room temperature until full color develops, and then store them at a lower temperature. Do not place them in direct sunlight. Refrigerate tomatoes just before serving. Tomatoes stored in the refrigerator for some time lose their characteristic flavor and develop a flat taste.

Label Day Set By TB Society

Mrs. T. G. Donnell, 2226 Middlesex-rd, and Mrs M. B. McLane, 2883 Brandon-rd, have been named co-chairmen for the Tuberculosis Society's 14th annual Christmas Seal label day.

Mrs. R. V. Benedict, of the society, announced label day will be held Oct. 6.

Mrs. Donnell and Mrs. McLane will be in charge of securing more than 360 volunteers to affix address labels to the quarter of a million envelopes which will carry 1964 Christmas Seals to homes in Columbus and Franklin County.

Mrs. Donnell, a label day volunteer for the past three years, is serving as co-chairman for the first time. Mrs. Donnell is president of Flair Group of the Norwester Women's Club.

Mrs. McLane has been volunteering for label day for the past five years. She is a member of Twig 36 and an active member of the Women's Association of the Columbus Symphony Orchestra.

Arts And Crafts Are Slated By City Recreation

Fall classes at the Columbus Recreation Department's Arts and Crafts Center will begin Sept. 8. The center offers classes to adults in the Columbus area in weaving, ceramics, metal enameling, jewelry, graphics, design, drawing and painting.

Classes meet from 1 to 4 p.m. and from 7 to 10 p.m. Painting and drawing can be taken from 9 a.m. to noon. A course in basic design is being offered on Friday from 7 to 10 p.m. Silk screen will be given on Wednesday from 9 to noon.

There are openings for beginning students in all classes. Further information and registration may be obtained by calling the Arts and Crafts Center at CA. 1-9472.

The center is located at 784 Oak-st.

Crime Index Up; Columbus' Rate Down

Crime index through June of 1964 recorded a nationwide increase of 15 percent over the some six-month period of 1963. All crime classifications were up significantly, according to J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

However, Columbus' index showed decreases in all categories with the exception of auto theft, murder, non negligent manslaughter and larceny.

Library Schedule Released

Fall and winter hours of service for the Columbus Public Library and its 15 neighborhood branches will start Tuesday, Sept. 8, according to chief librarian Edward Daniels.

A TYPICAL SCENE ON AN AMERICAN REALTY LAKE DEVELOPMENT

IF IT'S WATER YOU WANT (OVER 2 MILES OF IT) Come to Lake Choctaw Today We are now selling on the west side of the lake

Our Company takes pride in Advertising—in Selling The Best in Leisure Living

The old saying: "Rome wasn't built in a day," is necessarily true. We know. It took our construction crews 10 weeks to complete the 550 foot dam with concrete and steel spillway. But then, they were hard put to stay ahead of our sales team in building roads around the lake, constructing picnic areas and boat docks, as well as the exacting job of surveying our minimum 15,000 square foot lake lots.

Over 400 Columbus area folks know this—and appreciate the future for this truly first class lake development.

(They have already purchased cottage sites)

This is the reason why the East side of Lake Choctaw is nearly sold out.

If you plan ahead for the better things in life, it's time for you to see, to consider—to buy waterfront property at Lake Choctaw. We are now offering beautiful wooded lots on the west side of Lake Choctaw.

Otterbein Small, Fast

A total of 64 prospects were welcomed to the Otterbein football camp today by Coach Robert Agler and his aides.

Of the candidates, 23 are freshmen and an equal number are returning lettermen.

Despite the large number of returning lettermen, Agler is extremely cautious in forecasting the possibilities of the 1964 Cardinal grid squad. His hesitancy is well founded as he has some big holes to fill which were left by graduation.

AMONG FORMER Cardinal aces lost by graduation are lefty passing ace Dave Kull; defensive back Harry Klockner; halfback Gary Reynolds, who was fourth in rushing in the conference last year; tackle Dick Schou; fullback Bill Thompson, who recorded 12 TD's last fall, and a pair of top-notch guards, Jon Wilson of Worthington and Dick Youngpeters of Kenton.

Agler not only met his new team Tuesday but also greeted two new assistants, Larry Lintner, former Watkins Memorial coach, and Terry Parsons, ex-Denison star.

The Otterbein coach isn't offering any pre-practice predictions as to whom he will count on to fill the big gaps left by graduation, but he did indicate that Dick Reynolds, brother of Gary, would be given a chance at the signal calling post. Dick, a senior, has spent most of his playing time on defense.

"WE'RE SMALL, lack experience and depth, but we'll have plenty of fight," Agler stated.

The Cards will drill twice daily until classes get under way and then will taper off to the normal one-a-day practice. They open their season Sept. 19 by entertaining Indiana Central of Indianapolis.

o'clock Sunday, with the Darlington quartet coming in for the Labor Day game at the same time. The El Rancho field is located on route 161 just west of the freeway.

SPECTATORS at Monday's game will be highly interested in special activities which have been planned with some lucky person winning $500. Should that person be present when his name is called out, another $100 will be added to the prize.

In last Sunday's game Dr. Stropes made several spectacular saves as Frank Harris and Walter Durrett each scored two goals during a 4 to 2 victory over Louisville.

The win made El Rancho's record read 8-2-1 for the season and kept them in the running for the Central Ohio Polo League crown.

ACME BRAKE OPENS EAST SIDE SHOP

HENRY PODKIN, founder of the Acme Brake Service, is opening a new location at 446 Holtsman-av, one block east of Nelson-rd, between Main-st and Bryden-rd. Podkin is managing the newest site while his son, Rick, has taken over management of the original location at 948 W. Mound-st, at Hawkes-av. Services rendered by both shops include one-hour complete brake service, front-end alignment, wheel balancing and shock absorber installation. Acme Brake uses such nationally advertised products as Wagner-Lockheed Brake products, Monroe-matic Shock Absorbers, Moog Front-End Parts, Century-Electric Brake Drums, and associated brake parts from other well-known manufacturers. With the addition of the new East Side location, father and son feel they can provide quicker and more convenient service to Acme Brake customers throughout the city.

KEATON TRAINS AT AFB

LE ROY A. KEATON, JR., of Columbus, pauses before a mural of a B-58 Hustler during his Air Force Reserve Training Corps summer taining encampment at Bunker Hill AFB, Ind. Cadet Keaton, a member of the AFROTC unit at OSU, recently completed four weeks of indoctrination in various phases of operations. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy A. Keaton of 1780 E. Long-st.

Safety Patrol Leaders Set For School

Safety Patrol leaders will go to "school" Monday, Aug. 31, to prepare for their responsibilites in protecting lives of classmates at crossings near their schools throughout the Columbus area.

The assembly, to be attended by 900, will be held at 9 a.m. at Central High School auditorium, sponsored by Columbus Public Schools, Police Department and Columbus Automobile Club.

School participants will include Central High School Band directed by Robert Rockey, pledge to the flag by Bellows School Patrol and demonstration by Northridge School Patrol, with Merrill Stevens as narrator.

C. L. Dumaree, assistant superintendent of Columbus schools, will preside.

Speakers will include Chief of Police George W. Scholer, Paul R. Gingher, president of Columbus Automobile Club and Police Lt. Earl Burden.

A police department demonstration will be directed by Officer Steve McDonald. A film, "Your School Patrol," will end the assembly.

School patrols have been on the job since 1925, according to General Manager Russell H. Campbell of the local AAA club. Now working at 180 buildings, the patrols have a total membership of over 8,000 boys and girls.

GETS RATING

PVT. MERRILL F. Lowery, son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Lowery, 1991 Payne-av, completed eight weeks of military police training at the U.S. Army Training Center, Fort Gordon, Ga. He attended East High School.

Winter Sport Groundwork Laid By 'Y'

The South Side Branch YMCA is planning an extensive Inter-Church fall and winter sports program and to assure that proper arrangements for gym facilities are made, they are requesting that all south and southeast churches that are planning to field teams in the 1964-65 volleyball or basketball leagues, call the South Side "Y" office, 444-2151 at once.

Leagues will be organized in basketball for Junior Boys, 14 and under; girls 18 and under; Intermediate Boys (15-16-17) and Senior Men 18 and over.

A VOLLEYBALL league will also be formed for senior men. Some of the leagues will begin practice sessions around the middle of November and others the first week in December.

Go-Kart Title Races At CBS

The 1964 Championship Go-Kart Races will be held at the CBS Park Speedway (4 mi. north of Lancaster on Rt. 33) Monday afternoon, Sept. 7 when the pits open at 10 a.m. and the races start at 2 p.m. sharp.

The CBS Speedway is a 1/10 mile wide high-banked blacktopped oval that features large purses and trophies to the go-kart winners.

TIME TRIALS will get rolling at 1 p.m. on Labor Day with classes for all types of go-karts. Also on Labor Day, a free-for-all race for all non-drivers will be held from ages 2-99 with a trophy going to the driver who can drive his car to a last place finish.

In last week's CBS action, Jack Hanson of Williamsport piloted his strictly-stock Old West Ben to an impressive win over five other OWB entries with 5 ports.

Other winners were Columbus entries Bill Rice, Norm Kaiser, Charles Sparks, Barber Vallette, Bob Morgan and Wayne Daniel. Carroll Moore (White Cottage), Gary Sterling (East Fultonham), Cletus Kuhns (Circleville), Paul Rrymer (Amanda) and Bill Martin (Stoutsville) were the other winners last week.

Evening Program Registration Set At Capital U.

Registration for Capital University's Management Training Program, Community Education courses and Evening School is scheduled from Sept. 10 through 14.

The Management Training program, to begin Sept. 14, is endorsed by the Central Ohio Area Council of the National Management Association and by the U.S. Small Business Administration. The informally conducted classes are characterized by the conference method of teaching. Credit will be awarded toward a management certificate.

Informality is also the keynote of the Community Education program where classes are conducted in an informative and entertaining manner. Courses are offered nigiler Courses are offered in religion, modern mathematics, music, art and civic betterment.

No prerequisites or admission requirements need be met for either the management or community programs.

The Evening School courses are selected for the person who wants to begin his education on a part-time basis and for teachers and others who wish to continue their professional growth. The offerings carry full college credit.

Livco Relays Are Sept. 12

The Second Annual Livco Relays, Central Ohio's largest one-day swimming event, will take place at the Lincoln Village Pool on Saturday, Sept. 12 when 900-1000 age group swimmers will take part in 50 different events.

All races will be three laps over a 100-foot course or 100 yards in length with three-man relay contingents using various combinations of strokes.

A MAJORITY of the 45 Central Ohio AAU Commission swim teams are expected to compete and sponsors of the event include Tolliver and Curl Paving, WLW-C, Lincoln Lodge, Thermo King, Royal Crown and Westinghouse Corporation.

The sponsors will provide 1020 awards with 450 engraved trophies being presented along with 450 medallions. The huge prize list is the biggest and best ever offered for an amateur swimming event in the Central Ohio area.

IN FIELD TRAINING

Cadet Anthony V. Nida, 19, son of Army Col. and Mrs. Glen E. Nida of 455 Kellner-ct, a third classman (sophomore) at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., is undergoing two months of practical combat field training at the academy's Camp Buckner.

Civic-Political Action Can Make SCD Effective Force

A conservancy district is a public corporation that can band together a proposed area to solve local water management problems. It deals, generally, in the areas of flood control, water supply and flow regulation and recreation.

The Scioto Conservancy District is like a tree that was planted in good soil, under favorable conditions, and was then left to grow unattended by those who had done the planting.

The SCD "tree" is badly in need of pruning. But the original planters — those who did the "spade work," "sowed the seed" and watered it with $1.7 million — are undecided whether to prune the tree or chop it down.

Pruning has three prime beneficial effects. It opens the tree to light; rids it of dead wood, and — most importantly — it stimulates growth in the proper direction.

We submit that it is easier, more prudent and less expensive to prune than to chop down and later replant. We believe the following steps should be among those taken to effect a proper pruning of the SCD tree:

1. Let stand the suits filed in the 10th District Court of Appeals by the City of Columbus and the City School Board. If there are inequities in the Conservancy Law, now is the time to smoke them out. The withdrawal of the SCD appraisal record might eliminate the cause of the suit, but it does not change the points of the law that are challenged.

This area needs the services that can be provided by an effective conservancy district. It would be folly to maintain a district under the ever-present threat that the present challenges might be reinstated at any time that the district falls out of line with local thinking. Let's clear the air on points of law.

2. Responsible local leadership — both civic and political — must do more than support a conservancy district. They must become involved. Ideally, we should work for a district that is responsive to both the needs and desires of the people it serves. But realistically, we must recognize that needs and desires (particularly when taxation is involved) are generally less than synonymous.

Responsible leadership should work for reasonable balance between needs and desires. For example: Nobody likes to agree to any form of additional taxation. But most people — if given the true picture — will approve prudent and necessary expenditures for flood control and water management. A properly informed public will be responsive to its own needs.

3. Ohio's Conservancy Law should be subjected to a thorough going-over by our state lawmakers. This should be done with a heavy assist from conservationists and water management experts throughout the state. The law as it now stands permits — and in some areas demands—that conservancy districts be arbitrary and unyielding in dealing with the affected public.

People have a right to know when they are being assessed, why they are being assessed, and how much the assessment will be. The present law does not adequately protect these rights. The suggestion that locally authorized flood control and water [illegible]t projects be financed over through voted taxation is worthy of full investigation.

The powers and duties of the conservancy court bear careful examination. Is it right, for example, that a conservancy court should have the authority to appoint a board of directors for a conservancy district and also the responsibility to judge the actions of the district? Would it be better to elect conservancy district directors and thus make them responsible to the electorate?

There are obvious inequalities in the present law. And there are alternatives to be considered. The important known factor is that there exists a need for a local agency to deal with local problems of flood control and water management.

Let's get at the task of establishing the most reasonable and workable conditions for such a local agency.

An Editor's Outlook . . .

Let's Stop Blaming 'Society' For Crime

The coed was telling me about her year in a famous eastern university.

"The courses were just wonderful," she bubbled. "All except sociology."

"What was wrong with sociology?"

"It was so unreal," she replied. "For two semesters we sat through lectures in which evil things were discussed, but evil was never admitted. Criminals were never responsible for their crimes. Illegitimacy, child abandonment, addiction — no one was to blame except 'society.'

Jones

"The professor claimed that they would practically disappear if 'society' provided enough social workers, enough new housing and enough youth clubs. Any student expressing doubts got 'D' for the day's quiz."

Ah, me. How quickly the new becomes old.

For it was in the 1920's that the "new sociology" first took hold. It was based on a number of perfectly sound and reasonable discoveries in psychology. Freud and Jung had revealed that a misshapen adulthood was often a manifestation of a twisted childhood, that people not uncommonly suffered from deep-seated neuroses and compulsions based on lack-of-love. It was pointed out that it wasn't enough to threaten a poor, old copper-gizzard drunk with the fires of Hell. Anti-social behavior needed some understanding.

But on the basis of these truths a peculiar cult arose that attempted to deny individual responsibility, and to substitute for it the theory of collective responsibility, namely that of "society."

The cult took over the sociology departments on most campuses, and these departments spawned a generation of social workers drilled in the doctrine that the snarl was really a cry of anguish and the smirk only a manifestation of insecurity.

The virus spread quickly into the juvenile courts. The identity of young hoodlums was suppressed and publication forbidden in many states by law. Fathers found to their dismay that the nice young men who had married their daughters and who were soon calling from the jails had had, in fact, long criminal records, carefully concealed.

Probation became a sure thing for all but flagrant repeaters. Word got around that every kid had a few stolen cars coming to him and maybe even a burglary before there would be any punishment.

Appellate courts went so far out in "safeguarding civil rights" that the police were hobbled. In the famous Mallory decision the U.S. Supreme Court released a confessed rapist because Washington detectives had questioned him before he was arraigned.

Irresponsibility was the fruit of "social deprivation." The criminal from the good home was probably suffering from parental hostility. The criminal from the slum home was the product of society's failure to build him a nice apartment. All these alibis were eagerly seized by the weak-willed, the larcenous and the vicious.

You could smash in a store front and carry away liquor and TV sets, but you were really only demonstrating for your freedom and dignity. It was owlishly reported that the real reason for the Harlem riots was desperation caused by the nomination of Goldwater by the Republicans. Presumably, the San Francisco delegates should go to jail for disturbing the peace.

We have alibied crime to a point where thousands of innocent citizens are being mugged, yoked, strong-armed, robbed and murdered.

According to the July 20 FBI report there were in past year 8,500 homicides, 16,400 forcible rapes, 100,000 robberies, 148,000 aggravated assaults, 400,000 stolen cars and nearly a million burglaries. In the last five years the population is up eight percent and crime is up 40 percent.

So it's time for the new-new sociology. The time has come for social scientists to re-examine the record and quit trying to tailor the grim facts to fit amply-disproven theories.

The dole has not improved self-reliance. The indiscriminate disbursement of aid-to-dependent-children funds has too often meant more illegitimate babies born into unspeakable homes. It is coincidental, of course, but lawlessness has grown right along with the increase in social workers, youth clubs and low-cost public housing.

We have fallen between two stools. Punishment for wrong-doing in America is highly uncertain, and no wonder there is great confusion among the stupid and the immature as to how wrong wrong is.

Yet our correctional institutions are generally medieval, grim, overcrowded—serving only as graduate schools in crime. If only half of the good citizens who are excited about muscular dystrophy would get interested in penology we might make some progress.

We need more jails, but new kinds of jails. We need surer sentences, but shorter sentences. We need judges who will show as much interest in the bleeding victim as in the duck-tailed assailant. We need more social workers who will point out that the quickest way to get out of the gutter is to stand up.

The old "new sociology" is bankrupt. Let's get back to the drawing board.

LABOR DAYS PAST

There was the usual parade from Downtown to Goodale Park where Mayor George Karb and others spoke. Represented were 49 labor organizations. Most of the marchers wore uniforms, and all had some kind of a badge indicating their trades.

This was Labor Day in Columbus in 1914, just half a century ago. The day is celebrated quite differently now. No one should say that a more quiet observance is less meaningful.

Trade unionism began in the United States almost a century ago. Recognition of labor's role in human affairs is made differently and at different times abroad. But that's too long a story, even if interesting, for this small space.

The Knights of Labor was the first real labor union in the United States. It was a secret order, organized in 1869, into which all bona fide workers were invited. By 1886 it had about one million members.

There was much trouble in the years 1880-1886. In labor, as among political parties, the new sometimes replaces the old. In 1886 the American Federation of Labor was organized formally, thus completing a process of several years. It replaced the Knights of Labor, drawing membership from it. For several years thereafter the American Federation of Labor was the only significant labor organization.

Most informed people know the later history and developments in labor. It's good to know the background.

It says here . . .

All labor, organized or not, deserves respect. In the broadest sense, all who work for an honest living are labor. Labor is the power behind our prosperity.

Dynamic Spiritual Commitment Required

In a day when the Christian Church is hard put to communicate meaningfully with an estranged world, this subject is needed and valuable to think and act about.

Our involvement in the current culture and pattern of living demands a riotous consumption of time, energy, and ability. We see a frenzied animation on every hand every day of the frustrated populace eking out a livelihood — and all the the while obeying the tyranny of the clock, scientific devices, efficiency experts. This blight creates attitudes of bitterness, and a cynical mood among the best.

Rev. Griffiths

Yet we do commit ourselves in every direction to the extent that a free night is rare. Our involvements are not bad but it would seem we give enormously to the mechanics of living and little enough to the spiritual quest.

1. Commitment requires mature adjustments to change.

In the revolutionary days of our time we have had to abandon any stagnant or static views and thoughts. We have had to up-date our thinking whether labor relations, race relations, social relations or business. These are the days of examining and re-evaluating many foci of life. This is not easy and many fine folk become reluctant recluses about anything different.

The Christian religion went 1500 years on a kind of plateau until a monk on All-Saints Day suggested questioning and changing some of the basis of Christian commitment. We cannot afford to neglect the spiritual progressive revelation of God in all things — pray for a break-through.

2. Commitment to a real brotherhood of man.

The radical evolving process in this area is easy to see when we realize that in the next 40 years the population of U.S. will double and in Asia it will quadruple. The shrinking of the earth necessitates a significant brotherhood of man. Our own fences and backyards mean little or nothing. We must, as members of the human family, live harmoniously for survival. Ours today is a unique opportunity to have and make a commitment to the real brotherhood of man in a world of neighbors.

3. A new dynamic under God.

To what do I commit myself? Is it outside myself? Is it only for the today and tomorrow will pass away? The fullness of the human life under God demands a new dynamic in church, neighborhoods, democracy — everywhere.

The attitude of the Christian Community is to search for understanding and Divine guidance and commitment. A commitment of thought and subsequent action to those things which are certain, lasting, and good in His sight. Our commitment should be to the best, the dynamic, the eternal, and the growing. To commit yourself to the teachings of the Nazarene means just such searching and restlessness in the faith as we grow and mature.

Can we be committed to taking all our imperfections and short-sightedness and offer them in the strength of God to serve Him more perfectly? Commit yourself, to something —the greatest, the best, the eternal, and the growing.

William E. Griffiths, pastor
Southwood Community Church

There is no criminal action; there is no negligence; there is no blame.

A helpless child dies and there is no blame. It's an accident, a misfortune, and no one stops, no one cares, and the world goes on.

But there is blame and there is a culprit.

The childed was killed — killed by public apathy, killed by an overloaded, antiquated system of custodial care.

Testing On The Gallup

[illegible]

There was a time when men were honest or crooked, and not half-way so in the minds of self-respecting citizens.

There was a time when women were virtuous or "shady" and accepted in society according to their proven merits. Now, witnessing one seamy scandal after another, the present generation of women just reaching adulthood, finds confusion and uncertainty, instead of security and moral assurance, involved in a raging debate.

There was a time when Christians accepted the assurance and comfort of the eternal verities, as depicted in the Holy Bible. John 3:16 meant exactly what is said. Now, with increasing numbers of minds living in unholy horror day by day, the inviolate Faith in Almighty God is shaken to its very foundations.

Intellectual snobs are desperately trying to "rationalize" Jesus Christ and by so doing, destroying the evangelical power of the Church. Those who hold onto peace of mind and comfort of soul still own something that agnosticism will never destroy.

This paradox is best described, to my mind at least, as a positive or negative attitude toward life. FEAR is today's monster and the Devil's best agent.

Millions of teeners are now swept up in this battle for their minds. How that battle is resolved in their own private thinking and behavior will determine the health of their souls and the fate of human society.

Asks Why Auditor Ignores Minerals Tax

To the Editor:

It is human nature for those of us assessed for benefits by any governing agency to ask that our assessments be as low as possible.

By the same inner mechanism we ask the powers that be to pay us as much as possible when we are being recompensed for damages.

In the matter of assessments for dams to be built on Alum and Mill Creeks, we note that property owners living above the sites of the proposed dams raise one type of hue and cry. Those living below sing a different tune.

Those above are worried about the possibility of mineral rights being taken from them if surface appraisals only are made. Those below show no such concern over mineral rights.

Inability of the assessing agencies to reconcile these conflicting points of view has led many civic leaders to try to "sweep the whole thing under the rug," so to speak, and to let the Army Engineers do the dam building.

Unfortunately, a lump of this size under the rug will continue to show regardless of who builds the dams.

The path of the future will be a rocky one, and oil, instead of calming the troubled waters to be impounded by the dams, may well prove to be the agent that will cause much of the excitement.

One reason is that, according to Ohio law, "The county auditor, on or before the 31st day of March, annually, shall make a list of petroleum, oil and natural gas wells . . . and works designed for the production of minerals which have been begun or constructed since the last preceding appraisal."

It is our understanding that this section of the Ohio Code is not followed in Franklin County.

As expected, this failure of the auditor to perform his duty has resulted in confusion. Elderly couples with pensions who are fighting to protect their properties are being asked to pay heavy taxes to build dams. Owners of rich reserves of minerals are being asked to pay nothing since the Franklin County auditor, officially, knows nothing about minerals.

Even if the Army Engineers build the dams, the wails of Delaware Countians over the taking of their lands will sooner or later be heard in Franklin County. Some day the auditor at the High-Mound citadel is going to have to answer this embarrassing question: "If mineral rights are recognized in Delaware County where it costs, why aren't they recognized in Franklin County where it would pay?"

What Can Chinese Gain In Viet Nam?

By ROYCE BRIER

In a critical moment like the recent one in Indochina, you have to go out on a limb, so the guess here is that it will blow over.

An opposite guess, of course, is quite valid. No estimate has much substance due to the possibility one of our naval craft might in future be lost to a mine or torpedo, or attacked by Red Chinese planes. But barring that, the reasoning here is as follows:

Brier

The North Vietnamese have little offensive capability. Defense Secretary McNamara declared that the torpedo fleet and its fuel base were badly crippled by our air strikes. Hence, the danger of an "accident" seems to lie largely with the Red Chinese, who also have small warcraft in the Gulf of Tonkin area, and some airplanes.

But if they intend to use their limited offensive power is another matter. They can't win a naval battle in the Gulf, or an air battle, either. A serious thrust would necessarily be a sacrifice, while they mobilize for war with the Americans.

But it is hard to believe, despite their menace over 16 years, that they want that war at this time, in this place.

A foremost factor with them must be that they cannot count on Soviet help, or even sympathy, as they could in Korea. The Soviet Union is not about to embark on a logistically insane war, which could become a world war, to make Indochina safe for communism, particularly for Mao's communism.

If you will grant that, what have the Red Chinese to gain? They can't drive the Seventh Fleet from their coastal waters, and would only double its striking power. They can't drive the Americans from South Vietnam without a massive thrust of Red Chinese infantrymen southward, requiring X weeks of preparation.

They can't mount an air war without opening a hornets' nest of carrier-based planes, and possible long-range bombing in the whole Hanoi theater.

President Johnson doesn't want that, the American people don't want it, no people or government on earth wants it, unless it be the Peking government.

But how can the Peking government want it, unless it has gone crazy, because it can't win such a war. The United States can do as it did in Korea, saturate South Vietnam with mechanized troops, to make a little, conventional war of it. This time we might not get the moral support of the United Nations, but we don't need it.

We have a moral case in the unprovoked attack on our naval craft in international waters, and in the pronouncement of the President and Secretary McNamara that no further action is intended if there are no further attacks.

We might even perfect our moral position by withdrawing our naval units to a line angled from the South Vietnam frontier. Then let them holler "paper tiger" again. Who cares?

Best figure on this for MOST people is a minimum of $350 per month per couple. I am putting a paper together now on best reports I can get from people living in Mexico, Spain, Portugal, etc. Send me your address — and a stamp. I'll send you what I can pick up.

"We have had much advice on renting cars in Europe. And we are somewhat nervous about such things as traffic laws, driving on the left in England . . ."

There are some new things in car rentals — a "lease" plan. (It sounds like just a longer rental plan. But it is cheaper.) Most overseas agencies have this plan now. I am in favor of rentals with unlimited mileage, you-pay-the-gas, flat daily rate plan.

For the first two days in England, keep your mind firmly on driving on the left. If your mind wanders, you'll drift to the right by habit. After two days, the left-hand becomes automatic.

European driving laws are pretty much like ours. Main difference is in use of lights. In cities you drive with parking lights only. I've made all kinds of mistakes and been pulled down by police. But they were awfully nice about it.

"We are two secretaries. We planned our vacation around Christmas. Not too much money, so — Mexico? Virgin Islands? Austria? (Though we don't ski.)"

* * *

Austria. And I think your liveliest towns will be Kitzbuhel and St. Anton. Airlines are cheapest at this time of year. Most have a package plan of transportation plus hotels. The ski resorts are full of young men. You can sit all evening over a 10-cent glass of white wine, with music. You meet everybody at community tables.

Next in order, Virgin Islands. Two girls in Mexico always seem to be wandering and trying to find something to do.

Get El Shine Now: Pay Mucho Later

BARCELONA, SPAIN — Barcelona may be a sleepy town made up of natives who like their daily and long siestas. But visitors to this historical Spanish site are warned to keep a sharp eye on the enterprising shoeshiners.

One usually learns the game only after being victimized.

Strolling in the popular and picturesque Catalusa Square, which has beautiful waterspouting fountains and is a "must" for all tourists, you might be approached by a poorly dressed middle-aged Spaniard carrying a shoeshine kit.

He might meekly ask you if you want a shine. You don't need one but you might feel you should give him a break.

He puts his equipment on the ground, then places your right foot on his small stand. He begins briskly to brush the shoe. While your attention is focused elsewhere in the square, he'll mumble something about the sole being faulty.

He takes out a hammer and begins pounding small nails which he breaks off with a pair of pliers into the sole. Still you do not pay too much attention.

The shoeshiner then switches to the left foot and goes through the same procedure. You'll probably notice at the time that occupants of near-by seats are intently watching the operation.

As he applies the finishing touches with his rag, you begin to ponder how much of a tip you should give him. The going rate for a shine here is seven pesatas (a little over ten cents).

To your amazement, when asked his price, he'll unhesitatingly reply: "Seventy-five pesatas" (more than $1.20). Naturally you're perturbed and will quickly retort: "That sure is an expensive shine!"

The Spaniard then points to the bottom of your shoes. You then discover that he has pulled off the rather unbelievable trick of having given you a pair of half soles, which you had never asked for, without having removed your shoes.

It then begins to dawn on you why the regular Spanish park visitors had been staring so much at you. You learn that many of them come to the park just to watch the tourists get the "works."

When you get back to the hotel, you'll probably tell the clerk about it, and he'll shake his head. He'll tell you that this trick is being pulled on tourists in Catalusa Square every day, but if the police catch the culprit he'll lose his license.

The moral is: "Don't feel sorry for a Spanish shoeshiner" or "don't get a shoeshine in Spain!"

Recently Abigail Van Buren ("Dear Abby") took to the air on CBS with her five rules for marital happiness. It was her way of celebrating her 25th wedding anniversary.

I submitted Miss Van Buren's list to my mother, who has been married twice as long as that. Yesterday it was returned with her parenthetical comments.

(1) — Don't greet your husband at the door with the troubles of the day. (No, wait for him to tell you his first.)

(2) Show love when you feel it. (When you're 70 you can forget number two.)

(3) Every now and then surprise one another with little gifts on days other than anniversaries and holidays. (Good idea. It is more blessed to give than to receive and it is up to very wife to let her husband know this.)

(4) The woman should remember that the at-home phase of marriage isn't a 50-50 position. She bears 90 percent of the responsibility there. (Unfortunately this is true. You will remember that your father retired three years ago, and it took me just 24 hours to realize that while HE had retired, I had NOT. Instead of cooking the Old Dear two meals a day, I'm now preparing three. That's what retirement means to me.)

(5) Never go to bed angry. (Nonsense. We married folk would rather fight than sleep!)

"We are trying to spur you on to clean up your own house so that an outraged public doesn't demand that the government do it." With this statement Senator Thomas J. Dodd (D-Conn.) announced the findings of a Senate investigation into violence in current TV programming.

The senator then went on to blast NBC and ABC for failing to reduce violence in new shows and perpetuating the violence of old programs by reshowing them on independent stations. CBS was cited as showing "evident improvement."

One NBC program, "Ride With Terror," was singled out as particularly unsuitable. Senator Dodd called the "Dupont Show of the Week" drama "a thorough lesson in how to mug a man in the subway." NBC-TV Programming Chief Walter D. Scott justified it as "an unusual social document, a report of the kind of things that has happened."

Actually Scott's chronology was faulty. The violence was the kind of thing that happened AFTER the showing. Shortly after the program was aired, a similar incident was staged by hoodlums in a New York subway, presenting sociologists with a coincidence worth some study.

A note from Screen Gems, New York, says that Inger Stevens will make an hour-long film titled "Inger Stevens in Sweden," which will be a "tour of Sweden's various physical fitness sites." — and anyone who has been that far north knows Sweden is certainly physically fit. She will be accompanied by Ingemar Johansson.

Paul Lynde's comment on women drivers (on "the Celebrity Game"): "They should only be allowed to have skate keys."

'THE GRIST'

(Ground Out by Dusty Miller)

INTEGRATION — Sam Jordan and I have a lot in common. We are both colored—I an off-white (away off) and he an off-black. While Sam was in the hospital for removal of kidney stones, on one of the cards I sent him I suggested he cut the stones into cubes, and have his own set of dice . . .

He came to see me for a bit of neck-falling-on. "I learned a good lesson in the hospital," he told me. I found that there are a lot of folks worse off than I am. One fellow," he told me, "was burned all over, and another one had both legs cut off." . . .

Dusty

I didn't quote to him my favorite human-sympathy sentence: "A deep affliction had humanized my soul," preferring his simpler one.

REPRESENTATION — If a resident of Massachusetts may represent the State of New York in the U. S. Senate, maybe Hoosier Herb Shriner could represent Franklin County in Congress, and Sam Devine become an Indiana entertainer. (And don't think Sam couldn't do it! O.K., Sam; O.K., go ahead and sue me!)

DIFFERENTIATION — In the USSR, when the party in power has a convention, only those who favor continuing the head of state and the successor whom he selects, are permitted to attend. It is called autocracy.

In the USA, when the party in power holds a convention only those who favor the continuance of the head of state, and the successor whom he names, are permitted to attend. It is called democracy.

EQUALIZATION — Amending the anti-poverty law to provide for lifting by their ears the LBJ's, with their few paltry millions, from the disaster area.

INSPIRATION —

I watched Dawn's early light" display
Inspired by every bright-hued ray,
And hearing again my father pray:
"We thank thee for another day."

COFFEE BREAK

Me Communicate? Ever Try At 7 a.m.?

By ADELINE DALEY

I never used to worry whether my husband and I "communicated." In fact, when I first saw the screaming headlines in the women's magazines, "Do you and your mate communicate?" — I thought it was a subtle form of advertising by the telephone company.

Now I realize that it's another way of asking, "Has your marriage gone pfft?"

The trouble in this household is that our seven kids want to do all the communicating. Morning. Noon. And Night. So I just don't know when my husband and I are going to "Find Ourselves," as the magazines insist we should.

I asked my husband yesterday morning at breakfast, "How come we don't communicate?" He replied, "About what?"

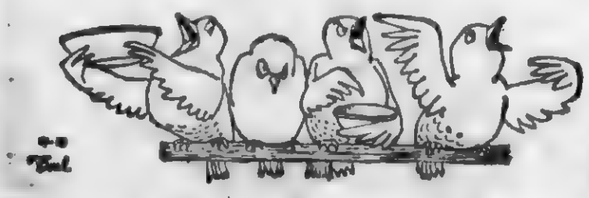
I must admit that he had me stymied because the magazines are fairly vague about what sort of communicating is appropriate at 7 a.m.

I was forced to retreat into my shell. "Well, I'd sort of like to know what time you'll be home for dinner so I can defrost the pot roast." I just don't think that it was the right time to begin having a panel discussion about his "Inner Self."

And exactly how do you go about gathering that type of information? Do you approach him endearingly and beg, "Tell me about the real YOU. Let's begin with your boyhood. Were you happy flying kites and playing marbles? It's something I've always wanted to know."

I can guess what his reply would be. "How come you waited 18 years to ask?"

Maybe we should raise the intellectual level of our morning conversations by having a lively discussion of our foreign policy. But I'm always too busy trying to mediate fights between our two teen-age daughters about whom is wearing what of who's.



But I finally was able to get a personal word to my husband, "Do you know what breaks up most marriages? The wife neglects her husband and just concentrates on her home — cleaning, cooking, washing, mending . . ."

"It sounds terrific," my husband interrupted, searching for a pair of socks without holes in the toes.

I'm cancelling my subscription to the Ladies' Home Journal.

The Wonderful World of ANIMALS

By Frank Miller, D.V.M.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Our problem is that we have been feeding wild birds winter and summer until we are overrun with them. When I try to cut back on the feed they squawl. We are considering selling the house and I'm not sure new owners will want, or feed, them. If we quit feeding them, will they go hungry? —G.E.

DEAR G. E.: This is one of the problems that arises when handouts are more than an emergency measure. The recipients consider the charity as their "just desserts" and quickly become dependent upon it.

Undoubtedly these birds will go hungry, at least until they learn that free grub is definitely a thing of the past. Even so, this is the best time of year to deactivate this crummy bird bar, as they now have the best chance to adjust to their new condition.

Later on in the year, some can decide whether or not to migrate to happier hunting grounds. If the handouts were suddenly cut off in the fall, it could be too late for travel plans and they might starve.

Instead of abruptly terminating operations right now, take a couple of weeks to taper off. Provide additional feeding space during this shut down period so the less aggressive birds will have a chance to snatch some, too.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Is there anything I can do for my cat's halitosis? Ginny has always perched on the back of the davenport and purred in my ear. Lately this habit is becoming intolerable due to bad breath. Is this to be expected in a nine-year-old cat? —P.F.

DEAR P. F.: Bad teeth could be gumming up your previously happy relationship. Feline foul-mouth in older animals is often due to infected gums, especially adjacent to the molars where tartar has accumulated. Ginny could again regain that "purrfectly" happy perch with the aid of her dentist.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Our old Zip was struck by a car and almost killed. He is back on his feet now, thanks to the doctor. He had a ruptured spleen and during surgery and after he had to have several transfusions. We got to wondering if dogs have blood types and if they can get into trouble with transfusions because of it? —V.C.

DEAR V. C.: Yes, dogs have several blood factors and some of these combinations can cause a fatal reaction. For example, if your dog was A negative and his transfusions were A positive, the same donor couldn't be used again.

Zip would now be sensitized to that blood and a severe — possibly fatal — reaction could occur. (Let's hope he doesn't need blood again from ANY donor.)

DEAR DR. MILLER: When my dog, Pat, is hot and is panting he drools. Can you tell me why he does this? —B.J.

DEAR B. J.: Pat relies on panting, not sweat glands, to keep cool when the going gets hot. The faster he pants, the more hot moisture-laden air he removes from his lungs. The saliva that forms in his mouth would normally be swallowed. When he's too busy panting to swallow, there is nothing left for him to do but drool.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Last week my husband bought a hive of the so-called friendly bees. The advertisement said these bees liked people. So far my husband has been stung three times. He's getting discouraged and wants his money back. How can they get away with this sort of thing? —D.L.

DEAR D. L.: There are new strains of bees said to have comparatively friendly dispositions. Obviously your husband has been stung on this deal. But then, you can't expect these bees to love everybody.

If it's any consolation they don't get away with it—even if the bee sellers do. The sorehead who does the stinging leaves part of his anatomy with the stinger and dies soon afterward.

DEAR MR. MILLER: The question concerns Charlie, my wife's mynah. When the boys come over for an evening of beer and pretzels, Charlie is the official kibitzer. The wife worries about her bird. First, because we keep him up so late and, second, because the room is always blue with smoke. She thinks we're a detrimental influence. Say it isn't so, doc. We've all gotten kind of fond of having this bird-brain in on the game. — S.L.

DEAR S.L.: Charlie doesn't have to be a party pooper — unless these games are too frequent. He can catch up on his beauty sleep any time. Unless he starts wheezing or showing discomfort, the blue haze is nothing to worry about either.

There is one thing to remember in regard to smoking, however. Most mynah breeds love tobacco, and they will chew most any variety. What's worse, they will swallow it, often with fatal results. Remember, then, to keep all forms of tobacco out of snatching distance, for Charlie's first "chaw" could be his last.

DEAR DR. MLLLER: I'm getting a raccoon. I have been told they are hardy animals and seldom get sick. Is there any particular disease I should watch out for? Do they need shots of any kind? — W.E.

DEAR W.E.: While raccoons are hardy animals in many respects, they are susceptible to several common infectious diseases. They need vaccinations to protect them against canine distemper, feline distemper, and hepatitis. In some areas, vaccination for rabies and/or leptospirosis is also necessary.

DEAR DR. MILLER: My husband and I bought a 12-month-old Mynah bird. He is cute except that he doesn't talk. The salesman told us to wait a while—he must feel comfortable around us, etc. But this is getting ridiculous — almost two months and all he does is make funny noises. My husband and I are both away from the apartment all day. Could this be the reason? My friends say we are stuck with a $50 crow! — C.W.

DEAR C.W.: Your absence from the apartment all day does mean your Mynah is more likely to mutter to himself in bird language than practice his English vocabulary — if any.

However, even with daylong training your chances of a linguistic bird at this point are poor. It will be exceedingly difficult to convince him at this late date that going to school is necessary. Your Mynah might figure that darn few $50 crows would be shot for silence, anyway.

Does your favorite animal have problems, physical or emotional? Dr. Miller will answer all letters sent to him, care of this paper, provided a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed.

TODAY'S REPORT

By ABE MELLINKOFF

Political campaigning not only brings out the worst in all of us but also brings out the worst people.

It's a sad thought. But it must be true if you listen to all the speeches and read all the campaign literature.

As I listen and look, we are about to be deluged with a band of crooks, liars, double-dealers, thieves, opportunists, moral and mental bankrupts, jacklegs and sandbaggers. Of course, half of them are going to win, too.

It's all part of the democratic process, of course, and I suppose it proves the strength of democracy is that it can survive democracy.

A Tribute to Our Working Men and Women

LABOR DAY

They are the bulwark of this community's progress and prosperity; each of the proud men and women who work throughout the year to supply the daily needs of our homes. Those dedicated workers who have made possible for us the modern standards of living that we enjoy today . . . there's not far to look to find them: in the factories, the service stations, the stores, on the roads, everywhere, always building for a better future. They are the mainstay of any city. Theirs is the honor this Labor Day; ours is the tribute. We are proud of their achievements . . . and we look forward with confidence to the goals yet to be reached in our great American Way.

Labor can justly be proud of its vital share in developing this nation's industrial power. We look to the future, confident that even greater achievement lies ahead.

COLUMBUS
TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION NO. 5
74 So. 3rd St., Columbus, Ohio

SINCE 1859

On Labor Day, 1964, The United Glass and Ceramic Workers of North America AFL-CIO-CLC extends warmest greetings to all working men and women and to the organizations which represent them.

Labor Day symbolizes the concept of the dignity of labor and of its dominant position in achieving a rich and full life for every American citizen. It bespeaks a productive society in which all will enjoy the fruits of the creative process in the spirit of mutual helpfulness and brotherly love. It epitomizes a society without poverty, drudgery, and exploitation —social ills that are both effect and cause of man's inhumanity to man.

It is therefore relevant that we consider the fact that twenty percent of our citizens are not sharing in the prosperity of our era. Twenty percent of our citizens live below the subsistence level. The threat of automation, with its attendant unemployment, menaces our society. The danger of unemployed youth turning to crime gives added urgency to the problem. We must concern ourselves for we bear part of the responsibility and guilt.

America must and will maintain its position of moral and economic leadership if it maintains an equally high standard of economic justice. It must make the good things of the earth available to all God's children and guard the dignity of all men. This is the true power of our nation. This is America's heritage and America's destiny.

Salute to Labor...

Vital to America's progress is the skill of the American worker. Basic to America's strength and security is his steadfast loyalty to the finest ideas of freedom and opportunity for all.

We are proud to be a part of the teamwork that moves America forward.

We are proud of our employees who are busy making the most modern telephone equipment in the world.

We are proud, also, that many of our employees make significant contributions to the social, recreational, religious and educational life of their respective communities. Among their many accomplishments are liberal donations of blood to the Red Cross Blood Bank and, through payroll deduction, a Fair-Share pledge to the United Appeal for the benefit of the 67 participating agencies.

FARM FORECAST

with CLAY GLOSS

Those attending the 1964 Ohio State Fair have witnessed one of the finest fairs in the history of the state, and the nation's biggest junior fair. There is still time to attend.

Over 1500 head of livestock, owned by 4-H Club members, have been entered in Blue Ribbon competition, plus a large number of entrants in the 4-H Club saddle horse shows.

Selection of winners has been close this year.

Lease of commercial space for the Ohio State Farm Science Review Sept. 30 to Oct. 2 has already passed that of last year, with nearly four weeks left to go before the big farm show opens for an anticipated record year. Some 119 commercial exhibitors have purchased 137 lots at the review site.

Ohio State University will feature 16 educational exhibits at the Farm Science Review. Included will be home economics, agricultural economics, horticulture, dairy technology, poultry science, agricultural education, 4-H, agricultural engineering, zoology and entomology, botany and plant pathology, agricultural biochemistry, agronomy, dairy science, forestry, animal science, veterinary science and aviation.

The Johnson administration may soon ask Congress for nearly nine million dollars to pay indemnities to dairy farmers. The payments would go to dairymen whose milk has been barred from market because it contains pesticide residues. Congress has already voted to authorize the payments, and administration officials are preparing for the next step . . . a request for an appropriation to cover the indemnities.

Ohio crop prospects indicate a total crop production of one percent above last year and the highest total production on record. Higher production than last year for corn, soybeans, hay and fruit were the main factors in increasing the production index. Ohio's soybean production is 47 million bushels, highest since the 1961 record crop.

Be sure to catch the State Fair's Sept. 4's tractor pulling contest. The test is a speed-pull contest where the tractor must obtain a speed of 3½ miles per hour at the starting point and weight is added by men stepping onto the moving sled until enough weight is added to stop the tractor.

There are three weight classifications and $1275 in prize money plus tropies for first and second place winners in each class. Some 73 tractors have been entered.

LULU'S STILL IN A DREAM, BUT ASKS:

Time For Columbus To Wake Up?

By JANE ROBINSON

Lulu Dixon Rogers says she hopes she "never wakes up."

She has recently returned from a week in Montana where she basked in the reflected glory of her brother, Cromwell Dixon..

And to her the week-long answer to her 50-year-old prayer is like a wonderful dream.

Lulu was made a part of the Montana's week-long centennial celebration during which the name "Cromwell Dixon" was on everyone's lips.

The people of Montana have never ceased to marvel at the feat of the 19-year-old boy aviator from Columbus who was the first to soar over the backbone of America — the Continental Divide.

That was in 1911, 16 years before Lindbergh's historic flight, and the first time, as Lulu, one-time vaudeville great, puts it, "that show business had come out of the sky."

Flying the craft which a Helena news account described as looking as if "its mother were an apple box and its father a roll of fence wire," Cromwell is credited with heralding the beginning of aviation in Montana.

The boy-genius was killed two days after he flew from Helena to Blossburg, when his light plane was caught in treacherous down drafts near Spokane, Wash.

He had only begun to taste the fame that was due him.

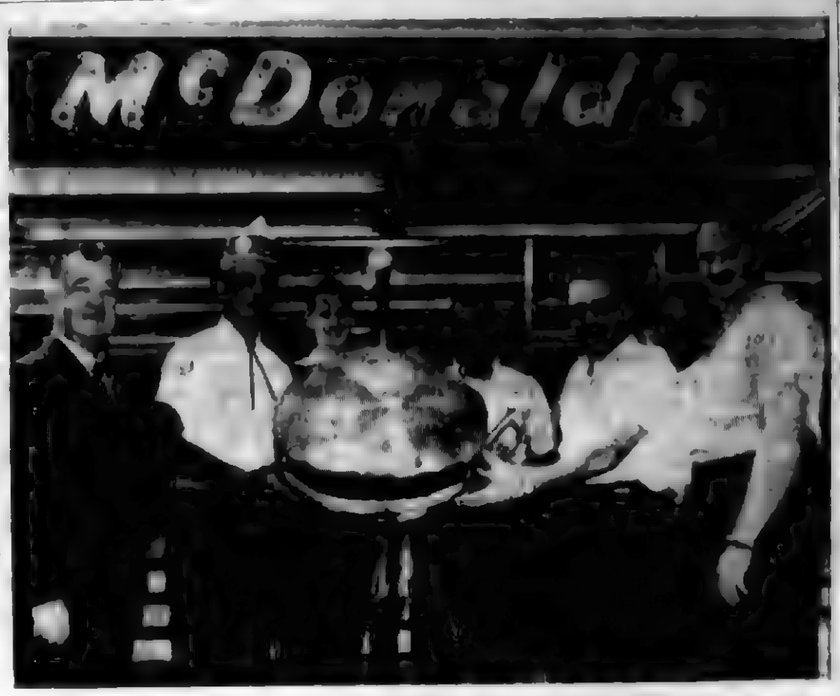
He never saw the memorials erected to his memory or the park named after him, nor did he know of his sister's devotion that has lasted over a half-century.

Testifying as to how far ahead of his generation he really was, Mrs. Rogers recalls the blue prints she found in his luggage shipped home after his death. They were detailed plans for a manned rocket to Mars.

Parading in pastel convertibles as crowds cheered, accepting Governor Tim Babcock as escort and smiling into spotlights turned upon her as she spoke of Cromwell again came easily to Lulu, who readily admits she is an "old ham."

Her years on the stage as a vaudeville star have left her with a sense of timing and poise that allowed her to do "just what comes naturally" when in the limelight.

Introduced to a crowd of 3,000 at a performance of the Montana pageant, she asked those who had personally known her brother to come forward. And she was more than thrilled when one woman came with a letter in the handwriting of Lulu and her mother, written in thanks to a note of sympathy over 50 years ago.



Appearing on the "Queen For a Day" program, Lulu claims she felt no envy of the person crowned. "After all," the not-so-young woman exclaimed, "I have been queen for a week."

The sincerity of the people she met was a bonus she had not expected.

She explained that as a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Maddox, formerly of Columbus, she had been confident

AS LONG AS CROMWELL Dixon pedalled fast and furiously, his "sky-cycle," built with the help of his mother and sister in 1907, went exactly where he wanted it to. Then only 14, the budding aviator won top billing at county fairs throughout Ohio and hit the Florida circuit the following year. At first he adhered to his mother's wishes and allowed the contraption to be tethered and to hover a mere 200 feet off the ground, but the ropes were cut as a birthday present to the aspiring young man, and Columbus residents were amazed as he pedalled a mile over their heads.

DIXIELAND BAND TO PERFORM

WHITEHALL BAND DAY will be observed this Saturday, Sept. 5, at McDonald's Harburgers, 45 S. Hamilton-rd. The band will benefit by receiving 50 percent of the gross sales on that date. Among many activities planned by band members will be the appearance of a Dixieland band group, members of which appear above. Adults from left to right are: Herbert Huffman, franchise operator of McDonald's in Columbus; Fred Hass, manager of the Hamilton-rd unit; Harry Blacker, president, Whitehall Band Boosters Club, and J. Day, elementary school music director, Whitehall Schools.

The weaker the argument the stronger the words.

He who laughs last is an Englishman.

'Hot' Evidence Doused; Drown May Prosecute

A police raid at 815 N. Nelson-rd produced more than its share of "hot" evidence Sept. 1.

Detectives, armed with a search warrant, battered down a door when their knock remained unanswered. Smelling smoke, they ran upstairs to find a wad of checks burning in an ashtray.

Police had been tipped they would find checks stolen in a burglary last week at a Woodland-av market.

Dousing the blazing evidence, the police held four men who were watching the fire and stopped two others who attempted to flee the scene.

Burglary Lt. Ralph Drown said one man at least would be charged with receiving and concealing stolen property.

Had the checks burned completely, the man might have avoided prosecution, Drown said.

CHOSEN

PHYLLIS SCHLONSKY, 354 S. Merkle-rd, has been chosen by the Columbia Gas of Ohio, Inc., as a home service advisor, it was announced by Elden H. Davis, central district manager. Phyllis, who will be known professionally as "Betty Newton," will visit homemakers upon request, to demonstrate proper uses and new developments in gas appliances. She also will be available for talks and demonstrations. Born in Columbus, she was graduated from Bexley High School and received her bachelor of science degree in home economics from Ohio State University. She lives with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Schlonsky.

Receive Degrees

Area students who were graduated from Ohio State University Aug. 28 included Carole Tuthill Davis of Bexley and Larry G. Moody of Whitehall.

14th Annual West Jeff Ox Roast Will Feature Food, Fun, Contests

For the 14th year in a row, the annual West Jefferson Labor Day Ox Roast will attract thousands from Madison and Franklin Counties.

The roast, sponsored by that community's businessmen's association, is a fund-raising affair for West Jefferson youth.

Four thousand pounds of beef are being prepared in the hope of raising $6,000 to maintain and develop a 22-acre recreation area behind the village high school. In the past, each year's goal has been met because of the popularity of the event, and today, the land offers a wide range of year-round facilities.

This year, the roast will start on Saturday, Sept. 5, with food tents offering an appetizing menu. There will also be a variety of games and a candy hunt for the youngsters.

The kick-off presentation will begin with the Queen Contestants' Parade, led by the Senior High School Band, and followed by the Junior High Band. This will start at 5 p.m. on W. Main-st.

The parade will end at the school's athletic field where the roast will be held on Monday. There will be pre-judging and final queen selection Saturday night, presided over by last year's queen, Connie Ryan. Stan Robinson of WLW-C television will emcee a "sock-hop."

Sunday afternoon will be highlighted by Columbus area radio and television personalities, and West Jefferson teachers and businessmen in two tightly-contested baseball games. At night there will be dancing for all, with the high school swing band.

Monday will climax the event with gifts for contestants in competition for the top award, a choice of $1,000, an expense paid trip to Hawaii or a Caribbean tour.

After 12 hours of roasting, huge slices of beef will be served, starting at 4 p.m.

Clark Smith of WLW-C will present a night time dancing show. The prime beef will continue to be served until it is consumed.

The 18 queen contestants are: Alexis McGee, Sherry Wright, Darlyn Campbell, Suzanne Fry, Clara Roberts, Leslie Merrick, Patty Lintner, Lillie Ruth Butt, Martha Headley Patricia Ann Watson, Bonita Beck, Judy Steward, Judy Schmidt, Barbara Thomas, Paula Cullman, Bonnie Saylor, Jacklin Munsie and Sandy Miller.

Everyone is invited to West Jefferson's 1964 Labor Day Ox Roast. There is no admission charge.

Council, SCD In "Stalemate"; Ask Conservancy Law Change

Columbus City Council may have the Scioto Conservancy over the proverbial barrel insofar as continued existence of the district is concerned. But the SCD seems to have council "in the barrel" on the question of recouping the $950,000 the city loaned to the district.

The "stalemate" situation was called to council's attention by City Attorney John C. Young during a special Tuesday night council session when he delivered the following legal opinions:

1. The SCD cannot levy any type of assessment to gain funds to repay the loan to the city until such time as the Conservancy Court approves an appraisal record;

2. There is no legal means by which the city can gain the approximately $300,000 remaining in the SCD treasury, and

3. If the city continues court action against the SCD it will be financing both sides of the issue, because the district will be using funds borrowed from Columbus to fight the city-instituted suit.

Ask Governor's Support

In the only official action taken by council, a resolution was adopted which urged Governor Rhodes to lend the support of his administration to attempts for revision of the state's conservancy district statutes. The resolution replaced another proposal which would have asked the governor to call a special session of the legislature to deal with conservancy law changes.

Young told council that it is his opinion that continuance of the city's suit against the SCD would "build up pressure" for changes in the basic state laws covering such districts. But Young also told councilmen that a court ruling against the city would prevent Columbus from "throwing a future roadblock at the district."

Council withheld any recommendations concerning the calling up of the $950,000 note which falls due on Sept. 15, and also declined a decision on the suit against the SCD which is pending in the 10th District (Franklin County) Court of Appeals.

Franklin County Representative to the General Assembly, Robert Holmes, urged councilmen not to press for a special legislative session to deal with revision of conservancy laws. Holmes favors a more detailed study than would be likely in the limited time of a special session.

The first state lawmaker to call for a study and revision of conservancy laws, Holmes said his request that the Legislative Service Commission study the matter will be considered when that group meets Sept. 11.

Against Special Session

"It is my opinion," Holmes said, "that it would be more beneficial to take sufficient time to confer with all interested groups concerning any proposed changes than to hastily attempt to submit amendments at a special session."

The meeting produced one rather rare occurrence when Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner and Council President William Fornof expressed substantially similar opinions concerning the need for a conservancy district. The mayor, however, was the more emphatic in wanting the SCD to answer, in specifics, questions pertaining to its proposed course for the immediate future.

SCD legal counsel Gollis Gundy Lane was introduced at the beginning of the session to detail for council and the administration what might be expected from the conservancy district. Lane's comments were generalizations for the most part.

He explained that any specifics undertaken by the district would depend on meetings between district officials, members of city government and community group representatives. He called attention to resolutions adopted by the SCD Board of Directors since the district withdrew its appraisal record from the Conservancy Court.

The resolutions establish general guidelines for cooperation by district personnel with all agencies and groups concerned with water management problems within the five-county district. Lane said the SCD has sent a letter to the Huntington, W. Va., district of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers pledging full cooperation with the Corps in its plans for construction of the Alum Creek and Mill Creek projects.

Community Support

In speaking of the potential programs which might be undertaken by the SCD, Lane said: "We can't do anything of the magnitude involved here without support of the whole community." He said the proposed construction of the Bellepoint dam project would be even more important to Columbus flood protection than the proposed Alum Creek project — provided that the latter is also constructed.

But Lane also told councilmen that an effective SCD program "can't be done fairly" until state conservancy district statutes are changed. The primary change required, he indicated, would be a wider base for potential financing of projects.

Councilman Robert T. Southwick, who chaired the meeting, said he felt that the city had not received any benefits from the $1.7 million it has invested in the district. (The figure includes $800,000 the city spent for construction plans.)

Warren J. Cremean, Columbus service director, told councilmen that he has forwarded the city-owned construction plans to the Corps of Engineers. The Corps will credit the city with whatever plan money it can save by using information contained in the city plans.

Kline Roberts, executive secretary of the Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce, advised council that "it is too early to make any hasty decision" regarding continuing or dissolving the SCD. He said the preliminary judgement of the Chamber is that the district should continue in operation.

"The general complaint about cars is that the motors won't start and the payments won't stop."

Ellis Bailey In 'Fair' Condition At Children's

Ellis James Bailey, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis C. Bailey, 1008 Karl-st, Whitehall, was reported in fair condition at Children's Hospital Wednesday.

The boy was burned on the face Sept. 1 in an operating room explosion at Grant Hospital. A lung was also damaged. He was removed to Children's Hospital to make use of a "high humidity" room there.

Grant Hospital officials described the explosion as minor. Ether was being administered to the boy while he was undergoing an operation on an eye muscle and a battery operated needle for cauterizing was being used, officials said.

Ellis Sr. is a member of Whitehall's Planning and Zoning Commission and a Whitehall school teacher.

CORE Seeks Aid In South Land Project

Congress of Racial Equality has become a participating unit in the "Mississippi Project" and has organized a committee for receiving monetary contributions and materials needed in the South.

Most of the funds will be donated to erect a memorial to the three Civil Rights workers killed near Meridian, Miss.

Donations of materials applicable to teaching or recreation and monies will be taken. To alert an official collector, call AX. 1-1982 or AM. 7-4965.

TRAINEES LEARN CULINARY ARTS

From Soup To Nuts . . . New Lease On Life

CHEF LOUIS J. CARUSO, secretary of the American Institute of Chefs, shows Spectator reporter George Cobb one of the four basic sauces which comprise the backbone of a kitchen. Caruso is presently instructing a cooking class at Franklin Heights High School for the Ohio Employment Service.

By GEORGE COBB

Eight years ago, an Italian chef with 22 years of experience in the art of cuisine moved to Columbus, and as a result our community is about to experience a renaissance in imaginative dining.

Equally important, otherwise jobless men are being retrained under his watchful eye.

This story actually started in 1962 with the enactment of the late President Kennedy's Manpower program. The purpose is to retrain men and women to do other jobs when their trades become obsolete in industry. The program also offers opportunities to learn for those who are unskilled.

Last year Louis J. Caruso, 1574 Vilardo-ln, a man who has cheffed for the best, approached officials of the Ohio State Employment Service, the State Board of Education and Franklin Heights High School and offered his services as an instructor. Caruso feels strongly that Franklin County restaurant patrons should be served the finest foods and that more men should be trained to prepare these foods.

A two-month survey was made by the Employment Service, revealing a definite need for capable, knowledgeable cooks and chefs.

It was also determined that Franklin Heights High School offered the best facilities, and on Aug. 3 the kitchen classroom was opened for business.

Every morning nearly a dozen men, all clad in spotless white uniforms, march into an equally spotless kitchen, and for six hours follow closely the instructions of Chef Caruso.

"We have one textbook, Caruso stated, "but I believe that from the start the men should begin preparing the food itself. The textbook is for homework, the kitchen is to be used." Caruso only instructs. By his method, each man begins at the beginning, and the results are outstanding.

A typical meal consists of a rich soup that would be appreciated in the finest New York restaurant. Then a succulent thick slice of roast beef covered with natural juices, french fried potatoes and a vegetable are brought to the table. Large buttery rolls, a piece of pie, and a cup of hot coffee round out the feast. The students accomplished this in just two weeks. The entire course is 16 weeks long, and at graduation it will be a lucky employer indeed who hires one of these men.

Caruso explained that, though these men may have never cooked before, they can "read, think and use their common sense and judgment. By adding their imagination and their will these unskilled men can find a rich, rewarding career. This is also true in other job fields."

He also said that today, "The emphasis is on the college and university level. We are making a mistake in ignoring the trades. There are capable men to be trained to fill important jobs, and it is the responsibility of people within the trades to do the teaching."

He added, "Quality is a lost art, and with the proper guidance the men in the trades can restore this. In the restaurant business, for example, we can replace standard menus with delicious and imaginative meals."

We learned that the backbone of any restaurant kitchen is the sauce, or rather four sauces. There is the brown sauce, the tomato basic, the white and the egg. Combine this with proper frying, baking, broiling and roasting, and the man in charge can then be truly called a chef.

THE FINISHED PRODUCT! A complete meal as prepared and served by members of Caruso's class, in the retraining program which offers area residents a new vocation. This meal was completed after two weeks of the 16-week course. The results? C'est magnifique!

THE CURTAINS NEVER FALL AS SAC KEEPS ITS VIGIL

"Peace is our profession!" This is the motto of the Strategic Air Command and Lockbourne AFB.

But it is more than a slogan. It represents a truth which has helped maintain world peace for almost a decade.

In its role of maintaining peace, SAC keeps an around the clock vigil.

Any day of the week an endless stream of cars leaves the base at 4:45 p.m. and passes through the main gate as Lockbourne completes another day's work.

But is the day's work done? Has LAFB really ceased operations until another sunrise? What happened to that round the clock vigil so often mentioned?

Although nearly 80 percent of Lockbourne's military personnel, plus many civilians end a day at 4:45 p.m., the other 20 percent—the "night people"—are just beginning to work.

Lockbourne, a typical SAC installation, is comparable to a self-sufficient city. But it is and must be more than that. Like a city, the major internal protection agencies, such as law enforcement and fire department, maintain a 24-hour vigil.

But Lockbourne, unlike other "cities," has an even more important mission. It must keep its combat forces ready for any situation that may arise, day or night.

This requires men and machines to work throughout the night to maintain this fighting force.

Airborne alert crews of the 376th Bomb Wing B-47 bomber force and 301st Air Refueling Wing's KC-135 Stratotankers are poised and ready to "go" should the need arise.

Maintenance personnel work throughout the night repairing aircraft and equipment, including transient planes.

The 801st Combat Defense Squadron provides close security for aircraft, men and materials.

The Eighth Weather Detachment, 801st Transportation Squadron, 801st Supply Squadron, 801st Communications Squadron, 801st Medical Group and a host of other units support the basic mission.

Personnel from units of the other two major commands on the base, Tactical Air Command and Air Defense Command are also at work.

TAC's 317th Troop Carrier Wing's C-130 Hercules aircraft fills the role of supporting front line forces, including aerial delivery of personnel and cargo.

The 87th Fighter Interceptor Squadron, an ADC unit, flies F-101 Voodoo jets. Its mission is to protect this area from air attack and defend SAC's retaliatory forces at Lockbourne.

DAY OR NIGHT, when a car approaches the main gate of the base, the driver knows an Air Policeman will be there. The man on duty is just one more of the thousands of "night people" at LAFB.

Driver Class Is Scheduled By Auto Club

On Saturday, Sept. 5, from 1 to 3 p.m. the Columbus Auto Club Driver Training School will conduct a class to prepare applicants for temporary driving licenses for their examinations.

The free class will be held in the Southern Hotel, and will be open to new drivers over 16 years of age, and new residents who need Ohio driver's licenses. Advance registration is not necessary.

City Arts, Crafts Classes Begin

Fall classes at the Columbus Recreation Department's Arts and Crafts Center will begin Sept. 8.

The Center offers classes to adults in the Columbus area in weaving, ceramics, metal enameling, jewelry, graphics, design drawing and painting.

These classes meet in the afternoons from 1-4 p.m. and in the evenings from 7-10 p.m. Painting and drawing can be taken in the mornings from 9 a.m. till noon.

There are openings for beginning students in all classes. Further information may be obtained by calling CA. 1-9472.

Evening School Registration Set

Evening school classes for adults who wish to take self-improvement courses will begin Monday, Sept. 14, in the Champion Junior High School building, 1270 Hawthorne-av. Classes in typing, shorthand, sewing, instrumental music, reading, writing, English and mathematics will be offered.

Courses are tailored to individual needs and many adults who attend the classes are those who have completed only elementary school, according to a Board of Education announcement.

Registration will be Wednesday and Friday, Sept. 9 and 11 from 6 to 9 p.m. at Champion Junior High School. Information is available by calling the school at 252-9615.

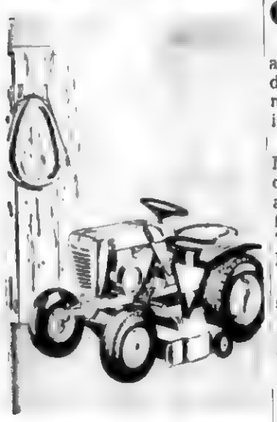
On-Base Extension Classes Open Sept. 14

Deadline for registration in the classes offered in the Ohio University on-base college program at Lockbourne AFB is Friday, Sept. 4. Chemistry registration closed Monday.

According to M/Sgt. George W. Martin of the Base Education Office, 23 courses will be offered for the fall term, which begins Monday, Sept. 14.

He stressed that the classes, held in building 820, are open to civilians as well as base personnel. Civilians wanting to enroll should call 491-8211.

Classes offered are: Sept. 14 to Nov. 5, Monday and Thursday, American history; sociology, business law I, educational psychology and secondary education; Sept. 15 to Nov. 6, Tuesday and Friday, international relations, elementary accounting, principles of economics, general psychology, English composition, American literature, Old Testament thought and industrial management.



Sept. 14 to Jan. 21, Monday and Thursday, chemistry (held in the Hamilton Township High School due to the need for laboratory facilities), and Spanish I.

Sept 14 to Jan. 22—Tuesday and Friday — French I; Sept. 19 to Jan. 23, Saturday, college algebra, basic mathematics, business analysis, trigonometry, analytic geometry and calculus.

Community Art Course Available

Capital University's fine arts department is again conducting a non-credit community art class for adults interested in oil painting.

Registration deadline is Monday, Sept. 28. Classes commence Tuesday, Sept. 29 at 7 p.m. at Huber Hall of fine arts and will meet each Tuesday evening through Nov. 17.

The community art class services the eastern area of Columbus covering Bexley, Eastmoor, Berwick and Whitehall. Fee for the course is $20.

Applications may be made by sending fees to Treasurer's Office, Yochum Hall, Capital University.

Dems Will Meet Wednesday Nite

Publicity chairman Wayne "Ellis" Skinner announced the Reynoldsburg - Truro Democrat Club will begin holding its regular monthly meetings again on the second Wednesday of each month.

The first meeting following the summer relaxation will be held in the Ohio Federal Savings and Loan Building, 7110 E. Main-st at 8 p.m., Wednesday, Sept. 9.

Skinner said the meeting will be a get-acquainted session for all new members acquired during the summer months.

The program will feature a summary of all summer activities, including plans for continuance of the registration drive now in effect.

Germania Club Festival Planned

The annual Germania Singing and Sports Society Labor Day Festival will open Sunday, Sept. 6, at Southview Park when the club's soccer team, a member of the Ohio-Indiana League, opens its '64 season at 2:30 p.m.

Following the soccer match, the Germania Club will present a concert from 3 to 5 p.m. at the club site at 543 S. Front-st. The club's 30-piece band will perform at this time.

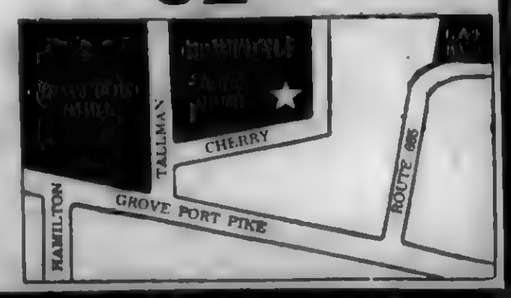
Labor Day festivities, also set for the Front-st address, include a three-part musical presentation, featuring the Columbus Maennerchor, the Swiss Mixed Chorus and the Germania Male Chorus.

Jaycees Annual 'Coffee Stop' Set For Labor Day

Weary travelers passing through the city will be greeted with coffee, soft drinks and doughnuts, as the Reynoldsburg Junior Chamber of Commerce's annual "Labor Day Coffee Stop" project begins at 4 p.m. Monday, Sept. 7.

In an effort to help reduce holiday traffic facilities, the Jaycees are offering that "one for the road," which will be located outside the A&P Supermarket and the City National Bank, serving traffic traveling east and west on Rt. 40.

COMPLETES COURSE



Pfc. Daniel R. Walters, 20, son of Donald E. Walters, 481 Robinwood-av, recently completed a five-week aircraft maintenance course at the Army Aviation School, Ft. Rucker, Ala. Walters is a 1962 graduate of Whitehall Yearling High School.

City Prepares To Raze Condemned Buildings

City-hired wrecking crews will soon begin the job of tearing down condemned structures throughout the city under a plan announced by Michael J. Dorrian, assistant safety director.

Dorrian said that the city will begin using a $20,000 rotary fund for building demolition, and will then collect the cost of such work from building owners. The city has listed 150 structures that must be either repaired or torn down.

Fifty of the structures have been ordered torn down. The remainder of the properties must either be brought up to minimum building code requirements or demolished, Dorrian said. The affected properties are located in widely separated sections of the city and are about 95 percent dwellings.

Dorrian said that there has been substantial cooperation by property owners of the 100 structures listed for repairs. He said that 50 to 75 such properties are being rehabilitated by property owners. Only those buildings with irrepairable structural defects are being ordered demolished.

The city has been plagued over the years with condemned buildings that have become eyesores. They have become a haven for bums or a breeding area for rats. Wine bottles, trash, garbage and filth litter most of the condemned buildings — some of which were condemned several years ago.

In an effort to shorten the process of razing condemned buildings, city officials will ask council to approve an amendment to the rotary fund ordinance.

The amendment, to be introduced at next Monday's council session, will seek authority of expenditures for property title service.

This will enable city building department officials to determine property ownership and existence of any liens against the property.

Proper information about property ownership will permit building inspectors to file valid notices of condemnation. If property owners then refuse to abide by the "repair or demolish" orders, the city will then advertise for bids for structure demolition.

If property owners fail to repay the city for necessary expenses incurred in demolition, the city will then file a lien against the affected property.

Present city law permits the city to certify such expenses to the county auditor for collection from the property duplicate, but the auditor is not authorized under state statute to follow such a procedure.

Dorrian says that he has already selected the first five properties the city will demolish if property owners do not agree to do the job themselves.

Please, Mr. Johnson . . . Not This! . . .

"The following is a paid political announcement."

On the TV screen flashes a picture of a cute little girl pulling petals off a daisy, "One, two, three, four, five."

Immediately following comes a different kind of countdown, "Five, four, three, two, one." An atomic bomb explodes!

"We must love each other or we are doomed."

"Vote for Lyndon B. Johnson for President."

The intelligence of the American public is certainly being insulted in this performance, and Mr. Johnson's stock as a candidate for president surely must be declining across the nation.

Certainly American men and women will not be influenced by a campaign aimed to make the voter afraid of the opposition candidate.

With apologies to Robert Frost, the above quotation does not appear in poetic works, but it aptly exemplifies construction work currently under way at the University Along Main Street—Capital U.

As in Frost's "Stopping By the Woods on a Snowy Evening," anyone may stop by the campus, morning, noon, night, whatever the season, and will soon learn that the "Decade of Decision" has dug in.

Ground has been broken, walls have come tumbling down; and two new three-story buildings dot the modest Bexley skyline.

It has taken hard work to get the job completed in time for classes in mid-September. And university president Harold L. Yochum said, 'There' may be a short duration of crowded conditions before the endeavors of this past year can be fully ironed out."

WHITEHALL EVENING CLASSES SET

Adults May 'Moonlight' Way To Education

Adults of all ages are welcome to enroll in the evening education classes held at Whitehall-Yearling High.

Courses are offered to everyone, 16 and over, who wish to develop new skills, work towards a high school diploma or learn new hobbies.

Registration dates are set for Monday through Thursday, Sept. 14 through 17, 7 to 9 p.m. at the high school office, 675 Yearling-rd.

Courses for high school credit are held twice a week for 17 weeks, ending Jan. 28. Others of shorter duration are completed in eight or 12 weeks.

College level math classes, started last semester will continue to be offered from 5 to 7 p.m., with wide selection available.

Business courses available range from office machines, typing, shorthand and bookkeeping, to such academic subjects as math, English, history, government and science.

Correspondence courses are also available from the University of Nebraska and subjects are almost unlimited.

Sewing, knitting, cake decorating, interior decorating, art, bridge and dancing are also available as well as woodworking, drafting, conversational French and Spanish and driver education.

English for the foreign-born is another popular class as well as courses in electronics.

Other courses are offered if a group of at least 15 express interest.

Anyone wishing a brochure with information on class times and fees may call or write the school, BE. 5-2385.

Holy Days Continue At Jewish Temples

Dr. Jerome D. Folkman will preach on the subject "The Right To Fear—The Responsibility To Achieve" at Temple Israel, 5419 E. Broad-st, at the 8 p.m. service Friday, Sept. 11. This will be a continuation of the High Holy Day series of sermons by Dr. Folkman and Rabbi Stephen A. Arnold. At the 11 a.m. Saturday service, Rabbi Arnold will discuss "The Right To Live—The Responsibility To Learn."

The Sabbath between Rosh Hashonah (Jewish New Year) and Yom Kippur (Day of Atonement) is known as Shabbas Shuvah (Sabbath of Repentance). In the Jewish calendar, the Holy season is called "The Ten Days of Penitence." For their sermons during this season Dr. Folkman and Rabbi Arnold have chosen the theme "Rights and Responsibilities."

The Holy season will be concluded with Yom Kippur, Tuesday, Sept. 15, 8 p.m., opening with the Kol Nidre chant by Dick Stein and the Temple Israel Choir under the direction of Mrs. Melville Frank with Charles Everly at the organ. At that service, Dr. Folkman will discuss "The Right To Err—The responsibility To Repent."

The Yom Kippur morning service will begin at 10 a.m., Wednesday, Sept. 16. At that service Rabbi Arnold will discuss "The Right To Universalize—The Responsibility To Judaize." He will also preach at 1:30 p.m. on "The Right To Dislike—The Responsibility To Love."

The Memorial Service for Yom Kippur will be held at 3:30 p.m. Dr. Folkman has chosen for his subject "The Right To Grieve—The Responsibility To Live."

GRI Grads Vie For First Olympic Title

Edward Lucas, 445 Eastmoor-blvd, will be among 13 Ohio speakers competing for "Best Speaker Award" at the first Columbus Olympics Sunday, Sept. 13, 2:30 p.m.

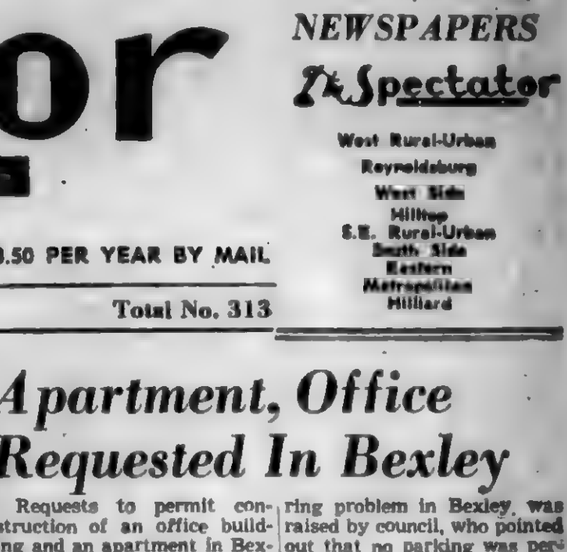
The Olympics, sponsored by the Gabriel Richard Institute, will be held in the auditorium of St. Charles Seminary, 2010 E. Broad-st. Carolyn Althoff, 2588 Burnaby-dr, is Lucas's alternate.

The 13 contestants were selected from more than 200 graduates of the 1963-64 GRI Christopher Leadership courses. They represent classes from Columbus, Lancaster, Westerville, Mt. Vernon, Newark, Chillicothe, Circleville, Delaware and New Lexington.

Judges will consist of personalities from Columbus and Detroit. All graduates of previous GRI courses and their guests have been invited.

Apartment, Office Requested In Bexley

Requests to permit construction of an office building and an apartment in Bexley were considered by the City Council Tuesday night in its first regular session after August vacation.



Rezoning was asked for land on Livingston-av, between the service station at the corner of College-av and the Woodyard home, for the two-story office building.

Planned by developer Philip Gurwin, the building would house five offices.

The question of off-street parking, a constantly recurring problem in Bexley, was raised by council, who pointed out that no parking was permitted on Livingston.

The developer's plan to lease additional parking space from the service station and other questions will be studied by council, which took the request under advisement.

Council also asked for time to study the rezoning request and view the site of a proposed eight-family apartment on the remaining two vacant lots on Fernwood, just north of Livingston-av.

Dr. And Mrs. Lane K. Conn

Harvard's New Ph. D. Costs Council A Clerk

By BETTY DAFT

Now it's DOCTOR Lane K. Conn of HARVARD, and the honored title is a dream come true for the popular Whitehall couple.

The standard questions asked of the pert and pretty Whitehall Council clerk, Gloria Conn, for the past year and a half has been "How's Lane doing?" and "How's the dissertation?"

All the city officials in Whitehall, and everyone who frequently visits the Municipal Building shared with the Conns a happy sense of accomplishment when Lane completed the requirements for his Ph. D. Degree in Clinical Psychology at Ohio State University.

And Lane credits Gloria for her assistance, saying "Half of the diploma really is hers."

He has assumed his new duties as associate professor of psychology at Harvard University. The couple is at home at 35 Lee-st, Apt. 15, Cambridge, Mass.

A native of Philadelphia, Dr. Conn received his bachelor's degree at Penn State, and his master's at Ohio State in 1963.

He served a year's internship at Boston, Mass., Mental Health Center, and was a U.S. Public Fellow during his first, third and fourth years at Ohio State. During his years of study he was awarded a number of fellowships and grants.

At Ohio State, he taught introductory psychology, and was singled out for the academic honor of serving as assistant on four different projects.

This past summer he worked as a senior research assistant at Columbus State Hospital.

PTA Offers Aid To Voters In Whitehall

In the interest of making it easier for voters to register for the November election, Whitehall PTA Council will conduct a day-long informative session at the Municipal Building Wednesday, Sept. 16.

Members will have maps on hand, and information on the correct precinct polling places of all city residents.

Citizens may register at their neighborhood precinct on the last day of registration, Wednesday, Sept. 23.

BANTAMS TO SELL DECALS

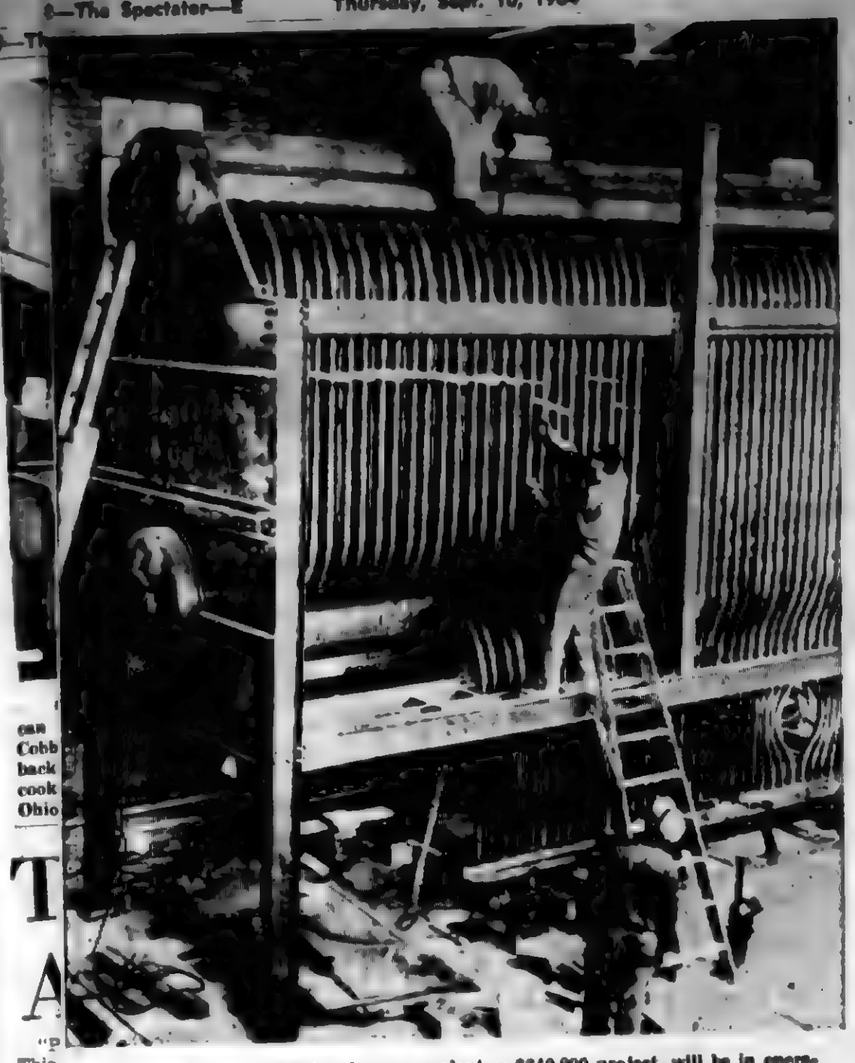
DECALS TO SUPPORT the bantam weight football program in Whitehall will be sold by Little League participants starting Saturday, Sept. 12. The automobile stickers, which will cost $1, will be distributed door to door. Presenting the mayor with his decals are, from left, Ricky Bridges, Douglas Reak and Brian Wilson. First game of the season is Sept. 19.

Whitehall Zoning Considers Fairway Oaks, Theater Issues

New plans for Fairway Oaks, Todd Tibbals' proposed 50-acre housing development in Whitehall, were tabled for 30 days by Planning and Zoning Tuesday night to allow time for further study.

Decision to delay a ruling was prompted by protests of about 30 Fairway-blvd residents who attended the meeting.

They objected, according to James Polzer, service director and commission member, to some of the lot sizes. They also asked that a third entrance be planned into the development, possibly located behind Fairport Shopping Center, to forestall traffic congestion on Fairway.



The commission also agreed to a measure that will permit the construction of a new indoor theater on E. Broad-st at Yearling-rd, accepted a request to build a light manufacturing plant in the city, and turned down one for a coin-operated car wash.

The latest plans for Fairway Oaks, fourth to be presented by Tibbals, include six four-family units facing Etna-rd, council's point of objection when they were proposed before.

There are also 115 single residences in the plan.

Planning and Zoning had earlier approved the proposal that included the four-family units, on the basis that the apartments were a small concession for the 115 residences which the group felt the city

Airman Found Dead

The body of A/1C. Sylvester J. Fahler, 25, was found in a wooded area just west of Darbydale Monday.

Dr. Carl Tetirick, deputy coroner, said the death was apparently a suicide. Sheriff's deputies believe the airman shot himself with a 16 gauge shotgun.

The deputy coroner stated it appeared Fahler's body had been lying for about a week in the woods.

A spokesman at Lockbourne Air Force Base said the victim had been reported absent without leave on Aug. 28.

Val Farm's Horses Win Top Honors

It was Val Farm's horses all the way when the Morgan breed were shown at the State Fair.

Trophy's Becky Date walked, trotted and cantered away with the blue ribbon each of the four times she entered the ring.

The six-year-old from the stables at Rt. 33 and Refugee-rd took first place in the Morgan Three-Gaited Class, the Morgan Open Fine Harness Class, the $250 Morgan Fine Harness Stake and the $250 Morgan Three-Gaited Stake.

The mare was ridden by Judy Swan of Mansfield, considered one of the most accomplished equestrians in the state.

Other Val Farm ribbon winners included Lucky Charm, a two-year-old filly who won the Ohio Morgan Horse Futurity; Chasley's Little Man who took the blue ribbon in the Yearling Halter Division, and First Mate, the two-year-old champion stallion who placed second in the Open Two-Year Halter Class.

needed badly.

Councilmen, however, bound by campaign promises of "no more apartments for the city," had indicated they would vote the plan down.

Tibbals then withdrew the request, and later submitted an alternate plan with twin singles. The commission refused this because of a substantial reduction in lot sizes.

The zoning group approved an amendment to a city ordinance that will allow the construction of a new indoor theater at the northwest corner of E. Broad-st at Yearling-rd. The theater site encircles the Standard Oil Service Station and Peter Pan Drive-In.

The matter will come before council at its regular meeting next Tuesday night.

A request for a special permit to build a mattress and retail bedding factory at 3618 E. Main-st was accepted by the commission for study.

The commission turned down a request to build a coin-operated car wash at 3850 E. Main-st, and Chrysler Motor Corp. withdrew its petition for a new and used car sales lot at the southeast corner of E. Main-st at Hamilton-rd.

FROM TWO AND ONE-half miles in the sky, the Golden Knights begin their spectacular free-fall parachute trips to the earth. The team of United States Army precision parachutists descending at speeds over 200 miles per hour, execute breath-taking acrobatics on the way down marked by the colorful smoke trail of grenades. Even after the snap of the opening of the brilliant black and gold 'chutes, spectators marvel as the Knights demonstrate the maneuverability of their canopies, handling them and controlling their fall as a pilot guides his aircraft. The team has established over 70 percent of the world parachuting accuracy records and has perfomed before almost 16 million persons, including 2,000,000 in Paris during one exhibition.

Golden Knight Parachutists Headline Kids' Day Program

Free-fall parachute demonstrations by the Golden Knights of the U.S. Army, the landing of Jerrie Mock, Columbus' globe girdling aviatrix and jet fighter fly-overs will highlight the program when the gates of Lockbourne AFB swing open at 11:30 a.m. Sunday, Sept. 20, for the annual Air Force-Kiwanis Kids' Day.

More than 75,000 persons are expected at the affair, which is for "kids of all ages" with a special rocking-chair pavilion equipped for "youngsters" over 70.

To seven young men, the day will be a never-to-be forgotten one, when they become "kings for a day," as honorary commanders and staff members.

The base commander, fire chief, fighter pilot, bomber pilot, tanker pilot, troop carrier pilot and an air policeman will be chosen from children who apply for the positions by filling out the coupon to be found in this newspaper.

The formal program begins with a band concert at 1 p.m. by the Wright-Patterson AFB Ohio Band, followed at 1:30 p.m. by the exhibition of the Strategic Air Command Drill Team.

Jerrie Mock will arrive at 1:50 p.m. and after the official welcome will be introduced along with the honorary staff. Also honored will be the oldest "kid" present, the eldest of "Club 70," the rocking chair brigade.

At 2:30 p.m. the F-101's of the 87th Fighter Interceptor Squadron and the F-100's of the Ohio Air National Guard will fly over, followed by a clown act staged for the "3-5-7 Club."

The popular SAC Sentry Dogs will be put through their Dr. Jekyll-Mr. Hyde act at 3:20 p.m. and the SAC Drill Team will perform at 3:40 p.m.

The feature attraction when the Golden Knights demonstrate their free-fall parachute techniques, beginning at 4:20 p.m., will be preceded by demonstration of the C-130 Hercules of the 317th Troop Carrier Wing.

There will be static displays of various aircraft, engines and hot rods. Horses of Franklin County Sheriff's posse and of the Western Saddle Club will be on hand, and pony and train rides are available, all free.

Round and square dancing has been planned for the adults and refreshment stands will be open all day.

Of special interest to the little girls will be the doll hospital, staffed by Air Force nurses, to which children are invited to bring their dolls with real or fancied ailments.

St. Rita Lane Parking Ban Disapproved

St. Rita-la residents turned out full force at Friday night's public hearing held by the Whitehall Safety Committee to protest 25 to two a proposed parking ban on the street.

One of the two voicing approval of the measure changed her view, leaving only Charles Westerling of 4556 St. Rita-ln favoring the move.

Councilman Gilbert O'Shaughnessy indicated that he would move to table the ordinance indefinitely at next Tuesday's council meeting — in effect killing the measure.

O'Shaughnessy introduced the legislation Aug. 18.

The committee also approved the purchase of a new station wagon to serve as an auxiliary emergency squad car, replacing an old vehicle used for the same purpose.

YMCA Holds 'Buddy Day'

Members of the Boys' Branch YMCA are holding a "Bring Your Buddy Day" Saturday, Sept. 19. "Y" members are inviting their buddies to attend with them for special programs in the gym and pool Saturday morning. There will also be a free movie starting at 12:30 p.m.

Work started on a 38-unit addition and new dining room at the Airways Lodge, motel at Port Columbus, owner Howard Metzenbaum announced.

Apparently, a new lease agreement between Metzenbaum and city officials had been approved.

Public Works Week Slated In Whitehall

National Public Works Week will be observed in Whitehall from Sept. 28 to Oct. 4, with the cooperation of Whitehall Kiwanis Club.

Purpose of the observance is to inform the public of what is involved in the operation of a city and its facilities. Citizens are invited to visit the Police and Fire Departments and the city garage during the week, to inspect the facilities and equipment.

Place mats publicizing the observance will be placed in local restaurants, and school children will be given literature to take home.

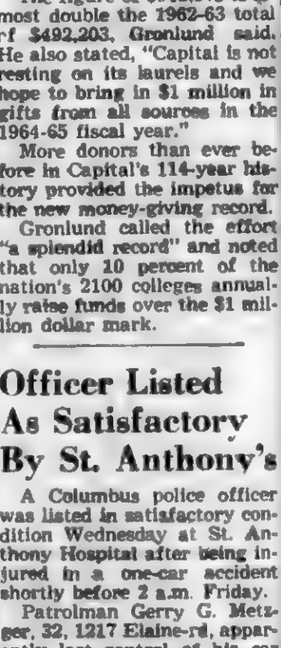
Cap U Program Aimed Toward $1 Million Mark

Capital University's development program produced a new high in contributions during the 1963-64 school year, and is now aiming toward a $1 million mark, Robert B. Gronlund, vice-president of development, announced Wednesday.

The figure of $948,575 is almost double the 1962-63 total of $492,203, Gronlund said. He also stated, "Capital is not resting on its laurels and we hope to bring in $1 million in gifts from all sources in the 1964-65 fiscal year."

More donors than ever before in Capital's 114-year history provided the impetus for the new money-giving record.

Gronlund called the effort "a splendid record" and noted that only 10 percent of the nation's 2100 colleges annually raise funds over the $1 million dollar mark.



Officer Listed As Satisfactory By St. Anthony's

A Columbus police officer was listed in satisfactory condition Wednesday at St. Anthony Hospital after being injured in a one-car accident shortly before 2 a.m. Friday.

Patrolman Gerry G. Metzger, 32, 1217 Elaine-rd, apparently lost control of his car and hit a tree in the front of 1045 S. Remington-rd.

He was off-duty at the time.

The accident is still under investigation.

Adult Dance Saturday At Beechwood Park

Whitehall Recreation Department will hold its adult round and square dance Saturday, Sept. 12, at the new Beechwood Shelter House in the wooded area adjacent to Beechwood School.

Chuck Huelsman will do the calling. Everybody is welcome.

In case of rain or bad weather, it will be held at the Municipal Building.

The fall recreation program will get under way Sept. 14. There will be recreation at the Municipal Building every day from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. Ping pong, shuffleboard, world-wide games, checkers and other games are available.

Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, 7 to 9, recreation will be open to junior and senior high students.

Membership cards should be picked up and everybody must have a new card to be admitted to dances.

SENIOR CITIZEN

Whitehall Senior Citizen's Club is conducting a drive for new members.

Tonight, Sept. 10, there will be a potluck at 6 p.m., followed by bingo. Prizes will be given.

Jewish Center Slates Activities

Jewish Center bowling lanes will officially re-open Sunday, Sept. 13. Some 12 newly remodeled lanes will be open to the public at 2 p.m.

Al Solove, chairman of the bowling committee, has announced an open house from 1 to 6 p.m. at which time participants may roll one game free with every two games bowled. Free pop will be available to the children and door prizes will be given.

A new series of instructions will be instituted for the beginners and experienced bowlers of all ages. Mrs. Ethel Weise will supervise free morning instruction programs utilizing newly published films, graphic aids and printed literature. Mrs. Weise is a certified bowling instructor.

The public is invited to visit the lanes at 1125 S. College-av.

The Jewish Center fall program for juniors will open with registration from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 27.

A wide selection of activities beginning Sunday, Oct. 4, is available.

Bexley Teacher Publishes Article

An article, "In Defense of Educationists," by Miss Vivian Beck, first grade teacher at Bexley Montrose Elementary School, has been chosen for inclusion in a handbook for officers of local education associations.

The article had been published in the March National Education Association Journal.

The author sought to defend professional educators who are often victims of unsubstantiated attacks.

Chairmen Flip Over Procedure

That headline was intentionally flipped. It's called a gimmick. Gimmicks aren't nice, but we had to get your attention. If you are reporting news . . . please let us help you help us.

Many calls have come in this past week from distraught publicity chairmen. Most of these gals are taking their first crack at reporting and are stymied by newspaper procedure.

We want to make their job (and ours) as easy as possible. Theta Sigma Phi is holding a publicity clinic for publicity chairmen Thursday, Sept. 17, 7 p.m., in the Southern Hotel ballroom. This clinic has been a great help and we suggest that publicity chairmen make every effort to attend. (Details are on this page.)

Deadline for all church and society news is Monday morning prior to Wednesday and Thursday publications. Deadline for photos is Monday noon. Early copy, a week or more in advance, receives better treatment.

Please do not phone in club news. We are happy to talk with you concerning picture appointments or explaining procedure, but we prefer to have copy mailed in. This helps eliminate errors.

Copy should be typewritten and double-spaced. Give the actual date: Sunday, Sept. 7 8 p.m., and place of meeting: home of Mrs. Alfred E. Neuman, 500 Fink-st. Each local club, PTA and church group is permitted one picture a year. Appointments should be made three weeks in advance.

Always put your name and telephone number on your information sheet. Be sure names are spelled correctly. Wedding and engagement forms will be mailed on request.

Remember we cover only local events. City-wide affairs will be used only if they can be localized. An unusual activity presents feature possibilities. Don't overlook this kind of material. For further information or assistance call BR. 4-1155.

Scholarships Available

Young men and women interested in a career in podiatry and foot care have an opportunity to receive financial assistance for education through a scholarship fund provided by the Ohio Podiatry Association.

Applications for scholarships are now being accepted. Value is $300 a year.

Applications should be made in writing to the Scholarship Committee, Ohio Podiatry Association, 50 W. Broad-st.

BROCCOLI AND EGGS au Gratin can be either a main dish for lunch or a vegetable dish for dinner.

DOES YOUR FAMILY TURN

Thumbs Down On Vegetables? Then Try This Clever Disguise

Vegetables, along with fruits, compose one of the four food groups. This food group helps to keep skin healthy, to maintain normal eyesight and to build resistance to infection. Nutritionists recommend that everyone eat four or more servings of fruits and vegetables each day.

Another food that everyone needs daily is milk. Using milk and milk-made products in cooking can help provide part of the recommended amount. Children need three or more glasses daily; teen-agers four or more glasses; adults two or more glasses. Broccoli and Eggs au Gratin combines these two important foods in a main dish for lunch or as vegetable dish for dinner.

Using variety in the selection and serving of vegetables, helps to assure an adequate supply of the nutrients they provide. And, a new serving idea may turn a not - too - well - received vegetable into a family favorite. Broccoli and Eggs au Gratin provides good nutrition and good eating in one easy-to-prepare dish.

BROCCOLI AND EGGS AU GRATIN

1 bunch fresh broccoli or two 10-ounce packages frozen broccoli stalks, cooked and drained
4 hard-cooked eggs, quartered lengthwise
¼ cup butter (½ stick)
¼ cup flour
1½ teaspoons salt
2 cups milk
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 cup shredded processed American cheese (¼ lb.)
2 tablespoons butter
¼ cup fine bread crumbs

Arrange broccoli in rows over bottom of a well buttered 13x9x1½-inch shallow baking dish. Top with rows of egg quarters. Melt ¼ cup butter in saucepan over low heat; blend in flour and salt. Add milk, stirring constantly. Cook and stir until sauce is smooth and thickened. Add Worcestershire sauce and cheese, stirring just until cheese is melted. Pour sauce over eggs and broccoli. Melt two tablespoons butter in fry pan; add bread crumbs and brown lightly, stirring constantly. Sprinkle crumbs over sauce. Bake in moderate oven 350 degrees, for 20 to 25 minutes.

Moms -- Cry No More Over Spilled Milk!

A brand new way of feeding babies — pre-mixed and pre-sterilized infant formula in glass disposable bottles—is now available to mothers in Ohio. Developed by a manufacturer of prepared infant feedings the new pre-bottled formula is already used in over 1,500 hospital nurseries throughout the United States. It is available in Ohio at retail drug stores.

The formula, like many vacuum-sealed food products today, needs no refrigeration and hence no heating before feeding. The disposable nursing bottle fits any standard nipple or ring. To feed her baby, all a mother has to do is open a bottle and apply a sterilized nipple. After use, the bottle is thrown away.

Among the advantages of this "instant" formula are the time and effort formerly spent by the mother in preparing formula is no longer necessary. She no longer has to wash bottles or measure, mix and sterilize formula. And there is no mess to clean up afterwards.

The pre-bottled formula also eliminates any possibility of mismixing ingredients, as well, as any chance of contaminating formula by faulty sterilization.

You will not see the new formula advertised anywhere because the choice of infant formula is best left in the hands of the physician, and it is advertised only to him.

Nightingale Wings Urge 'Be An Angel'

September has been designated as "Wing Month" by the Wings of Nightingale Cottage. Members will canvass shopping centers on Saturday, Sept. 12 and volunteer "Wings" will circulate in Groveport, Grove City, Reynoldsburg and Westerville seeking donations.

On Monday, Sept. 14, street corners downtown will be manned by Wing members asking everyone to "Be An Angel And Sprout A Wing" for the children of Nightingale Cottage.

Nightingale Cottage, owned and operated by the Tuberculosis Society of Columbus and Franklin County, is located about 15 miles southwest of Columbus, near Reynoldsburg, on Brice-rd. It is a convalescent home for children from one to 16 years of age. Any child who is a resident of Franklin County and needs convalescent or rehabilitation care is eligible for admission, whether the family is able to pay or not.

Cases treated are heart disease, including rheumatic fever; orthopedic cases; chronic diseases such as asthma, diabetes, and nephrities; psychiatric cases; surgical, medical and nutrition cases.

ALL WOMEN INVITED TO MEETING

Kick-off time for the Hilltop YWCA fall program is Tuesday, Sept. 15, with a "coffee klatch" from 10 to 11:30 a.m. at the YWCA Center, 2879 Valleyview-dr, just west of N. Hague-av, in the new YMCA building. There is free parking space, and child care will be provided.

All women who want to learn more about the YWCA are especially invited. Those who have attended classes and "Tuesday at the Y" programs in the past are urged to be present to meet the new president of the board of directors, Mrs. Charles T. Wheeler, and hear Mrs. Thomas L. Chase, 1591 Ongaro-dr, speak on "Match us to this Hour."

Mrs. Chase, who attended the National YWCA Convention last spring, is a member of the Hilltop YWCA committee and has recently been elected grand president of the Daughters of Penelope, a Greek women's organization which meets in Athens, Greece next year.

No reservations are needed. For further information call the YWCA, CA. 4-9121.

The first PTA meeting for Walnut Ridge Junior and Senior High School will be held Thursday, Sept. 17, 8 p.m. in the auditorium. Executive board will meet at 6:45.

The subject will be "Parents Plus Teachers Equal PTA." Teachers and staff will be introduced. A trio of students will sing and there will be a parents group singing "School Days." A social hour will follow in the cafeteria.

Kappas' Open House Begins Fall Season

Alumnae Association of Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority will hold its first fall meeting Sept. 22 at the sorority house, 55 E. 15th-av. The joint meeting will begin with an open house from 6 to 7 p.m. at the Speech and Hearing Clinic, Ohio State University.

A box supper at the sorority house from 7 to 8 p.m. will be followed by a group discussion on the work at the clinic. The discussion will be led by Dr. Sheila Morrison Gaff and Mrs. Harvey Rush, an alumnae member.

The Kappas are maintaining pre-school rooms at the Speech and Hearing Clinic and are sponsoring a series of puppet shows throughout the city which will benefit this project.

SHALL WE DANCE?

The annual autumn dance of the Trudeau Guilds will be held Saturday, Sept. 19, 9 p.m. to midnight at the Officers Club of the Army Depot, James-rd entrance. Tickets may be purchased from members.

CORRECTION

Bexley Unit 430 will meet Monday, Sept. 14, 8 p.m. at the post home and not Sept. 19 as it was stated in last week's Spectator. We regret the error.

A GUIDE FOR PARENTS IN CHOOSING A DANCING SCHOOL

TELEPHONE THE SCHOOL AND GET THE FOLLOWING INFORMATION:

Dance Training for Children Under 8 Years of Age: Does the school have a program specially designed for children between the ages of 3 to 8? What is included in this program, and how will it benefit your child in developing a sense of rhythm and movement, coordination, ability to take directions, and an appreciation of music? If ballet is given are the French ballet terms taught?

Ballet Training for 8 Year Olds and Over: Is the ballet lesson at least an hour long? What method is taught — Russian, French, Italian, or a combination of these three? Again, are the French ballet terms taught?

Toe Shoes: Are students required to be at least 8 years of age, to have had a minimum of 2 full (preferably 3 years) of ballet training, to have acquired the fundamental knowledge and strength necessary for dancing on the tips of their toes in toe shoes?

Placement of Students: Is the beginner student placed according to his or her age group? Is the student with previous training placed according to the progress he has made and not merely according to age or the number of years of previous study?

Size of Class: Can the teacher handle 10 to 15 students at a time? What is the maximum in a class? If fewer students are placed in a class, is it because of lack of space, teacher's ability to handle small groups only, or the number of students enrolled?

Cost of Lessons and Amount of Instruction: What is the price of lessons? Is it for a half-hour, 45 minutes, or an hour?

Make-up Lessons: Can students make up lessons missed due to illness?

Observing Classes: Is there a regularly scheduled time when you may observe to see your child's progress? Is the area for parents and visitors separated from the area in which the students dance?

Equipment Needed: Do they require equipment such as leotards, ballet shoes, tap shoes, etc.? What will the items needed by your child cost?

Recitals and Public Appearances: What are their policies concerning annual recitals and public appearances? What is the cost? What amount of the lesson time is spent in learning recital dances?

VISIT THE SCHOOL AND SEE ITS FACILITIES

Size of Classroom: Is it large enough for the students to dance?

Ballet Barres: Are they permanently installed or must they use the back of chairs or temporary barres?

Mirrors in the Classrooms: These are necessary so the students may observe whether they are doing a step correctly.

Heating System: Is a proper, healthful temperature maintained?

Dressing Rooms: Do they have separate dressing rooms for boys and girls? Is the space adequate?

Musical Accompaniment: Good music is an important part of dance training. Is the recording equipment or piano of good quality?

Maintenance of School: Is the school clean?

OBSERVE THE CLASSES AND SEE THE SCHOOL IN OPERATION

Do the students get the full time of their lessons or do they lose 5 or 10 minutes while the teacher takes payments, marks the attendance, answers the phone, etc.?

How does the teacher hold the students' attention and maintain discipline? What kind of personality does the teacher have? Do all the students get the full amount of instruction or is the time wasted in taking turns?

Observe the advanced classes in addition to the class in which your child may be placed, as this will give you an indication of the quality of training and what the school can produce.

COMPARE: GET COMPLETE INFORMATION FROM SEVERAL SCHOOLS.

Advertisements and publicity can be misleading. A competent teacher has spent many years of intensive study in gaining a thorough knowledge of dance. A good teacher knows what his instruction is worth. A good teacher is primarily concerned with imparting his knowledge to his students, in seeing his students benefit from dance training, in developing an appreciation for dance and the related arts, and in seeing them derive pleasure in dancing.

If you are considering dancing lessons for your child, or even if you have already enrolled with another dancing teacher, you are cordially invited to visit our school—without obligation.

NEW TWIST FOR OLD FAVORITE

"My favorite is chocolate syrup and crushed peppermint candy."

"Oh, no, just plain peanuts can't be beat."

"I like butterscotch syrup and chopped pecans best."

These are some of the comments you're likely to hear when you treat your family or guests to Ice Cream Paddle Dips. They are ice cream bars, made at home, and served with an assortment of toppings.

Making them is as easy as 1-2-3. One, cut a pint of ice cream into four long pieces. Two, insert a craft stick into one end of each ice cream piece. Three, place in the freezer until serving time. To eat the paddle dips, each person dips his ice cream paddle into a favorite topping—or a combination of favorites. And, the comments will begin to fly, as each person tastes his creation and is assured that his is the best possible flavor combination.

With a supply of ice cream in the freezer, you are always ready with a nutritious dessert or between-meal treat. This favorite American food is so good, served plain or dressed up—as Ice Cream Paddle Dips, for instance.

The comments about the toppings may vary, but one comment will be unanimous, "Ice Cream Paddle Dips are good!"

ICE CREAM PADDLE DIPS

1 pint very cold vanilla ice cream
4 craft sticks or tongue depressors
Topping for paddle dips, as desired (see below)

Cut ice cream lengthwise into 4 even pieces. Plunge one end of a craft stick or tongue depressor down firmly into one of each ice cream piece. Place in freezer until serving time. Serve with a tray of favorite toppings; let guests dip paddles into desired topping. Makes 4 ice cream paddles for dipping.

TOPPINGS

Crushed peppermint stick candy, crushed peanut brittle, chopped peanuts or pecans, chocolate shot, tiny chocolate bits or thick chocolate fudge or butterscotch sundae sauce.

INVESTITURE SLATED

Investiture of Bishop Francis Gerald Ensley as resident bishop of the Ohio West Area of the Methodist Church will be held Sept. 11 at Mershon Auditorium, OSU campus. The 12:30 p.m. luncheon will be followed by the 2:45 p.m. service.

Kiddies Invited To Pre-School

A Christian pre-school for four-year-olds is beginning its second year of operation at Christ Lutheran Church, 2314 E. Main-st, Bexley, Sept. 14. All four-year-olds in the community are invited.

Mrs. Robert Kennedy, a member of the congregation, is in charge of the school under the supervision of the church's Committee of Christian Education. A program of socialized play, recreation and Bible-based stories is carried out each morning, Monday through Thursday, 9:15 to 11:30 a.m.

Interested parents may call the church office, 235-2314 or Mrs. Kennedy, 235-9848 for further information.

Rabbi And Wife To Open Home

Rabbi and Mrs. Samuel W. Rubenstein invite the members and friends of Agudas Achim Congregation and the community to visit with them in their new home, 2738 E. Broad-st, Sunday, Sept. 13, 8 to 11 p.m.

This is a traditional period of fellowship and the exchanging of well wishes and New Year Greetings for Jewish families.

Sabbath Services Are Scheduled

Sabbath Services will be held at Temple Tifereth Israel, 1354 E. Broad-st, Friday, Sept. 11, 8 p.m., with Rabbi Nathan Zelizer conducting the service and Cantor Stanley Burstein chanting the traditional liturgy.

Services on Saturday morning begin at 9:15 a.m. Rabbi Zelizer will speak on "Wandering Humanity" in observance of the Sabbath of Repentance.

Asbury WSCS Variety Auction

Asbury Methodist Church WSCS will hold its annual auction sale Saturday, Sept. 12, 4 p.m. at the church grounds, 4760 Winchester-pk.

A lunch stand will be provided with wiener, sausage and hot chicken sandwiches, baked beans, potato chips, pie, coffee and soft drinks. Items to be sold include: toys, dishes, pets, furniture, appliances, books, jewelry, garden produce, shrubbery, groceries, flowers, handmade articles and baked goods.

Donations are needed. For pick up call 837-4922.

Pythian Picnic Slated At Circleville Grounds

Knights of Pythias will hold its 11th district picnic Sunday, Sept. 13, at the Grange Hall on the Circleville Fairgrounds.

All Pythians, Pythian Sisters DOKK, Nomads and Sunshine Girls and their families are invited. Games will be held during the afternoon, a basket supper at 5:30 p.m. and square dancing in the evening.

OX ROAST SET

Grace United Church of Christ is sponsoring its fourth annual pit prepared ox roast Saturday, Sept. 19, 3 to 7 p.m., at the church, 1226 Shady Lane-rd, rain or shine. Public invited.

IT WAS A hard thing even for a youngster to understand. Why would anyone destroy eight young trees? Victor Jennings, 698 Dexter-av, was trying to put them together again as the Spectator photographer passed by last week. But like the proverbial egg, it couldn't be done. Vandals broke off the four-year-old trees at their bases in Westgate Park last week. Only God can make a tree but city taxpayers will have to pay $240 to replace His mistreated handiwork, according to Superintendent of Parks Emerson Betz.

YOU PAY AS . . .

God Makes, Kids Break

The destructive handiwork of vandals was on display last week in Westgate Park in the form of eight, snapped-at-the-base four-year-old trees.

City Superintendent of Parks Emerson Betz described the act of vandalism as "the worst for quite some time" in Westgate Park.

The trees, located at the southeast corner of the ball diamond, where Southampton deadends into Parkside, were snapped early last Wednesday morning.

Nearby residents reported they heard youngsters making noise in the vicinity about 9 a.m. The young vandals fled upon investigation.

Betz believed the vandals grabbed the young trees and swung on them. "The ground was hard and the roots didn't give as they simply snapped the three-inch trunk at the base."

Oddly enough, two of the trees were left standing in the midst of the destruction.

Betz estimated that replacement of the trees to their original growth would take about five years. Cost of replacement was set at $30 each or $240.

City taxpayers will pick up the tab for juvenile destruction.

Bethany Sets Anniversary

Bethany Lutheran Church will hold its annual anniversary supper Sunday, Sept. 13, 5 p.m. The supper is scheduled at this time of year since it was in September of 1958 that the congregation held its first worship service.

The Birthday Supper committee will furnish the dessert. Members are asked to provide place settings and a favorite dish.

The program will consist of games, group singing and "Snow White and her friends."

Skating Party To Be Awarded By Jimmy Rea

The Christian Free Drive-In Theatre located just south of 1900 W. Mound-st, will present "Samson and Delilah" Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 12 and 13, 8:15 p.m.

Starring Hedy LaMarr and Victor Mature, the film depicts Samson's bare-handed battle with a lion, his assault on 1,000 Philistine soldiers and his struggles with a giant.

The church group having the largest number present on Sept. 12 and 13 will receive a free skating party for the entire group at the Hilliard skating rink and all children 15 years of age or under will be given free pop.

Nursery Rhyme Characters Due At Fun Festival

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, 3619 Olentangy River-rd, will hold its annual Fun Festival, Saturday, Sept. 12, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. This year's theme, "A Fun Festival Fantasy," will feature nursery rhyme characters.

Games, prizes and pony rides are in store for the younger set and a style show, with youngsters modeling, will take place in "Mary, Mary Quite Contrary's Garden."

Used clothing and household items will be on sale along with homemade baked goods. The public is welcome.

SOMEBODY CARES

It is so important that someone cares about how this child grows up. Someone cares that she is clothed and fed and loved. Someone cares that she goes to school and grows in mind as well as body. Someone cares about her childhood wonder and curiosity and wants to see them satisfied. Someone cares enough to teach her to love other people and will help her in her relations with them. Someone cares about her spirit and desires for her the highest ideals and standards, and will help her to know God. Are you this someone? Let it be said of her as it was said of Him, "And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man." Luke 2:52.

TAKE SOMEONE TO CHURCH THIS WEEK

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

FEATURED ON WLW-C

DALE ROBERTSON stars in "Tales of Wells Fargo," a 5:30 p.m. weekday feature on WLW-C. The program is one of three replacing the 4:30 to 6 p.m. film slot. Others are "Leave It To Beaver" and "Wanted, Dead or Alive."

'Can-Can' Kicks Out Kenley Season

John Kenley's final production of the season is the musical, "Can-Can," starring Denise Darcel.

As source material, the show draws from the reportedly ribald life of the Paris Montmartre district of 1893.

The show is characterized by Gallic sauciness, dances of gay abandon, catchy tunes, wit, warmth and charm, including the folk dance of the Parisian laundresses known as the Can-Can.

Point of the play is that despite the traditional feeling that Paris is a place of utter freedom in matters licentious, it had its prudes in 1893, its bluenosed censors who looked askance on such matters as the Can-Can. The romance of the legend involves La Mome Pistache, played by Denise Darcel, who operates a cafe where laundresses cavort after work.

A newly-appointed magistrate, Aristide Forestier, played by Stuart Damon, investigates the cafe happenings in the name of decent citizenry only to find himself involved in both the toils of the law and the arms of La Mome Pistache.

Cole Porter composed the words and music for this fantasy while Abe Burrows wrote the book upon which it was based.

The New York opening of "Can-Can" took place May 7, 1953. Its Broadway run extended for some 895 performances.

The show played continuously to American audiences for three years after its Broadway closing in 1955. It also had an 11-month run in London.

LISTENING TO the score of the final Kenley production of the season, "Can-Can," which is being seen this week at Veterans Memorial, are, from left: Leslie Cutter, producer of all Kenley musicals; Denise Darcel, star of the production; Dean Dittman, co-star; Taina Elg, co-star; Stuart Damon, leading male star, and Gordon Munford, conductor for all Kenley musicals.

GETTING IN THE ACT

THESE JUNIOR THESPIANS are preparing a stage in one of last year's Columbus Junior Theatre of the Arts presentations. The group begins its second year with registration at 9 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 12, at 2370 W. Broad-st. Young people from seven to 12 years of age may participate. Classes are held Saturday mornings. Battelle Guest Series Dates Five Shows

The 1964-1965 Battelle guest series, featuring appearances by personalities in education, science, travel, musical and performing arts, begins Sept. 30 in the Battelle Auditorium.

All programs in this third year of the series will be open to Battelle staff members and their families, as well as invited guests from the community, according to Dr. Frank C. Croxton, in charge of the series. Tickets, at no charge, will also be available to others insofar as seating permits, he said.

The year's series will be opened by actor Bramwell Fletcher who will present a preview of his new one-man show, "An Evening with George Bernard Shaw," at 8:30 p.m. Sept. 30.

Born in Yorkshire, England, Fletcher has enjoyed a long and successful career on the English stage and in the theater, motion pictures, and television in the United States. He followed Rex Harrison as Henry Higgins in the Broadway production of "My Fair Lady."

Fletcher plans to present his Shaw program as an off-Broadway show later this fall.

Following Fletcher in the guest series will be the Ohio University Trio, which performed in Battelle Auditorium last March. The group will present a concert of chamber music Oct. 14.

Sir John Cockcroft, master of Churchill College, Cambridge, England, will examine "How Much Should We Invest in Science?" in the series' third program Nov. 5.

The fourth program, Nov. 11, will be a presentation of artistic color pictures taken in various parts of the world by Donald Sultner-Welles of Dover, Pa. His program is more a creative presentation of pictures from many lands than a travelog. To achieve the effects he desires, he uses special projection equipment and keys-in music during his narration.

Another illustrated lecture will take place Dec. 2 when Dr. Norman Auburn, president of the University of Akron, discusses his trip to Mongolia.

Great Artist Series Lists Attractions

"HMS Pinafore," Tyrone Guthrie's revival of one of the most enduring of comic operas, is a featured attraction of OSU's Great Artist Series for the 1964-65 season. Date of the production is Wednesday, Nov. 18.

The Great Artist Series also includes National Swedish Chorus; Societa Corelli Chamber Orchestra; Actor Emlyn Williams in "Charles Dickens"; New York City Opera Company's "Faust" and "Die Fledermaus"; Mary Costa, soprano; Ivan Davis, pianist; Royal Welsh Male Choir; Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra, with Henryk Szeryng, violinist; Polish Mime Theatre; and San Francisco Ballet.

Series season ticket book sale is in progress at the Mershon Auditorium Ticket Office until Oct. 7.

If all the autos in the world were laid end to end, it would be Sunday afternoon.

Symphony Club Dates Schedule

Symphony Club of Central Ohio will present four distinguished visitors in Veterans' Memorial this season.

On Sept. 24, the Chicago Symphony, which will be en route to New York for a pair of Carnegie Hall concerts, will stop off to introduce its new conductor to a Columbus audience. Jean Martinon, French-born and French-trained, is both violinist and composer, and has held long-term conductorships in France, England, Israel and Germany. He succeeded the late Fritz Reiner in Chicago just a year ago.

On Oct. 6, in the course of its first American tour, the London Symphony will be heard under the baton of Georg Solti. The tour is part of a three-months' swing through Japan, Korea, Hong Kong, India, Iran, Turkey and Israel. Solti is known in this country from guest appearances at the Metropolitan Opera and with several major orchestras.

On March 4 the Minneapolis Symphony will perform with its conductor, Stanislaw Skrowaczewski, as well as with the American pianist, Eugene List.

The final concert May 13, will be the annual appearance of the Philadelphia Orchestra and Eugene Ormandy.

The Symphony Club box office is at Summers' Music Store, Gay and High-sts.

Tryouts Slated

Tryouts for the Cole Porter musical comedy, "Anything Goes" will be held at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 9, by Independent Players of the IPC club rooms at 261 S. High-st, third floor. Tryouts are open to the public.

Paul Morris will direct the production and Bob Stegmiller will do the staging, dramatic and technical direction. Stewart Tallman will direct the choreography and Frank Cory will be assistant musical director and accompanist.

Victor Borge To Play Vets October 2

Probably one of the longest road tours in theater history will stop for one performance at Veterans Memorial Friday, Oct. 2, when Hast Amend presents Victor Borge's "Comedy In Music" program.

Borge has been touring for 11 years. This month will mark the 2565th time he has stepped into the spotlight with his now famous white tie and tails.

The show is no longer the one-man endeavor it was in the past. Although Borge is on the stage for the entire one and one-half hours of the performance, he is aided in the second half of the presentation by another artist, Leonid Hambro, the official pianist for the New York Philharmonic Orchestra.

Asked why he increased the size of the cast, Borge stated, "I wanted to reduce it, but since that was impossible, I doubled it."

Tickets are on sale at Summers Music Store, 68 N. High-st.

Longfellow said that a man must be either a hammer or an anvil. But he overlooked the fellow who is simply bellows.

Membership Tea Dated

The Diocesan Council of Catholic Nurses of Columbus will hold its annual membership tea, Sunday, Sept. 20, 2 to 4 p.m. at Mt. Carmel School of Nursing.

Miss Anne V. Houck, who has retired this month as executive secretary of the National Council of Catholic Nurses after 16 years, will speak.

'Fearless' Predictions

Hi fans!

Gee, it's nice to be back here in the newspaper business again. I'm sure you'll all be glad to learn I've improved my prediction technique this season.

No more guessing. Purely scientific. Ever hear of a ouija board that makes football predictions?

Anyway, here's page one:

CENTRAL over Zanesville. nobody loves me . . .

WHITEHALL over Westerville. Nobody cares . . .

LOGAN over Bexley. My only reception . . .

WEST over Ready. Is cold, icy glares.

• • •

MARIETTA over Marion-Franklin. I try to be honest . . .

TEAYS VALLEY over Olentangy. I try to be square . . .

CIRCLEVILLE over Grove City. But nobody thinks . . .

FAIRFIELD UNION over Pleasant View. I even am fair . . .

• • •

FRANKLIN HGTS. over Mifflin. I hope you all win . . .

GROVEPORT over Canal Winchester. (oh, no). But I am the chooser . . .

NEWARK over Eastmoor. And just like an umpire . . .

STEUBENVILLE C.C. over Aquinas. I'm always the loser.

• • •

WEST JEFFERSON over Mt. Sterling. Let us part friends . . .

DUBLIN over University. For now I must seek . . .

DESALES over Walnut Ridge. A place where to hide . . .

BROOKHAVEN over Hamilton Twp. See you next week?

• • •

If those predictions (and the poetry) weren't enough to burn you up, here's the rest:

REYNOLDSBURG over Gahanna

HILLIARD over Grandview

ROSARY over New Albany

CARROLL over Belpre

ST. MARYS over Berne Union

CHILLICOTHE over South

EAST over Hartley

ST. CHARLES over New Lexington St. Aloysius

Gregory Win Skein At 10

Speed-pilot Don Gregory, who has monopolized the sportsman division racing this season at the Columbus Motor Speedway, continued to dominate the action last Sunday night, as he drove to victory for the tenth-straight time in the 25-lap Labor Day championship feature. It was also his 11th win of the year.

In the late-model 35-lap championship headliner, Ralph O'Day, who had been out of the winners-circle for three weeks, came through the winner in a spectacular race that found Bob James, of Maple Heights, O., right on his rear-bumper throughout the event.

THIS SUNDAY evening, both the late-models and the sportsman will return for an eight-event program, to be climaxed with a feature race in each division and they'll be running for $1500 in guaranteed prize money.

In the free game of "Total" there'll be $100 in cash waiting for the fan or fans able to pick the first five finishers, in order, in the sportsman feature.

Time trials start at 7 p.m. and the first race gets going at 8 o'clock.

Need More Tappan Lake Sites In Ohio

TAPPAN LAKE — Columns are written in all sorts of places. This one is being penned just a short stone's throw from the waters of Tappan Lake, in the scenic wooded hills of Harrison County in Eastern Ohio.

Like many residents of Spectator-land, we loaded up the kids, filled the station wagon full to the bulging limit, and took off to get away from it all for a relaxed family-type vacation of swimming, boating, fishing and just plain loafing.

TAPPAN LAKE Park has proved to be a completely ideal spot for such a vacation. The 2350-acre lake is one of 10 flood control compoundments making up the Muskingum Watershed Conservancy District. The district officials have gone to great lengths to make these lake areas useful, multi-purpose family recreation areas.

Here at Tappan and at many of the other lakes, reaching from Charles Mill and Pleasant Hill near Mansfield to Seneca Lake southeast of Cambridge, there is a variety of facilities —including comfortable vacation cabins, well-guarded swimming beaches, camping areas (a total of over 1200 sites), picnic areas, and boat launching ramps.

Here at Tappan Lake Park, the genial park manager, Ted Simpson, even runs a trailside zoo, which features such unusual native Ohio animals as talking crows, an albino groundhog, and a white-tail deer.

THIS LAKE and the other nine comprising the MWCD, all feature fishing of a diversified nature. Clendening Lake, just south of Tappan Lake, has become famous for its huge monster catfish—Leesville Lake has seen two record-breaking muskies pulled from its waters this year. All the lakes contain bass and panfish.

Each lake is equipped with a marina, where boats, motors and a variety of fishing and boating needs are available. The Tappan Marina is manned by Lloyd and Max Holyoke, a pair of personable natives who've been around the lake ever since it was built over 20 years ago.

The amazing thing to me, as I talk with officials and those who live and work around the lakes—very few people from the Heartland of Ohio come over to this picturesque land of lakes.

ACTUALLY, all of the impoundments are within an easy three-hour drive of the Capital City. The only reason that we could come up with that folks in Spectator-land don't take advantage more often is that they aren't aware of the beauty and recreational opportunities.

If we sound like we're convinced — we definitely are. Ohio needs far more places for outdoor fun and relaxation such as Tappan Lake. If you'd like more information, perhaps for a fall vacation or weekend trip, write: Walt Begland Muskingum Conservancy District, New Philadelphia, Ohio.

Well, time to close this column—the sun is heading for the wooded hills of the west, and the bass should start hitting about now.

El Rancho Ties; Fan Wins $600

El Rancho Polo Club defeated Darlington, Pa., Monday 8-3, running its season record to 9 wins, 2 ties and 2 defeats following Sunday's 3-3 tie with Beaver Valley, Pa.

David G. Althoff of 199 W. California-av was the lucky spectator — he went home $600 richer as a result of the activities held at intermission.

El Rancho will be on the road the next two weeks and then closes out the regular season against Cincinnati on Sunday Sept. 27.

Spectator's 1964 High School Football Preview

FORWARD WALL: 198 PER MAN

Walnut Ridge 11 Will Improve With Good Size, Case Of Certo

"Any day now we expect to get a call from out on E. Livingston-av in our classified department for a want ad that might read like this: Wanted — One full case of Certo for jelling purposes. Contact Ralph Webster, head football coach at Walnut Ridge High School immediately.

Actually, what Ralph really needs is a gross of fuel injectors for his squad whose lack of speed will be the Scottie's biggest deficit this year after a 3-6 season ticket and a 2-5 City League log a year ago.

"OUR SIZE will be our biggest asset," contends Ralph. "But we won't have any speedsters breaking away because we don't have any. Injuries this year will hurt us since our depth is questionable. We'll need a case of Certo for our team to jell."

Fifteen monogram winners dot the 77-man Scot squad this fall as seniors Chuck Corbett (HB-135), three-year vet Dave Fevh (QB-174), Jeff Jones (HB-6'-170), Gary Carter (150), Larry Baer (FB-175), Tex Rife (HB-132), Rudy Life (FB-186), Jack Brown (C-172), Dave Walter (T-240), Dennis Ecklon (T-245) and end Bill Masch (160) return along with juniors Jay Hill (HB-160), Jim Waller (HB-150), punter-guard Ray Durst (201) and end Pat Beveridge (180).

Key losses from the '63 Highlander lineup will be All-City fullback Denny Dash (leading scorer), ends John Roop, Jim Pyles and Tim Hansley; guards Mike Hickman, Mike Wiebusch and Tom Coneybeer and center Danny Wolff.

THE HIGHLANDER forward wall will average 198 pounds per man and the slow-footed backfield will top the Fairbanks at 165 pounds per Scottie.

The offensive end positions will be manned by Reggie Haymond (170), Pat Beveridge (180), Rick Houchin and Bill Masch who has been changed over from halfback to flanker.

Three-year veteran seniors Dennis Ecklon (245) and Dave Walter (240) are the apples of Webster's tackle eyes. "That pair rates with the best in the City League" adds the popular W-R coach. "They're strong, have all the moves and are hard to blow out."

ECKLON AND Walter will be supported by senior John Snider (178) and junior John Cruse (180) while at guard Ray Durst and junior Chris Geer (184) will start with seniors Mike Bridwell (172) and Ed Kerns (167) in reserve status right now.

Senior vet Jack Brown (172) will do the centering and senior Roy Andrews (155) and junior Tom Gornali (151) will spell him periodically.

Dave Feyh, an "average" passer and a good punter, will get the go-ahead at quarterback with junior Dick Wollet (145) in a second-line role.

Larry Baer, a 175-pound power runner, is being counted on at fullback with Rudy Life (186) tailing close behind.

Defensively, Webster is planning on Beveridge and senior Gary Smith (160) at the flanks; Walter and Ecklon at the tackles; John Snider (178) at middle guard; Durst and Brown at the linebackers; Masch and Hill at the corners and Waller and Rife at the safeties.

"WE'LL STICK to mostly standard stuff this season on defense since we don't have the speed we would like," comments Webster. "Our desire and attitude are fine and our defense has been good this far. West and Central should be at the top this year because South and Whetstone lost a lot from last season."

The Scotties have the size to 'crunch it out' on the ground this season although they lack over-all team speed. Opposing teams may run around W-R but they'll find the going sticky up the gut against W-R's forwards.

Look for the Scotties to surprise a few of the City powers this fall and improve on '63's 2-5 CL mark if Ralph ever finds that case of Certo he's been hunting.

WEBSTER WILL be assisted this season by former Capital 'U' grads Don Wynkoop (line) and Rick Cermedj (ends — defensive backs); Jack Stephenson (reserves) and assistant coach and Ohio Wesleyan grad Jackie Moore.

Castors Con Center Title

A come-from-behind Castors nine fought off a determined Epsilons entry to take a 17 to 4 win for second round honors in the Jewish Center Team Softball League. Only Pops Dworkin AZA tripped up the Castors in the second round for a last-of-the-seventh 8-4 win.

The Castors now battle Pegasus for first round honors. If Castors win the first game they will take the title. A Pegasus win would cause a double header to be played.

Jeff Wohlstein led the 23-hit Castor attack with three hits including two home runs. David Zieve also blasted two round trippers in the win.

SPEEDY BACKS KEY

St. Marys Could Be FCL's 'Sleeper' 11

In any pre-season league forecast, there are always favorites, co-favorites and "dark horses."

But the word which best describes St. Marys '64 Franklin Country League entry is "sleeper."

ON PAPER, there isn't much comparison when you stack the Rams, who have only nine returning lettermen, with vet-loaded squads like co-favorites Reynoldsburg and West Jefferson.

But ball games aren't won on "paper" and St. Marys fans, who might not be looking for an above par season, might have a big surprise in store.

One big item is speed and, lettermen or not, the Rams do have the ponies. Ram mentor Ray DeCola will be able to start a backfield who can sprint 40 yards in no less than :4.7.

KEYING THAT backfield will be sophomore halfback Mike Hodge (145), somewhat of a "sleeper" himself until opening night last fall.

Complementing Hodge's breakaway speed at the other halfback spot will be another soph sprinter, Vic Perdue (150), who, along with Hodge, provided Ram track mentor Earl Gray with some classy thin material last spring.

At fullback, St. Mary will have a healthy Tom MacDonald (160, senior) back this fall. But a large share of the Rams' success this fall will hinge on the development of 6-2, 175-lb. junior quarterback John Shepard, who played behind regular signal-caller Jimmy Yates most of last season.

ALTHOUGH the Rams will field a strong backfield this season, it's likely that DeCola will miss the powerful slants of fullback Jack Gassman, an all-league performer last season and the team's MVP.

Also departed are linemen Roger Whaley (end) and Tom Parsons (guard) and backs Yates and Bob Ruscilli (HB).

DeCola's five remaining lettermen are sprinkled throughout the line with a solid middle back for another season.

INSIDE, there's veteran talent at center where Junior Steve Gassman (155) returns along with senior guards Nate Writsel (145) and Art Armstrong (160).

George Neugebauer (190) is available at one tackle while senior Paul Stickel (155) returns to his old end spot.

Also encouraging to Ram backfield sprinters is the size of the forward wall available between them and the defense.

FOR INSTANCE, consider the beef available for that vacant tackle slot. DeCola may choose from senior Jim Maurer (6-3, 230), sidelined by injuries the past two seasons, or juniors Bob Berl (205) and Mike Vuckevich (185).

The other end spot seems likely filled by junior Bob Leach, 150 lb. transfer from Central, although soph Mike Shauver's (6-0, 160) still very much in the running.

Backing up the veteran guards is 6-1, 205 pound Dennis Jones, a soph transfer from Barrett Junior High.

OTHER prospects likely to see plenty of action are linemen Mike Yates, Don Naegele and Mike Terone, all sophs, and backs Dick Braun (150), Ron Writesel (160), Carl Faris (150) and John Frebault, the later another trackster with speed to burn.

DeCola sees his '64 club as strong in backfield speed, youth and desire, the latter point a "big factor" this year. A "still green" line and spotty depth are minus-side factors, however.

The Rams will run from a winged-T offense with ability to either throw or run. With speedy, sure-handed ends Stickel and Leach, St. Mary will throw when we have to" but more often stick to the "three yards and a cloud of dust" offense.

IN REGARD to the FCL lineup, DeCola sees Reynoldsburg and West Jefferson as co-favorites with Rosary earning the "dark horse" tag.

15 SENIORS EXIT

Lions' Den Will Be Shy Of '64 Victims

Don DeJong's maiden season at the Bexley grid helm looks like a rocky one as the likeable Lion mentor sets out to better last year's 5-4 and 3-4 marks with a sparse half-dozen experienced players on hand.

Of course losing 15 seniors (eight offensively and 9 on defense) would cause any coach to despair. "We'll be small and 'green' and we have a lot of work to do this season," comments the first year boss.

THE SIX veterans DeJong will bank his victory hopes on are seniors Tim Greiner (end-174), Gary Hewald (linebacker-160), captain Jim Nowacki (center-160) and Joel Kaufher (linebacker 150) and juniors Dave Herwald (inside 'backer 155) and Woody Jones (an offensive end in '63 now at left half-173).

Departees via graduation were all-leaguers Tom Leukart (tackle, halfback Rick Harbold and classmates Marc Lackritz (QB), Van Snider (HB), tackle Ron Liebermann and guards Mike Myers and Dave Price who all played on offense.

Missing defensively will be tackles Walter Wallace, Roy Martin and Bob Congrove; middle-guard Sam Geldis; ends Don Simcox and John Poston and defensive halfback Dave Parker.

SENIOR END Bob Lewis (178) moved to Cleveland while senior tackle Dave Smith (195) moved to Michigan with his parents.

Several Lion starting slots are "up for grabs" and could change from week to week according to DeJong. At left end, Tim Greiner is playing ahead of senior Ed Klopfer (170) while at left tackle senior Bob Simcox (178) and junior Pat Leach (185) are in a tossup battle for starting nod.

SOPH DOUG Felger (150) is currently playing ahead of junior Dave Herwald at the other guard and junior Fred Grimm (155) is presently playing in front of senior Robin Wells (165) at the right flank.

Another 'tossup' has developed at quarterback where 145-pound senior Dave Frasch is trying to outshine junior Rick Weber (145) for the No. 1 job.

Woody Jones will go at left half with junior Paul Davis (150) close behind and Joel Kaufher (150) will buck from full with junior Mike Luby (170) in reserve.

A FRESHMAN is putting up a hot fight for the starting slot at right half where soph Paul Shultz (165) is currently imbedded. Colby Crall (170) could break into the starting picture while senior Dan Vogle (160) also figures in DeJong's grid plans.

"Our strong points will be our hustle and desire and we'll run with power this year," claims Lion coach. "Our 5-4 Oklahoma has looked adequate (sacrificed 3 TD's in 3 scrimmage games) but we'll lack experience with only six vets available for 22 positions. We'll be thin depth-wise at tackle but we won't be hurting too much since most of the boys are pretty even and can step in and do the job," concluded DeJong.

With only six letter winners on tap, a question mark passing attack, only fair backfield speed and inexperienced men playing key positions, the Lions' den will be minus a few more victims this year than last.

DeJong picks Mt. Vernon and neighborhood rival Whitehall as rugged customers this fall and the two teams who should fight tooth and claw for the CBL cake.

RAMS READY FOR RACE

Whitehall Ready For CBL Title Bid With Adequate Size, Depth, Desire

The '64 Central Buckeye League football race seems to be taking the same shape as last year when Mt. Vernon's Yellow Jackets didn't hang up the circuit crown until they defeated Whitehall, 14-0, in the loop decider.

The title picture looks the same this year with Mt. Vernon and runner-up Whitehall again batting it out for the CBL grid marbles.

RAM MENTOR Jim Bline welcomed back 10 lettermen this fall on a 30-man squad that he hopes will bring Whitehall a much-desired CBL crown.

The Ram returnees include seniors Bill Barnhill (QB 155), Mark Blackstone (defensive HB), defensive end Don Gale (170), guard Jim Rodenmayer (175), huge tackle Rick Callicoat (6 ft. 250), and halfback Earl junior vets Harvey Eader (cornerman 140) and three-year vet Tom Barton (178).

All-American tackle Bill Landis (Kent State) will be among the missing this season. Also absent will be center Jay Hout (Eastern Kentucky), back Jerry Ramsey (Ohio 'U'), end Eric Ford (Kent State), end Dave Gradwohl (Muskingum), guard Eugene Terrell, end Dwight Waugh, tackle Paul Whitt and fullback Mike Schmidt.

NON-STARTING lettermen who figure in Bline's plans are seniors Mitch Joseph (150), defensive back John Turkal (fullback 175), Walnut Ridge transfer back John McQuaid (6 ft. 190) and South Dakota end transfer Bill Gray (6 ft. 165) along with junior center Rick Foltz (5 ft. 11 in. 175).

Some promising prospects the Rams will look to for help are ends Gary Beckley (senior 175) who has the best 'hands' on the squad and soph Jim Heaton (6 ft. 175); tackles Dave Mowrer (soph 195), junior Dan Barker (5 ft. 11 in. 180), and senior Dan Kaufman (6 ft. 2 in. 195); guards Randy Rhoades (showing well—160), senior Ken Koetz (5 ft. 8 in. 145) and junior Wes Seymour (155—a rugged starting middle guard); linebackers Mike Griffin (jr. 165), senior Keith Early (150—hits hard) and junior Gary Stimmel (guts); and definsive halfback soph Count Fuller (140—very promising).

"Our backfield speed will be under :11 for the dash and this is the fastest over-all team speed I've had," protected Bline. "We have more football talent and balance collectively than we've had in some time. I'm going to introduce the two-platoon this year with one team on the offense and defense and the other on offense and defense," adds the Ram coach. "We'll mix it up on offense this year with some split T, belly series, man-in-motion and some more passing than last year."

BLINE, STARTING his eighth season as head coach with a winning 45-34-6 mark, would like to bring Whitehall its first CBL crown since '59 this fall.

"We're out to improve on last year's 3-1 bark and we'll play 'em one at a time," claims Jim. "Mt. Vernon is favored because they have experience on hand while Arlington is always tough with good coaching and Worthington plays a tough wide-open type of football that's hard to stop. At this point, our passing is the weak spot but is improving steadily with constant work. Defensively, we hope to have better speed and it will be as tough as in the past. Offensively, I'd like to improve our explosive offense just a little bit."

The Ram boss will be assisted this season by Muskingum grads Lin Compton and Phil Allen; OSU grads Ernie Sypchalski, Pat McMillin and John Peters and Cincinnati grad Dick Kane.

The Rams look like they're ready to wrest the title away from Mt. Vernon with adequate depth, experience and a fine coaching staff. From here it looks like Whitehall should be in the thick of the title race again this year.

High Football Races Look Tight Again

Friday night marks the opening of another high school football season.

Game jerseys have been issued, cheerleaders are resting their throats and the tuba players isn't running into the dummy in row seven anymore at band practice.

COACHES ARE still hoping that the sophomore starting at halfback for the first time doesn't fumble on his first exchange. Lime is lining local fields of combat.

There's air in the pigskin and pigskin in the air.

All that's needed is a slight chill in the evening from the weatherman. Football '64 is ready to go!

AND WHO'S going where in what league? Your local team is previewed elsewhere in this paper. Here's a brief concensus:

CITY LEAGUE

Prologue: No one could ask for a finer finish than '63's this year. South, Central and Whetstone were co-champs in '63 with nobody able to raise a pennant until the final whistle.

OUTLOOK: A re-run this season is more than just a possibility. West, with good size and the best, overall team speed in four seasons, gets the nod here. The Cowboys, with no title in 16 years, are hungry. Quarterback John Morlan may also well be the finest in the Central District.

Central, whose entire starting backfield is able to cover 100 yards in under :10.3, is a co-favorite. The Pirates don't have a Morlan at QB but the West-Central game Oct. 2 should be the season's top attraction.

East, with speed to burn in the backfield, could be a serious contender but South and Whetstone, both riddled by graduation, don't seem likely title repeats.

Eastmoor and Marion-Franklin are improved, the latter sporting a large line. Walnut Ridge has size but no speed.

PROLOGUE: Groveport took it all in '63 with hurrying Hilliard unable to catch the Cruisers, despite six straight closing wins.

OUTLOOK: Twelve returning regulars, including all-league QB Jim McKee, puts Groveport on the pre-season "hot seat" again. Hilliard again will be the top road-block with the Wildcats themselves a distinct title possibility.

London and Gahanna both should climb up the ladder in a well-balanced league but neither seems to have the horses to overcome the top runners.

COUNTY LEAGUE

PROLOGUE: West Jefferson was the king in its first FCL season last year. Reynoldsburg was second, only loss to W-J, 14-6.

OUTLOOK: Meeting of Reynoldsburg and West Jeff on Oct. 2 could be decider. Riders '63 losses outweighed Raiders' personnel departure. If halfback Jon Molnar's arm heals well, Raiders would get the nod in this "big one."

St. Marys, with fleet Mike Hodge and Dublin, with ace passer Craig Duffey, could be spoilers. Academy has good line but no John Larrimer.

SOUTH SUBURBAN LEAGUE

Flip a coin in this newly-formed loop. Hamilton Township, with a 200 pound plus line and good speed, will certainly improve on last season's poor mark.

Franklin Heights has a good chunk of returning vets. Pleasant View boasts the best team speed and Teays Valley will be tough defensively with the offense a question mark.

CENTRAL BUCKEYE LEAGUE

Mt. Vernon has the potential to sting all opponents for the second straight season. But Arlington and Whitehall should have plenty to say about the Jackets progress toward a loop flag. Speedy but small Worthington rates a dark horse tag.

MID-STATE LEAGUE

Fairfield Union has the best material. Always tough Millersport can't be counted out. Amanda could surprise.

Carroll, which lost 12 starters last year, stands on the outside track.

CATHOLIC LEAGUE CENTRAL

Watterson, who blasted St. Charles, 52-34, for the loop title last fall, looks good in a repeat role. However Hartley's Hawks are improved and Jack Ryan always seems to be in the thick of a pennant scramble.

DeSales also figures to be in the running.

WELL, THERE'S the rundown, league by league. If your team wasn't included, it's probably because they'll win their league championship.

As anyone knows who's read our major league forecasts — we're not too adept at picking winners.

Leach Cops 'Shoe Title

John Leach of Columbus won the 14th Annual West Jefferson Ox Roast Horseshoe Tournament with a 57-27 playoff victory over Bob Redding of Mt. Sterling.

Carl Young, 1963 tourney champ, Leach and Redding were all deadlocked with 5-2 marks at the end of play in the 8-man class A round robin.

FIRST AND second place trophies were presented in all classes by Ox Roast Queen Paula Cullman and the best individual game of the tourney was tossed by Bob Redding with a 77.5% ringer effort along with John Nicholl.

The individual winners were as follows:

Class A — John Leach (champion), Bob Redding (runnerup) and high qualifier. Class B — Francis Redding (first) and Charles Redding of Columbus (second). Class C — Luther Waymire of Dayton (first) and Randall Wade of Grove City (second).

Class D — Ted Harris of London (first) and Don Peterson of London (second). Class E — Elroy Turner of Columbus (first) and Isaac Butcher of Bloomingburg (second). Class F — Ralph Bennett of London (first) and John Lawless of West Jefferson (second). Class G — Dick Pfeil of West Jefferson (first) and Dave Oyer of London (second).

Thirteen pitchers averaged over 50 percent ringers in the tourney match classes with John Leach pacing the field with a 65.9 percent mark. Following were Bob Redding (64.8), Carl Young (63.1), L. Linegar (59.4), J. Nicholl (57.3), F. Redding (57.3), Tom Pearec (56.8), C. Redding (54.4), H. May (53.5), H. Anderson (53.2), C. Brickles (52.7), L. Mathews (52.1) and R. Wilkinson (51.6).

The polls are places where you stand in line for a chance to decide who will spend your money.

Local Bowlers Get Free Shirts

Junior and bantam bowlers who register to bowl for the coming season Saturday, Sept. 12, at Winko Lanes (3636 W. Broad), Rainbow Lanes (3224 S. High) or Holiday Lanes (4589 E. Broad) will have the chance to receive free bowling shirts or blouses during "Candy Week," Sept. 26.

Since the younger bowlers usually have no sponsors to help them acquire shirts or blouses, the above alleys are providing this opportunity through the proceeds of a candy sale, Sept. 26.

All interested junior or bantam bowlers should register Saturday, Sept. 12, at the above lanes at 9:30 a.m.

Spark up your hamburgers with this special sauce: Combine a one pound can of jellied cranberry sauce, one-third cup A-1 sauce, one tablespoon each salad oil, brown sugar and minced onion. Just beat till "saucy" then serve.

Wolman Ties For Round 3

A staunch defense and timely hitting helped Wolman Insurance to a last-of-the-seventh, 13 - 11, win over B'nai B'rith. The win knots the race for third round honors at four wins and one loss each. Both teams will meet Thursday evening at 8:30 to decide the championship.

Wolmans jumped off to a 6-2 lead at the second inning mark with extra base blows by Hal Paris and Sandy Goldston and a homerun by Irv Goodman.

B'nan B'rith came back with two runs in the third on a Bob Grad home run. Ray Hoch pushed B'nai B'rith into a one-run lead with a circuit clout in the top of the sixth inning.

Marv Grossman picked up one run for Wolmans on a four bagger in the bottom of the sixth to tie the game.

B'nai B'rith then picked up two runs in their half of the seventh as three walks were issued by erratic Wolman pitching.

The last of the seventh saw a walk by Irv Flox plus consecutive singles by Aaron Dachner and Irv Barkan set the stage for the climax. Laddie Finke, on a three plus two count, lined a pitch to the opposite field to score the tie breaking runs.

Airman 3/C David J. Eyster, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Eyster of 2770 Eastminster-rd, has been graduated from the technical training course for aircraft mechanics at Sheppard AFB, Tex. The airman is a graduate of Central High School.

Backfield ? MARK

'64 Viking Grid Edition Will Miss Annual Speed

Academy football boss Dick Price forecasts a tougher year for his '64 Viking eleven who finished third in the Franklin County circuit (5-2) and 6-2 overall a year ago.

Backfield departures left only senior vet Terry Larrimer (5 ft. 9 in.—155) available for ball-carrying duties this fall for the Maroon and Gray who have been accustomed to exceptional backfield speed the past few seasons with the likes of Bruce Draudt, John Larrimer and Bob Schoene.

HALFBACK John Larrimer (second top scorer in Franklin County and 1,400 yards rushing) and fullback Bob Schoene (600 yards rushing) are gone this season and are attending Princeton. Also missing this year are Ted Hoster, Ross Shepard, Ken Holzman, Chuck Cohen and Henry Richter.

Price will rely on the leadership of Viking tri-captains Andy Prout, Terry Larrimer and Pete Bigelow this season on a team that has only 'fair' speed in the backfield.

"Our backfield speed will be our biggest loss from last year," laments Price. "We've always had speed around with guys like Draudt, Larrimer and Schoene. Our backfield will have to be a question mark with inexperience."

At left guard, Price plants junior Al Unetic (175) while senior Gabe Blumer (6 ft.—170), juniors Bob Peterson (175), Butch Mentser (155) and Charley Ebinger are vieing for the starting left side guard job. Exline should take care of the right side adequately.

Senior Pete Bigelow (170) will anchor the line at right end for the Vikings. Soph swimming star Herb Lape and senior Tim McElroy are alternating at the signal-calling slot at the present and Larrimer (155) and soph Herb Douce are holding down the fullback duties on Academy's winged T setup.

JUNIOR STEVE Mahaffey, soph Neil Larrimer and senior Tom Keny are lined up three-deep at left half while the wingback job currently belongs to first-year man and senior Dan Fouche who will be shadowed by junior Jim Gordon.

"Our line is more set than our backfield at this point; however, if we find out we can pass we'll throw some, but if our running game goes well we'll hug the ground," projected Price. "West Jefferson and Reynoldsburg (good size) will be tough this season and should figure in the title picture."

The Nelson-rd eleven lost all but one solid vet in the backfield and valuable speed will be lacking. On the line, the Maroons seem set in all holes except center; however, key posts are manned by 'green' players and the Vikings will have a difficult time equaling last season's fine 6-2 slate.

Price has reserve coach John Toffey (line) and Phil Hess (freshmen) helping him with the Vikings this season.

'Cycle Title Races Set For Sunday

The 16th Annual State motorcycle championship program, scheduled for the Ohio State Fairgrounds this Sunday afternoon, Sept. 13, looms as one of the best 10-mile races in the history of the affair.

Sanctioned by the American Motorcycle Association and put on by the Golden Arrow Motorcycle Club, in association with the Central Ohio Heart Association, the 10-event program, with the 20-lap State Championship feature on the half-mile flat-track, will be attracting the best of the Expert, Amateur and Novice cyclists in the country, as they vie for the big share of the $2,500 in prize money.

THE RIDER to beat in the championship feature will be "Genial George" Roeder, of Monroeville, who has won the crown for the last two years and has eyes on the "rotating trophy" that must be won three consecutive times to become the permanent possession of a single contestant. Only one rider, Dick Klamfoth, of Grove Cty, has ever been able to achieve this feat. But Roeder will have competition that could well produce a different champion, such as Ronnie Hall, of Mansfield, one of the best of the title seekers, Don Kieger, of Lancaster, Joe Messaros, of Fairborn, Ted Heil, of Dayton and Tony Murgia, formerly of Key West, Fla., but a cyclist who has lived in Grove City long enough to be eligible for the All-Ohio championship.

The action-agenda has a schedule of two three-mile heats and a five-mile final in all three classes, with the 10-mile title race topping the day's activity.

Time trials will start at 10 a.m. and the first race will get going at 2 p.m.

Combine cranberry juice and pineapple juice, mixed half and half; keep stored in your refrigerator for a "beat the heat" drink.

SWIMLAND'S RECORD-SETTERS

SWIMLAND'S Sailfish Club dunked the Hilltop Swim Club, 291-203, last week at the home pool to retire the Case Rotating Trophy for the third straight year. Swimland set five new records in the process and Hilltop four. The Sailfish winners included (front row—from left): Marie Stimmel, girls 14—under medley relay and 50 breaststroke; Bonnie Singer, 14—under girls medley relay; Mary Ann Greiner and Arlene Klimovich (17—under free style relay team). Back row: Steve Goddard (14—under 50-yard freestyle, :26.4), Cheryl Hoover, 17—under free style relay; Lucy Smith, 14—under medley relay; Rhonda Brown, 17—under free style; and Tom Gentles, 14—under 50-yard breaststroke.

'Inside Greater Columbus' Series Is Scheduled

"Inside Greater Columbus," a program designed to acquaint potential community leaders with Greater Columbus' problems and resources for meeting the demands of greater population will hold eight weekly sessions during September, October and November.

Panel members have been selected to discuss changes and plans for the future in their respective fields.

The first panel will convene Sept. 29 in Council Chambers in City Hall. Topic is "Planning For People."

"Needs of Youth" will be discussed Oct. 6 in the Neighborhood House at 800 Leonard-av.

"New Directions In Education" will be presented Oct. 13 in the Milo Elementary School at 617 E. Third-av.

"Families in Trouble" will be discussed Oct. 20 in Franklin County Court House at Mound and High-sts.

"Welfare Dollars and Sense" will be the topic at Presentation Hall of Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. at 215 N. Front-st, Oct. 27.

"Mental Health Problems and Progress" will be discussed at Columbus State School at Gove Hall, 1601 W. Broad-st, Nov. 10.

"Neighborhoods in Action" will be presented at the Old First Presbyterian Church at S. Ohio and Bryden-rd, Nov. 17.

"Gateway To Tomorrow" will be discussed at Columbus Gallery of Fine Arts at the Washington-av entrance, Nov. 24.

Hauling Abbrevinated

A continual parade of dump trucks hauling dirt for the East Freeway project has been abbreviated.

Great Lakes Construction Co. has quit hauling dirt during the daylight hours, officials revealed.

Daylong dust, morning and evening traffic jams in Livingston-av will be ended.

IT TAKES SOME digging before one can roast an ox, but members of the Groveport Lutheran Church already have their collective foot to the spade. And no one is too young to help, as can be seen when young Robby Campbell lends his grandfather Charles Rohr a little might and main. Straw bossing the job is Ed Myers, while Al Knodel heaves to.

Ox Will Be Roasting Down Groveport Way

Groveport Lutheran Church members are busy with pots and pit for the eighth annual ox roast which will be held Saturday, Sept. 19.

Ever wonder how that savory ox is prepared?

First there is a pit—three feet wide, about as deep, and as long as a tender steer. Early in the evening a fire is kindled in the pit, fed and tended, till a foot and a half of live coals line the bottom.

Sand is spread on the hot coals, and the beef—the ox—having been properly seasoned with favorite spices and wrapped, is laid on the sand.

Sheets of tin then cover the pit and an earth blanket covers the tin. The ox steeps slowly and deliciously in natural juices enhanced by the herbs of a cherished recipe. It cooks slowly, six hours, then twelve, finally eighteen hours, then the pit is opened.

Crowds gather as the unmistakable aroma touches the senses, and quickens the appetite.

And that's the treat that's in store for those fortunates who attend the eighth annual ox roast sponsored by the Groveport Lutheran Church.

Ladies of the committee are preparing the side dishes which will include baked beans, cole slaw and applesauce. And a whole variety of home baked pie.

Besides this, there will be plenty of free parking space. Unbelievable, isn't it, for a mere buck and a quarter.

Oh, yes, the time? Between 4 and 8 p.m. Just west of Groveport. On Sept. 19.

Bishop Blesses School Addition

Bishop Clarence G. Issenmann blessed the newly finished addition to the school of St. Pius X Parish Reynoldsburg, following the celebration of a Pontifical Low Mass Sunday.

The $150,000 addition added 10 classrooms to the school at 1051 Waggoner-rd.

Future plans call for construction of a permanent church and rectory on the Waggoner-rd property.

Thirteen classrooms are in use this year as 540 students began grades one through seven on Wednesday.

DOROTHY CLARK WINNER OF SPECTATOR CONTEST

Two hundred and thirty-two was the magic number of words that is—all built from letters found in "Spectator," that won a $25 U. S. Savings Bond for Dorothy Clark, 4346 Marland-dr.

The second tie-breaker between Miss Clark and Mrs. C. J. Detamore, of 4699 Trabue-rd, determined the winner of the Spectator's "Guess the Number of Classified Ads" Contest at the County Fair.

The two women and Don Pocock of Massillon all submitted a guess of 733 classified ads, the exact number appearing in the Aug. 26-27 issue of The Spectator. Mrs. Detamore will receive a renewal of her subscription to the newspaper.

Pocock was eliminated in the first tiebreaker. There were 1,189 entries in the contest.

Hand-Knit Coat Wins Ribbon For Ramona

Last year's birthday gift from on understanding grandmother, Mrs. George Adams of 754 Hanford-st, was instruction in a skill that will provide a lifetime of creative enjoyment for 11-year-old Ramona Rausch.

The knitting lessons have already paid off handsomely for Ramona, for her fullylined, hand-knitted coat earned for her a first place blue ribbon and a trophy for "Best Junior Craft Exhibit" in the hobby show of the Ohio State Fair.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Rausch, 2800 Eastminster-rd, Ramona is a sixth grade pupil at James Road School.

Since she began knitting last August, her busy needles have produced slippers, mittens, a scarf and Christmas lapel decorations. Already under way are scarves for Christmas giving this year.

Her coat was entered in the 10 to 15-year-old age group.

Ramona's proud teacher is Mrs. Emily Ocker of 777 Siebert-st, also knitting instructor at the YWCA.

Wins Rank

Robert R. Cummins, personnelman third class, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. I. Cummins of 4996 Dimson-dr, was recently promoted to his present rate while stationed at the Naval Air Station, Lakehurst, N. J. He is a graduate of Whitehall Yearling High School.

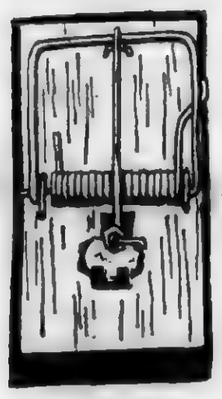
East Side Rezoning Requested

Columbus Planning Commission Wednesday continued a hearing on the petition of Lloyd Wetzel, 22 E. Gay-st, for rezoning the east side of Hamilton-rd between the East Freeway and Refugee-rd, until Oct. 14.

Wetzel's plans call for construction of apartments, a shopping center, offices and a golf course. He requests a change from the present restricted rural residential and M-1 manufacturing classifications.

Commission members deferred action pending a study of plans by the Franklin County Regional Planning Commission.



Denied by the commission was a request by David Schwartz, 3074 Dale-av, for a C-4 commercial zoning at the southeast corner of Gould-rd and E. Broad-st. Schwartz proposed construction of a bakery at the site.

The area is currently zoned for single-family residential.

The applicant indicated that he would include planting strips to separate the bakery from residences in attempting to secure approval of Columbus City Council for the change in zoning.

The commission gave final sub-division approval for 38 lots on a 6.31-acre tract at the north side of Ruhl-av on Roosevelt-av. Applicant was Evans, Mechwort, Hambleton and Tilton, 170 Mill-st, Gahanna.

Zoning calls for one to four-family residences.

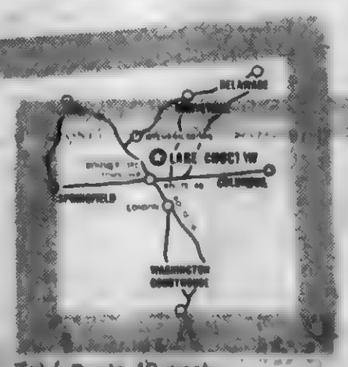
don't wait for the weatherman's report...

CHOICE WATERFRONT PROPERTY IS BEING BOUGHT DAILY AT LAKE CHOCTAW

Waiting for the weatherman is our favorite pastime. Year after year, our company builds family resorts featuring water sports, fishing, swimming, and leisure living. Certainly, we have to start with a natural lake basin with a good creek to supply the water.



Our location on Deer Creek affords Lake Choctaw a 37,000 acre watershed. This is more than an ample supply to fill the lake with water.

So you see, the first sustained rainfall that comes along will offer you 275 acres of water over two miles long.

But don't wait for the weatherman . . . Now, today is the best time for you to select choice waterfront property at Lake Choctaw.

Over 400 families in the greater Columbus area have already purchased cottage sites on this wonderful, carefree lake development.

This is the 40th family resort developed by our parent company, American Realty Service Corporation—one of the nation's largest lake development companies. Prior planning, expert engineering along with the American Realty reputation are your assurance of a superior lake development "right in your own back yard."

Fairs Here To Stay, If

The Franklin County Fair and State Fair are now "in the book." It may be too early to make any precise retrospective recommendations, but we will venture a few general thoughts.

In some respects, the Franklin County Fair seemed, proportionately, to fare better than the state-sponsored event, which got off to a somewhat shaky start attendance-wise.

We think Governor James A. Rhodes is to be commended for his announced intention to bring about closer cooperation between state agencies in areas relating to the fair and fairgrounds. In addition to giving attention to necessary capital improvements and maintenance problems, Rhodes has solicited suggestions from fair exhibitors.

We think it is important to gather the thinking of those people who invest time and money in exhibits. Fairs are here to stay, if there is sufficient thought to pre-planning.

We think those responsible for the Franklin County Fair would do well to play down the record attendance and play up the apparent drop-off in exhibitors when they pre-plan for next year's event. It would be wise to adopt some of the Rhodes "inventory" philosophy before such a measure becomes a matter of crisis.

We don't think the overall success of this year's venture should blot out some of the shortcomings still evident. For example, there are still far too few people participating in selection of the Fair Board members—voted to their tasks by members of the Franklin County Agricultural Society.

There remains the need for a wider geographic participation by people of Franklin County. We have suggested for a number of years that the Agricultural Society constitution be changed to provide for election of three members of the board of directors from each of five sections of the county. Sectional representation would, we feel sure, generate a greater amount of public interest in Society membership.

This year's fair at Hilliard was a box office smash. For that the Fair Board is to be congratulated. But the County Fair belongs to the entire county — and this is doubly important when we realize that we are ever becoming more urban and less rural.

The more the merrier at the County Fair. And the best assurance for more people in attendance is to have more of the public taking an active part in planning the event.

Drive Carefully–Give Children A Brake

The Columbus Automobile Club announced the opening of its annual crusade asking motorists to be on the alert for children traveling to and from school. New, colorful posters, entitled SCHOOL'S OPEN — DRIVE CAREFULLY, are being displayed throughout the community. The local School's Open Program is part of the nation-wide campaign by the American Automobile Association and its affiliated clubs.

Russell H. Campbell, manager of The Columbus Auto Club, stated: "Motorists must bear in mind that thousands of kindergarten and first-grade children are part of the traffic stream for the first time. Many of these children will be walking along streets and highways where no sidewalks are available. This is particularly true in our suburban areas. The old, rural safety rule—walk on left facing traffic—should be stressed with children in these areas."

The AAA urges parents to walk with their children who are attending school for the first time to help these children select the safest route to school.

Motorists must remember that—regardless of the precautions taken by others — they, as operators of vehicles in the traffic, are never freed of responsibility.

Back to School Pinch

One Man's Opinion . . .

Labor Day was a fine example of the absence of patriotic feeling among people in general.

Suburbia, as expected, took the trophy again this year with an all-time low of about one flag per block, put up by some brave soul who sneaked out to the porch with the 48-star whatchamacallit in the early morning hours, so his neighbors wouldn't have the chance to openly accuse him of being some sort of fanatic.

Mayor Sensenbrenner's concern is understandable.

John Q. Public doesn't want to be patriotic any more. "Old Glory" has been literally run in the ground. Commercialization and abuse of patriotic virtues have worn off their lustre.

Congress had to pass a law in the 20's to stop the widespread use of the flag as a wrapper for retail products.

Francis Gary Powers, U-2 pilot, faced a Russian court and pointed the accusing finger at Uncle Sam. He resembles Nathan Hale about as closely as I resemble the Duchess of Windsor.

A close friend of mine who witnessed the historic flag-raising atop Mt. Surabachi on Iwo Jima, informed me that the flag had to be raised six times in order to achieve the proper camera angle.

"Hats off, the Flag is passing by!" And mess up my hair? Forget it.

—JIM BRUNEY

An Editor's Outlook . . . by Jenkin Lloyd Jones

Dems Paint Center Line Down Left Side

To the welkin-ringing cheers of the "liberals" the Democratic party platform has lumped the John Birch Society in with the Communist Party and the Ku Klux Klan. These are all "extremist" groups to be crushed.

Now, of course, the Communist Party is just that. And the Ku Klux Klan is a pale, misbegotten grandchild of the old anti-Negro, anti-Catholic, anti-Jewish terrorist organization.

In removing the face masks the modern Klan made its fatal error, for the faces thus revealed are about what you would expect to appear under those white dunce caps. The Klan will appeal to fewer Americans than the Black Muslims.

Jones

But the real target of the platform is the John Birch Society. And perhaps it is time for citizens to ask themselves: "What is its crime?"

Has the John Birch Society murdered anyone?

No.

Has it sent forth nightriders or tried to set up concentration camps?

No.

The real crime of the John Birch Society, in the eyes of the "liberal" establishment, lies in its announced determination to catalog any left-wing backgrounds of high public officials or any official actions that seem to lend aid and comfort to those who would destroy representative government in America.

Such judgments may be subjective. They may be mistaken or wrong or unfair. So may the judgments and pronouncements of the Americans for Democratic Action or the AFL-CIO, or, for that matter, the Democratic platform committee.

But is the Democratic Party prepared to outlaw comment on the records and actions of all present or would-be public officials? Or does it merely hope to crush by ridicule and denunciation comment about those who belong to the "liberal" club?

Personally, the John Birch Society is not my cup of tea. I won't even join the American Legion because the convention oratory sometimes goes into orbit. And I am happily disqualified, both by sex and ancestry, from membership in the D.A.R., whose charming adherents occasionally put their dainty feet in their crimson mouths.

But what I have observed with growing irritation is the apparently planned campaign sneer and smear by many politicians, many newsmen and commentators, many professors and many preachers against the so-called "super-patriots."

In 1960 Gus Hall, general secretary of the U.S. Communist Party, called for a "unity to the left" to defeat the "fascist network" in which he included Barry Goldwater, the John Birch Society, congressional committees that investigate Communists, military officers, etc.

Since then America has been treated to a rising swell of oratory describing Barry Goldwater as both a maniac and a warmonger, the Birch Society as a star-spangled Mafia, and the House Committee on Un-American Activities as a 20th Century Inquisition.

Oh, yes, and we must not forget the recent fascinating novels and movies picturing our military as madmen itching to touch the button that will obliterate the world.

Do citizens have any reason to examine the records of public office-holders, or does danger exist only in the imagination of flag-waving Nervous Nellies?

Did Alger Hiss have any effect upon world history with the advice he gave at Yalta?

Did Owen Lattimore's erroneous assessment of the Chinese "agrarian reformers" under Mao help deliver China to the Communists?

Did things which the American voters had neither approved nor foreseen happen because Lauchlin Currie was executive assistant to the President, John Abt, special assistant to the Attorney General; Harry Dexter White, an assistant Secretary of the Treasury; Nathan Witt, secretary of the NLRB, and John Stewart, service high in the State Department?

The citizen will have to answer these questions to suit himself.

What is interesting is that it is not those organizations that are against Communism or socialism in principle that are violently attacked.

No one passes resolutions against the Keokuk Kiwanis or the Roseburg Rotary.

It is only those organizations that attempt to document the extent of left-wing influence and to name names that come under the "liberal" anathema. These are the "witch-hunters."

We hear a lot these days about "the main stream of American thought." It is the privilege of any man to guess where that main stream lies.

But it is questionable whether a political party is justified in denouncing as betrayers of America those who float to the right of where it thinks that main stream is, provided they do not advocate any extra-legal treatment of those who are not like-minded.

The John Birch Society, whatever its errors, has been no more intemperate in its opposition to the left than the "liberal" establishment has been of the right. It has shown fewer symptoms of hydrophobia over Lyndon than a host of political and literary celebrities have shown over Barry.

Someone seems to be trying to paint the center line of the highway down the left-hand curb.

Guest Pulpit . .

The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? the Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid? Psalm 27:1.

Rev. Dugan

The word security is very much in the thinking of people today. Personal security, economic security, social security and national security. These all have their important places in life but all too little however is heard of the most important one, and that is spiritual security. The others deal primarily with the body and physical conditions, but this one deals with both. If we could have certainty that the first group was adequate in their respective fields, there would still be anxiety of the soul because attention had not been given for its security. The psalmist here has both the answer and the invitation, which is God's revelation, through Him, that He cares for us and will be the shield and protector of those who trust in Him, "the Lord is the strength of my life, of whom shall I be afraid?"

One of the old church fathers said, "the heart was made for God and it finds no rest until it rests in him." There is great peace in the hearts of people whose entire trust is in God. In the days of the earthly ministry of our Lord Jesus, he said, "my peace I give unto you"—and in that peace is divine light and strength. Both history and current happenings affirm the benefit of a calm faith in God.

Today there is available for each of us the same benefits of peace and security this psalmist rejoiced in long ago. It gives the same courage the Waldensian Christians had when they sang,

O God our help in ages past,
Our hope for years to come,
Our refuge from the stormy blast,
And our eternal home.

THE TWO PARTIES

Almost from the beginning of our government there have been two major political parties. They have been known by various names, but the basic philosophy and beliefs of both have remained fairly constant.

When one party becomes so strong as to suppress all others, freedom is gone. Witness other nations.

From about the end of the Revolution to the First Great War, two great parties held nearly equal, alternating periods of power on the basis of two general opposed philosophies. The one believed in a strong federal government, especially anent national defense and fiscal affairs. Strength was essential in the new government to deserve and demand respect as a new member of the family of nations.

The other party was in favor of a federal union of strong sovereign states, reserving to them authority in local affairs. The federal strength would be drawn from the pool of strong states.

These were the basic differences for more than a century. After 1917 changes in belief and practice were forced on both. Party labels have changed and may change again, but a two-party system is our chief safeguard of domestic freedom.

It says here . . .

Power and danger are twins.

Comments On Need For Foster Homes

It was a pleasure to read your timely article concerning the urgent need for more foster homes in our area.

The extent of the need for these homes cannot be fully felt by most people unless they come into personal contact with those agencies, such as Franklin Village, which provide temporary care for children, who through no fault of their own, find themselves without home, family, or both. Although these agencies do the best they can to provide a home "atmosphere" (such as cottages and cottage parents), institutional care can in no way compare to the environment of the individual home, where there is a feeling of togetherness and belonging. As our population grows, the numbers of these foster children will increase. In accordance, will the number of available foster homes increase? So far, such is not the case.

What can be done to stimulate the interest and concern of the individuals in this community for the immediate need of more foster homes? I, for one, am hoping that, through the cooperation of newspapers such as yours, many people will open up their hearts and their homes to these children who have been temporarily set adrift in our midst.

Thanks Contributors

To the Editor:

I want to thank you for your excellent article explaining our local drive for "The Agricultural Hall of Fame and National Center" building fund.

The response has been most gratifying to the Frankin County Committee. This helps to point out the fact that even though this center is located near Kansas City, our local people are willing to contribute to a center that will pay honor to some of our great people in agriculture, that will preserve and display things that have been instrumental in making this a great agricultural nation.

If you could, in your Spectator papers, express my personal thanks and that of the committee, to all who contributed and ask those who may have overlooked theirs, to get it in as soon as possible to Jerome Miller, Box 278, Hilliard, Ohio.

Thanks again to your and your paper.

Arthur Purdum, Chairman
Franklin County Hall of Fame Committee

Party Appreciated

Dear friends:

Again we want to thank you for the nice party for Golden Wedding Club members—so kind and thoughtful of you and Curtis Allen, the photographer. Perhaps some who were present at the anniversary party will not be present next year. We read life is a book in volumes three—past, present and yet to be. Past is finished and laid away, the present we are living everyday. The last, volume three, is hid from our sight but God holds the key.

Sincerely,
Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Fippin

To the Editor:

We attended your Golden Wedding Party for the first time. Enjoyed it very much and want to express our heartiest thanks.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Morley

STRICTLY FRESH

The most useless gift to give some married men is a letter opener.

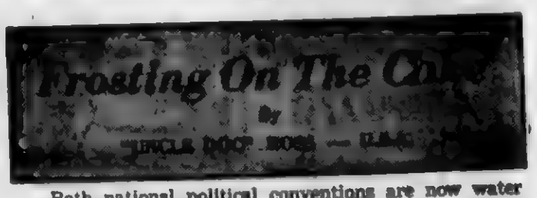
Do you live in mortal fear of someone bending one of your IBM cards?

Most women are not so interested in putting a man on the moon as they are in landing one on earth.

It's wise to look for something in the house that has been broken when the children become angelic within a matter of minutes.

Liked '4-H' Editorial

To the Publisher:



I have had the opportunity to see your editorial, "4-H Work—Blueprint for Useful Lives," which appeared in The Spectator on Aug. 5. We certainly appreciate comments of this kind expressing a thoughtful analysis of the 4-H Club program in Ohio.

When we see editorials, such as yours, challenging folks to make an effort to understand better the various youth organizations, their purposes, their concerns, and their results, we are sure that many citizens take note and as a result see the role of these programs with more enthusiasm.

By the same token, I am sure that our professional staff of the Cooperative Extension Service working with the 4-H Club program, the advisors, and parents who read this type of article, also feel a great pride and enthusiasm to do an even better job in the 4-H Club program.

Our 4-H Club office has forwarded a copy of this editorial to the Federal Extension Service, 4-H Club Office, because we think your comments were worthy for many people to read and consider.

Sincerely,
Roy M. Kootman, Director

Both national political conventions are now water over the dam and the national mass-mind has been alerted as never before about the issues, thanks to TV and vastly improved news coverage as compared to any previous summer.

There are now two main camps of thought and the "fringe groups" or splinter parties will play even less part than formerly. The real campaign is definitely now a voter's choice, not an echo.

Regardless of the outcome next Nov. 3, it is a "year of truth" for all Americans who are interested enough to go to the polls and discharge the main duty of good citizenship.

Two tremendous personalities are now engaged in this struggle between the right and left schools of thought. Both men are able and deadly in earnest.

It is going to be most interesting to watch the whole show for the next two months. There are more imponderables in this battle than ever before involved. No one knows what the Cuban fiasco will do to the mass-mind.

Nor will anyone be able to guess even closely the total effect of the so-called "white backlash." Finally, the mess in SE Asia is becoming more and more annoying to more and more citizens who are fed up on getting into one war after another and doing nothing about it except one excuse after another.

Organized labor is more and more restless about many of the extreme positions now too evident in the behavior of the "lunatic fringe" of the legitimate labor movement.

The gravest challenge to millions of decent and ambitious Negro citizens is one that can no longer be overlooked or swept under the political rug.

Unless an honest and rational leadership of the civil rights battle takes over in time to stave off disaster, the entire cause of overdue Negro progress will be set back half a century and do irreparable injury to millions of fine and educated Negroes who want no part of the violence and riots and looting of private property.

No matter where you stand on all of these vital questions, get out and vote so we can have the best possible poll of public opinion this country has ever had.

The Wonderful World of ANIMALS

By Frank Miller, D.V.M.

DEAR DR MILLER: I wonder if you can help out a non-pet. I was considered a pretty good substitute at one time. And then my wife got JoJo. He's a monkey and believe me, he gets ALL the attention. As an example, my wife spends about half the day shopping and preparing "goodies" for this little tyrant.

One day I got caught stealing one of his bananas and both the wife and JoJo screamed. I get TV dinners, when I'm lucky. Because of that monkey I'm going to the dogs. Can you help me? —G.R.

DEAR G.R.: There are certain parts of your rehabilitation program you'll have to work out for yourself. Perhaps I can help you in the food department. Monkey food, I mean.

Your wife might even have enough time to go shopping for you, occasionally, provided you can convince the two of them to make the big switch. There is now a canned (sterile, even) monkey food on the market that has everything.

It is a completely balanced diet and needs no supplements or additions of any kind. With a simple flick of the can opener JoJo could be consuming an improved dining snack that comes in three flavors: apple, orange and, of course, banana.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Someone has told me that dogs should have booster shots yearly against distemper. Is this a true fact? Can you tell me how the animal is subjected to distemper? Can the animal be saved?

—L.A.

DEAR L.A.: A dog which is well-protected from other dogs should have a yearly booster so he has an outside to keep his resistance high. A dog exposed to other neighborhood dogs may need a booster only every two or three years.

The point to remember is that there is no such thing (yet) as a permanent distemper vaccine. The distemper virus may be spread by dog-to-dog contact or left in an area by a dog which has the disease.

The main problem in treating dogs that develop distemper is that the early symptoms may be so slight as to pass unnoticed. By the time the dog is obviously sick and is taken to the veterinarian, the virus is well-established in the body tissues and may already have done irreparable damage.

Even though the percentage of dogs saved from distemper rises each year, this deadly virus is still the number one killer among all dog diseases.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Our old cat, Rufus, has a drinking problem, and its getting worse. We haven't minded him hitting the water dish so hard, but lately he is losing weight on this account. What's the cure for the old reprobate. Shall we "dry him out?" —J.S.

DEAR J. S.: As you no doubt know, drinking is only a symptom of a deeper problem. The number one cause is kidney disease — at least in old cats. Another possibility is diabetes. Don't try to cut down on Rufus: this might bring on a total collapse. Be get him to the doctor where the proper diagnosis can be made, and his chances for rehabilitation determined.

Japan's Reds Will Take Mao's Side

By BRUCE BRIER

It is not an important and dynamic news story at the moment. To us, it has a far-away sound, but our children may find its subject matter of immense interest.

Possibly the most significant historical development of this century, is the division of a communist world presumed by theorists to be indivisible. It means the end of a monolithic war on the Western bourgeois social order, though it does not necessarily diminish the danger facing that order.

Brier

So we have the Soviet Union and Red China, each claiming to be proprietors of Marx-Leninism, and each hoping to overcome the other.

This communist world, split though it be, has a hunger for two centers of Western power. One is the Ruhr-French industrial complex; the other is Japan.

Controlling either, the Soviet Union or Red China could confront the other, and the Western world.

Looking at either communist camp, we see little difference in them, except that for the time being the Soviet camp is more amenable to co-existence and maintenance of world peace. Yet to us a communist is a communist, his ultimate goal fixed. Then, looking at Japan, we see it as an open, self-governing society friendly to the West.

Japan has a small but active communist party, with a larger leftist fringe. But to a Japanese communist, or even a leftist, all communists do not look alike. To him the Chinese communist is friendly, while Soviet communists are the enemy.

In Tokyo recently the Japanese communist party erupted in sharp criticism of the Soviet Union, saying it is trying to disrupt the Japanese party. The terms and persons in this attack do not concern us here.

It is enough to note it is an exact echo of almost daily vituperation flowing from Peking to Moscow.

This Japanese leftist position is not new. It was brought sharply to this writer's attention on a visit to Japan last year. Japanese leftists freely visit Red China and confer with leaders. They do what little they can to promote fraternity and trade. Nor is this neighbor feeling confined to leftists; all Japanese have it in varying degrees.

The reason is clear, and it is partly race. The Japanese descended from the Chinese culture, then remolded it to their ends. In modern times they have never feared China's millions, or suffered at their hands.

But Russia is white, Russia is West, alien and sinister. Russia is greedy across a narrow sea, and Japanese will not forget Russian seizure of Sakhalin island on their northern doorstep when they were down.

All this is something our children may find important in the future.

Around the World With STAN DELAPLANE

"My wife and I intend to spend a year in the Caribbean, specializing in languages of that region. Have you run into any study of this? What would be the most convenient and cheapest island to use as a base?"

I've heard some mixed up languages all right. Papamiento on Dutch Curacao is a good mixture of Spanish, Dutch, English—what have you. Haiti French is a patois. So is the English on English Islands. You could inquire around for an island (I've forgotten which one) whose people are called "Johnny Backers." Or "Bacera Johnnies." Elizabethan English watered down with other languages.

"On a cruise ship, should we do our shopping in Curacao or in Jamaica?"

No difference. Both free ports with duty-free prices.

"Is it true there is no tipping in Tahiti?"

That's correct. Ask the waitress for a dance instead.

* * *

". . . the tipping customs in Japan during the Olympics?"

Local custom is no tipping. Ten percent service is added to hotel and restaurant bills. Night club hostesses (you pay about $3 an hour for their company) will probably hustle a tip. Pay it. About 10 percent is OK.

You can skip taxi drivers, hat check chicks, the men's and ladies' rooms attendants. An exception: airline and rail porters who live on tips. A fair general tip is 100 yen — about 30 cents U. S.

* * *

"The custom of tipping in Mexico . . ."

A peso (eight cents) a bag to the bellhops; 10 to 15 percent in restaurants; five to 10 pesos a day to your paid guide — don't kill yourself, he's getting about 20 percent on everything you buy. A peso is the fair, general tip for hat checking, etc. Couple of pesos a day to your room maid.

Policemen who ask if they can direct you on the street expect a tip. It's local custom. Two pesos is O.K. Minor traffic infractions — 10 pesos. (You made him take time to explain it to you, see?)

Interesting new tip situation I ran into in Mexico. The bellboy looks at the checking out tip and says: "This is very generous, sir. Shall I give some of it to the room maid?" (The idea is are you a tightwad? Or generous as he says so you give him another 10 for the maid?) I told my boy: "I've taken care of the maid, amigo." When I got to the airport, my typewriter was missing. So I wonder . . .

We are booked into Hong Kong for five days after the Olympics at the Mandarin. Are there sightseeing trips we should take?"

The Mandarin overlooking the harbor is great sightseeing — right from your room. You should take a day's drive around the New Territories, the only part of rural China you'll see.

Don't Buy 'Junky' American Imports

TOKYO, Japan — The government is running into trouble promoting its latest "Buy Japan" drive because too many status-conscious Japanese insist on buying prestigious foreign products. Such familiar American brands as Coca-Cola, Colgate toothpaste and Gillette blades are becoming household names here, too.

In a desperate maneuver to put some life into the campaign, the Japan External Trade Organization sent the famed Takarazuka all-girl dance troupe on a nationwide tour with a musical depicting the "superior quality of Japanese products."

Even a series of tests designed to show the superiority of Japanese products was not entirely convincing. The conclusion of one such test flatly stated that Japanese watches are "far higher in quality" than foreign timepieces. The test purported to show that 328 Japanese watches were better than $112 foreign watches. Apparently the word didn't get around, for Japan imported 2.7 million timepieces last year.

The hard fact remains that Japanese generally feel that foreign goods are superior in efficiency, quality and design, although Japanese products are cheaper. One survey showed that 40 percent of the consuming public believe that foreign products are automatically superior to their Japanese counterparts.

Thus, one of the stated purposes of the "Buy Japan" policy is "to wipe out this excessive admiration for foreign goods." One backer termed those who favored foreign products in every case as "addicts suffering from an inferiority complex." He added that they were the same people who dyed their hair brown, painted their eyes blue, chewed gum and even spoke Japanese with a foreign accent.

To put some teeth into the drive, the Japanese government has set up a new bidding system for 14 categories of products, completely shutting out all foreign firms from its procurement programs involving these items.

The products include cars, trucks and buses, air conditioners, electronic computers, office machines, construction and communication equipment, aircraft, power generating equipment, printing and bookbinding machines, and machine tools.

In commenting on the "Buy Japan" campaign, one economic commentator said that if Japanese products must be purchased under any circumstance, the drive would "protect inferior industrialists at the expense of the consumers by forcing the public to buy shoddy products and consequently subsidize the manufacturers of such goods."

A typical example is the case of auto makers, who are reportedly frantic at the thought of competing with foreign cars. On the other hand, Japanese motorcycle manufacturers have already proved their competitive ability the world over. Japanese transistor radios, micro TV sets, tape recorders, cameras and sewing machines can hold their own against any foreign brands, in both quality and price.

It is easy to understand why prices of domestic goods are so low if one examines the differences of labor costs here and abroad. A girl working on the assembly line for transistor radios at the factory of a world-renowned manufacturer on the outskirts of Tokyo makes less than 15,000 yen ($41.82) a month — equal to about two days' wages for her counterpart in the United States.

In contrast to Japanese consumers, foreigners living in Japan have indicated they use as many Japanese products as foreign goods, and in a wide selection of items actually thought the quality of the Japanese articles was better.

COFFEE BREAK

Look Who's Here For Dinner, Dear!

By ADELINE DALEY

Sometimes I wish my husband would tell old friends he hasn't seen in years that he's a bachelor. That way, when they drop into town unannounced, he won't feel obliged to bring them home to dinner and meet the family.

"I thought I'd call you early enough to give you plenty of time to fix that wild rice-mushroom-almond dish with Beef Stroganoff," my husband will inform me at 3:30 p.m. "Also you'll be able to get the house in order and still have time to get yourself fixed up. Also, maybe one of the kids could make the front yard presentable."

"Roger and out," I will reply. All he has asked me to do in two hours is: Prepare and shop for a gourmet dinner; give the house a spring cleaning; landscape the front; have myself re-done at Elizabeth Arden's.

I thought I had hit upon a terrific way to save face the last time this happened. I called him back immediately to tell him my plan. "Tell your friend that you weren't able to contact me, but it's all right — your wife loves surprises. Then if the house doesn't look spic and span, at least I'll have the excuse that I wasn't expecting company."

I took the four oldest children into my confidence and we plotted our operation. We decided to seal off the rooms that we figured the guest wouldn't enter, to cut down on the cleaning. Kathy would be dispatched to the store to buy a few of the items I happened to be out of—mainly wild rice, mushrooms, almonds and the ingredients of Beef Stroganoff.

The rest of us would tackle the house until I could start dinner, Brian would assume his regular role as "look-out" to warn us when they arrived and two of the kids volunteered to sit on the two chairs that needed re-covering, thereby hiding the worn spots. Between the two teenagers they would spray my hair into a style that wouldn't go limp until 10 p.m.

I must say that we performed a miracle. And I performed admirably in acting the surprised hostess, dressed in my best attire, as I coyly said to our guest, "Well, you're just going to have to take 'pot-luck', that's all," as I proudly recited the menu. But the facade was too good to last:

"How come we're eating on a cloth tablecloth?" asked Diane.

"What happened to the hot dogs?" asked Sharon.

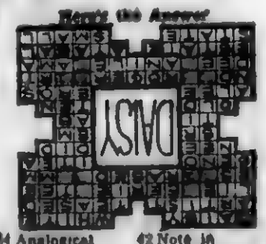
"Where are you going?" sobbed Jan, noticing what I was wearing.

"Out of my mind," I said.

TODAY'S REPORT

By ABE MELLINKOFF

A Supreme Court decision is like a baseball game. Only one side can come away happy.



And the Court has been making a lot of people unhappy lately. Nine guys sitting in Washington make up their minds after reading the law books and without asking any of us for our opinions. Presidents, Senators and Congressmen are different. They are always trying to satisfy us. The Justices are only trying to satisfy themselves.

It's mighty lucky for them they don't have to get re-elected every four years. And it's probably lucky for us that they don't. Nobody ever proved that justice would ever win a popularity contest.

'THE GRIST'

(Ground Out by Dusty Miller)

SECRET — "Did you watch the Democratic convention?" friends ask. A headshake is my substitute for William Allen White's witticism at the 1936 Democratic convention, almost as surpriseless as this year's.

Finding no clergyman to give the invocation at the opening session one particularly dull morning, the chairman turned to the press box and asked the staunch churchman, and even stauncher Republican Kansas publisher if he would offer the prayer.

Lightning-fast White replied: "No, I'd rather not. You see - - - I don't want the Lord to know I am here!"

SERVANT — Todd Tibbals, the architect's namesake son, home from a Peace Corps hitch in Peru, where Lima is pronounced "Lema," not as in beans, is mimeographing its annals.

The tall, handsome, attentive-listener, will add to his Miami University degree a special year's study in Indiana University, with a goggles-on look at possible diplomatic service.

For innoculation against ennui spend an hour with Todd Tibbals, Jr. (Suggestion: If you visit him at his home on Upper Chelsea-rd, and find his mother, the inimitable Helen Lee Tibbals there, you will understand better what I've been saying.)

BLOSSOM — Herman A. Bloom, Betty's - beat - Bexley's Beau Brummel, kept the name, "The Hiss Stamp Co.," when he bought it, lock, stock and pigeonhole desk, a long time ago.

Intimates in the Rotary Club, and less exclusive circles, call him "Herm." Guys, like his long-ago roommate in a college dorm, who grinds out grists for The Spectator and others of such like and likenesses, call him "Posy," a term of endearment.

Native of the tiny town, Reesville, which the 3C Highway obligingly skirts, "Posy" is Exhibit A in the world's fair showing of small-town boys who went to the big city and made good. (Note: If you call at his office, and meet Mary Bloom, you'll forget all I've said about him.)

HEADLINE—"How Shall We Pray?" The correct answer is by the Apostle Paul in his first letter to the Thessalonians, chapter 5, verse 17.

By TERRENCE O'FLAHERTY

"I thought I could get along with Stalin, but how wrong I was. The old *?&! would make an agreement and then break it the next day."

The speaker was a former President of the United States, Harry S. Truman, in an excerpt from one of the 26 half-hour documentaries in the new CBS series "Decision."

It will deal with all aspects of the Truman Administration and be narrated by the fiery old gentleman himself. It is personal, off the cuff, and it appears to be a winner.

The episode was part of the traveling show which the CBS network is presenting on film in all cities where affiliate stations are preparing to put together their fall programming.

In addition to the Truman bombshell, CBS has an assortment of lightweight new comedies, one promising dramatic series and a panoramic history of World War I documented by excellent film footage. It will be produced by the same trio of producers responsible for the success of the CBS "Twentieth Century." The focus will not be entirely on the war footage. It will also emphasize the nostalgic view of life during the period of World War I.

"The Reporter" appeared to have some of the ingredients of a good hour-long drama until I heard the announcer say: "Harry Guardino plays a driving, aggressive young newsman on a New York daily, with Gary Merrill as his editor, bosom friend, and severest critic." Now I'm not so sure.

"The Entertainers" will co-star Carol Burnett, Bob Newhart and Art Buchwald—a musical variety show. One of the most promising situation comedies appears to be "The Cara Williams Show," with her co-star Frank Aletter of "Bringing Up Buddy."

"Slatterey's People" presents a new kind of hero — an unmarried, hard-working House minority leader in a State Legislature — played by Richard Crenna.

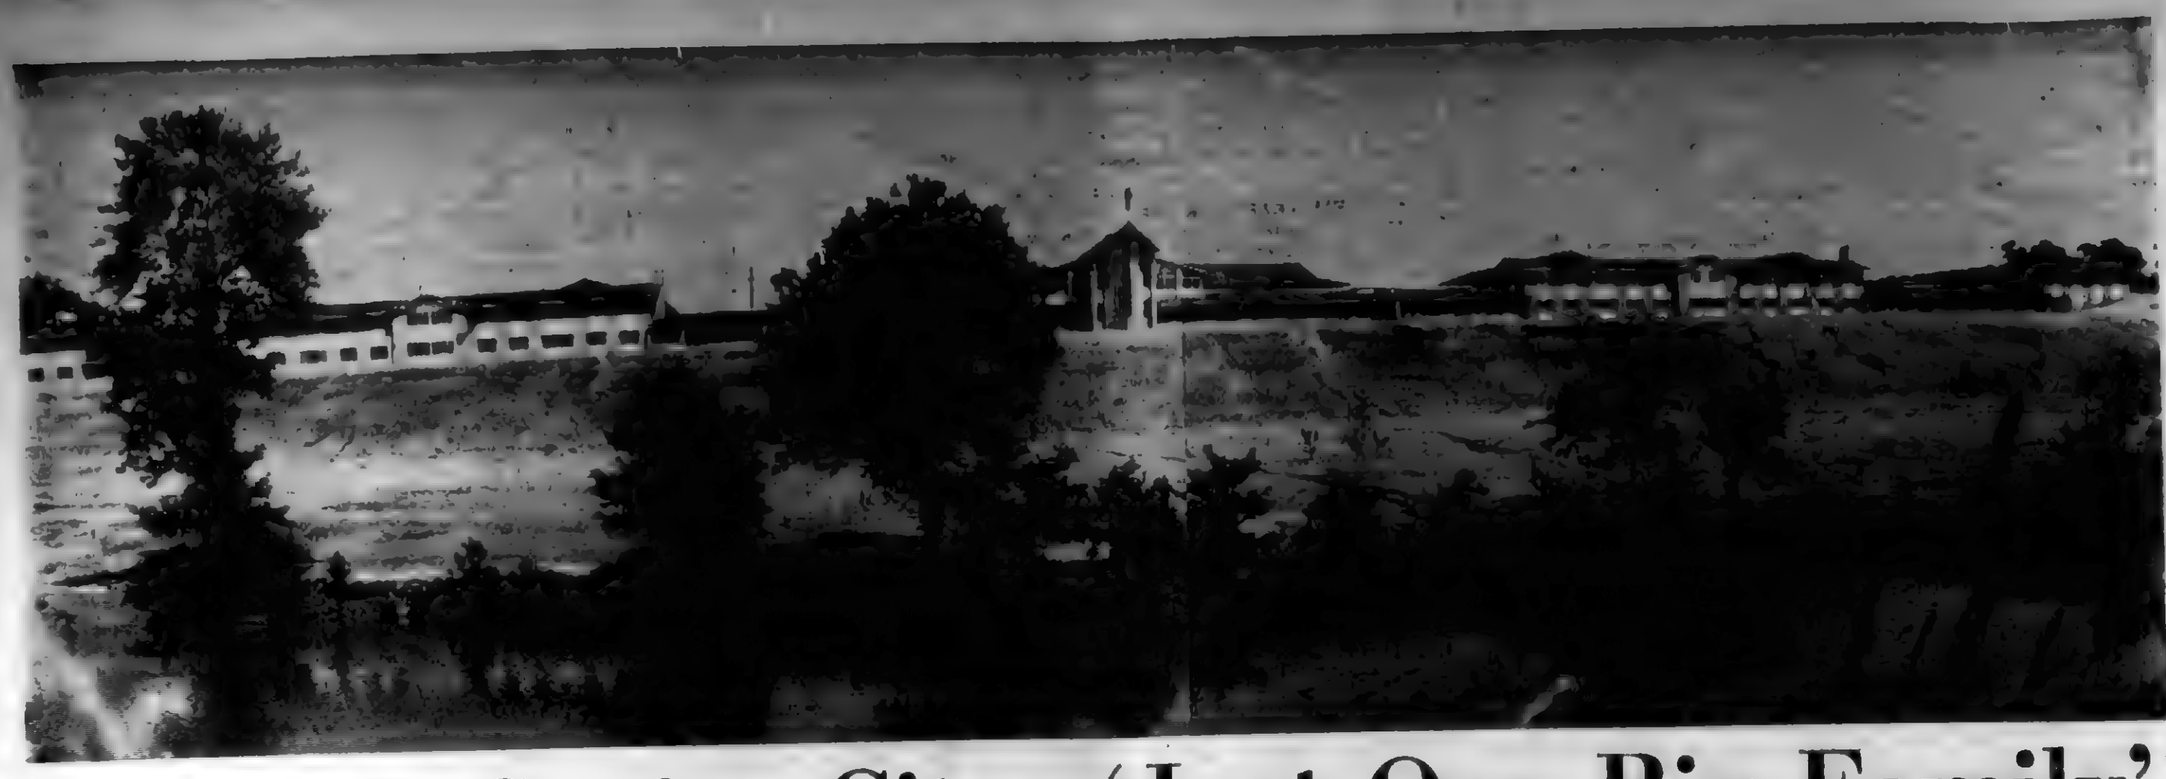
Among the new light programs devised by CBS, there is a slightly familiar ring. "Gomer Pyle USMC" appears to be a Marine version of "No Time for Sergeants," which will be attractive to those who still find a bumbling hayseed at boot camp amusing.

"Gulligan's Island" with Alan Hale, Jr., Jim Backus and Bob Denver (formerly Maynard G. Krebs of the "Dobie Gillis" series) is the story of a group of people stranded on an uninhabited island. The network calls it "a weekly outing of preposterously comic dimensions."

"My Living Doll" is the story of a gorgeous girl robot (Julie Newmar) left in the custody of a bachelor (Bob Cummings). Inasmuch as she cannot tell a lie, she causes trouble.

"Many Happy Returns" is the story of a head of a complaint department in an L.A. department store. "The Baileys of Balboa" stars Paul Ford as an old salt who looks horns with the wealthy yachting crowd.

"Mr. Broadway" stars Craig Stevens as the head of a public relations firm in New York and will attempt to show the end of the town that "Naked City" and "East Side" never explored.



"The Munsters" is the story of a normal American family—except they all look like movie monsters!

All will make their debut the week of September 21.

FUNNY BUSINESS

Well, Lenny, it wasn't a mirage, was it?

Lutheran Senior City—'Just One Big Family'

A SCENIC COURTYARD is just a few steps away for the residents of Lutheran Senior City, Central Ohio's newest home for retired persons. Living quarters are arranged in groups of 30 for a total of 250 rooms. This arrangement provides a community atmosphere for the tenants. Although the "city," located at 977 Parkview-blvd, is a project for all Lutheran synods in this area, it is open to all, regardless of nationality, creed or race. Application forms may be obtained by calling Mrs. Emil Bratka at 252-4145. Rates for single rooms and board begin at $190 a month and double rooms begin at $320. Rates are higher for those needing nursing care.

BILLY SCOTT, (picture at right) seen every Saturday night on TV's Midwestern Hayride, has a busy daytime schedule also. As supervisor of Lutheran Senior City, he welcomes Mrs. John Atzinger and Ernest F. Martin to their new home. Mrs. Atzinger was the first to apply for a residence and Mr. Martin, retired Ashville principal, was the first to actually move in the day the "city" opened, May 18. (Photo at top by Rev. Walter Lindemuth; others by Harley Groom.)

ROOMS IN THE "CITY" are completely furnished and each has a private bath. However, most renters bring a chair or a lamp from their previous home to take the "newness" away.

REV. WALTER LINDEMUTH is a figure often seen at the "city" with a camera in hand and a smile on his face. His official capacity is hospital chaplain and public communications person. He serves with the Lutheran Welfare League of Central Ohio and was formerly pastor of Zion Lutheran Church at Obetz.

"MODERN, BUT NOT TOO MODERN" best describes the chapel of Lutheran Senior City. Warm browns, cool greens and pastels of aqua and gold make this room one of comfort and tranquility. On Sunday morning all the furniture will face the altar and worshippers will have the feeling of being in their own living room.

"FAMILY" MEALTIME is a favored time of day. The 30 residents gather here for something more than just eating. Retired teachers, businessmen and secretaries are just a few of the many backgrounds represented. Getting to know each other is one of the best cures for loneliness. Although facilities are available for couples, so far only single rooms are occupied.

TESTIMONIES TO the abilities of these three can be heard in the corridors immediately after meals. "I don't expect I'll starve here," laughed one gentleman. "The food is delicious," echo the others. From left are Gordon Alexander, Louise Bales and Louise Parks. Louise Parks left the kitchen of the Seneca Hotel to work here. Louise Bales was formerly a waitress at North American, and Gordon previously flipped flapjacks at Jerry's Drive-In.

"HAZEL THE CARD SHARK" keeps a watchful eye on "Pappy" Fisher's discard during a round of King's Corner. With his back to the window is Ernest Martin and facing him is Mary McCleary. Hazel (Baker) moved here from her nine-room home at 3886 N. High-st. (where she has resided alone for the past 11 years) and says she "couldn't be happier." She has her own car and uses it frequently. She confided that she is also one of the youngest residents, a spry 69. Seated on the couch is Bertha Ellinger, who traveled from Toledo to make her home here.

BSA Council Reveals Sept. Calendar

Central Ohio Boy Scout Council announces its calendar for September:

On Monday, Sept. 14, the council commissioners will meet at Scout Headquarters at 7:30 p.m. Also on the same date, the frontier round-up opens.

On Tuesday, Sept. 15, the executive board meets.

On Saturday, Sept. 19 and Sunday, Sept. 20, the divisional commissioner conferences are slated.

On Sunday, Sept. 27, the Scouter's convention will be held in the afternoon and evening at Capital University.

Gather ornamental gourds as they ripen. They will soon lose their color if left in the sun. When the tendril on the vine and the stem of the gourd turn brown and appear dead, the gourd is ready for harvest.

FOOD MARKETS THIS WEEK

Meat Prices Higher, Pork Supply Down

By Estelle B. Franks

THIS WEEK LOOK FOR:

Fruits — Cantaloupes, prunes, plums Bartlett pears, grapes, apples.

Vegetables — Tomatoes, sweet corn, snap beans, green peppers, eggplant.

Meat and Poultry — Fryers, small turkeys, beef "specials," eggs (medium sized).

Other — Specials on canned fruits and vegetables, frozen potato products, dairy products.

What will happen to red meat prices during September? This is a question many food shoppers are pondering, as cooler fall days and "back to school" routine call for heartier meals.

At the time of this writing a precise prediction of meat supplies and prices is impossible. However, some observations are noted. In checking meat prices at the retail level in the Columbus area, there is evidence of a general increase in prices.

Prices vary from no change to 10 cents per pound above those which existed prior to holding action at Midwest livestock markets.

Of course, there are exceptions and with the meat market currently on a wait and see basis, it will pay the consumer to evaluate prices a a little more carefully than usual. This is especially important when buying in quantity for the freezer.

One point is certain: There is, at present, no real shortage of red meat. Cattle marketings have been high during the past few months and will likely continue so.

Marketing economists for the U. S. Department of Agriculture say the supply of high-quality fed beef will continue to be plentiful in September — somewhat below the record-breaking output of May and June but well above last year's level, probably about six percent.

With pork marketings the picture is different. According to the June 1 figures of the Crop Reporting Service, approximately four to six percent fewer hogs will be marketed during September than a year earlier.

VEGETABLES AND FRUITS

Late summer will provide a colorful array of Ohio-grown vegetables. You'll want to capture their goodness before frost catches them. Besides the ones listed at the top of this column, there are liberal supplies of cauliflower, lima beans, beets, cabbage, dry onions and squash.

Tomatoes from the late crop are bargains for canning and juice making as well as for meals. Many varieties of beans are exceptionally good.

Cool nights are putting high color into Ohio apples and each week finds new varieties and increasing volume. McIntosh are ripe now; Jonathans still a bit immature. Heavy offerings of Bartlett pears and Stanley prune plums are available at low prices.

Red Cross Volunteers Needed

Volunteers are needed by Red Cross to serve as production service workers.

The service is of interest to those who like to sew. Various items are made for hospitals and first aid classes.

There is a particular need for someone to serve as chairman of the program. Time required would be about one-half day per week.

Interested persons are asked to call the Franklin County Red Cross office of volunteers at CL. 3-8511.

Tomato-like fruits on potatoes are not tomatoes — they are the fruit of the potato. They are similar since potatoes and tomatoes belong to the same botanical family.

«SCHOOL'S OPEN!» DRIVE WITH EXTRA CARE!

Watch out for lads and lasses on their way to and from classes! Remember the following rules, and you'll rate an 'A' for safety-minded driving.

- For safer driving, have your car's brakes, steering, lights, wheel balance and alignment and tires checked frequently.
- Keep alert for School Zone signs and make it a "must" to adhere strictly to speed restrictions in these areas before, during and after school hours.
- When you're behind the wheel, watch out for school safety patrolmen. Their job is to guard the youngsters; your job is to help them by always obeying their signals and instructions.
- Make it a strict rule never to pass a school bus in the process of discharging passengers.
- Always stop your car a safe distance behind.

Keep your "eyes right" for children running into the streets from intersections or between parked cars. For safety's sake, slow down whenever you see youngsters at play or headed your way.

Judge Seeks Re-Election

Judge Clayton W. Rose seeks re-election to the Franklin County Court of Domestic Relations. He has served 28 years on the bench.

Last year he completed a term as president of the National Council of Juvenile Court Judges, a 1300-member organization in which he has held a number of offices.

He was appointed chairman of a committee to write a manual on juvenile court procedures and practices for all of the country's juvenile judges.

Judge Rose has been a Columbus attorney since his graduation from Ohio State University in 1924. He has served in public office since 1927 when he became public defender for the city of Columbus.

He is a member of the American Bar Association, Ohio Bar Association, local bar association, Franklin County Child Welfare Board, Executive Board of the Humane Society, Masons, Scottish Rite and Shrine, Moose, American Legion (Franklin Post), Columbus Downtown Lions Club, Executive Club and the Press Club of Ohio.

He is currently a member of the Advisory Council of Judges of the National Council on Crime and Delinquency and a past president of the Ohio Association of Juvenile Court Judges.

Blacklick Woods Announces Baby Animals On Display

Columbus Metropolitan Park Board announced the live animal exhibit is increasing at Blacklick Woods. Newborn baby animals are on display to the public.

Staff naturalist Jim Fry revealed the center has two female blond raccoons. Lucy, the first raccoon, produced a litter of three dark blond babies, two male and one female. The father of Lucy's young is the normal gray-black color.

The peculiar blond color in a raccoon results from a lack of black pigment while a brownish pigment is present, the naturalist explained.

Another female raccoon, Gertrude, had three babies, all the usual gray-black raccoon color. It was Gertrude's second litter this year, which is noteworthy because two litters in the same year are unusual. Fry said this is also the latest in the year that raccoons have ever been born here. Normally raccoons are born between mid-March and May. Fry said it is believed the litter came so late because of parental captivity.

The mother raccoons and their young were first placed in secluded temporary quarters until the babies opened their eyes. They now have been placed in open cages.

Mother raccoons, usually quite tame and docile, are easily upset while babies are young, Fry stated. It is believed the male will kill the young, which causes the mother's distrust, Fry explained.

For the first month racoon mothers leave the babies only to eat and drink. After the first month they begin to leave their young alone a little more each day.

Fry also pointed out that the young are usually taken from the mother after one month and raised by the park staff. However, this time the staff is leaving them with their mother. Fry believes it will be interesting to see how long the mother will spend raising her young.

Another female, Pauline, recently adopted three orphan raccoon babies brought to the nature center. She is raising them as her own, Fry reported.

There are three baby barn owls on display at the center. They are growing rapidly and are losing the white fluffy down which covered them a few weeks ago. Fry said four baby cottontail rabbits have been delighting many children with their twitching noses and little white tails. There are six baby opossums, two young red foxes and a young weasel also on display at Blacklick Woods nature center, which is open every day of the year.

MOTHER GERTRUDE let Blacklick Woods staff naturalist Jim Fry display two of her children, Named Martha and Jean, they were born on July 4.

CONNIE, one of the blond baby raccoons, seem to wonder what all the fuss is about. Although born July 2, she has less hair than the others her age and doesn't seem as strong. Mother Lucy refused to give up brother Jimmy for his picture.

Savings Bonds Sales Revealed

Series E and H Savings Bonds sales in Ohio were $26.4 million in July.

Albert E. Binder, county Savings Bonds chairman, reported sales of E and H Savings Bonds in Franklin County achieved 63.3 percent of its yearly quota with total sales of $10,903,436 for the period ending July 31.

The county chairman pointed out wage earners in Ohio continued to put regular savings in bonds on payroll savings plans. He stated over 40,000 Ohioans joined payroll savings plans during the first seven months of this year.

BEES SWARM IN JET'S BONNET

MOTHER NATURE doesn't always cooperate with the ways of progress. A swarm of bees made their home on an engine of a KC-135 Stratotanker parked in one of the flight line maintenance areas at Lockbourne AFB. The aircraft had just been prepared for engine conditioning when the bees decided to take up residence. Since the swarm lacked necessary security clearance, the entomology section of the 801st Engineer Squadron exterminated them with insecticide. Progress flew on.

'DIRTY, POLITICAL TRICK'

Mayor Asks Support, Labels G-V Post 'Poor Government'

When Columbus City Council reconvenes next Monday night, most observers believe that it will override the veto of Mayor Jack Sensenbrenner on the proposed German Village ordinances.

The ordinances extend the terms of the German Village commission beyond the mayor's term of office and create a post of executive secretary for the commission at a salary of about $9,000 a year.

Sensenbrenner describes those ordinances limiting his appointive powers as a "dirty, conniving political trick" and the establishing of the secretaryship as "poor government."

A long-time supporter of the German Village Society and the subsequent German Village Commission, the mayor has reached his well-known low boiling point on the matter.

He stated Tuesday that he has cancelled all further negotiations with those supporting the ordinances, and will have his say on the matter from council floor.

He believes that enforcement of the existing German Village ordinance should come under the authority of either the building or planning department of the city and not "sit out in the South End of town with no supervision."

The office of the secretary as proposed would be directly responsible to the Village Commission.

The mayor stated emphatically that he does not believe that a commission which meets but once a month can give the supervision to an employe that is necessary to see that he is "even on the job."

(Although the Commission is required to sit only once a month, applications for the controversial "certificates of appropriateness" must be acted upon within 10 days of receipt which indicates more frequent hearings must be called.)

Sensenbrenner, as previously, pointed to the fine job of neighborhood and community improvements carried out by various business and civic groups in all parts of Columbus.

He believes that the South Side is no more entitled to a city-paid executive secretary than any of these other groups, and believes it would set a dangerous precedent to allow such an office established.

(It is also accepted that Sensenbrenner has less than whole-hearted admiration for Frank Fetch, German Village Society president, for whom the executive post is earmarked.)

Reminded that German Village is set up by ordinance and is a branch of city government (a position not enjoyed by the neighborhood councils he mentioned) the mayor conceded the point, but reiterated his demand that its functions be brought back to City Hall "where it belongs."

Sensenbrenner gets particularly vitriolic about spending $9,000.00 of taxpayers' money for the proposed position when he compares it with the salary paid to a fire of police captain with many years of service behind him.

He repeatedly clarified that it is not German Village which he is against, or the Commission. (It is apparent, however, he believes the volunteer group might be better qualified to serve the interests of Columbus if they lived within the city).

"I have said again and again that I wish we had a German Village in every section of the city," Sensenbrenner reminded.

Stating that he has a great number of problems as the top executive of Columbus, the mayor said that he believed groups such as the League of Women Voters and other civic groups should take up the battle.

"This Republican Council and Hoermle (the only Democrat on council) may not listen to me, but they will listen to the public," the mayor prophesied.

He expressed the hope that those who agree with him that the proposed ordinances are "poor government" make themselves heard before and during the coming Council meeting.

Court Action Backs Gahanna Residents In Charter Squabble

Gahanna residents won the first round against the village councilmen in their fight to get their desired changes to the village charter placed before the voters in the Nov. 3 election.

In a special meeting Aug. 24, council rejected a 415-signature petition from residents to place 12 amendments to the present four-year-old charter on the ballot after Solicitor James Butler had declared the petition invalid because it did not include affidavits stating the signers were electors of the village, understood its contents or had signed their own names.

However, Lloyd Courtney, a resident who forced the issue for the voters, filed a writ of mandamus action in the Court of Appeals. Appeals Court Judge William J. Bryant signed a court order Tuesday, Sept. 1, demanding council to show why it hadn't approved the petition.

In another special meeting held the same night, council decided that in view of the suit, the question will be submitted to the Board of Elections. However, the resolution included the provision to make certain the signers were all registered voters.

The 415-signers is far more than are needed. The Gahanna charter requires a petition for a ballot issue to have signatures of 10 percent of the village's voters. Therefore only 328 signatures were needed.

Service Director Fred Butler and Auditor Mrs. Jan Schmidt, resigned their posts after council's decision. Both would have been out of office if the voters pass the provisions anyway.

The amendments proposed by residents call for election rather than appointment of the law director; require the service director to be a civil engineer and the auditor to have the qualifications of a certified public accountant and all officials to reside in the village.

Other provisions proposed would return the power to the mayor to appoint the auditor, which is now done by council and make expenditures of the public service director subject to the approval of the mayor.

Voters will now be faced with five questions concerning 13 charter amendments. Council itself will also have an amendment proposal on the ballot which states that failure by council to act upon a recommendation of the planning commission within 60 days automatically defeats the recommendation.

Council President Robert Roby, who has admitted he was alarmed by the prospect of the amendments being approved by the voters in the fall, said he agrees with some of the amendments but would fight others. Roby said he and other councilmen are willing to hold public debates with residents on the amendments proposed by a citizens committee.

"There are some objectionable parts to the amendments that should be discussed," he said, apparently referring to the changes allowing the mayor to appoint the auditor and to control the service director's spending.

Those opposing the amendments feel they would give Mayor Bernard N. Murray, too much power in appointments, and operation of the village.

Applications are being accepted for the two vacancies in the Gahanna municipal building.

The federally supported school lunch program is expected to serve some 17 million students this school year, an increase of about one million over 1963-64. The students will consume 2.8 billion lunches at a total cost of $1.4 billion.

Registration Scheduled At Evening High

Registration dates for Evening High School, 75 Washington - blvd, are Thursday, Sept. 10, and Monday, Sept. 14, between 6 and 9 p.m.

Evening High School is able to offer practically all subjects for credit or review that may be desired, a spokesman said.

The school is chartered as a full four-year high school, but it has classes both above and below the high school level.

It caters not only to degree seekers but also to students needing advanced or review courses.

Curriculum offerings include rapid reading and word study, accounting, creative writing, drafting, blueprint reading, public speaking, great literature, art with special emphasis on oil painting and design, foreign languages and citizenship preparatory classes.

The Barberton, O., board of education has landed on the plus side of another property mixup. In July the board learned the property under one of its schools had been purchased by a private citizen for $30 at a county tax sale. Recently, the board discovered it owns a sareet and part of three front yards across from the elementary school. Both slip-ups resulted from inaccurate deed descriptions.

Jaycee Runners Carry Torch To Boost Olympic Fund Drive

The Olympic Torch lighted streets here early Sunday as local Jaycees continued a cross-country run to raise funds for the 1964 U.S. Olympic team.

The 3,000-mile "Run For The Money" is relaying the lighted Olympic symbol across the nation in a drive to present the team with a $1,000,000 expense check on the eve of their departure to Tokyo.

Fourteen Jaycee teams of runners, including Jack Mortland of London, O., a walker on the U.S. Olympic team, participated in the relay through the Central Ohio area, running the blazing torch from Reynoldsburg along old Route 40 through Columbus to South Vienna where Springfield, O., Jaycees waited to continue the across-the-nation drive for U.S. Olympic team support.

Ohio's Olympic great, Jesse Owens, kicked off the long-distance run Sept. 1 in a ceremony at New York City Hall.

The last torch carrier is expected to arrive at the Los Angeles Coliseum Sept. 26 during half time ceremonies at the game between Penn State and UCLA.

Contributions are being accepted at all local Jaycee chapters. Other collection points will be set up at local stores. The donations are the only source of support for the United States Olympic team.

Running for the Columbus Jaycees were Laura Voss and Ann Kolodzik of the Ohio Track Club, first female torch carriers; Gary Kopp, participant in the recent Jaycees Sportsorama, Bob Holland, Gary Stewart, Tom Danley and Don Bren.

They received the lighted Olympic torch from the Westerville team at Champion-av on the fourth leg of the relay through Greater Columbus.

A motorcade of police cruisers, a sound truck, and autos carrying state Jaycee officers escorted the runners along Broad-st to Central-av where the North Columbus team waited to continue the transcontinental run.

Four area Jaycee clubs participated in the run:

Running for the Prairie-Lincoln Jaycee team were Bill Pettit, John Faul, Sonny Scott, Earl Stevens, Ron Quillan, Joe Brenot, Clyde Wise and Chuck Frazier.

They received the lighted Olympic torch from the North Columbus team at Vista-dr and relayed it along Broad-st to the Rome-Hilliard-rd where the Worthington team waited to continue the transcontinental relay to Koetbel-Suydam-rd.

West Jefferson Jaycees picked up the relay to State Route 29 and the Tri-Village team.

Running for West Jefferson were: Bob Horton, Leon Perkins, Bob Donaldson, Charlie Farmer, Bob Kennedy, Frank Andrews, Tom Baltzer, Don Francis, Max Walker, Dick Crompton, Bob Bogard, Bill Weinbrecht, Bill Martin and Mike Loveless.

Grove City Jaycees took over the relay from Tri-Village for a three-mile run to Lafayette. Runners were: Larry Crosley, Rex Crosley, Walter Murray, Ron Straight, Tom Longsberry, Jack Cook and Mike Hannigan.

Torch bearers of the Hilliard Jaycees continued the relay to State Route 29 where the torch passed to a Plain City, Marysville and Leedem relay team on its long trip across the nation.

Hilliard runners were: Bernie Vance, Ken Unperman, Ron Rosemeier, Bob Harris, Tom Smith, Ed Lemke, Calvin DeLong, Jack Duncan, Bill Klopton, Art Rosemeier, Dave Brace and Ron Young.

Running for the Reynoldsburg Jaycee team were: Gil Whalen, Ed Wahlfeldt, Ed O'Neal, Lloyd Dickens, Wally Reed, Andy Knisley, Bill Henry, Bob Duff, Walt Guth, Gene Chiveney, Bill Middesworth, Russ White, Steve Mills, Frank Wilamosky and Jack Coy.

They received the lighted Olympic torch at the Franklin County line at Reynoldsburg's east city limits on the first leg of the relay through the Central Ohio area.

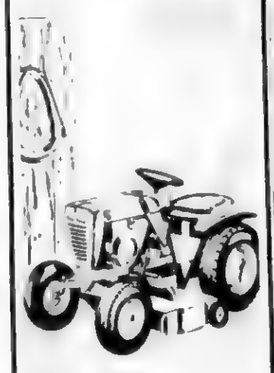
They relayed the torch along Main-st to Country Club-rd where an East Columbus Jaycee team waited to continue the transcontinental run.

Running for East Columbus Jaycees team were: Tom Studabaker, Bob Huffman, Gil Kingsberry, Dave Barry, Tom Koetting and Dick Oberdier.

They received the lighted Olympic torch from Reynoldsburg at Country Club-rd and relayed it along Main-st to Kenwick-rd where it was passed to the Westerville team on the third leg of the relay through Columbus to Champion-av.

A NATIONWIDE torch-bearing ceremony to raise a million dollars for the U.S. Olympic Fund took on local flavor early Saturday morning when the chain of runners extending from New York City to Los Angeles entered Franklin County, just east of Reynoldsburg. Ed O'Neal (left), Reynoldsburg Jaycee president, takes the torch from Tom Hammer of the Lancaster club, who helped relay the flame from Hebron.

Heating Appliance Check Urged



Fire Chief W. G. Strickfaden urged residents of Columbus to make an early check of heating appliances.

His suggestions include: Be sure that the heater is vented to a good chimney; be sure that the chimney is clean; blow smoke into the chimney opening to make sure it is drawing; be sure that the vent pipe goes uphill from the heater to the chimney.

Use a safety thimble to keep the pipe from going too far into the chimney; where it enters the chimney, seal around the pipe with cement or plaster; Be sure there is a cleanout opening with cap in the chimney under the vent (stove pipe); Be sure that some outside air is fed to the space where the heater is located; Don't use a cook stove for room heating.

If you'd classify your lawn as a "problem lawn" — one with more weeds than good grass — James Beard, turf grass researcher, says you can correct the cause, renovate or re-establish the lawn grasses this fall.

Most lawns suffer from lack of plant food, or low fertility. Often a good lawn fertilization program can bring desirable grasses back into prominence.

Other causes, such as acid soil, poor drainage, improper mowing, lack of pest or weed control, and general improper uses of seeding, complicate and multiply lawn problems. Analyze your problems, then see a reputable garden or seed firm, Beard says.

The existing drought conditions have added to pasture problems, and much emphasis will be placed on fall and winter agricultural clinics and meetings. The drought will be under lengthy discussion by many groups at the Sept. 30 through Oct. 2 Farm Science Review and your reporter will be present to cover all three days' activity.

Loans totaling more than five and a half million dollars were made by the Farmers Home Administration to Ohio rural families during the fiscal year 1964, state director James T. McDorman announced recently. He said this represents an increase of 73 percent above the 1960 level.

The Ohio Cooperative Extension Service has just published and sent to its county offices a leaflet to help farmers better understand the provisions of the 1965 voluntary wheat program. Copies of the Extension leaflet, "Voluntary Wheat Program — 1965," prepared by extension economists Wallace Barr and John Bottum, are available at all county extension offices.

The Ohio State Junior Fair is now history, but we would like to pay tribute to the 4-H and FFA groups that set an example for many of the visiting delegations from other states such as Florida. As one civic leader stated this week, Ohio really delivered a mark for others to shoot for in the annals of state fairs.

The Delaware County Fair will get under way Sept. 20 through 25, with everyone anticipating another great year of "Little Brown Jug fever." Not to be overlooked is the better-than-average participation in agricultural exhibits. Plan to attend.

'Community' Course Set At Capital

Capital University, in cooperation with the United Community Council, is presenting a course in "Development and Trends in a Changing Community" as part of the university's Community Education program.

Civic leaders will conduct the courses Wednesday evenings beginning Sept. 30.

The eight-week course will attempt to analyze the nature of community problems as they exist today, steps that have been taken, and suggestions as to what can be done.

Spectator Begins Search For Suburban Homemaker

We're looking for a very special person and only YOU can help us find her.

Somewhere in our community there is a woman who is outstanding — both in the eyes of her family and her community.

She might never have been considered for a beauty contest. She might not be rich by material standards. But to her husband, her children, her friends and neighbors, she is someone "special."

She is vital and makes a meaningful contribution to the suburban community in her role of homemaker. This newspaper, in conjunction with the Suburban Press Foundation, would like to pay tribute to this person.

This week we begin our search for this woman. When we find her, we will send her to Chicago Nov. 19-20 for the National Suburban Homemaker Conference where she will compete with women from all over the nation for the title of "Suburban Homemaker of the Year."

If she should win the national title, she will receive $5000. You, as her nominator, would receive $500. But even if she does not win the national title, what better consolation prize could she cherish than the realization that someone cared enough to publicly recognize her many fine qualities.

Last year, Hartley Newspapers sent four local winners to Chicago on an all-expense paid holiday for national competition.

They were: Mrs. Robert Fannin, 858 Stephen-dr; Mrs. Robert Gutheil, RR No. 1, Lockbourne; Mrs. Charles Long Jr., West Jefferson, and Mrs. Oliver Mosher, 4009 Beechcreek-rd.

How can you help us find this woman? All you need do is tell us about her in a letter of not more than 500 words.

Inside this paper today you will find judging standards which indicate some of the qualities she might possess. Using the official entry blank, also inside the paper, the nominator will tell us who this special person is.

The difficult task of selecting the local "Homemaker of the Year" will fall to a panel of judges who are representatives of a cross-section of suburban living.

Anyone 15 years of age or older may nominate. Entry blanks will appear each week in this paper and will also be available by contacting this office (BR. 4-1155).

The closing date for nomination is midnight, Saturday Oct. 24.

Send your nomination to: Suburban Homemaker Editor, The Spectator, 2465 W. Broad Street, Columbus 4.

We are proud to once again join in this national search for the Suburban Homemaker of the Year. We are sure that the national winner lives right here in our community. She might well be your next door neighbor, the president of your PTA or that special gal you call "Mom."

Won't you tell us about her?

EMPLOYMENT?

Looking for work or looking for someone to do it? It is no problem with a Hartley Newspapers Want Ad. Either way your're sure to find what you need. Find out about the low rates for classified advertising that reaches 72000 homes weekly. Call BR. 4-1155 today.

Holzhause - Moling To Meet In GOP Primary

By FRANK RYAN

An election rematch between Whitehall Mayor William H. Holzhause and former four-term mayor Walter B. Moling is a virtual certainty. And they're not going to wait until next November.

The two will square off in a 1965 Republican Primary battle that may find three slates of candidates vying for GOP spots on the November ballot. The third potential Republican candidate is James C. Polzer, Whitehall service director.

Polzer's candidacy is anything but a sure bet at this stage of the game. He admits that some "individuals" have suggested that he file for the mayor's office, but says he hasn't "given it serious thought."

When asked for a yes or no answer on his rumored candidacy, Polzer reverted to the logic reserved to politicians by saying: "I wouldn't rule it out because I haven't considered it." Polzer said he has a job (service director), likes it, and wants to continue to work for the city.

Moling's candidacy comes as no great surprise. He held the mayor's office for four consecutive terms before losing to Holzhause by a scant 49 votes out of more than 4,300 cast in last November's election race. It was the first trip into the political arena for Holzhause.

Holzhause Non-Committal

Holzhause has made no official announcement concerning his plans for a second term, but sources close to the mayor have confirmed that he will switch from Independent to the Republican ticket. They say that Holzhause feels that he would be at a political disadvantage as an Independent in a race where both the Republicans and Democrats field a mayoral candidate.

There was no Democratic candidate for mayor in 1963, a fact that is credited with gaining for Holzhause many Democratic votes. But the mayor and Democrats have parted company on some major issues since he has been in office, and organization Democrats have long since given up any idea of inviting the mayor onto the ticket.

Republicans who hold elective office have been active in lining up a 1965 slate. Most of those who have agreed to seek office in the 1965 GOP Primary are considered as part of the "Moling slate," although at least two of the "unofficially" announced candidates are expected to support Holzhause.

This present line-up of Republican candidates includes incumbents Ray Shipley (at large), Les Ballenger (First Ward), Roger Stahley (Second Ward) and Council President Walter J. Siemer.

Two Republicans who lost election bids in 1963 will also be in the Primary race. They are John Bishop (Third Ward), and Linn L. Hiatt, who lost his at-large council seat. Ted R. Harmony, 4607 San Jose-ln, will seek an at-large nomination.

At present, there is no announced candidate for the Republicans from the Fourth Ward. It is no secret that the so-called "Moling slate" would welcome Darrell Todd, former councilman, if he indicated a desire to run again for council. But Todd is currently serving as safety director — a post to which he was appointed by Holzhause. The mayor had previously appointed Todd to the city's Planning and Zoning Commission.

Todd Is Popular

Todd, like Walter Siemer, enjoys the respect and friendship of both "Moling" and "Holzhause" Republicans, as well as having more than a few Democratic admirers. The general consensus is that Todd would perfer to remain as safety director and work for the re-election of Holzhause. In any event, Todd is WITCH DOCTOR, shown by Susan Hill, daughter of River Ridge president, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Hill, will be among the blue ribbon winners in this season's horse show circuit to be featured at the Homecoming Show Sunday. The six-year-old gelding, purchased by the Hills this summer, has already earned five blue ribbons, three at the Ohio State Fair and two at Youngstown. Susan, 15, has been riding only three years. The horse, along with many others of River Ridge members is stabled at the Don Rhinehart Stables on Trabue-rd.

A PAIR OF PROS, real veterans of many shows, many seasons, are Amor Bogen and Stonewall's Tallula King, the winner of more blue ribbons in shows than any other horse in the state. Under Bogen's skillful hands the horse, now retired from the show circuit, proudly assumes the familiar show stance. Bogen, founder of Bogen, Bogen and Bogen Furnaces, is a past president and oldest member in terms of service of the Franklin County Fair Board, and has been riding "most all my life. I grew up on a stock farm," he chuckled, "and my father's philosophy was, 'out of the high chair and into the saddle.'" Although he no longer rides himself he has instilled a love of the sport in countless numbers of youngsters, starting many of them on a lifetime of riding. Mr. and Mrs. Ray Weigand, owner of Tallula King during the years he was chalking up his winning record of blue ribbons, will return from Florida for the homecoming show. The horse was shown by their son, Dave Weigand, now stationed in Nova Scotia with the U. S. Armed Forces, and is now retired "on Social Security," Bogen commented, at his place on Henderson-rd.

Homecoming Horse Show Set Sunday At River Ridge Club

Annual Homecoming Horse Show and dinner, most popular of River Ridge Riding and Polo Club's outdoor events, will be held at the club, 3115 W. Henderson-rd, Sunday, Sept. 20, at 1 p.m.

Former members from as far away as Florida, and many more who have belonged for 30 years or more but no longer ride, will be on hand to renew old friendships and enjoy the occasion.

Reservations for dinner, planned from 5 to 7:30 p.m., must be made by calling the club house, 451-1420 by Friday, Sept. 18. There is no admission charge for the afternoon and evening show.

The show has 16 classes, and is open to all exhibitors at a $1 class entry fee. Post entries will be accepted at the secretary's office from noon on for three and five-gaited saddle horses, hunters and jumpers, fine harness, pony, quarter horse, western and saddle bred pleasure, and novelty classes.

Featured in the show will be horses of members and former members which this season have earned a record number of ribbons and trophies in the Tri-State horse show circuit, including the highly competitive Ohio State

IN WHITEHALL

Safety And Service Posts Still Separate

The controversial ordinance aimed at combining the jobs of service and safety directors in Whitehall went down in defeat at the city council meeting Tuesday night.

Democrat Loren Mason joined Republicans Les Ballenger, Roger Stahley and Ray Shipley in voting down the measure, introduced by Democrat Gilbert O'Shaughnessy.

The other two Democrat councilmen, Marvin Levine and James Toomey, were absent, Levine because of a religious holiday and Toomey because of a death in the family.

An amended ordinance aimed at controlling yards in commercial and industrial areas also went down in defeat despite a three-to-two vote for its passage.

The measure's emergency clause, which would have put it into immediate force after passage, required a five-vote

PROGRAM TO HONOR RETIRING TEACHER

"Miss Myrtle Hoffman's Recognition - Appreciation Night" will be held at Whitehall East Main Street Elementary School, Monday, Sept. 28, 8 p.m. in the school auditorium.

Miss Hoffman is retiring after 50 years in teaching, 32 of which were spent in the Whitehall School System. She will continue to serve as a substitute teacher.

A first grade school teacher, Miss Hoffman will be honored with a "This is Your Life" type program featuring representatives from all her years of teaching.

On hand will be the first first-grader she ever taught, in addition to many persons she helped mold throughout her years of service.

Included, besides former students, will be faculty and community friends, associates, school administrators, board members and others who were involved in Miss Hoffman's long career.

Interested parties who have not been contacted and would like to appear in the testimonial for Miss Hoffman may contact Francis Beard, principal of East Main Street Elementary School, 231-1516.

EXCHANGE OF COSTUMES, as well as ideas and ideals, is all part of the American Field Service student exchange program. Yuriko Kojima from Japan, at left, studying at Eastmoor this year while living at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Perler, finds she and Roni Perler have a great deal in common. The two 18-year-olds were delighted to find themselves wearing the same size clothing, and Roni is an attentive student in the art of donning the traditional Japanese kimono and obi.

Last Chance To Be Listed In College Page

Home news is never sweeter than when read in a far away place.

For the past three weeks The Spectator has offered university-bound students the opportunity to keep up with happenings at home with the "College Special".

For only $2.25, college students can have their local edition of The Spectator sent to them at their school for the entire school year. Just call BR. 4-1155 and ask for the circulation department.

A back-to-school page, listing students and their schools, will be published soon. To be sure your name is included, fill out the coupon inside this newspaper.

And don't forget the special college subscription.

It's as good as a letter from home.

'MAKE FRIENDS WITH AMERICA'

Japanese AFS Student Charms Hosts, New Friends, Schoolmates

East meets West this season in the persons of two teenage girls, and the world of 18-year-old high school seniors is an interesting one when viewed simultaneously through Oriental and Occidental eyes.

Yuriko Kojima of Tokyo, American Field Service student, and Roni Perler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Perler of 2694 Schaaf-dr, are embarked on an unforgettable year.

Yuriko is living with the Perlers under the international exchange student program, and is enrolled with Roni as a senior at Eastmoor High.

Since her arrival last month Yuriko has, for the first time, seen a wedding, gone to a drive-in movie, viewed a football game, attended a slumber party, and eaten a wide variety of new foods.

And her delight in learning of America, its people and its ways is immeasurable. "Everyone is so friendly," she said gaily.

"My parents at first refused permission," she said of her desire to come to America. "But I spoke to them of my wish to make friends with America and to study here. I think if our people make friends we will all know and understand each other's country."

And "make friends with America," is exactly what Yuriko has done. In one short month she has become part of the Perler family, and

Miss Gilmore And Mr. Meszaros Take September 12 Wedding Vows

MRS. ALEX JOSEPH MESZAROS, JR.

Hungarian United Church of Christ was the scene of the Sept. 12 wedding of Miss Carol Marie Gilmore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Leslie Gilmore, 4097 Ural-av, to Mr. Alex Joseph Meszaros, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Joseph Meszaros, Sr., 370 E. Hinman-av.

Rev. Victor G. Orth read the 7:30 p.m. vows.

The bride wore a silk bombazine gown trimmed with sabrina lace, seed pearls and iridescents. The bodice featured a sabrina neckline, basque waistline and long sleeves. Her bouffant three-tiered skirt was edged in chantilly lace and ended in a chapel train.

Her elbow-length veil of seed pearl and iridescents was attached to a princess crown and she carried a cascade of white sweetheart roses, surrounding a white Victorian rose and accented with English ivy.

Miss Mary Kay Gilmore, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Barbara Hamilton and Miss Marion Robinson. They chose dresses of light aqua silk organza over taffeta with scoop necklines and petite sleeves. Matching bandeaux with circular veils completed their ensembles.

Miss Gilmore carried white feathered carnations and Misses Hamilton and Robinson carried aqua feathered carnations.

Miss Kristi Meszaros, cousin of the bridegroom, was flower girl. She wore a floor-length dress of aqua brocade and carried a white basket filled with yellow rose petals.

Ring bearer was Master Bradley Meszaros, also a cousin of the bridegroom.

Mr. Michael Jacobs was best man and ushers were Mr. Dennis Ferrell and Mr. Larry Gilmore, brother of the bride. Junior ushers were Mr. Paul Meszaros, brother of the bridegroom, and Mr. Michael Gilmore, brother of the bride.

A reception was held following the ceremony at the Onized Club.

The newlyweds are residing at 427 Mayfair-blvd.

MRS. JOHN PAGE, 261 N. Stanwood-rd, and her daughter Melissa, three, admire puppets that Luci will use in the forthcoming show.

Puppet Show Set Friday At East Main Elementary

Local children will see Stanley Mouse, George Giraffe, Dragon and many other puppets from "Luci's Toyshop," local television show, and meet their creator when Mrs. Lucille Gasaway brings her show to the East Main Street Elementary School, Friday, Sept. 18.

Proceeds from the show, to which all children are invited, will be donated to the pre-school children's rooms of the Ohio State Speech and Hearing Clinic. In this clinic children from all over the city and state receive diagnosis and aid with speech and hearing programs.

The Kappa Alumnae group is maintaining these rooms and members of the group donate their time in keeping the rooms clean and painted. Equipment which has been purchased by the group from proceeds of previous puppet shows have been a tape recorder, equipment cabinets, television with two sets of earphones, tables and chairs wired for treatment devices, draperies and chests of drawers for storage.

The Kappas also have donated a book cart with reference books for paaents which may be checked out for a week at a time. These books help parents in the treatment of the children and the understanding of their problems.

Assisting with the puppet show are Mrs. Stephen Cartwright, 514 Northview-dr, and Mrs. Victor Irelan, 1564 Stouder-dr, Reynoldsburg.

Tickets may be obtained at the door or from Mrs. Carl Purtz, 49 Wilson-dr, Worthington.

Mrs. Hanson Is President Of RHG Club

The Sept. 15 meeting of the Rose Hill Garden Club was held at the home of Mrs. Robert Harred, 1676 Pickering-ct.

The following officers were installed: Mrs. Conway Hanson, president; Mrs. Walter Engler, vice-president; Mrs. Paul Kunkemoeller, secretary; Mrs. James Whitemeyer, treasurer.

Mrs. James Whitemeyer presented the program.

There's No Business Like My Housework

By ADELINE DALEY

Occasionally I feel compelled to impart a few household hints — which I realize may give you the idea that I'm a fussy housekeeper.

Well, I really am. I'm fussy about who I let cross my threshold before 4 p.m. By then, at least the living room doesn't look as if it had been headquarters for an American Legion convention. I actually prefer visiting with friends in one of two places —on our front steps or over at their houses.

If this is impossible, there are several alternatives one may choose. First, always drag the vacuum cleaner out by 9 a.m. even though you don't intend to use it. It makes a terrific "prop." Also floor-polishing equipment on display in the kitchen is a marvelous way of camouflaging the fact that the breakfast dishes are still stacked in the sink in the late afternoon. Another "must" is to have the ironing board out.

Point two, keep drapes drawn at all times. Greet friends by grasping onto furniture for support to feign illness. The one disadvantage in following this procedure, however, is that your darkened living room eventually takes on the aura of a funeral parlor and you find yourself unnecessarily speaking in hushed, reverent tones to members of the family.

Also, your kids blink when facing daylight.

In dire emergencies keep a coat handy at the door to pretend you were on your way out. The one drawback in this is that it often turns out that the person at the door is your husband.

Worth trying is the method of sending your kids outside to act as decoys in pointing to the wrong house. This affords you the opportunity to kick the cereal boxes beneath the chesterfield and time to block off the rest of the house from view.

If you are not a good housekeeper, at least talk like one. Throw statements like these into your conversation: "Tomorrow is 'Polish the Silverware Day'." "Just think, it's been two whole weeks since I cleaned out my closets!"

There are those who even suggest that you DO the housework. Heaven forbid. They, of course, are the hard-working Jenny Wren types, who live by a schedule like a railroad timetable. Passers-by can set their watches at 7:48 when they hear the vacuum cleaner turned on.

I can well imagine the reaction in this household if something other than the coffee pot were turned on at that hour: "And just when do you expect Lady Bird to arrive?"

But today I'm really going to get things done. Of course after that second cup of coffee—over at YOUR house."

REMEMBER VETERANS WITH FORGET-ME-NOTS

SURROUNDED BY HIGH school girls, Mrs. George Sriner of 1040 S. Roosevelt, decides the only graceful way out is to buy a Forget-Me-Not from each one. Sponsored by the Disabled American Veterans organizations of Franklin County, the drive will be held Friday and Saturday, Sept. 18 and 19. Three of the 300 area girls helping in the drive are from left: Barbara Fuller, 778 S. Wall-st; Cynthia Blatt, 330 Stanberry-av, and Crystal Phillian, 3429 Michael-ct. Funds derived from the sale will benefit disabled veterans. Mrs. Sriner is treasurer of Capital City S.

NO RAIDS ON THIS ONE!

THE FRATERNAL Order of Police Ladies Auxiliary, Capital City Lodge 5 and Brace 10 of the Franklin County Society for Crippled Children will hold a progressive euchre party, Wednesday, Sept. 23, 8 p.m., at City National Bank, 3100 W. Broad-st. Helping plan the event are from left: Mrs. Sylvester Bauer, 3382 Medina; Mrs. George Peters, 1150 Manfeld-dr and Mrs. Jack Cole, 791 Brighton-rd. Tickets may be obtained from them and watch where you park . . . one of their husbands may see that you get another ticket!

Baby Care Class Begins Tuesday

A new class for the Red Cross "Mother and Baby Care" course offered to expectant mothers will begin Tuesday, Sept. 22.

The class will meet each Tuesday and Thursday for three weeks from 10 a.m. to noon at the Red Cross Blood Center Building, 812 E. Broad-st.

Registration should be made by calling the Franklin County Red Cross. There is no charge for this instruction. Red Cross is a member of United Appeal.

What happened to summer?

What little bit we saw of her was beautiful and so that she may retain her beauty, she will soon be taking her three season rest.

Come Monday, we will greet the gypsy of the year . . . fall in her colorful dress.

Different seasons of the year remind us of various incidents.

To me fall is hoping you'll be elected to student council since you didn't make cheerleader . . . buying a new dress before the football captain asks you to the dance . . . cooking three noon meals for the children going to different schools . . . the smell of mothballs the first time you wear winter clothes.

The drive you never take through the country to see the multi-colored trees . . . a jug of cider, a bushel of apples and thou . . . . borrowing the neighbor's rake and finding it is the one you loaned him last year . . . putting a warm blanket on the bed and cracking the window . . . a Thanksgiving dinner with all the trimmings followed by an Alka-Seltzer . . . thinking you have the best costume in the Halloween parade.

HAS YOUR FURNACE HAD ITS ANNUAL CHECK-UP?

A modern gas furnace is dependable and efficient. But like other types of automatic equipment, it should be checked regularly by an expert.

A heating contractor or furnace dealer can inspect air filters, blower system, pilot, automatic controls and duct work. Be ready for the first cold snap by preparing for winter now.

THIS CIRCUS DAY HAD A DEEPER MEANING

A COUPLE OF BEXLEY families sat back good-naturedly recently while their respective progeny scurried around making preparations for a backyard circus. It was all good clean fun, and the few pennies they might extract from their playmates would certainly be insufficient in number to bring any cries of extortion. But the Herbert Weiners of 177 S. Remington-rd and Paul Herwalds of 79 S. Remington had a surprise in store for them. At the end of the busy day, the children informed them that they were going to repeat the show. They had less than $3 to show for their efforts and they wanted $5. Parental eyebrows went up wondering what gigantic spree the children were planning, until they learned the rather amazing truth. The troupe of five youngsters wanted to send a money order to the John F. Kennedy Library. The second show, at which the above pictures were taken, was another success, and today the proceeds are en route to the Kennedy shrine. At the left are Mike and Chuck Weiner with their "ferocious fox" (usually known simply as Rags) who provided the "live" entertainment. In the two center photos, Chris Weiner and Barbara Herwald shuddered with mock horror as they entered the "spook house" which in calmer days, serves as the Herwald garage. At the far right, Steve Weiner fills a customer's cup to the brim, as he serves the important function of dispenser of refreshments. His customer, one of many who parted with a few pennies for a worthy cause, is Ilene Tieman. All the children are pupils at Cassingham Elementary.

ROUNDUP SCHEDULED THURSDAY

WHAT DOES "PROTEIN" MEAN?

Doctors put protein in our diet. TV commercials spout about it! Now they talk about 'protein' for hair. Does protein realy mean better hair beauty care? You bet! For the magic secret is this: hair is all protein, in the beginning! Protein is the matter that makes up all living things. That's why we're so pleased to announce our protein conditioning treatments for your hair.

SIPPING STRENGTH

When we treat your hair with this new professional protein formula, you can almost feel it work! Hungry hair strands sip it up. Dry, brittle or "spongy" hair takes on new strength. Split ends seems to disappear, in split seconds! "Lifeless" hair suddenly comes alive. After we've styled you, there's a new bounce in your hair. You see the body and youth. In the comb-out! There's a lovely shine a sign your hair feels younger.

PROTEIN IN PERMANENTS

Yup! Those scientific beauty wizards have put these magic new "protein" beauty secrets into new permanent waving formulas, too. Now we can actually "renew" your hair, with a personalized permanent . . . with body and bounce, where last week's limpness used to be! Come see for yourself, what this twentieth century beauty news means to your hair. (They'll be comparing you with your daughter tomorrow!) Dial BE. 1-4100, for our special protein beauty analysis.

FROM UNDER THE DRYER:

We've never met a hair problem we couldn't improve upon. Why not put your head in our hands? You owe it to yourself, to feel younger.

'Family Interests' Bring Lady Bird, Barry Jr.

Local Johnson and Goldwater fans will not have the chance to eye their idols this week as state conventions of both political parties open.

But with Lady Bird Johnson and Barry Goldwater, Jr., in town, the partisans can sing a song of "A relative's the next best thing."

Democrats will have to wait a day longer to get a glimpse of the wife of the President than Republicans eager to get a glimpse of the eldest son of their presidential candidate who was expected this morning (Thursday).

Mrs. Johnson will land at Port Columbus at 10:30 a.m. Friday with her motorcade following 17th-av onto Jamesrd and then turning west onto E. Broad for the trip into the downtown area.

Accompanied by Mrs. Anthony Celebrezz, wife of the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, and the wives of both Ohio senators, Mrs. Stephen Young and Mrs. Frank Lausche, she will be given a civic welcome on the west terrace of City Hall.

More than 1,000 guests have purchased tickets for the 12:30 p.m. luncheon honoring Mrs. Johnson in the Deshler-Cole ballroom.

The appearance of Lady Bird, highlighting the Democratic State Convention which opened Tuesday, is sponsored by the Federated Democratic Women of Ohio.

Republicans in German Village were ready to bask in the reflected glory of having been the only community which Barry, Jr., the scion of the Republican hopeful, had agreed to visit.

Flying in from Cleveland at 9:30 a.m. Thursday, Barry Goldwater, Jr., accompanied by six convertibles loaded with Republican dignitaries and a police escort, will head directly for German Village.

With Louis Yumet of the German Village Society acting as host, the national chairman of the Youth for Goldwater movement will appear at the Yumet establishment on Beck and Sixth-sts at 10:30 a.m.

Goldwater supporters will have the opportunity to meet young Goldwater, hear him speak briefly on his father's personal life, and partake of the hospitality offered by Yumet (as long as the coffee lasts.)

After a whirlwind tour of the restored homes in the area, the 26-year-old Los Angeles stockbroker who is devoting his time to campaigning for his dad, will appear at the Palace Theater at 3:30 p.m. as the principal afternoon speaker at the State Republican Convention.

Columbus' state of upheaval with half-built freeways killed the Republican hopes of the eastern section of the city to capture vice-presidential nominee William Miller for a portion of his visit to Columbus.

Scheduled to arrive in Columbus late Thursday afternoon, embryonic plans were rampant to have him appear at St. Mary of the Springs College prior to his downtown appearance at the Palace.

But it came to naught when Republican officials decided the combination of viaducts and highways under construction is too much for Miller's entourage to cope with.

However, he will be the principal speaker at the evening session of the State Convention before leaving for Chicago late Thursday night.

Japanese—

found a welcoming place in their circle of friends.

"We love her already," Mrs. Perler said sincerely. And Mr. Perler added, "Her thirst for knowledge is really wonderful. She studies with such enthusiasm."

At Eastmoor, Yuriko's study program is the same as any American senior's. Her schedule includes English, Problems of Democracy, French, speech and typing.

In spite of five years of English in her school in Tokyo, a compulsory subject in Japan, American conversational language is difficult.

"The first day of school was most frightening," Yuriko said of her bewildering experience in a large American High School. But an understanding Roni returned with Yuriko to Eastmoor for a leisurely tour of the building and classrooms, and a talk with the school counselor.

At home, Yuriko's school year would be spent very differently. Social life is almost nonexistent for a senior in Japan, "because we spend all our time studying for the college entrance exams," Yuriko explained earnestly. "And it is a small, all-girl school with about 400 students."

Her senior year will have to be repeated when she returns to Japan next July.

Yuriko's impact on the Perlers' life is in like measure to their contributions to her.

Another world, another culture come alive, and are easily understood when interpreted by such a representative. Yuriko's home, a combination of Western and Oriental style, is familiar, as are her family and friends.

Yuriko's father is an electronics engineer, and she has two brothers, one an economics student at Keyio University, and the other in junior high.

Perler is an optician at Lockbourne, and the family includes, in addition to Roni, a son, Jay, senior at Ohio State University. He was married on Aug. 30

Yuriko's hopes, after college, are for a career in UNESCO, United Nations Educational, Scientific, Cultural Organization.

UN Potluck Scheduled

Columbus Chapter of the United Nations Association will hold its fall meeting Wednesday, Sept. 30 at 6 p.m. at Broad Street Congregational Church, 444 E. Broad-st. The public is invited.

Feature of the evening will be an international pot luck. Each woman is asked to bring an international covered dish in sufficient quantity to serve 10 people.

Director of the program, to begin at 8 p.m., is Siddarth Patel, from India, a PhD candidate at Ohio State University. He will arrange an Indian folk dance of 10 women in saris. Five of the women will be Indian while five will be American. Patel has danced professionally since the age of five, performed in Indian films and directed many dance groups.

Mohan Lal Sharma, a PhD canidate in English and American literature, will talk on Indian literature and drama and its world concept. He will also explain the literature's impact on world thought.

Mrs. J. W. Spretnak is chairman of the pot luck. Dr. Louis Nemzer, professor of political science at OSU, is program chairman. Chairman of hostesses is Mrs. Warren Bright.

River Ridge president, Robert E. Hill and wife, Pauline, will host the club's homecoming activities, assisted by the House Committee. Dr. and Mrs. Paul B. Eib are in charge of arrangements for the show, with the help of the Club Horse Show Committee.

All River Ridge members will serve on the hospitality committee.

River Ridge Club was officially opened on Decoration Day, 1930, on its present site.

The club owns a tract of land in Westchester Estates on Olentangy River-rd, and will in the future build new facilities there.

majority. Consequently the ordinance was killed.

In other action, legislation to ban parking on St. Rita-ln was tabled indefinitely by Gilbert O'Shaughnessy in the face of strong opposition from residents.

However, since the ordinance also included a parking ban on the north side of Etna-rd from Elaine to Yearling-rd, indications are that the measure will be brought back on the floor.

Another ordinance providing for licensing of bicycles in Whitehall was passed by council.

not likely to join any anti-Holzhause movement while serving in a post to which he was appointed by the mayor.

Whitehall Treasurer Francis E. (Red) Shaeffer will be a candidate for re-election. There has not been a selection of a candidate to oppose Democrat Auditor Walter Helber, although it is expected that he will be challenged.

At this stage of the Republican selections, it is seen as a distinct possibility that Democrat Solicitor Paul J. Haytcher will not be opposed by a Republican candidate. Haytcher is another local officeholder who enjoys widespread bi-partisan support.

The "unofficially" announced Republican candidates got their names before the public by distributing cards last week to all homes in the city reminding citizens to register and vote. Titled "The future of Whitehall is yours if you vote," the cards called attention to registration at the precinct level on Wednesday, Sept. 23, the final day for registration.

About 9,000 of the cards were distributed by nine candidates who have agreed to run. Each 1,000 cards bore the name of one of the candidates.

FRESHMAN WELCOMED AT ORIENTATION

WHITEHALL-YEARLING FRESHMEN were oldpros at the sometimes bewildering routine of high school on the first day after attending a voluntary orientation course before classes actually began. An assembly was held where introductions to the teachers were made. Home room assignments were received and a quickened schedule run-through was performed. Seniors on the stairs welcoming pre-frosh are Tom Richwine, Mickey McGowan, Jim Arbuckle, Dale Hunt, Cheryl Welsch, Barb Taggart. Freshmen include Kathy Mihelarakis, Linda Conaid, Kathy Vanderburg, Donna Wakefield, March Rohe, Jan Quick, Joey Foster, Tim Anderson, Ray Armbruster and Greg Bell.

ATTEND CONVENTION

JOE F. BOYLE (left), 1461 Simpson-dr, and Wayne U. Fancher, 114 Mayfair-blvd, are shown as they registered Sept. 9 for a three-day convention for State Farm Insurance agents at the Conrad Hilton Hotel in Chicago. More than 2300 agents and wives attended the conference, where newest developments in the insurance industry were discussed. At round-table meetings with home office and field executives, agents were briefed on 1964 company operations and assisted in planning for the company's future.

In Recital

Frank L. Hussey, organist at Indianola Presbyterian Church, will give a piano recital Sept. 29 beginning at 8:15 p.m. at Mees Hall, Capital University.

Hussey, who lives at 804 S. Remington, Bexley, is assistant professor of music at Capital, and was formerly organist at the Scottwood Community Church.

Army Pfc. Robert W. Shank, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Shank, 63 Governor's-pl, was assigned to the 51st Signal Battalion in Korea Aug. 31.

WHITEHALL RECREATION

Fall Program Events For City Under Way

Whitehall Recreation Center will be open from 3 to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday for elementary through senior high school students. Ping pong, shuffleboard, world-wide games and table games will be available.

On Tuesday and Wednesday evenings from 7 to 9 the center will be open to junior and senior high students.

Membership cards are necessary, and all junior and senior high students may come in from 3 to 5 p.m. to get new cards.

No one will be admitted to the junior and senior high dances without a card. There will be no dances this month.

Senior Citizens Club last week added three new members. Bingo and games were played, and pot uck was served. Senior Citizens are planning a trip to Blendon Woods.

Five new members will be added to the Whitehall Recreation Teen Council, and any teenagers who would like to be a member of the council may stop in John LaCorte's office. Teen Council's duties are planning senior high dances, parties and other activities.

Optimist Club Sets Charter Party Friday

Eastern Columbus Optimist Club will hold its charter party Friday, Sept. 18, at Ilonka's Party House.

John Seidel, past vice-president Optimist International, will be principal speaker, and Judge Alan E. Schwartzwalder will be master of ceremonies, assisted by past officers of Optimist and representatives of other local Optimist Clubs.

Representatives from the city government and local celebrities of television and radio will attend, along with members and their wives.

Eastern Optimist Club officers are, Dr. Martin Goldhaber, president; Ray Kuehner and Earl Rader, vice-president; John Buker, secretary-treasurer, and Ray Uhl, Donn Wiley, Bob Reever and Rev. William Griffiths, board of directors.

The club holds weekly luncheon meetings on Wednesday at Berwick Plaza Bowling Lanes. Interested visitors are welcome.

There's No Business Like Baseball Business

Sportswriters and baseball fans have probably called Charles Finley about everything in the book since the KC owner dumped his millions into major league baseball.

It's safe to say, everybody—from the little leaguer to the Beatles—has some kind of an opinion of the loud-spoken Athletic owner.

BUT WHILE Charlie Finley might be a showman or a nuisance, good or bad for baseball he does manage to call a spade a spade which is more than many baseball people seem to be doing these days.

Finley's latest harangue is directed as usual toward his strangest bedfellows, the Yankees and KC's walking public address system doesn't like the smell of CBS in the Yankee tent.

Finley says he'll sell out to anyone who wants the A's and he's directed his pitch to NBC and ABC, who, for some unaccountable reason, have been strangely silent about the competition's marriage to the cream of the AL.

WHAT FINLEY and other higher echelon baseball people are concerned about is Capital Hill and the eager clutches of an investigation committee.

Baseball and other sports have enjoyed the freedom of anti-trust snoopers ever since Congress ruled baseball a sport and not a business several year past.

But the old applecart's wheels are wobbling under the weight of this latest 'non-business' deal.

WE HAVE great respect for our Senators and Representatives but anyone who insists loudly that baseball isn't a business better get his nose out of Little Orphan Annie and get out to the ball park.

CBS didn't buy the Yankees because Huntley and Brinkley want season passes or Frank Stanton would like his picture taken with Mickey Mantle.

There's no business like baseball business and one of these election years some crusading Senator just might prove it and knock those wobbily wheels right off that shaky applecart.

And all he'd need to start the landslide would be Yogi's subscription to the Wall Street Journal.

Local Man Nets New Fish Mark

Phil McGinnis, 640 S. 18th-st, and a 50-year fisherman, hit Ohio's record fish books recently when he netted a 12-inch, 15-ounce spotted bass in Bainbridge for a pending "open" category record.

Last year McGinnis caught a largemouth bass in Hocking Lake that went eight pounds and four ounces. During a recent three-week fishing span, McGinnis and Joe Plotnick of Columbus landed 28 muskies at Rocky Fork Lake that ranged from eight to 12½ pounds each.

Are You A Squirrel 'Sitter' Or 'Walker'?

Under ★ ★ ★ Buckeye Skies

by Ken Mack McCreary

This past week has seen over a quarter of a million Buckeye state nimrods take to the woods with rifle and shotgun. The quarry — a small, wary bushy-tailed critter called the squirrel.

This nimble forest dweller is found in all of Ohio's 88 counties, with the larger fox squirrel, who prefers bigger timber and more open woods, generally found in the flatter northern two-thirds of the state, and his smaller cousin, the 'tough - to - tumble grey squirrel, generally living in the dense woodlands of the hilly counties.

SQUIRREL hunters can usually be tagged in one of two categories: "sitters" or "walkers." The sitters are the more relaxed hunters, preferring to locate a choice bushy-tail prone spot in their favorite woods, then sit down with their back against a comfortable tree and wait for the game to put in his appearance.

On the other hand, the walker-type hunter prefers to slowly and silently stroll through the forest, peering into the treetops and looking for signs of squirrels. Occasionally the walker will pause to look and listen.

Some of us don't quite fit into either category, but somewhere in the middle; we prefer to walk until we find what looks like "hot" squirrel territory, then sit down for a few minutes to give old bushytail a chance to show up on the scene. You can find staunch advocates for all systems, but it appears that the must successful one is the one which the individual hunter enjoys most.

USING EITHER system, there are several important squirrel "signs" to closely look for. Perhaps your best bet for success is to find a large food tree which the squirrels are working, such as a hickory, oak, beech, pignut or walnut.

Fresh cuttings under the tree almost always mean that the quarry is close at hand. Often when walking through the woods, the hunter will be alerted by the sounds of a cutting squirrel even before he gets to the hotspot tree. Such trees are favorite spots for sitter-type nimrods; I've known times when I shot my entire limit of four squirrels without ever having to move.

Another sign to look for is a den tree. Squirrels live in families and the hunter who stakes himself out under a choice den tree, particularly at dawn or just before sunset, is almost assured of squirrel for the pot.

IN ADDITION, to these points, it's always a good idea to keep both your ears and eyes peeled. Frequently a wary bushytail can be spotted by the way he moves branches as he tree-hops his way through the woods. Often the sudden jerk of his tail will alert you to his presence.

Many times I've found squirrels by the slight noise they make as they jump from branch to branch, by the patter of small feet on a leafy forest floor, by the scolding bark of an annoyed squirrel and by the sound of falling cuttings.

Today there are many hunters who prefer to test their skill and cunning against Mr. Squirrel with a .22 caliber rifle, usually scope - sighted. There's no doubt that this is the highly sporting method of bagging the game, but unfortunately it's also highly dangerous.

A .22 slug will travel a full mile, and if you're in a small woods in hill country there's no tellin; where a careless shot can end. Personally, unless the woods is large and remote I tend to put my faith in the old faithful 20 gauge pumpgun. If that weapon got notched for every squirrel it floored, I'd probably be shopping for about my third stock!"

To me, squirrel hunting is like no other form of hunting that Ohioans enjoy. Certainly it's not such strenuous exercise as tramping for cottontails or combing the brush for grouse, but squirrel hunting gives you a chance for some really solitary relaxation.

Even if you go hunting with your field pardners the nature of the quarry makes it necessary to separate and quietly go about your individual way. Where else can you get away from it all into the technicolor scenery of fall, sit down under a tree and let your thoughts wander as they may. All this and the prospects for a couple of young bushytails to be fried or stewed when you get home.

Ah yes . . . no wonder squirrel hunting is centuries-old and part of our Ohio tradition. How long has it been since you've been squirrel hunting?

'Family Interests' Bring Lady Bird, Barry Jr.

Local Johnson and Goldwater fans will not have the chance to eye their idols this week as state conventions of both political parties open.

But with Lady Bird Johnson and Barry Goldwater, Jr., in town, the partisans can sing a song of "A relative's the next best thing."

Democrats will have to wait a day longer to get a glimpse of the wife of the President than Republicans eager to get a glimpse of the eldest son of their presidential candidate who was expected this morning (Thursday).

Mrs. Johnson will land at Port Columbus at 10:30 a.m. Friday with her motorcade following 17th-av onto Jamesrd and then turning west onto E. Broad for the trip into the downtown area.

Accompanied by Mrs. Anthony Celebrezz, wife of the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, and the wives of both Ohio senators, Mrs. Stephen Young and Mrs. Frank Lausche, she will be given a civic welcome on the west terrace of City Hall.

More than 1,000 guests have purchased tickets for the 12:30 p.m. luncheon honoring Mrs. Johnson in the Deshler-Cole ballroom.

The appearance of Lady Bird, highlighting the Democratic State Convention which opened Tuesday, is sponsored by the Federated Democratic Women of Ohio.

Republicans in German Village were ready to bask in the reflected glory of having been the only community which Barry, Jr., the scion of the Republican hopeful, had agreed to visit.

Flying in from Cleveland at 9:30 a.m. Thursday, Barry Goldwater, Jr., accompanied by six convertibles loaded with Republican dignitaries and a police escort, will head directly for German Village.

With Louis Yumet of the German Village Society acting as host, the national chairman of the Youth for Goldwater movement will appear at the Yumet establishment on Beck and Sixth-sts at 10:30 a.m.

Goldwater supporters will have the opportunity to meet young Goldwater, hear him speak briefly on his father's personal life, and partake of the hospitality offered by Yumet (as long as the coffee lasts.)

After a whirlwind tour of the restored homes in the area, the 26-year-old Los Angeles stockbroker who is devoting his time to campaigning for his dad, will appear at the Palace Theater at 3:30 p.m. as the principal afternoon speaker at the State Republican Convention.

Columbus' state of upheaval with half-built freeways killed the Republican hopes of the eastern section of the city to capture vice-presidential nominee William Miller for a portion of his visit to Columbus.

Scheduled to arrive in Columbus late Thursday afternoon, embryonic plans were rampant to have him appear at St. Mary of the Springs College prior to his downtown appearance at the Palace.

But it came to naught when Republican officials decided the combination of viaducts and highways under construction is too much for Miller's entourage to cope with.

However, he will be the principal speaker at the evening session of the State Convention before leaving for Chicago late Thursday night.

FRESHMAN WELCOMED AT ORIENTATION

WHITEHALL-YEARLING FRESHMEN were old pros at the sometimes bewildering routine of high school on the first day after attending a voluntary orientation course before classes actually began. An assembly was held where introductions to the teachers were made. Home room assignments were received and a quickened schedule run-through was performed. Seniors on the stairs welcoming pro-frosh are Tom Richwine, Mickey McGowan, Jim Arbuckle, Dale Hunt, Cheryl Welsch, Barb Taggart. Freshmen include Kathy Mihelarakis, Linda Conald, Kathy Vanderburg, Donna Wakefield, March Rohe, Jan Quick, Joey Foster, Tim Anderson, Ray Armbruster and Greg Bell.

found a welcoming place in their circle of friends.

"We love her already," Mrs. Perler said sincerely. And Mr. Perler added, "Her thirst for knowledge is really wonderful. She studies with such enthusiasm."

At Eastmoor, Yuriko's study program is the same as any American senior's. Her schedule includes English, Problems of Democracy, French, speech and typing.

In spite of five years of English in her school in Tokyo, a compulsory subject in Japan, American conversational language is difficult.

"The first day of school was most frightening," Yuriko said of her bewildering experience in a large American High School. But an understanding Roni returned with Yuriko to Eastmoor for a leisurely tour of the building and classrooms, and a talk with the school counselor.

At home, Yuriko's school year would be spent very differently. Social life is almost nonexistent for a senior in Japan, "because we spend all our time studying for the college entrance exams," Yuriko explained earnestly. "And it is a small, all-girl school with about 400 students."

Her senior year will have to be repeated when she returns to Japan next July.

Yuriko's impact on the Perlers' life is in like measure to their contributions to her.

Another world, another culture come alive, and are easily understood when interpreted by such a representative. Yuriko's home, a combination of Western and Oriental style, is familiar, as are her family and friends.

Yuriko's father is an electronics engineer, and she has two brothers, one an economics student at Keyio University, and the other in junior high.

Perler is an optician at Lockbourne, and the family includes, in addition to Roni, a son, Jay, senior at Ohio State University. He was married on Aug. 30 majority. Consequently the ordinance was killed.

Yuriko's hopes, after college, are for a career in UNESCO, United Nations Educational, Scientific, Cultural Organization.

In other action, legislation to ban parking on St. Rita-ln was tabled indefinitely by Gilbert O'Shaughnessy in the face of strong opposition from residents.

However, since the ordinance also included a parking ban on the north side of Etna-rd from Elaine to Yearling-rd, indications are that the measure will be brought back on the floor.

Another ordinance providing for licensing of bicycles in Whitehall was passed by council.

UN Potluck Scheduled

Columbus Chapter of the United Nations Association will hold its fall meeting Wednesday, Sept. 30 at 6 p.m. at Broad Street Congregational Church, 444 E. Broad-st. The public is invited.

Feature of the evening will be an international pot luck. Each woman is asked to bring an international covered dish in sufficient quantity to serve 10 people.

Director of the program, to begin at 8 p.m., is Siddarth Patel, from India, a PhD candidate at Ohio State University. He will arrange an Indian folk dance of 10 women in saris. Five of the women will be Indian while five will be American. Patel has danced professionally since the age of five, performed in Indian films and directed many dance groups.

Mohan Lal Sharma, a PhD canidate in English and American literature, will talk on Indian literature and drama and its world concept. He will also explain the literature's impact on world thought.

Mrs. J. W. Spretnak is chairman of the pot luck. Dr. Louis Nemzer, professor of political science at OSU, is program chairman. Chairman of hostesses is Mrs. Warren Bright.

Fair Horse Show.

River Ridge president, Robert E. Hill and wife, Pauline, will host the club's homecoming activities, assisted by the House Committee. Dr. and Mrs. Paul B. Eib are in charge of arrangements for the show, with the help of the Club Horse Show Committee.

All River Ridge members will serve on the hospitality committee.

River Ridge Club was officially opened on Decoration Day, 1930, on its present site.

The club owns a tract of land in Westchester Estates on Olentangy River-rd, and will in the future build new facilities there.

not likely to join any anti-Holzhause movement while serving in a post to which he was appointed by the mayor.

Whitehall Treasurer Francis E. (Red) Shaeffer will be a candidate for re-election. There has not been a selection of a candidate to oppose Democrat Auditor Walter Helber, although it is expected that he will be challenged.

At this stage of the Republican selections, it is seen as a distinct possibility that Democrat Solicitor Paul J. Haytcher will not be opposed by a Republican candidate. Haytcher is another local officeholder who enjoys widespread bi-partisan support.

The "unofficially" announced Republican candidates got their names before the public by distributing cards last week to all homes in the city reminding citizens to register and vote. Titled "The future of Whitehall is yours if you vote," the cards called attention to registration at the precinct level on Wednesday, Sept. 23, the final day for registration.

About 9,000 of the cards were distributed by nine candidates who have agreed to run. Each 1,000 cards bore the name of one of the candidates.

ATTEND CONVENTION

JOE F. BOYLE (left), 1461 Simpson-dr, and Wayne U. More than 2300 agents and wives attended the conference, where newest developments in the insurance industry were discussed. At round-table meetings with home office and field executives, agents were briefed on 1964 company operations and assisted in planning for the company's future.

WHITEHALL RECREATION

Fall Program Events For City Under Way

Whitehall Recreation Center will be open from 3 to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday for elementary through senior high school students. Ping pong, shuffleboard, world-wide games and table games will be available.

On Tuesday and Wednesday evenings from 7 to 9 the center will be open to junior and senior high students.

Membership cards are necessary, and all junior and senior high students may come in from 3 to 5 p.m. to get new cards.

No one will be admitted to the junior and senior high dances without a card. There will be no dances this month.

Senior Citizens Club last week added three new members. Bingo and games were played, and pot luck was served. Senior Citizens are planning a trip to Blendon Woods.

Five new members will be added to the Whitehall Recreation Teen Council, and any teenagers who would like to be a member of the council may stop in John LaCorte's office. Teen Council's duties are planning senior high dances, parties and other activities.

Optimist Club Sets Charter Party Friday

Eastern Columbus Optimist Club will hold its charter party Friday, Sept. 18, at Ilonka's Party House.

John Seidel, past vice-president Optimist International, will be principal speaker, and Judge Alan E. Schwartzwalder will be master of ceremonies, assisted by past officers of Optimist and representatives of other local Optimist Clubs.

Representatives from the city government and local celebrities of television and radio will attend, along with members and their wives.

Eastern Optimist Club officers are, Dr. Martin Goldhaber, president; Ray Kuehner and Earl Rader, vice-president; John Buker, secretary-treasurer, and Ray Uhl, Donn Wiley, Bob Reever and Rev. William Griffiths, board of directors.

The club holds weekly luncheon meetings on Wednesday at Berwick Plaza Bowling Lanes. Interested visitors are welcome.

There's No Business Like Baseball Business

Sportswriters and baseball fans have probably called Charles Finley about everything in the book since the KC owner dumped his millions into major league baseball.

It's safe to say, everybody—from the little leaguer to the Beatles—has some kind of an opinion of the loud-spoken Athletic owner.

BUT WHILE Charlie Finley might be a showman or a nuisance, good or bad for baseball he does manage to call a spade a spade which is more than many baseball people seem to be doing these days.

Finley's latest harangue is directed as usual toward his strangest bedfellows, the Yankees and KC's walking public address system doesn't like the smell of CBS in the Yankee tent.

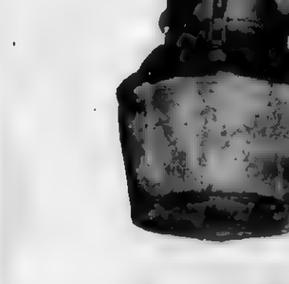
Finley says he'll sell out to anyone who wants the A's and he's directed his pitch to NBC and ABC, who, for some unaccountable reason, have been strangely silent about the competition's marriage to the cream of the AL.

WHAT FINLEY and other higher echelon baseball people are concerned about is Capital Hill and the eager clutches of an investigation committee.

Baseball and other sports have enjoyed the freedom of anti-trust snoopers ever since Congress ruled baseball a sport and not a business several year past.

But the old applecart's wheels are wobbling under the weight of this latest 'non-business' deal.

WE HAVE great respect for our Senators and Representatives but anyone who insists loudly that baseball isn't a business better get his nose out of Little Orphan Annie and get out to the ball park.



CBS didn't buy the Yankees because Huntley and Brinkley want season passes or Frank Stanton would like his picture taken with Mickey Mantle.

There's no business like baseball business and one of these election years some crusading Senator just might prove it and knock those wobbily wheels right off that shaky applecart.

And all he'd need to start the landslide would be Yogi's subscription to the Wall Street Journal.

Local Man Nets New Fish Mark

Phil McGinnis, 640 S. 18th-st, and a 50-year fisherman, hit Ohio's record fish books recently when he netted a 12-inch, 15-ounce spotted bass in Bainbridge for a pending "open" category record.

Last year McGinnis caught a largemouth bass in Hocking Lake that went eight pounds and four ounces. During a recent three-week fishing span, McGinnis and Joe Plotnick of Columbus landed 28 muskies at Rocky Fork Lake that ranged from eight to 12½ pounds each.

Are You A Squirrel 'Sitter' Or 'Walker'?

Under ★ ★ ★ Buckeye Skies

by Ken Mack McCreary

This past week has seen over a quarter of a million Buckeye state nimrods take to the woods with rifle and shotgun. The quarry — a small, wary bushy-tailed critter called the squirrel.

This nimble forest dweller is found in all of Ohio's 88 counties, with the larger fox squirrel, who prefers bigger timber and more open woods, generally found in the flatter northern two-thirds of the state, and his smaller cousin, the tough - to - tumble grey squirrel, generally living in the dense woodlands of the hilly counties.

SQUIRREL hunters can usually be tagged in one of two categories: "sitters" or "walkers." The sitters are the more relaxed hunters, preferring to locate a choice bushy-tail prone spot in their favorite woods, then sit down with their back against a comfortable tree and wait for the game to put in his appearance.

On the other hand, the walker-type hunter prefers to slowly and silently stroll through the forest, peering into the treetops and looking for signs of squirrels. Occasionally the walker will pause to look and listen.

Some of us don't quite fit into either category, but somewhere in the middle; we prefer to walk until we find what looks like "hot" squirrel territory, then sit down for a few minutes to give old bushytail a chance to show up on the scene. You can find staunch advocates for all systems, but it appears that the most successful one is the one which the individual hunter enjoys most.

USING EITHER system, there are several important squirrel "signs" to closely look for. Perhaps your best bet for success is to find a large food tree which the squirrels are working, such as a hickory, oak, beech, pignut or walnut.

Fresh cuttings under the tree almost always mean that the quarry is close at hand. Often when walking through the woods, the hunter will be alerted by the sounds of a cutting squirrel even before he gets to the hotspot tree. Such trees are favorite spots for sitter-type nimrods; I've known times when I shot my entire limit of four squirrels without ever having to move.

Another sign to look for is a den tree. Squirrels live in families and the hunter who stakes himself out under a choice den tree, particularly at dawn or just before sunset, is almost assured of squirrel for the pot.

IN ADDITION, to these points, it's always a good idea to keep both your ears and eyes peeled. Frequently a wary bushytail can be spotted by the way he moves branches as he tree-hops his way through the woods. Often the sudden jerk of his tail will alert you to his presence.

Many times I've found squirrels by the slight noise they make as they jump from branch to branch, by the patter of small feet on a leafy forest floor, by the scolding bark of an annoyed squirrel and by the sound of falling cuttings.

Today there are many hunters who prefer to test their skill and cunning against Mr. Squirrel with a .22 caliber rifle, usually scope - sighted. There's no doubt that this is the highly sporting method of bagging the game, but unfortunately it's also highly dangerous.

A .22 slug will travel a full mile, and if you're in a small woods in hill country there's no telling where a careless shot can end. Personally, unless the woods is large and remote I tend to put my faith in the old faithful 20 gauge pumpgun. If that weapon got notched for every squirrel it floored, I'd probably be shopping for about my third stock!"

To me, squirrel hunting is like no other form of hunting that Ohioans enjoy. Certainly it's not such strenuous exercise as tramping for cottontails or combing the brush for grouse, but squirrel hunting gives you a chance for some really solitary relaxation.

Even if you go hunting with your field pardners the nature of the quarry makes it necessary to separate and quietly go about your individual way. Where else can you get away from it all into the technicolor scenery of fall, sit down under a tree and let your thoughts wander as they may. All this and the prospects for a couple of young bushytails to be fried or stewed when you get home.

Ah yes . . . no wonder squirrel hunting is centuries-old and part of our Ohio tradition. How long has it been since you've been squirrel hunting?

Midget Racing Fame Growing For Jeff Toy

By LARRY O'HARRA

Jeff Toy, a 12-year-old eighth grade student at Hilliard Junior High, is turning out to be a modern day Barney Oldfield in his own right.

Jeff recently piloted his 2 horsepower, 4-cycle quarter midget racer to the U.S. Eastern States' Quarter Midget 'AA Open' title at the Lucas County Fairgrounds in Maumee, Ohio.

THE TITLE qualifies Jeff to race in the Grand National event on Thanksgiving Day in Garland, Tex. Jeff, who has never lost on a dirt track in three years of racing, owns the '64 track record at Maumee in the 'AA Open' class (6.58 for 1 lap or 1/20 of a mile) and the mark wasn't broken or tied in the '64 Nationals.

Owner mechanic Ronnie Gallagher, Adrian Gallagher and sponsor Carl Smith Olds of Toledo keep Jeff's car running smooth enough to win approximately 280 trophies in three years.

Jeff, who resides at 4300 Cameron-dr in Norwich Twp., drove his stock racer to the '63 Eastern States title at Orlando (Fla.) for his father, Sam Toy, who operates Toy's Radiator Service in Columbus.

THE YOUNGER Toy won four championships in Akron last season and placed second in three regional events. This year Jeff copped seconds in the '64 Lansing (Mich.) Regionals and the '64 Monza Race at Indianapolis. Toy's quarter-midget burns fuel and runs in the heavyweight expert division this season.

Area circuit racers predict a bright future for this aspiring young race driver who is competing in a sport that has experienced no fatalities in 15 years of racing.

JEFF TOY, a 12-year-old Hilliard Junior High student, poses with just a few of the 280 trophies he has won on the quarter-midget racing circuit in his three years of competition. The trophy Jeff is holding is his most recent success, the 1964 U.S. Eastern State's Quarter Midget 'AA Open' championship that was held at the Lucas County Fairgrounds in Maumee, Ohio.

E-M, RAMS CLASH FRIDAY

East, Rams, Cards Win; E-M Gains Tie

East presented coach Aurelius Thomas with a hard-earned 12-0 win over East Side Joe Hartley last week and spoiled Jack Ryan's grid debut at the reins of the Hawks.

Sherm Lundy's 17-yard run in the second stanza stood up until Paul Stith passed four yards for six to scatback Kent Schoolfield.

DEFENSIVE signal-caller Pete McKinnon was singled out for special plaudits for his work while big Grady Bobo, Howard Burks and Willie Jackson also stood out on defense. Backs Sherm Lundy and Gary Rispress and linemen Harv Alston, Chuck Roberts and tough Roland Martin shined on the offense.

The Tigers travel to Portsmouth tomorrow night as East tries for win number two at the expense of the tough Trojans.

The Hawks visit Marion-Franklin tomorrow evening and Hartley will have to stop the accurate passing combo of 6'2, 196-pound QB Dale Darnell and the Jackson brothers plus running against a 200-pound line.

Tony Winfield, a 10.4 man, is tough from the fullback slot in a backfield that runs the 100 under :10.7 per man. The Hawks will have their hands full of 'Devils.

WHITEHALL 21
WESTERVILLE 6

Coach Jim Bline's Whitehall Rams engaged in a real defensive struggle with Westerville last week before scoring 15 fourth-period points to eke out a 21-6 verdict over the 'Cats.

Three-year vet Tom Barton's three-yard run gave W-H a 6-0 first period lead but the 'Cats tied it up with an 88-yard run by Dave Talbott. John McQuaid plunged for a pair of two-yard scores and rushed for 111 yards in 15 totes to bring the bacon home for the Rams who meet Eastmoor on the Warrior battleground tomorrow night in the area's "Game of the Week."

WHITEHALL won last year's game, 26-6, but this year's game is a "toss up" with both elevens improved with fine speed and adequate depth.

EASTMOOR 14
NEWARK 14

Over on the Newark gridiron, Bob Stuart's hard-nosed Eastmoor eleven battled to a 14-all standstill with the Wildcats who threatened to pull the game out in the late stages of the ball game.

Newark drove to the E-M 10-yard stripe when the third stanza gun sounded. E-M was trailing 14-6 early in the last era when flashy track hurdler Ron Eiland broke loose for a 90-yard TD run and George Ross ran the conversion over for the tie-making score.

End Gary Cochran recovered a loose Wildcat pigskin in the end zone in the third period for E-M's other TD.

E-M WILL have to stop the bull-like rushes of Whitehall's ace backfielder, John McQuaid, tomorrow night and run through the Ram forward wall (and 6'4, 250-pound Rick Callicoat) if they hope to avenge last year's loss to their neighboring foes.

ST. CHARLES 33
NEW LEXINGTON ST. AL 6

Dick Geyer was all smiles last week as his Cards tripped New Lexington, 33-6, and gave him his first Cardinal grid win.

Halfback Jerry Jones gathered in two of Joe DiCesare's TD tosses (32 and 28 yards) while fullback Andy Young and halfback John Finn had the other Cardinal scores.

Guard Press Southworth demonstrated his kicking prowess as he booted a 29-yard field goal in the fourth period and added two place-kick conversions after touchdowns.

THE CARDS visit Rosary (1-0) at Hartley High Saturday night in a battle of the "unbeatens." Rosary opened with an easy 30-0 win over New Albany behind the passing of Randy Butler and the running of Kenny Pearrell. Geyer will match wits with the first-year coach Steve French of the Crusaders.

DeSALES 16
WALNUT RIDGE 8

Rick Houchen couldn't do it all for Walnut Ridge last Friday as he teamed up with ace quarterback Dave Feyh on a one-yard TD pass and caught the conversion pass for all eight of the Scottie points against DeSales.

The Stallions broke loose in the fourth chukker for the victory as Ken Scheider hit pay dirt on a one-yard effort. Mammoth tackle Dennis Ecklon played like a tiger on the defense for the Scotties.

THE SCOTTIES won't have a picnic Friday at Zanesville where the Blue Devils loom as mighty tough opposition for any eleven.

LOGAN 32
BEXLEY 0

Another coaching debut was ruined last week as Don DeJong of Bexley went through his first gridiron test and came out on the short end of a 32-0 ledger at Logan.

Bexley's strong and determined defense stiffened in the first half and held Logan to an 0-0 standstill, but Logan shook loose for 16 third-quarter tallies and the issue was settled.

THINGS DON'T look any brighter Friday night when Gahanna invades Bexley's den. The line-heavy Lions from Gahanna are real tough defensively and should produce a bundle of problems to Bexley's young backfield not to mention a hard-nosed halfback by the name of Terry Robb.

STEUBENVILLE 20,
AQUINAS 0

Allen Chonko's Aquinas grid debut was marred by Steubenville Catholic powerful Crusaders last week as they muscled their way to a 20-0 win over the improved Columbus club.

Steubenville's stocky halfback, "Buster" Yannon, hit paydirt three times before a sellout crowd as he ran one, five and nine yards for scores.

THE HARDNOSED Crusader forward wall consistently broke up Terrier threats and stopped the Chonkomen on three first downs until the fading minutes when team leader Pat Noles (160) connected on three aerials that helped Aquinas to their deepest penetration.

The Terriers have an open date this week and will continue action on Sept. 25 with a "must" game at Central.

CRUSADER football mentor Gene Slaughter (center) is placing that pigskin in some mighty capable hands as Cap passing whiz Ros Paxson's records will attest. Paxson's strong right arm set new Capital passing records of 19 completions and 295 air yards last season against Baldwin Wallace. Former Eastmoor footballer Larry Gornall (28) has been a regular wingman for four seasons and owns the Cap single game mark of 7 pass receptions. Dean Ishida (2) saw plenty of action at halfback last season but a painful back injury has his status blurred at the moment. Soph Jack Pettorini (15) is a promising halfback from St. Charles who should see plenty of action this fall if his improvement continues while former Eastmoor gridder Jim Makar (31) has been tabbed as a regular halfback. Freshman Pat Burns (71) of Walnut Ridge is a "walk on" candidate for the '64 Cap eleven this season.

15 LOCAL LADS START

Ron Paxson, Depth, Experience 3 Good Reasons For Cap 'Rise'

Capital grid mentor Gene Slaughter isn't making any flowery pennant predictions for his big and rugged Crusader squad this fall but adds, "We'll be a load for anyone this fall."

A couple of reasons why Cap will be a "load" this fall will be the Crusaders' biggest line ever and a solid depth situation.

GENIAL GENE welcomed back 96 candidates from a 2-6 '63 season about one-half of this total "walk-on" boys who came out for the sport on their own.

"I was disoppointed in the poor pre-season shape of the squad at first but we have more good 'hitters' this year than last and the hitting has been real crisp . . . which is a good sign this early," comments Gene.

Twelve seniors starters will carry Cap this fall, an 'unusual' facet at the E. Main-st institution since no more than 2 seniors started a game in the last two years.

OFFENSIVELY, Slaughter will go with junior quarterback Ron Paxson, a Whitehall grad who passed for 579 yards and 7 TD's last year and set new Cap single game marks for yardage (295) and completions (19).

However, Paxson is a notoriously slow starter and Dave Eberhard of Johnstown has been alternating at the throttle spot thus far.

Slaughter's "big back" offense will be spearheaded by E-M's Jim Makar (188), termed the finest blocker in the OC by his coach and Aquinas grad Tom Smith (184) with the fullback slot a question-mark at this time.

CAPITAL coaches were counting on Lenny James (198) and Gordon McMakin (211) to carry the brunt of the fullbacking duties but the former suffered a dislocated shoulder and will be out for 6 to 8 weeks while McMakin is nursing an ouchy ankle and a puled groin muscle.

Pleasant View frosh Bab Neely (185) is currently handling the job and has torn the scrimmage defenses to shreds late1 with his running. Gene terms Neely, "a real hot prospect".

Roger Stephens (195) is currently running ahead of Hamilton Twp. hardnose Gary Mauller (202) at center while frosh Frank Scassa (180) of Massillon pushing hard with his quickness and speed.

CO-CAPTAIN Tom Rutan (207) of Mechanicsburg and soph Paul Ward (204) of Hilliard are holding down the first-line guard jobs with Linden's Lynn Fettrow (180) and spoh Gary Pearch (190) right behind.

Slaughter terms his tackles "the best we've had and we're deep here too." Senior Tom Hamilton (225) of Greenfield holds down one slot with Jim Heine (220) of Massillon right behind. At the other spot, Harold, Beers (225) plays ahead of soph Don Hunt (215).

Four-year vet Larry Gornall of Eastmoor, who set single game marks for seven receptions and 132 yards gained in last year's Baldwin-Wallace game, is back at one end while Hilliard senior Dave Rowe (180) lends support. At the other wing, Dick Angelou of Miami (Fla.) will start ahead of junior Bill Reiker (175) of Cleveland West Tech.

WE'LL have good size and our biggest line ever . . . but our overall speed will be only fair with good 'punch'. Our

Tall Timbers Sets Hunt On Oct. 17

The Tall Timbers Coon Hunter's Association, located 3 miles east of Pataskala on Rt. 16, will hold a registered and grade hunt on Saturday, Oct. 17 and the public is invited to attend.

Eleven trophies will be presented at the hunt and the entry deadline has been set at 7:30 p.m. on Oct. 17. The entry fee will be $5 for every-one.

Gregory Win Skein At 11

Sportsman speedster Don Gregory continued on his winning way, Sunday night at the Columbus Motor Speedway as he won the first sportsman heat, then went on to take the feature, his 11th straight and his 12th win of the season on the Williams-rd oval.

Bob James, of Maple Heights in his third appearance at the South Side raceway, took his second feature by barely beating out veteran Ralph O'Day, in a thrilling late-model headliner.

O'DAY GAVE James plenty of competition in car No. 11, one unfamiliar to him and not quite as fast as his regular car, No. 12, that was out of commission for the night because of mechanical trouble.

This week, the late models and sportsman will have another combined program, topped with a main event in each division. They'll go into action at 8 p.m., following the 7 p.m. time trials.

In the speedway's free game of "Total," there'll be $200 in cash waiting for the fan or fans able to pick the first five finishers, in order, in this Sunday's late-model feature.

Area Gridders Otter Starters

When Otterbein hosts Indiana Central Saturday night at 8, six area boys will see plenty of action for the Otters.

Jim Wacker, a Toledo Scott grad and a former Bexley gridder, will start at left guard while two-way letterman Tom Shoaf gets the nod at right tackle on offense.

THREE-YEAR letter-winner Dick Morrow of Bexley will be a regular at right end while soph Dennie Ferrell of South or freshman Paul Reiner of Aquinas will go at full.

Defensively, 250-pound tackle Mike Green of Groveport will be at middle guard; Shoaf will start at defensive end and Wacker will get the go at the flanker spot.

Action 'Hot' At CBS

The CBS Park Speedway will be in operation this Sunday when the Super B & C racers will run on the high 12-foot ¼-mile banked oval and the smaller classes will be competing on the 1/10 mile blacktop track.

Sunday, the fastest speed record on the ¼-mile track is in danger, since the mighty midgets have turned in 17 second times for the distance and the modifieds have been clocked at 18.4.

SUNDAY'S RACES will be the "Champ of Champs" go-round for the state of Ohio and neighboring states. Rain or shine CBS will run. The track is located on Rt. 33, four miles north of Lancaster.

Labor Day's winners were Starley Riggs, Jack Hansen, Bob LeMaster, Paul Rhymer, Joe Carney, Steve Lowery, Dick Pettit, Norm Kaiser, Charles Sparks and Carroll Moore.

Craig Jones won the "Tail End Race" ahead of nine other entries. Last Sunday's winners were Charles Sparks, Paul Rhymer, Joe Carney, Steve Schear and James Congrove in their respective classes.

Spectator's Football Contest Kicks Off Today!

Up To $100 Awaits Winner Each Week

Are you the man or woman, boy or girl who always seems to pick the winners of football games?

It feels good to say, "See I told you so!" But what's better still is a little cash for your accurate predictions.

Beginning this week and for the next nine weeks, The Spectator would like to reward the gridiron forecaster who selects the most winners of weekend football games.

The person who picks the most winners will receive $25 in cash! If you're good enough to pick all the winners, we'll make it $50.

But that isn't all. The contest entrant who picks the most winners or all the winners will double his earnings just by being a regular, paid subscriber to one of the nine Hartley Newspapers.

If your math is a little out of tune—that's $100!

If you think that probably won't happen, check with Hamilton Township student John, Schreiber. John won $100 in last year's contest.

Everyone can enter. There's nothing to buy. All you must do is follow the simple instructions you see below and fill out.

fill out the entry blank, writing or typing in the winners of the games next to the advertiser in whose block you find the game opponents.

And because football still takes those crazy bounces, everyone still has a chance even if he isn't a real grid expert.

The Contest Editor will allow up to three entries per family.

Two important rules to remember are: In case of a tie among contestants, the one who comes closest to guessing the exact final score of the Ohio State game will be judged the winner.

Tie games will be counted as WRONG unless so specified on the entry blank as ties.

All entries for the contest must be postmarked no later than midnight, Tuesday, Sept. 22, to be eligible.

Send your entries to: Football Contest Editor, The Spectator, 2465 W. Broad-st, Columbus, Ohio 43204.

Don't delay and miss this opportunity to convert your gridiron genius into cash. You might be our first winner.

Paxson—

backfield speed is only fair with the exception of Paxson who is a good runner," added Slaughter.

Defensively, Capital will be huge with Carl Cooper (6'2, 215) and Roy Eulberg (6'3, 217) at the flanks; soph Fred Zeckman (6'1, 215) and All-OC Bob Beelman (210) of North at the tackles; Dave Eberhard and Bill Reiker at the corner backs; co-captain Roger Davis at safety; Hartley's "quick as a cat" Ron Glass (206) at middle guard and either Dave Hockenbery (180) of West Jefferson, Murphy Moultry (180), Ron Mauller (202) or Tom Baranay (185) of Alliance at the linebacking spot.

"Our secondary will be a questionmark but we're improving every day" adds Gene. "Our front seven is solid both ways with good depth at tackle and other line spots. Baldwin-Wallace, Akron, Wittenberg and Muskingum will be improved and tougher with fine material this year but our team morale is extremely high even after last year's heartbreaks and we'll make our presence felt this fall."

SLAUGHTER will be assisted this fall by Whitehall baseball mentor Ted Georgeff (trainer), Jack Landrum, Gene Shade (backs), Whitey Regan and student assistants Jim Garlough, Jim Demo, Paul Schirtzer and Warner Sippola.

1964 SCHEDULE

Sept. 26 — At Mt. Union
Oct. 3 — Baldwin-Wallace
10 — At Heidelberg
17 — At Kenyon
24 — Akron
31 — Marietta (homecoming)
Nov. 7 — At Wooster
14 — Otterbein

Mix one pound ground chuck or hamburg with one teaspoon onion salt and one-third cup cranberry juice cocktail. Shape into four patties and broil or fry to desired doneness . . . makes hamburg taste like juicy steak.

Local Rodeo Is Sept. 19-20

The first Annual Hide-A-Ways Hills Championship Rodeo will be held at the resort at 2 p.m. on Sept. 19 and 20. The rodeo is open to the public and admission is $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.

Hide-A-Way Hills is located five and a half miles south of Lancaster off U.S. Rt. 33.

All proceeds from the two-day event will go to the Hide-A-Way Hills' Volunter Fire Department and the Membership Activities Committee.

THERE WILL be five events scheduled each day including bucking broncs, bulldogging, calf roping, rodeo clowns, girl goat tying and girl barrel races.

In addition to the rodeo, Hide-A-Way Hills will sponsor a cookout breakfast from 8:30 to 10:30 a.m. on Sunday, Sept. 20. Cost for the breakfast will be $1.50 for adults and $1 for children.

Craig Stallings Pirates' MVP

The Shadywood Pirates of the Southeast Ohio Pony League held their annual picnic and awards night recently at Firemen's Park at Buckeye Lake through the sponsorship of the Mother's Club.

Highlight of the evening was the voting and presentation of the Sportsmanship trophy which is symbolic of the team's Most Valuable Player. Craig Stallings, smooth - fielding 14-year-old shortstop, was elected MVP after hitting a hot .364 to lead the Pirate swatters this season.

Craig is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Stallings, 1280 Dellwood-av and will be a 9th grader at Johnson Park this fall.

Paul Hayman Honored

Paul K. Hayman, Jr., local representative for the Brotherhood Mutual Life Insurance Co., is being honored for outstanding leadership in the life insurance business. Hayman has met the membership qualifications of the company's Leaders Club for three consecutive years, based on production requirements and service to policyholders. He is a member of the Robert L. Rupp Agency.

Teen Title Won By Castor Crew

The Castors softball team blasted out a slim 2-1 lead in the top of the fifth to bomb Pegasus, 15-4, to take league honors in the Jewish Center Teen Softball League.

Rick Weis twirled a nifty eight-hitter to take the big win as the Castors supported him with a blistering 15-hit attack.

The winning team consisted of Donald Korenberg, Denny Oppenheimer, Jeff Wohlstein, Rick Goldberg, Rick Mellman, Steve Weiner, Alan Pressman, Rich Weis, Rick Levy and Lou Pobereskin.

Combine cranberry juice and pineapple juice, mixed half and half; keep stored in your refrigerator for a "beat the heat" drink.

Bradley Tapped For Hawk Post

Geary Bradley, an assistant coach at Hartley High the past two seasons, has been appointed head cage coach at the Zettler-av school succeeding Earl Vermillion who has accepted another teaching position.

Bradley, an East Mississippi State grad who also attended Mt. Union and OSU for graduate work on a history major, will also teach physical education and history at Hartley.

Whitehall-Yearling RAM-blings

By SARAH WINGO

Whitehall-Yearling High opened its doors Tuesday, Sept. 8, to 1,352 students—an all-time high enrollment which includes 398 freshmen, 344 sophomores, 310 juniors and 300 seniors.

Mr. Peel officially opened the school year at the Tuesday assembly sponsored by the Student Council. Council President Bill Barnhill, serving as master of ceremonies, introduced the Student Council members who attended workshops during the summer. Included were: Bill Barnhill, Paul Fjelsted, Dave Hurst, Jim Arbuckle, Lynne Ford, Sarah Wingo, Cheryl Welsch and Rhonda Hopkins.

Barnhill then introduced the other officers for this year: vice-president, Paul Jested; secretary, Sarah Wingo; treasurer, Dave Hurst, and chaplain, Terri Hiatt. The committee chairmen will be announced at a later date.

Class officers are attempting to anticipate activities for this school year. Senior officers are: Kenny Koetz, president; Ron Shadrick, vice-president; Laura Fields, secretary, and Micky McGallen, treasurer.

Heading the junior class are: Rick Kocks, president; Cindy Shipman, vice-president; Linda Ray, secretary, and Kendal Lewis, treasurer.

Leading the sophomores are: Steve Beery, president; Sally Shadwick, vice-president; Phyllis Curtis, secretary, and Count Fuller, treasurer.

After a summer of hard practice, the Whitehall Band and the Ramettes (girls' drill team) came out to boost team spirit with a performance at the varsity football game Friday night.

Three majorettes, Becky Vanderburg, Diana Simpson and Judy Taylor, strutted the field for the first time this year. Jill Merryman and Gloria Stultz are enjoying the status of oldtimers.

Also working to enhance school spirit are the cheerleaders. Varsity cheerleaders are Diane Burdiss, Kathy Hackenberger, Terri Hiatt, Rhonda Hopkins and Willa Hsueh. Kristin Cottingham is an alternate.

Reserve cheerleaders are Phyllis Curtis, Rita Watson, Becky Ramsey, Patti Hiatt and Jill Moreland.

The Rams tramped over the Westerville Wildcats Friday, 21-6. Don Gail and Mark Blackstone were co-captains for the firs game.

Commissioners Approve Zoning

Franklin County Commissioners approved rezoning of a 64-acre tract on the south side of Refugee-rd along the east bank of Alum Creek for light manufacturing purposes.

The zoning was granted Tuesday to Robert Kessler and Maurice Evans, 851 S. High-st. There was no mention of any specific industry for the area.

The applicants told commissioners that location of an industry could not be accomplished until the flood plain along the creek is filled.

Transportation Slated

Limited transportation with chaperones will be provided for children to USAF Kiwanis Kids' Day at Lockbourne AFB this Sunday.

Buses will leave from Beatty Recreation Center at 12:30 p.m.

Parents are urged to take children themselves. Transportation facilities are for those cases in which no other method of attendance is possible.

Feeder cattle shipped into Ohio during the first half of 1964 totaled 83,000 head or 20 per cent above the same period last year.

DEMOCRATIC KICK-OFF LUNCHEON HELD

SERVING AS CHAIRMAN

EXEMPLIFYING the "Spirit of Columbus" recently were aviatrix Jerrie Mock and Clete Heck (right), a member of the Franklin County Leukemia Society's board of directors. The annual Leukemia fund-raising drive started Sept. 10 and is gaining momentum this week. The theme of this year's drive is "Maximum Funds for Maximum Research," and the goal has been set at $40,000. 5,000 volunteers are soliciting funds from door to door, with the aid of the Radio Emergency Association Citizens Team (REACT). Columbus police and firemen are contributing their efforts. The Pepsi-Cola Co. is delivering collection canisters to 500 outlets throughout the Franklin County area. Money will be used to implement fast-growing research into Leukemia, which is still an unpreventable and incurable disease.

Former Actor To Give Talk

Scientific prayer will be discussed in a free public lecture Thursday, Sept. 24, by Otto G. Ziegenhagen, a Christian Science lecturer from Chicago.

First Church of Christ, Scientist, is sponsoring the lecture, to be delivered in the church edifice at 457 E. Broad-st, at 8 p.m. The subject of the lecture will be "How Christian Science Destroys Fear."

Ziegenhagen, teacher and practitioner of Christian Science, is on nation-wide tour as a member of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship.

A native of Chicago, he is a former actor. In addition to his stage and radio work, he taught platform art and literary interpretation. He withdrew from these activities in 1942 to enter the full-time practice of Christian Science. He served from 1944 to 1946 as a Christian Science wartime minister and became a Christian Science teacher in 1955.

New Directors Assume Jobs At Center

Stanley Schwartz, Jr., chairman of the Jewish Center personnel committee, has announced two appointments at the center.

Howard Banchefsky has been designated as program director and Kenneth Solomon has been chosen as director of health and physical education.

Banchefsky was graduated from City College of New York in 1952 with a B.S. degree in education.

After being commissioned a regular Army second lieutenant in the infantry, he served four years of active duty including 15 months in Korea with the Third Division. At his present rank of captain, he is currently a staff member of the G-3 section of the 37th Division, Ohio National Guard.

He received his M.S. degree from OSU in 1963 and is a certified teacher in the State of Ohio.

Banchefsky is a member of the National Association of Jewish Center Workers, the Mid-West Section of Health and Physical Education Committee, American Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation, the National Recreation Association and Ohio National Guard Association.

He resides with his wife, Lillian, and two sons at 4247 Medway-av.

In his new capacity, Banchefsky will be responsible for coordinating the entire Jewish Center program.

Kenny Solomon was graduated from Greenbrier Military Academy in 1944 where he lettered in three sports. He served in the U.S. Coast Guard during World War II.

He received his B.S. degree in education from OSU in 1962, and was a physical education director at the Cincinnati Jewish Center for two years.

He is presently enrolled in the OSU Graduate School, working toward a master's degree in adult education. He is a member of Temple Tifereth Israel.

Festival Week At Cap. U. Oct. 3-5

Three days of activities and ceremonies, ranging from football to art, with receptions and scholarship awards, mark Capital University's "Dedication Festival" the weekend of Oct. 3-5.

A football game with Baldwin-Wallace, a president's reception and a military ball are on the agenda Saturday. Monday the Swedish Ambassador will present the music scholarship at an 11 a.m. academic convocation. In the evening a banquet will honor top students.

Great honours are great burdens. — Ben Jonson

FARM FORECAST

with CLAY EAGER

Farmers who produce feed grains and wheat have been given part of the 1965 government feed grain program, as agriculture secretary Freeman announced the acreage diversion requirements for next year's price support program. For the most part, they are the same as used in 1964.

There's a special diversion plan however for small growers, which says any farmer can idle up to 25 acres . . . even if it's more than fifty percent of his acreage base.

I would like to warn that this announcement of diversion payment doesn't tell how much the government will pay in dollars and cents for diversion of acreage. Further details will be forthcoming.

National Grange leaders are still trying to revive the two-price dairy bill in the house agriculture committee. The bill has already passed the Senate, but it has been sidestepped on an indefinite basis by the House Committee.

Under the bill, farmers in each marketing area could decide by referendum whether to use the new system in their milkshed. The plan, if it was adopted in any milkshed, would set up separate price schedules for bottling milk and surplus milk.

A few miles from Lancaster, Ohio (northwest of Lancaster on Fairfield Township Road 201), the Ety Brothers' Dairy is proving a business-like approach to dairying pays off!

In less than one year, they have increased milk production at the rate of 12,240 gallons more milk per year, as a result of good herdsmanship, good dairy management and using a new idea in milking equipment. A national magazine will soon release a special feature on the Ety Brothers Dairy. Bob and Paul Ety suggested I invite our dairy family to visit their farm operation. You are therefore invited!

Tempo has picked up considerably at Don Scott Field as we await the Farm Science Review, Sept. 30 through Oct. 2. This will be a great year for the review and well worth your attendance.

Awarded Certificates

Mrs. Betty Thomae, 625 Wedgewood-dr, Mrs. Lilly Hoppe, 3743, W. Broad-st, and Mrs. Bette King, 1410 Selkirk-rd were among nine new Certified Professional Secretaries who received their coveted CPS certificates at the Sept. 15 meeting of The National Secretaries Association (International), Columbus Chapter.

The status of CPS, attained after successfully passing a two-day examination administered by the Institute for Certifying Secretaries, has been attained by only 3,017 secretaries (including seven males) in the United States, Puerto Rico and Canada.

HOW TO NOMINATE

In a few sentences in your own words, tell why you think your nominee is a good candidate. Fancy language is not important. Judging will be based entirely on these five points . . .

1. How she contributes to creating a good family relationship which includes mutual love, respect, child training, mental and emotional health.
2. How she reveals her spiritual and moral strength—for her home, church, community, the world at large.
3. To what extent she has participated in civic and community affairs—local, state, national or international.
4. How skillful she is in:
   a. Preparing meals
   b. Handling the family clothing
   c. Housekeeping and appearance of home
   d. Shopping and money management
5. Personal appearance, habits, and attitudes toward physical fitness and well-being for herself and family.

Market Slates Grand Opening

Shinner's Markets, retail meat firm, will hold grand openings Sept. 17 at Northern Lights, Great Southern, Great Western and Great Eastern shopping centers.

The company, which operates 48 stores throughout the midwest and in parts of the east, has headquarters in Chicago. It is entirely owned by its employes.

The concept of employe ownership came from Ernest G. Shinner, E. G. Shinner and Company Inc.'s originator. In 1911, Shinner opened a meat market on Chicago's South Side. He learned to supply the wants of his customers with personal attention at the lowest prices.

In 1943, Shinner was operating 28 markets scattered through four states and employing some 170 people. It was this year he inaugurated the Employes' Profit Sharing and Retirement Fund. The company donated to the fund throughout the years to provide employes with monies for retirement.

By 1952, the retirement fund was substantial enough to buy the company from Shinner. After the corporate structure was revised, the company was owned by the employes themselves.

Jack Luke, president of E. B. Shinner and Company, Inc., has carried on the tradition of personal service markets for meat.

Numerous free prizes will be given away during the grand opening. Their specials are advertised elsewhere in this paper.

Last Registration Call

There is still time to avoid the last minute voter registration rush that is sure to occur on deadline day, Wednesday, Sept. 23. The Franklin County Board of Elections office has announced extended hours for those citizens who want to protect their right to vote.

On Thursday and Friday of this week and Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, the Board of Elections will be open for business from 8:30 a.m. until 9 p.m. The normal 8:30 a.m. to noon hours will prevail this Saturday.

And on Wednesday, Sept. 23, all precincts in Columbus and Franklin County will be open for registration from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. and 4 to 9 p.m. Precinct openings will be for registration only. Changes of address will be processed only at the Board of Elections, and must be reported by mail or in person prior to Sept. 23.

The opening of the precincts will allow for registration at the neighborhood level — at the same location where the elector will do his voting.

The Board of Elections has installed a special telephone line to assist those who are unsure of their registration status or do not know the location of their precinct. Such information may be obtained by calling 224-1121.

Those who complain that registration is difficult because their working hours coincide with hours the Board of Elections is open will have little excuse for not registering. They will have five days to take advantage of extended hours, including a full day of registration services in close proximity to their homes.

The obligation to vote is more meaningful this year than it has been for at least the past 30 years. Regardless of partisan beliefs, there is no doubt that this year's presidential election offers "a choice, not an echo."

There is a minimum of "me-too-ism" and a maximum of important differences in philosophy. These important differences will be further defined as the campaign continues.

It is always important to vote in all elections. But some elections are more important than others by virtue of the national and international issues involved. Make no mistake about it — it will make a difference who is elected to national office this November.

How sad it will be for those unregistered voters who are swayed to a cause during the campaign, but will be helpless to express an opinion at the polls. Don't let it happen to you!

Mother Nature's physical fitness program is about to undergo a seasonal change. There aren't many more lawn mowing days left, but the time for raking leaves is almost upon us.

And it's a rather sad change for most husbands. Us old duffers (past 35) may have had some fair success in convincing our wives that mowing the lawn was too strenuous an activity for the white collar man. (Golf, of course, is wholesome and worthy exercise.)

But so little has been written or said about the hazards of raking leaves that it "leaves" us with but one comment:

"Pass the rake, dear."

An Editor's Outlook . . . by Jenkin Lloyd Jones

'Popeye' Ponders White Man's Foibles

My friend, "Popeye" Casey, has gradually been going Indian.

Of course, he never had far to go. He was born 64 years ago at Roff, Indian Territory, of Irish-English-Choctaw parents and was entered on the rolls of the Choctaw nation under his christened name, Pushmataha.

But in the days when he guided float-fishing parties down the Grand River in the eastern Oklahoma hills, handling the tiller grandly from a high dias surrounded by a mound of beer bottles, we called him Popeye. The latter came naturally. He was not only regarded as a nautical expert in an arid country, but his spare frame and jutting jaw were reminiscent of the comic-strip sailor.

The metamorphosis from Popeye to Pushmataha and, more recently, to Chief Pushmataha seems to be the result of intensive philosophizing about the White Man's foibles. A few weeks ago he popped into the office and the photo boys took his picture in his feather headdress. The effect was startling. He looked all Indian.

Jones

Perhaps it was the Indian in him that caused him to voyage by canoe last month down Oklahoma's Canadian River, an evil, alluvial stream that is either a mile or six feet wide. It was certainly the White Man in him that bade him pause for several days while the outboard motor was fixed.

The fact that no one had been down that river since the French voyageurs undoubtedly drove Popeye to try it. Popeye cannot rest until he knows what's around the bend ahead, and there's always a bend ahead.

The hoboes are incessantly pointing out the difference between a hobo and a bum. The hobo is a self-supporting wanderer, a generally law-abiding drifter who is not afraid of intermittent work. The bum is a bankrupt soul, a leech, a thief and a grifter. Popeye is a high-class hobo.

His first long trip was a solo float the length of the Mississippi. He knocked around the world on tramp freighters. He writes poetry and paints pictures. He is steeped in the Bible and reads hugely. He has been a boat builder and for years he guided on the White River in Arkansas and Louisiana's Bayou Nezpique. He listened to his well-heeled clients. Says Popeye:

"The successful businessmen unloaded the burden of their souls on their humble fishing guide. They told me how much they envied me and my way of life. They admitted they didn't have the guts to live theirs as they wanted, due mainly to 'the little woman.' They couldn't buck the matriarchy and they were usually having trouble with their kids."

Although Popeye's formal education ended at eighth grade a big word like "matriarchy" doesn't frighten him. He confesses that much is written with the help of a dictionary. Example:

"Adam was made a unique androgynous being
And while in this state conceived Eve
By endogenous autacoid of the two chromosomes,
Nine months later symbiosis demanded immediate attention.
The Potter anaesthetized Adam for a caesarean."

Personally, I prefer the way Genesis puts it, but Popeye is an unashamed individualist. Recalling the Great Depression, he says:

"When the bubble burst the cowards jumped from 30-story windows. The rugged took another shot of red-eye, chased it with needled Bevo, said 'Nuts' to N.R.A., W.P.A. and F.D.R., and started fighting at least a delaying action against the liquidation of the Constitution and the Bill of Rights"

He attacks present politics with multisyllabic scorn:

"Our so-called watchdogs have become puppet si-necurists.
Accepting administrative spoils of cupiditous lucre.
To finance (they think) a perpetual office
That has degenerated to a Reichsrat puppet
Of Progressionists who revel in subtle subversion
And castigate all Compatriots with fighting guts.
I have spoken—
Chief Pushmataha."

The Chief has now staked his teepee at Longtown Village near Eufaula, Okla., where he will serve as a guide on the big new lake. And his latest communication, received last week, discusses Gibbon's five reasons for the Fall of Rome. It was datelined: "Written on a hill too rugged for a road and up a cove only a canoe can navigate."

And Popeye quotes William Cullen Bryant:

"Stranger, if thou hast learned that the world is full of guilt and misery, and hast seen enough of all its sorrows, crimes and cares to tire thee of it, enter this wildwood and view the haunts of nature!"

A few afternoons ago I was in Grand Central Station watching tailored commuters, ground between driving bosses on the Avenue and domineering wives at home, dash for the bar cars on the trains to Westchester and Connecticut, en route to their early coronaries.

You have to ask yourself, "Who's really nuts?"

Guest Pulpit . .

Hebrews 12:22-29 reveals "some things which cannot be shaken" in this shaking, movable, material world. In this day of doubt, skepticism and materialism it is good to know we can stand on unshakable ground. We suggest the following among the unmovable:

The Being of God, as Creator and Cause of All Things.

The Deity of Christ, as the Son of God, Born of the Virgin Mary.

The Identity, Perpetuity, Divine Nature and All Sufficiency of the New Testament Church, as the Kingdom of God to Which All Heaven's Expectant Citizens Must Belong.

The Holy Spirit as the One Revealing and Confirming the Complete, All Sufficient and Final Will of God Through "Holy Men of God."

The Integrity of the Bible as the Divine Word of God — Sufficient to Furnish All Man's Spiritual Needs.

The Bible, as God's inspired Word, reveals to us the "immovable things" and stands as our ONLY source of Divine Authority in matters religious and spiritual (2 Timothy 3:16-17). To its importance and place in our individual lives we should give serious consideration.

Grinstead

Theories and attitudes toward the Bible are many in religious and non-religious circles. To some it is merely a product of men as other books. To others it is a book from God but is not necessarily binding upon us in this age. To many it plays "second fiddle" to religious creeds formulated by men for various religious groups. The majority claim it as authority in some specific matters but believe they have liberty to add to or subtract from its message and modify when men's desires demand such.

Then there are those who believe in the abiding, "positive" authority of the New Testament. To the saints of God in all ages it is not a product of man, but of God. By them it is accepted as a complete and final authority, furnishing man completely unto every good work and needs no additions, subtractions or modification. With them the simplicity and completeness of the Bible is no accident, but expressive of the Wisdom and Will of God.

Christianity suffers more from human leadership, human philosophy and human wisdom (I Corinthians 1:18-31) than from any other curse. If one would let the brilliance and lustre of God's message shine through to his heart these must ALL be set aside—only then can the gospel and authority of Christ stand out in the thinking of men.

What is your attitude toward the Bible? It should be that of first-century Christians and all true followers of God today. Such an attitude motivates the faith that God has acted for our salvation and through Christ our Redeemer has spoken His final word for our redemption. This Word we have today in the Bible and to its message man must adhere. Our attitude toward the Bible should be one of reverence and respect. Where "God hath spoken," we cannot legislate, for His Divine Word in the Bible is the conclusion of the whole matter.

The Bible reveals to us God, Christ our savior and the church our place of refuge. It tells us how to become God's child and live a Christian life. Matthew 16:18; Acts 2: 37-47; Galatians 3:26-29; John 3:3-7; Mark 16: 15-16; Romans 12:1-3; Hebrews 12:1-3; Colossians chapter 3; Titus 2:11-14; Ephesians 1:19-23; Colossians 1:12-18; Ephesians 5:23-32. To follow it will make heaven our eternal home.

VISIT GRANVILLE

"The heights of great men reached and kept
Were not attained by sudden flight.
But they, while their companions slept,
Were toiling upward in the night."

These lines by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow (The Ladder of Saint Augustine) are carved on the gateway to the long flight of steps on the campus of Denison University, Granville.

Granville is a delightful place for a leisurely visit on an autumn afternoon. Only about 25 miles east of Columbus on Ohio 16, it is one of the many attractive spots within easy reach in our Buckeyeland. You don't have to go half way around the world to see some interesting places.

Historic Granville was so named in 1805 for the Massachusetts town from which its settlers came. The buildings, public and private, reflect New England architecture. Almost all are painted white.

There are many churches, three of them being on or near one corner. St. Luke's Episcopal, built in 1837, has wide stone steps leading up to great double doors flanked by massive columns. Near it are the old opera house, now showing movies, and a historical museum open Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

Granville's chief feature is Denison University on its 500-acre campus on the highest hill in the village. It was founded in 1831, as the Granville Literary and Theological Institution, by the Ohio Baptist Education Society. It was renamed in 1856 for William S. Denison, Muskingum County farmer who gave $10,000. It became co-educational in 1897 by merging with a nearby girls' school.

It says here . . .
Interesting things are often easy to see.

Here's the Answer

One Man's Opinion . . .

To me a cop and a policeman are the same thing. The only difference is that "cop" is often easier to fit in a headline. The big difference is not in the name, but in the attitude most people have towards most law enforcement officers.

Time was when the policeman and the school teacher were given equal billing with the clergyman, doctor and lawyer. Somewhere along the line, the teacher and "cop" were lost in the shuffle of shifting values. The teacher is making a strong comeback. (It helps, I think, that teachers aren't required to dispense traffic tickets.)

The biggest trouble with most police departments is not their personnel. It is a dulled public conscience that permits a double standard. Here are some of the unwritten rules we seem to have set for the policeman:

Direct traffic for my safety, but don't issue me a ticket if I break the law.

Lock up that kid down the street who broke my garage window with a stone. But don't lecture my boy who was letting off steam by throwing stones at the windows of an abandoned building.

Protect me from burglars, muggers and other felons. But don't expect me to put myself out by cooperating if you're investigating a crime against someone else.

And always remember that I am the taxpayer who pays your salary.

And this last reminder is probably the one that makes most cops want to "jug" us first and ask questions later.

—FRANK RYAN

A ROOKIE COACH'S 'OPENING NIGHT'

"WHEN WE GET out of here, we go!" rookie coach tells players in final briefing before kickoff. "And when we go, we hustle from here right down to the final whistle. If we do, we won't have any trouble." Team followed instructions, made few mistakes for an opening game and won, 30-0. Coach, who admittedly had a few pre-game butterflies, at times kept pre-game atmosphere light, helping players to relax.

Opening night is synonymous with a lump in the throat, a pounding in the chest and the flip-flop of large-winged butterflies in the stomach region.

And when the opening night is that of the first football game of the season, there's nothing to dismiss the excitement of anticipation until the first collision of leather against leather.

These feelings belonged to one young coach in particular with the opening of his first grid season.

The rookie coach is Steve French, who at 23 has been given the head coaching reins at Rosary High School, located on the city's Near East Side.

Opening night pressure for a new coach can be strong enough for the stranger but French is no stranger at Rosary High.

The locker where he hung his own practice jersey and stored his helmet now belongs to one of his players. The plays he used to run on the field, he now must run from the sidelines.

The responsibility to do well for alma mater now must come from another direction.

Although preparations for opening night began long before the kick-off, Sept. 11, the final countdown started at 6 that evening.

As players dress, French and assistant coaches Kenny and Jim Long tape ankles.

With players loaded onto a chartered bus, the long ride to New Albany begins at 6:45.

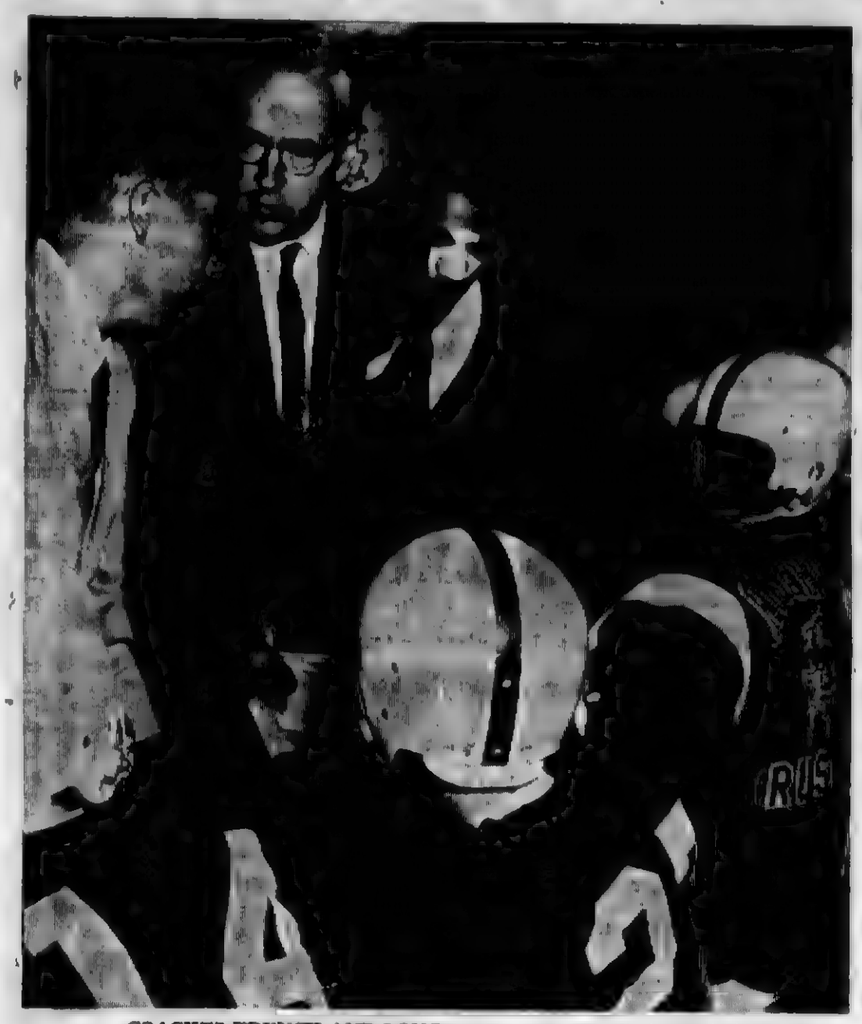
Some brief calisthenics upon arrival and then pass patterns, punt returns and kick-off practice. My quarterback is throwing too hard, get him to relax. 7:30.

"Coach French, I will be your head referee tonight. Please instruct your captains to. . ." The man in the press box needs the starting line-up. My punter doesn't have his steps down right. Have Jim take a look. 7:45.

Players and coaches file into the visitors' dressing room for a final briefing. "What do we do when we leave this room?" A boisterous "We go!" "We hustle right down to the final whistle and we won't have any trouble." 7:55.

We receive. Everybody be sure to report. "Let's go!" 8 p.m. Kick-off.

Rosary scores in the first quarter to take a 6-0 lead. "We're not moving up the middle." A starting end doesn't get up on a pass play. "Halfbacks, carry out your fakes!"



Almost before it began, it's over. 30-0. "We played well and because we did, we won."

Opening night for the rookie coach was successful. The team made very few mistakes for a first game. But there's always next week. And next week begins before you get back to the locker room.

At midfield you grasp the hand of a fellow coach, this time as the victor. Your youngest sister is one of the first to pat you on the back. A long-time team follower runs to catch you and tell you the game was one of the best he's ever seen played.

But opening night comes only once for the rookie coach. The thrill of the first win is past.— the disappointment of a first loss yet to come.

But the butterflies are gone, the lump smaller and the pounding still. In this game, you're a rookie only once.

COACHES FRENCH AND LONG express concern over top end Jim Groce (wearing jacket) who was injured on first half pass play. Rookie coach, afraid Groce had suffered minor concussion, took him to hospital after game. Besides keeping an eye on progress of game, coaches must look out for reaction of players after hard bump afield.

GRIMACING as opposition runner eludes three tacklers, coach reflects sideline pressure in early minutes of opening period. Grimace turned to smile shortly later as Rosary took lead it never relinquished.

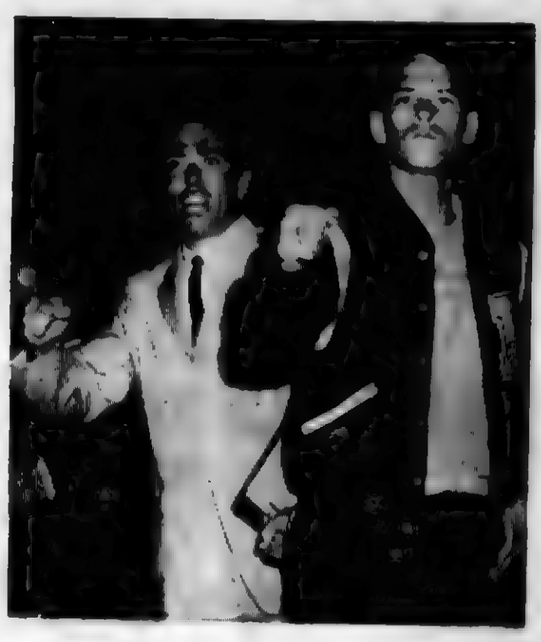
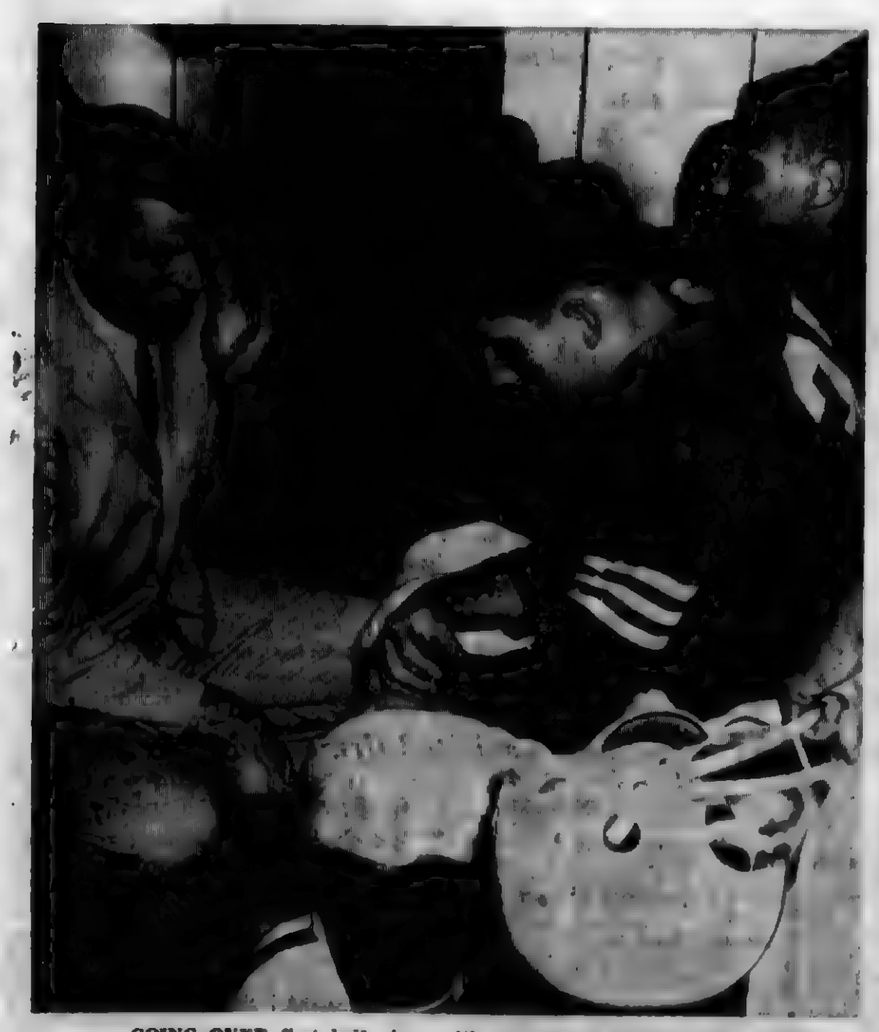
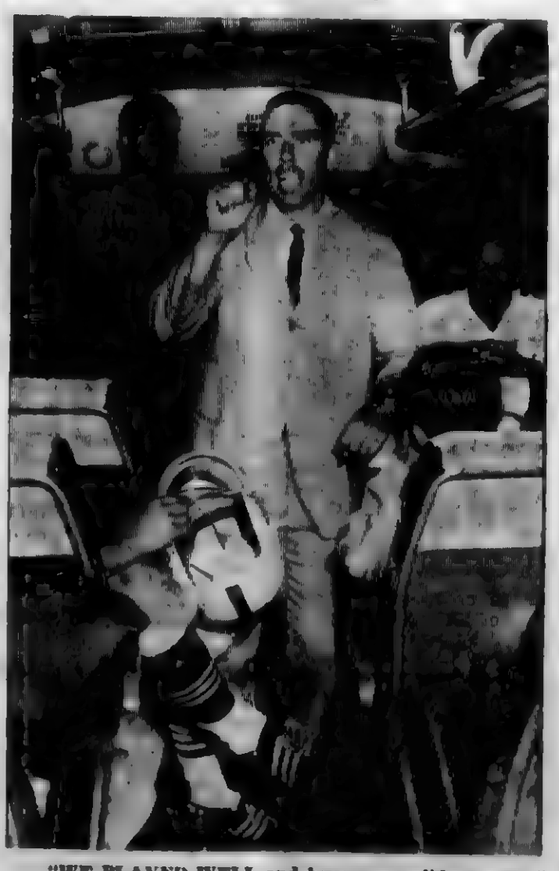
INSPECTING FINAL tape job on key player, French ponders final result of weeks of pre-game training as bus ride, first kickoff draws near for opening night and initial effort as high school coach.



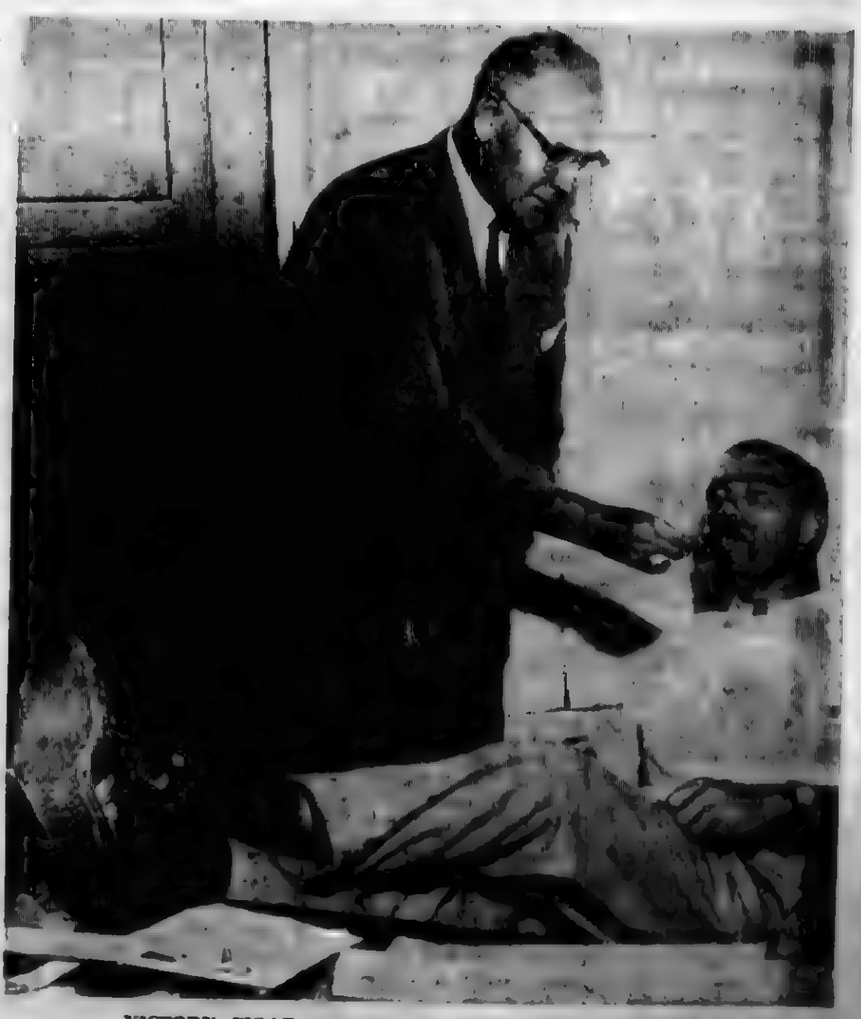
COMPLETED PASS . . .



DID WE GET IT? . . .



FIRST TOUCHDOWN . . .



GOING OVER first half plays with quarterback Randy Butler, French points out weaknesses in opponent's defense, suggesting more play to outside where halfbacks were picking up big yardage. "Randy called a real good game," French remarked after game. "He'll get better as he develops more confidence."

"WE PLAYED WELL and because we did, we won," coach tells players as bus prepares departure for return to school. With victory behind them, players were in high spirits but coach turned thoughts to reality of next game, studying game statistics on return trip. French joined school principal and other teachers on convent veranda upon return to school as players counted down their 30-0 victory.

VICTORY CIGAR presented by golfing buddy, is enjoyed by rookie coach in seclusion of office following opening game win. Assistant coach Ken Long does lighting honors for young coach who was only entering first grade when Kenny began coaching help at Rosary. "Without Mr. Long," the young coach said, "the job would be very, very difficult."

On Older Church Members Rev. Rismiller Writes Book

Rev. Arthur P. Rismiller, geriatrics chaplain for the Lutheran Welfare League, deals with the aging and their needs in a book to be published in October by Augsburg Publishing House.

Rev. Arthur Rismiller

Pastor Rismiller's purpose in writing "Older Members in the Congregation" is to provide churches with material to guide their program of services to older members of the congregation.

"While the book is meant to aid congregations in their services to the older members," the author notes, "it is meant also to declare that the Lord is the giver of life—all of its years — and that it is a privilege to serve the aging, whose strengths have been contributed to the congregation."

Pastor Rismiller has served as staff coordinator for the Lutheran Welfare League in the sponsorship and construction of Lutheran Senior City, a retirement Center for older people in Columbus; as the originator and director of a church-adopt-a-rest-home plan among such facilities in this city; and as a community resource person in the training of volunteers for visiting services among aged shut-ins.

He has written several articles for periodicals on problems of the againg and has participated in work of church and civic groups dealing with such problems. He is a graduate of Capital University and the Evangelical Lutheran Theological Seminary, Columbus.

Succot Service, Dinner Scheduled By Temples

The sisterhood of Temple Tifereth Israel will hold a Succot family dinner at the Temple Sunday, Sept. 20, 5:30 p.m. All members, their families and friends are invited.

Succot is an ancient Jewish holiday celebrating the harvest season in Israel. It is a holiday similar in many ways to Thanksgiving.

Chairman for the dinner is Mrs. Donald Katz. Assisting her are Mrs. Norman Katz, Mrs. Leonard Wasserstrom, Mrs. Martin Adler, Mrs. Jerome Gross, Mrs. Leon Mark, Mrs. Jack Marks, Mrs. Harold Epstein, Mrs. Harold Feinstein, Mrs. Fred Roland, Mrs. Norman Goulder, Mrs. Irving Fireman, Mrs. Jesse Elsen, Mrs. Seymour Chambers, Mrs. Albert Blank and Mrs. Richard Lieberman.

Reservations can be made by calling Mrs. Katz and Mrs. Chambers.

TEMPLE TIFERETH

[illegible] services will be held at Temple Tifereth Israel on Friday, Sept. 18, 8 p.m. with Rabbi Nathan Zelizer conducting the service and Cantor Stanley Burstein chanting the traditional liturgy. Richard Wasserstrom will chant the Kiddush in honor of his Bar Mitzvah.

Services on Saturday morning begin at 9:15 a.m. Rabbi Zelizer will speak on "Sin Degrades." The Bar Mitzvah of Richard Wasserstrom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wasserstrom, 2340 Bexley Park-rd, will be celebrated.

Services in observance of Succot will be held starting Sunday, Spt. 20, when Rabbi Zelizer will speak on "Trust in God." The Tifereth Israel Sisterhood will sponsor its first annual Succot Family dinner at 5:30 p.m. on Sept. 20. This will be followed by Succot services and an Oneg Yom Tov.

Succot services are scheduled for Monday, Sept. 21, at 9:15 a.m. Rabbi Zelizer will speak on "Not By Night." Mincha Maariv services are scheduled for 7 p.m. on Monday, Sept. 21, and 9:15 a.m. for Tuesday, Sept. 22.

Pour equal parts cranberry juice cocktail and strong tea over ice; garnish with a sprig of fresh mint for a thirst quenching meal time beverage.

Bryon Kohn Watercolors On Display

A comprehensive collection of watercolors by Byron Kohn is currently on display at Scottwood Community Church, 3330 Scottwood-rd. Included are scenes from Maine as well as Southeastern Ohio, and two paintings which depict the railway stations at Canal Winchester and Hamden, O.

Although this marks the beginning of the fourth season for art exhibits at the church, it is the first show devoted entirely to watercolors. Kohn, whose work has been displayed throughout Columbus and Central Ohio, prefers this media to all others, and describes his painting style as ranging from impressions to the more familiar realism.

This exhibit will continue through Oct. 15, and may be seen daily in the church between 9 and 5; Sundays, 9 to 12 and 5 to 9 p.m.

Season Closes At Free Theatre

The Christian Free Drive-In, located just south of 1900 W. Mound-st, will present "The Story of Ruth" in cinemascope and color, Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 19 and 20, 8:15 p.m.

The film, starring Elana Eldan and Stuart Whitman, will be the last film shown this season. Free pop will be given to each child 15 years old or under and the church group having the largest number present Sept. 19 will receive a free skating party for the entire group at Hilliard Skating Rink, Hilliard.

Bantam Football Starts Saturday In Whitehall

Whitehall Bantam Football League season will start Saturday, Sept. 19, with games and scrimmages scheduled at different locations at 9 a.m.

Parents and interested friends are urged by the sponsoring committee to attend.

In the Pee Wee division, ages nine to 12, the Bills will meet the Pariots at City Park.

And at the two fields at Robinwood, the Chargers will play the Oilers, and the Chiefs will meet the Bronco.

In the middleweight division, the Colts, Cowboys and the 49ers will have scrimmage at City Park.

ASKS TRANSFER

Holiday Inns of America, Inc., Peppermint Lounge, 53 Country-rd, Whitehall, seeks to transfer a liquor license to Holiday Inns of America, Inc., Holiday Inn-East, 4801 E. Broad-st, Whitehall.

The night club license allows the sale of beer, wine and liquor by the glass until 2:30 a.m.

Interracial Congregation Marks Year

The congregation of Bethany Christian Church, Wilson-av at Fulton-st, marked its first anniversary as a new interracial congregation on Sept. 13.

The sermon was delivered by Rev. Vern Rossman, department of Christian Action and Community Service, United Christian Missionary Society of the Disciples of Christ, national office of the Christian Churches.

The morning worship was followed by a luncheon and program. A summary of the year was given by Mrs. Washington Smith. The program was directed by Paul Stewart, chairman, assisted by Mrs. Marlene Chavis, Mrs. Elizabeth Peoples, Lancelot Saunders and Percy Taylor.

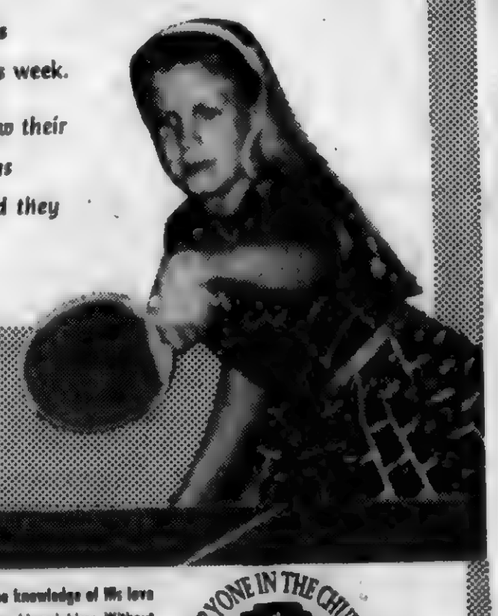
OUR USE OF LEISURE



None of us can make our best contribution to life unless we take care of our physical selves. The right kind of recreation renews the body, mind, and spirit.

There should be a proper balance and rhythm between work and rest. Our Lord meant for us to enjoy life and intended no man to punish his body with unrelieved work.

Of course our recreation should be of a kind that would actually re-create our spirits and bodies and make us better able to perform our work.

Part of our leisure time should be spent renewing our spirit by worshiping God in His Church. We invite you to attend services this week.

"But they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run and not be weary; and they shall walk and not faint." Isaiah 40:31.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

ASSIGNMENT TELEVISION

By Terrence O'Flaherty

At least once a month for the past decade there has been a publicity release that some big movie star or other is at last condescending to work on television. In most cases the real truth was that there was no demand for them in films anymore anyway.

Despite the size of the name and the reputation there is often something pathetic about this situation even though it is inevitable in show business and completely understood as one of its hazards.

Early this summer it was announced that Rita Hayworth will be the guest star on a dramatic series for television, and just recently Janet Leigh told the press that she will make her dramatic television debut this fall! Golly, it kind of gets you. Right HERE.

Miss Leigh has appeared on television to plug her movies, naturally, but this is the first big acting job. It is an unfortunate time to start an acting career on TV. She will be on Bob Hope's Chrysler Theater, the best — and only dramatic show left on television.

"A dramatic television show is like doing a movie, only you do it in less time," Miss Leigh said. "So I was leery, wondering how you can do a good job. But I found on this show that we take as much time on the scenes as we need to.

"By not making myself available for television I've become very desirable somehow, only because television can never have enough people. It's a marvelous monster, it devours people. They're always in need of people who've not been exposed very often."

They'll get to Doris Day yet!

The most interesting project announced for the new season is a series of six 90-minute filmed dramas based on the numerous activities of the United Nations, man's most distinguished effort to get along with his fellow man. The project is to be bankrolled by a $4 million grant from the Xerox Corporation.

Since the first announcement of the project last April there have been many reports that the series was not going ahead as planned. A statement from The Telsun Foundation announced that it still expects to make the U.N. series and is confident that it will be on the air by the first of the year.

Telsun is the name of the nonprofit organization established to develop the series for Xerox. One of the first plays to be produced is a story of brotherhood by Rod Sterling titled "A Carol for Christmas." Another is Tad Mosel's drama about refugee seamen titled "The Land Bird," which is being produced and directed by George Sidney and will star Maria Schell.

The project has enlisted the support and the services of other top moviemen including Otto Preminger, Sam Spiegel, Fred Zinneman, and Joseph L. Mankiewicz, all of whom are still connected with the series.

Four of the big dramas will be televised by ABC and two by NBC.

This may be the year of David Janssen. Last year at this time nobody guessed it. That's television! The attractive and capable star of "The Fugitive" won public acclaim and awards and received the final video tribute—the show was renewed for another year. But the sure sign of "boxoffice" is the revival of the star's old films and TV programs.

Dance Studio Registration Is Opened

Jacquie Hardy Studio of Dance is re-opening this week with the fall schedule of classes at both the downtown and Hilltop studios.

Class or private instruction is available for all levels of advancement in tap, ballet, modern jazz, and baton. Modern Jazz and Baton are offered downtown only.

There was an open house at the downtown location, 44 E. Long-st on Sept. 13, at which time slides from the June dance revue were shown.

Interested persons may register for classes by calling or visiting the studio at 44 E. Long-st.

Dolly Derby Plans Revealed

Plans are under way for the fifth annual Dolly Derby, a project in which Girl Scouts dress dolls for Goodwill Industries.

More dolls are needed for the project, and families who have dolls to donate are asked to place them in a Goodwill Collection Center or include them with items to be picked up by calling a Goodwill truck.

Doll-dressing tips will be demonstrated at Dolly Derby clinics at Goodwill Industries, 1331 Edgehill-rd, Saturday, Oct. 10 and 17, from 9:30 to 11 a.m. Mrs. John E. Palcich, 274 Charleston-rd, will speak at both clinics, and Mrs. Helen Jones Rea, public relations director of a local cleaners, will show and discuss her firm's dolls.

Although the Scouts may choose dolls to dress, dolls are checked out to troop leaders, both at the clinics and on succeeding days at Goodwill Industries as follows: Oct. 12 through 16, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., and Oct. 19 through 23, 2 to 5 p.m. Dressed dolls are returned Nov. 5 through 19.
